CENTRAL'S IMPROVEMENTS

Road Will Elevate its Bridges When Allowed to Close Draws Temporarily.

TO BETTER ITS TERMINALS.

Development of Meadows in Sight—Tract Elevation One of Its Important Undertakings.

Closely following the report of the Advisory Dock Commission, which has been investigating different plans for carrying out the dock scheme voted by the people of Newark last year, comes the Central Railroad of New Jersey with tentative plans for improving its terminal facilities in New York, Jersey City and Newark.

An official connected with the engineering department of the road was asked yesterday when the Central Railroad intended to replace the bridge across Newark Bay on the main line. He said that the Central would not do anything in replacing the bridge until it had elevated its line into Newark from Jersey City, across the meadows. Part of this work is now going on between Elizabeth and Newark. There is a creek there, the bridges over which have been weakened. Rather than place two new bridges there, to be taken down at a later period, the road is installing a single track bridge, which will be used by trains until the elevation work is completed.

The same official said that the road contemplates elevating its tracks over the Hackensack and Passaic rivers so that tugboats and scows may pass under their drawbridges without making it necessary to open them. But it will do nothing in this particular until the road can obtain some order from the War Department of Congress allowing it to keep these bridges closed during commuter rush hours, or between 7 and 9 a. m. and 4 and 6 p. m. Nothing will be done in the matter of improving the facilities of the terminal in Newark until this concession is obtained.

Newark merchants are opposing this movement. The Pennsylvania, as well as the Central and other roads crossing the rivers at points below Newark, was interested in a bill of this nature two years ago, but opposition was so great that it was temporarily abandoned. Nothing is being now with the matter except that the Central is holding off improvements in Newark until such time as it can have exclusive right of way between Newark and Jersey City, so as to give improved service sufficient to warrant making the change.

Following the improvements in Newark, the road intends making improvements to its Elizabethport station, crossing and bridge approach. With the Newark bridges closed during the rush hours, the Elizabeth or Newark Bay bridge also will be closed, and then better service will be given between Jersey City and Elizabeth and points beyond, said the official.

The Central Railroad, however, will first improve its terminals in New York and Jersey City. Work on the new West street terminal is now progressing, and by December the new station will be entirely completed. Then work will be probably started in improving the Jersey City terminal.

The Central is preparing to improve its service so as to meet the improvements on the Pennsylvania, with its tunnel service under the river.

The Central also plans these improvements to take advantage of the development of the Newark meadows. The government has been pumping the silt and soil from the bottom of the rivers on to the meadowland, and miles and miles of this heretofore waste property have been reclaimed. They have been raised to a level of six feet in some cases, and on these factories will be established in the near future.

According to the report of the Dock Commission, over 1,000 acres of meadow land are to be improved; a canal 350 feet wide, 22 feet deep and, about 4,000 feet in length emptying into Newark Bay, is to be constructed, and along this are to be built bulkheads for thirty feet of water, wharves, streets and terminals. The maximum cost is placed at $10,975,600.

Recommendations of the commission call for the width of the canal to ultimately be 700 feet, with a depth of 30 feet at low water. It will give the city of Newark a port that will be open to the commerce of the world.

The Central Railroad, with its two branch lines, the Newark-Jersey City and Newark-Elizabeth, plans to take advantage of early benefits of this development of this land.

FIGHT $200 CLAIM OVER CONCRETE MIXER

Walter L. Hetfield, representing C. M. Meeker, and W. A. Coddington, counsel for the Ransome Concrete Company, have filed their briefs with Judge Newcorn of the district court, in the case of the Ransome Concrete Company against C. M. Meeker, in which the company seeks to recover from the defendant for the lease of a concrete mixer used on the brick pavement contract. The case was tried in the district court several weeks ago, and at the conclusion, Judge Newcorn requested counsel to submit briefs.

It was the contention of the defendant that the concrete mixer did not prove to be as represented, that it failed to do the work. On the other hand the company claimed that the machine was in first-class condition when delivered to Mr. Meeker. The company brought suit for $200.

COLLINS TO WITHDRAW AS DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

The Democratic County Committee will not meet again until the delegates have returned from Denver and the leaders are free to give their attention to municipal and county affairs without having them overshadowed by the national convention. At the first meeting of the committee following the convention, probably in July, General D. F. Collins will withdraw from the chairmanship of the county organization, and there is every indication that William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, will succeed him. Mr. Tuttle is the only candidate seriously considered in connection with the office as yet, and he will probably assume the leadership of the county committee without opposition.

Owing to the fact that conditions are naturally unsettled in the stress of preparation for the convention it has been deemed wise to defer the meeting of the county committee, but no time will be lost in getting down to business when then ational delegates have returned. Mr. Tuttle has announced that he is not desirous of entering a contest for the chairmanship of the county committee and that he does not wish to stand for the office unless the committeemen are ready to give him generous support. Judging from the present attitude of the county workers he will experience no difficulty in securing practically a unanimous vote.

MISS ULRICH BECOMES MRS. T. HAROLD BROWN.

Miss Elizabeth Townley Ulrich, daughter of Former Assemblyman and Mrs. John Ulrich, of College place, and T. Harold Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Yardley Brown, formerly of Fairview avenue, but now of Philadelphia, were married yesterday noon at the home of the bride. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and intimate friends.

The bride was gowned in white swiss, trimmed with lace and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. There were no attendants. The wedding march was played by Miss Ellen Holmes Ulrich, a sister of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held and later the couple left for a wedding trip to Canada. They will reside in Philadelphia, on their return, where the groom is engaged in the publishing business.

The bride was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the Class '04 and since that time has been teacher in the public school at Weston, Somerset county. The groom was graduated from Purdue University, Class '06, after which he engaged in the publishing business in Philadelphia. The couple received a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends.

FOURTH OF JULY RACES

Fine Card Offered by the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club for Saturday.

CUPS AND CASH PRIZES GIVEN.

To Be Six Events in All—Entries Larger Than Ever—Music and a Good Time Promised.

Entries are coming in rapidly for the big Fourth of July race meet to be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association, Saturday afternoon, when an exceptionally strong card will be offered, including a steeplechase, two running races, a free-for-all and two trot and pace events. Purses aggregating about $800 in prizes will be given the winners, including several cups. The prizes in the free-for-all and two trot and pace events, amount to $150 each. The entries in these races are complete and some of the best horses to be found in this part of the State will be seen here.

A large force of men are engaged this week at the park putting the track in the best condition for the races, and everything will be done for the comfort and convenience of the large crowd that is expected to attend. A full brass band has been engaged and will furnish music throughout the afternoon. Arrangements have also been made to have stages meet every trolley car on Park avenue, so that there will be no delay in reaching the park.

A. C. Blair is the chairman of the racing committee, and he expects that the entry list wil be complete tomorrow, when all of the entries for the steeplechase and running races will be posted. The admission to the park on Saturday will be fifty cents. The complete entry list in three events is as follows:

G. O. P. Outing, August 8.

The Union County Republican Committee has arranged to hold its annual outing at Witzel's Grove, Long Island, on Saturday, August 8, and all the faithful ones will make the trip to the grove in the steamer "Isabelle," leave Elizabethport. The Plainfield members of the committee in charge of the outing are Councilman Herbert Buxton and Andrew McCardell and tickets can be obtained of them or any member of the county committee.

At New Trolley Stand.

Garthwaite and Hetfield will have charge of the lunch counter in course of erection at Fourth street and Watchung avenue, the new trolley stand. W. H. Olmsted will open a branch there for newspapers and periodicals. The construction of the stand and the roofing over the sidewalk at the corner to form a temporary waiting room is now well underway.

"Jack" Hall a Contractor.

John P. Hall, of this city, who conducts Camp Ram's Horn on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, has taken up the contracting business at the popular resort. There is a large field for work of this kind about the lake and "Jack" is already making a success of it. His first contract wos for the excavation of the cellar of F. T. Woodhull's new cottage.

CORTELYOU OPENS BIDS FOR PLAINFIELD P.O. SITE

At the office of George B. Cortelyou, Secretary of the Treasury, at Washington, D. C., this afternoon, proposals for the $125,000 postoffice site for this city are being opened and considered and the decision of the Government is to be announced after the locations are viewed. At least five properties have been offered as sites for the new building, and the owners have sent in their proposals, specifying location, price and improvements on the property.

Embracing a proposition to cut through a street between East Second and East Front streets, a site just to the west of fire headquarters has been offered for the new building, and the proposal for the sale of this land was sent to Secretary George B. Cortelyou yesterday. The property offered measures 160 feet on East Second street and is 150 feet deep. The site is at a point 277 feet from Park avenue.

Should the site be favorably considered at Washington, a street is to be cut through from fire headquarters to East Front street, at a point directly opposite the Woodhull and Martin building. This will bring the property offered on a corner, and the fire house will be on the opposite corner of the new street. The street will come through to East Front street at the point now occupied by a store recently erected by Dr. Albert Pittis.

David T. Kenney owns the land opposite fire headquarters, and it is reported that if the site is accepted, the new street may be extended through to North avenue, making a thoroughfare between North avenue, at a point nearly opposite the depot, and East Front street.

Among other sites offered by Plainfielders are the Embury estate, at East Front and Church streets; the Iroquois Hotel property, at Park avenue and East Second street; the Durlach property, at East Front street and Watchung avenue, and the Force and Hicksite Friends' property, on the east side of Watchung avenue between Second and Third streets.

TERRILL ROAD BIDS TO BE OPENED FRIDAY

The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet at the Court House, Elizabeth, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to receive bids for macadamizing and otherwise improving Terrill road, the thoroughfare having been made a State aid road. It is understood that there will be a large number of bidders from various parts of the State.

The road to be improved extends from Green brook to South avenue, a point near The Maples, and is about a mile and a quarter in length. It was understood that David T. Kenney offered to improve the other end of this road from the bridge over Green brook to Mountain avenue, in the brough, and it has been the hope of the Union County Freeholders that all of the work could be started at one time. The estimated cost of the improvement in this county is $15,000.

MORE TROLLEY "KICKS" FROM THE WEST END.

Residents of West Fourth street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, are "up in arms" at the action of the trolley company in leaving the roadway in deplorable shape after the installation of the new turnout. A lot of loose macadam stones were thrown in between the rails but that is as far as the work has gone. There are several large holes in places where they are a menace to vehicles and bicyclists and it is conceded more good luck than management that has prevented an accident. The location of the switch is in one of the narrowest parts of the street and the condition of the roadway makes it a hard proposition for anyone to get by when a wagon stands near either curb.

Plainfielders at the Lake.

The following Plainfielders registered Monday at the Hotel Breslin, Lake Hopatcong: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gahagan, Miss Gahagan, Edward Gaghagan, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Willmerding, A. Akins, Mr. and Mrs. William Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews, Miss Ella Carpenter and John Carpenter.

BROADWAY'S BOOKINGS

THE VERY BEST ATTRACTIONS.

Paid in Full, The Wolf, Polly of the Circus, Witching Hour, Merry Widow and Honor of the Family Included.

Manager W. J. Counihan, of the New Plainfield theatre, returned to his summer home at Fair Haven today after spending a short time in town to make arrangements for the opening of the local playhouse. He announced just before his leaving that the initial attraction for the coming season would be seen on August 8 and that a large number of big productions would closely follow. The bookings for 1908-9 are the best that have ever been obtained, practically all of them being Broadway successes of the season just closed.

A partial list of the shows and stars that Plainfield playgoers will have a chance to see are the following: "Paid in Full," "The Wolf," "Polly of the Circus," "The Witching Hour," "The Gay White Way," "The Honor of the Family," "The Thief," "The Merry Widow," "The Soul Kiss," "Miss Hook of Holland," "Lola from Berlin" with Corinne in the title role, The Rogers Brothers in their new production, "The Three of Us," "The Servant in the House," "A Knight for a Day," "A Waltz Dream," "The Girl Behind the Counter," Ethel Barrymore, Wilton Lackaye, Kyrle Bellew and Grace George in new plays, Victor Moore in "The Talk of New York," "Fifty Miles from Boston," "The Mimic World," "The Three Twins," "The Gay Musician," "Bandana Land," "The Top o' the World," Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady," Yorke and Adams in a new musical play, Robert Mantell, Ermette Novelli, Sousa and his band, George Evans' Honey Boy minstrels, Al G. Fields' minstrels, Chauncey Olcott, Al Wilson and Joe Horitz in new plays, "The Music Master," "The Girl of the Golden West," and many others.

Mr. Counihan's new vaudeville house in the Reform hall building will be opened on August 15. The work of alteration is now underway and when completed will make the place a handsome and cosy theatre.

TROLLEY OFFICIALS INVESTIGATING COLLISION.

The collision between a main line trolley car and a business rig belonging to William Chamberlain, of East Third street, Saturday afternoon, has proven to be more serious than was at first considered and the railway officials are conducting a strict investigation. The accident occurred at Third and Richmond streets as Mr. Chamberlain was driving home.

Beside the owner of the rig, there were four other men in it, Isaac Miller, of East Third street; Spencer Scribner, John Conroy and George Baughn, all of Muhlenberg place and South Second street. Chamberlain was going straight across the tracks when the car bore down upon him and he attempted to get out of the way by turning sharply toward North avenue. He was not quick enough, however, and the wagon was struck from behind, turning it completely over and throwing the five men and a small dog in all directions. Miller has since been confined to his home, Conroy and Baughn were badly used up and Chamberlain sustained a broken finger. The vehicle was damaged but it is impossible to determine as yet just what injuries the horse received.

The dog in the wagon belonged to Mr. Chamberlain and it disappeared after the crash. It did not return home until late Saturday night. There was also a large quantity of paint in the vehicle and a couple of gallons of it were thrown over the men as they were struggling in a heap.

E. S. HOOLEY HEADS A NEW BANKING FIRM

The term of agreement having expired yesterday, the Stock Exchange firm of Hooley, Learnard & Smith has ceased to exist. The business will be continued by a new firm which has been formed under the name of Hooley, Learnard & Co. By this arrangement Abram G. Hooley will be associated with his brother, Edwin S. Hooley, in the business.

The members of the firm are now E. S. Hooley, Abram G. Hooley, G. E. Learnard, F. E. Brumley, J. B. Chamberlain and G. H. Johnson. C. G. Smith, who retires from the firm, was for nineteen years associated with Counselman & Day and was manager and a member of Charles G. Gates & Co., from the time of its organization to its dissolution. He will leave soon on a long vacation trip.

For a great many years E. S. Hooley has been one of the most active traders in Wall street and has figured in many of the biggest deals recorded in financial circles. The new firm is said to be one of the strongest formed in New York in recent years.

E. S. Hooley is now abroad, having gone to London to attend the annual horse show.

CONTRIBUTIONS COMING IN FOR CLEVELAND MEMORIAL

The Cleveland memorial fund being raised by this paper in conjunction with other leading newspapers throughout the State, took another jump today when ten dollars was added to the local subscriptions. A. J. Staats, of the Watchung Spring Water Company, contributed a five dollar bill, while Henry Windham made a like donation in the name of his hostelry, the Hotel Waldorf.

As already told in these columns, there is no political significance in the movement to honor the memory of the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States. Governor Fort, United States Senators Kean and Briggs and many other distinguished men form the committee.

Auto and Wagon in Collision.

A collision between Gus. Weber's automobile, driven by himself, and a horse and wagon in charge of the steward of the Watchung Hunt Club, on West Front street, Monday afternoon, resulted in throwing the horse and breaking the shafts of the wagon. Mr. Weber was going west on Front street, when the rig with which it collided suddenly turned into the alleyway next to J. A. Smith & Brothers' grocery. Before the wagon could clear the street the collision followed. The machine was not damaged to any extent.

Father Bogan at the Retreat.

Father B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, is at Seton Hall, South Orange, on the annual retreat of the State priests. There are about 100 priests attending, and this is the last week of the two annually set aside for the priests' retreat. Father Brett, a Jesuit from New York city, is in charge this year. The retreat will break up tomorrow moning.

Postmen on Vacation.

Letter-carriers Daniel Mack, Chas. B. Stephens, Charles Glaentzer, Phill Giese and Clerk John Conkling, of the local postoffice, started on their annual vacation today. They are given fifteen days off, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, which means they will get three extra days, two Sundays and Fourth of July.

CURTIS SENT TO PRISON

ENTERED A NON VULT PLEA.

Was in New York on Chief Kiely's Charge and Fought Hard Against Extradition.

Before Judge Atwater in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth, this morning, Douglas G. Curtis, who has several aliases, pleaded non vult to two charges of uttering forged checks on the First National Bank in this city. He was immediately arraigned for sentence and after a strong plea on the part of his lawyer he was committed to the state prison for three years. He will be taken there at once.

Curtis is the man who, with "Kid" McGinniss, made out two checks on the bank, one for $100 and the other for $90, and signed the name of W. F. Wilson, manager of a grocery at Front street and Clinton avenue, to them. The $90 one was sent by messenger for payment and was cashed but a similar attempt with the other met with failure. McGinniss was caught by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and was sent to prison for a year, his punishment being made light because he gave information that led to Curtis' identity. The latter made his escape and was not caught until six weeks ago when he was picked up on the street in New York by a secret service man. He fought hard against extradition to New Jersey but his efforts met with failure and he was turned over to Chief Kiely.

The arrest and conviction of Curtis and McGinniss has resulted in the break-up of one of the most dangerous gangs of forgers and check swindlers in the East. Curtis was the recognized leader and operated extensively in New York, Newark, Paterson, Philadelphia, Trenton and Camden. McGinniss had been with him but a short time when he was caught but he has a New York police record. Another member of the gang is now awaiting trial in Massachusetts and a fourth man was recently sent to Sing Sing upon conviction of forgery in Brooklyn. When arrested on the Plainfield charge, Curtis advanced $500 to a lawyer to oppose extradition.

SEVEN SUNDAY-SCHOOLS GO TO SHORE TOMORROW.

The "open season" for Sunday-school excursions begins tomorrow and from then until August 20, the annual outings of the various schools will be held, with Asbury Park as the objective point in each case. This season the excursions are to start from the North Avenue depot fifteen minutes later than in previous years. The start will be made at 8:15 o'clock instead of at 8, so as to allow the commuters to get their morning papers and their trains without crowding the masses of pleasure seekers or falling over lunch boxes and baby carriages in making a quick get-away.

The Crescent Avenue church excursion will start the Sunday-school seaside exodus tomorrow, when a special train of a dozen cars will take pupils from that school and Holy Cross, Grace, Seventh-Day Baptist, St. Stephen's, Heavenly Rest and Bethel chapel Sunday-schools for a day at the shore. The train will make up at Dunellen at 8 o'clock, starting from the North Avenue station at 8:15. On the return trip, the excursionists will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 o'clock, and the train will stop at Netherwood, Clinton avenue and Grant avenue on the return trip. The train will arrive at the North Avenue station at about 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Indications are that the South Jersey grape crop will be one of the largest ever known.

Jeremiah Donovan, a farmer near Mt. Holly, dropped dead from apoplexy while working in his garden yesterday. He was sixty-two years old.

Hugh Cunningham, a prominent farmer, living near Westville, was kicked in the abdomen by a horse yesterday and is in a serious condition.

The Glassboro Jail had its first occupant for many months yesterday when John Dayton, of Williamstown, crazed by drink, attempted to "do" the town.

Thomas Jowett, of 115 Madison street, and William Reed, of 674 East Twenty-third street, each ten years old and both of Paterson, were bitten by dogs yesterday.

The women of Clayton threaten to appeal to Council if the Board of Health does not look after the sewer wells. The women also want Council to purchase a street sprinkler.

Just to see what a nice, big bonfire it would make, the five-year-old son of Elwood Kier, of Ewan, set fire to his father's barn yesterday, and it was destroyed, with most of the contents.

Charles R. Myers, one of the prominent and wealthy hotel men of Atlantic City, stricken with appendicitis was rushed to a private hospital yesterday afternoon and is to undergo an operation.

Miss Maude Gibbon and Professor Arthur Radcliffe, of Millville, have received notice that they have successfully passed the examination for the associate degree in the American Guild of Organists.

Speaker of the House Frank B. Jess acted the role of pacifier very acceptable yesterday, when a small-sized panic ensued as a result of a broken live electric wire falling on a Haddon Heights trolley car and igniting the roof.

Accused of selling cocaine to negroes in the southern section of Camden, Mary Lee and Josephine Wilson, also colored, were held in $500 bail by Justice of the Peace Thompson, yesterday. The defendants were arrested by Police Captain Stanley.

Three-year-old Sophia De Geyter, of 384 Madison avenue, Paterson, while sliding downstairs, fell two flights in her home yesterday afternoon, receiving injuries which were at first thought to be fatal. The child was taken to the General Hospital.

Charles H. Lang, former hotel clerk, who is alleged to have robbed the Hotel Hygeia, Atlantic City, of $50 and then attempted to escape capture by leaving the city and then doubling back, was held under bail for court yesterday, and is in jail in default of bonds.

Falling thirty feet from a beam in the top of a barn, Norman, ten-year-old son of Frank Borton, of Woodstown, crashed thrugh the floor and struck the hard cement floor in a cow stable below. Both arms were broken, one in two places; his neck was wrenched, and it is feared he is internally injured.

Convicted on a charge of breaking and entering a storehouse of the Public Service Corporation at Westmont, James Morschno and Joseph Canello were yesterday sentenced to fifteen months each in the State prison by Judge Joline in Camden. Nicholas Angelo, who turned State's evidence, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100.

Early morning melodies of pier and Boardwalk orchestras at Atlantic City have been placed under the ban of Mayor Stoy, who has issued orders, directing the police to see that all music is stopped before 12.30 o'clock. The town was never so completely on its good behavior at the beginning of the busy season as it is now, according to the police.

Swimming in Cooper's Creek, at Greenville, Camden County, John Genther discovered a tin box containing documents stolen in November from the home of W. H. Wiggins, of 544 York street, Camden. In the robbery the thieves also carried away jewelry, a portion of which was located in a Philadelphia pawnshop. One arrest was later made on suspicion, but the suspect was discharged.

Through a telegram he sent to his wife, Alexander Thacuzk, of 1730 Perry avenue, Camden, landed in the county jail yesterday. He disappeared about a week ago immediately after he was charged with forging a check for $140 sent him by the treasurer of a Russian beneficial society for benefits due to a woman on the death of her husband. The accused man is the secretary of the society in Camden.

FIRST TROLLEY CAR ACROSS ORANGE MOUNTAIN

After fifteen years' effort the first trolley line over the Orange Mountain started running yesterday. Frank Brewer, who during all this time has endeavored to show that the plan was feasible, will for the present run the cars in a half-hour headway. Application will be made to the West Orange Town Council tonight for a franchise to cross Valrey road, and when this is obtained Mr. Brewer will open negotiations with the Public Service Corporation with a view to running his cars to Main street, Orange, and to South Orange avenue, South Orange. This will lessen the headway on the present South Orange and Maplewood line one-half, as the Orange Mountain Traction Company's cars will run in between the cars used on the Maplewood line.

Work will be continued this week on the extension of the mountain line to the St. Cloud section and in a few days work will be started on a sweeping curve near the top of the mountain to replace one of the switchbacks now in use. The two other switchbacks on the road will be continued.

EXTENDING "SKEETER" WAR.

Contract Awarded for Draining Cheesequake Meadows.

New Brunswick, July 1.—State Entomologist John B. Smith yesterday morning awarded the contract for draining Cheesequake meadows to Jesse P. Manahan, of Monmouth Beach, for $3,100. The work will be finished at once. It is on these meadows that the mosquitoes which bother this city breed. Speaking of his work he said:

"We calculate to be able to drain off all the meadows within a week, and for the remainder of the year there will be no trouble with the asit meadow mosquitoes in the drained sections. We have gone over the entire ground from Jersey City to Sandy Hook, and will have it all cleaned out by midsummer.

"The weather is responsible for the present return of the mosquitoes and the Newark meadows. Along the Shrewsbury, where the drains have been in the longest, weh ave found an average of two eggs to the square inch of sod. Continuing our investigations further up the State, the number increased. The drains made only last fall, where there is a full stock of eggs, showed fifty eggs to the square inch. That means 700,000 eggs to the square foot. When the number is decreased from fifty to two eggs a square inch you cannot help seeing that the work is proving itself most satisfactory."

RECORD SIXTY-SEVEN RESCUES.

Captain Wilson, of Bayonne, Makes the Latest When Woman Falls from Pier.

Bayonne, July 1.—Captain Frederick C. Wilson made his sixty-seventh rescue from drowning yesterday, when he saw Miss Laura Walsh, of Port Richmond, Staten Island, fall from a pier into the Kill Van Kull. She was unable to swim and without waiting to kick off his shoes, Wilson swam to her assistance. He brought her to shore in a partly unconscious condition. She was laid on the Bayonne beach and soon revived.

Wilson was forty-seven years old yesterday and has been given several medals by the government for bravery. Two winters ago he rescued three boys who were drifting helplessly on an ice floe in the same stream. He lives in a stranded packet boat, which he has made into a comfortable dwelling on the beach here.

RAILROAD BOARD BLAMES D. L. & W.

Trenton, July 1.—At the meeting of the State Railroad Commissioners yesterday, the board, after considering the reports made to them and from the evidence in connection with the wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company at Millington on June 5 last, found that the railroad company was responsible for the wreck, inasmuch as the rails were not properly spiked and, further, that the company allowed several gangs of men to do the work without having any particular person in charge of the whole work.

Each of the foremen in charge of the gangs, it appears, endeavored to shift the blame upon the other.

The findings of the board, based upon the testimony taken at the Essex county court house on June 22, are as follows:

At the point where the accident occurred the railroad company engaged in replacing sixty-seven-pound rails with eighty-pound rails, and the train in question was moving at the rate of at least twenty-five miles an hour, eastbound. It was derailed a few feet east of the facing point switch, which had been temporarily secured by spikes. In the opinion of the superintendent and the principal assistant engineer in charge of maintenance the accident could have been explained only by the fact that said switch point was not securely and properly spiked. In this opinion the board concurs.

The testimony as to the spiking of said switch point is weak and inconclusive, inasmuch as the section foremen responsible for the sections, including the switch point, could not swear as to how many spikes had been driven at the switch point or as to whether or not the work was properly done. Another section foreman testified that he passed the point in question about one hour before the wreck and on his own motion drove an additional spike at the switch point.

In the opinion of the board it is probable that the spiking was not properly done. The testimony shows that no warning or "slow order" was given to the passenger train prior to its approaching the temporarily fastened switch point. In the opinion of the board such precaution should have been taken. The testimony of the witnesses revealed the fact that as many as four section foremen were working in the vicinity of the accident, neither one of whom had complete charge of the work, and the responsibilities seem to have been divided and indefinite. In the opinion of the board there should have been some one official or employe in charge of the work and solely responsible for the safeguards which the circumstances required.

"Lou" Wiltse, who is trying to make arrangements to leave the Jersey City Eastern League Club and sign with one of the big league clubs, should have no trouble in making a desirable change. He declares that he was never in better condition, has perfect control, good speed and all the curves including the famous "spit" article. He is positive that he cannot succeed in Jersey City, especialily with the players now comprising the team. In nearly every game he has pitched there the team has made from five to nine errors and there seems to be an utter lack of team work. "Lou" has had several offers, but is holding off for the best one. Eugene McCann, formerly on the pitching staff has been made manager to succeed Joe Bean, who was a miserable failure in that position.

The great game of interest on Saturday will be between Clinton Avenue and the Y. M. C. A. to be played in the afternoon on Crescent Oval. Jim Scott and Clifford Randolph will be the opposing twirlers and both feel confident of victory. Scott has been held in reserve for several weeks for this game and has been keeping in fine condition. Both teams have been putting up a fast article of the national game and there is no reason why the contest should not be full of interest to the local fans. In the morning the Clinton Avenues will play the Newark Stars on the Oval, and as the Stars have been cleaning up everything in this part of the State this game should be a fast one.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, has been able to schedule games with Somerville, High Bridge, Elizabeth, Rahway and many of the best teams in the State, but for some reason unknown to him he cannot get a contest with Flemington. What is the matter, Miller? The Plainfield boys will give you a good game, play fair, and even if you do get beat, that will be no disgrace, for better clubs than Flemington have fallen before the locals.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team will play its next league game with Elizabeth at the latter place, Saturday, July 11, when the county seat boys will do their best to retreive lost honors. Last Saturday Plainfield had no trouble defeating Elizabeth, and walloped them by a large score. The chances are they will repeat their performance at Elizabeth, as the locals are improving rapidly in playing the game.

Among the best games played hereabouts on Saturday was the one between the Plainfield A. C. and Harrison A. C., when the former club won by a score of 2 to 1. The fielding was sharp and brilliant and there was plenty of hitting throughout the contest.

GOLF.

Word has been received that Charles H. Seely, the Metropolitan champion, has been appointed captain of the M. G. A. Olympic team with full power to select his players. The Olympic competition will be held over the Rock Island Arsenal course on Saturday, July 11. This date immediately precedes the Western Golf Association amateur championship. The Olympic event consists of thirty-six holes medal play and the Metropolitan team won the trophy a year ago at Cleveland.

The professional's shop and caddie house of the Arsdale Golf Club in East Orange was destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. Until a few weeks ago the building was used as the clubhouse, but recently the members moved into larger and better quarters a short distance away. The loss was not so severe as it might have been, for the reason that most of the personal effects of the members had been removed to the other building. There were, however, a number of sets of clubs in the shop, along with the stock of the professional. The loss is estimated at about $1,500, partly covered by insurance.

It is said that Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, national and New Jersey champion, will not be seen again in an important competition until the amateur championship is held at Garden City in the fall, when he will defend the title. Travers' last appearance was at the invitation tournament of the Wykagyl Country Club.

Dates have been announced for the annual invitation tournament of the Morris County Golf Club, October 15, 16 and 17 being the selection. This is the week following the intercollegiate tournament to be held at Brae Burn.

There will be a one day handicap tournament for members at the Wykagyl Country Club on the Fourth of July, the nine hole qualifying round to begin at 9 a. m. sharp. The first eight in Class A will qualify for a cup presented by Louis C. Goetting, that in Class B. for a cup given by C. W. Inslee and the eight in Class C will keep on for a cup from T. V. Bermingham. On Saturday next the qualifying round will be played for the July class match play handicaps.

C. West Tainter, of the Richmond County Country Club leaves for Lake Geneva, Wis., today for a taste of Western golf, and he will not be East again until the amateur championship at Garden City. Lake Geneva is the summer home of H. Chandler and Walter Egan and of Nathaniel Moore.

NEW CHURCH ASSEMBLY OF JERSEY METHODISTS

The Rev. Herbert F. Randolph of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Montclair, is organizing a Summer Assembly at Mount Tabor, Morris county, to be conducted along the lines of the General Conference of Christian Workers at Northfield, Mass. He was authorized by the last Newark Annual Conference to organize this new movement.

Among the prominent speakers who have been engaged for the Assembly is Prof. Hugh Black, of Montclair. He will bring with him a classmate from Edinburgh, Scotland, the Rev. U. B. McLeod, minister of Candish church, Edinburgh. This will be Mr. McLeod's first visit to this country. The services of the Rev. W. L. Watkinson, who is regarded as one of the leading preachers of England, have also been secured. The Assembly will be in session from July 22 to August 2, and the attendants will live in tents.

Mount Tabor is a beautiful Summer resort about five miles beyond Morristown. During the afternoons of the Assembly, athletic events will be conducted by the Field Club. On Friday, July 31, a great temperance rally will be held at which the famous Southern orator, G. A. Young, of Louisville, Ky., will be the chief speaker. On August 1 Alexander Irvine, the famous lecturer on social topics, will deliver his lecture on "The Bunkhouse and Some Bunkhouse Men." Prof. Isaac H. Meredith will conduct the music during the Assembly.

Fox Hunter Found Helpless.

Glen Gardner, July 1.—Nathaniel Skinner is in a precarious condition at the home of his son, Abraham Skinner, at Rocky Run. Mr. Skinner, who is one of the oldest men in Hunterdon county, and a noted fox hunter, resided alone in Irishtown, a suburb of this place, and was found yesterday morning in a semi-conscious state by one of his neighbors. A physician who was called said Mr. Skinner had a stroke of paralysis some time during the night which rendered him partially helpless and also affected his mind. He was later removed to his son's home.

—L. E. Waring, of West Seventh street, will be one of the judges in the harness and saddle classes at the Atlantic City Horse Show.

General D. F. Collins is a good Democrat for he has announced his purpose of resigning the county chairmanship of his party immediately after Mr. Bryan's nomination for the Presidency.

Oh, for the day when we will have a "safe and sane" celebration of the Fourth of July, and not a semi-barbaric sort of demonstration that savors of the heathen Chinee's idea of rejoicing!

A five dollar bill was received by The Daily Press today for the Baby Baby Camp on the mountain. It represents the contribution of Charity Circle, King's Daughters. Following our annual custom, donations will be received at this office and promptly acknowledged through these columns. Who's next?

The Common Council would set a dangerous precedent and permit a great menace if it should allow certain local automobile garage concerns to place gasolene tanks, of 1,000 gallons capacity each, under the sidewalks in front of their places of business. It would rather be unjust to accuse that body of even seriously considering the requests.

It must make Robert Davis feel sick to realize that James Smith, Jr., is going to Denver. A day or two ago, the Hudson county boss, believing that the former Senator would stay at home, chuckled with glee as he announced that the Bryan band wagon from Jersey was already filled and there was no room on board for the Newarker. And right here we make the prediction that the resourceful and tactful Mr. Smith will give that Jersey band wagon such a jar after it treaks to Colorado that it will need a better political machinist than Mr. Davis to make the necessary repairs for the homeward trip.

CHURCH IS TEN YEARS OLD.

Bound Brook Presbyterians Observe Anniversary of Its Dedication.

Services to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the dedication of the present house of worship of the Presbyterian church of Bound Brook were held last evening. Although the present structure is comparatively a new one, the history of the congregation dates back to the latter part of the seventeenth century. In 1684 Scotch Presbyterians, driven from their own country by religious persecution, settled on the Raritan river in this vicinity. In 1688 regular preaching services began under Rev. Mr. Romain, a French Huguenot, who is buried in the cemetery at Bound Brook.

The date of the organization of the church is not definitely known, as all records previous to 1805 have been lost, but it is believed to have been before 1700. According to tradition the first house of worship was a log structure, built among the willows on the Raritan river bank. In 1725 a church building was erected at what is now East Main and East streets. In 1760 this church was torn down and a larger one erected, which, in turn, was enlarged in 1787. In 1829 this was replaced with the fourth structure. In 1851 the building was struck by lightning and badly damaged. When this injury was repaired the church was enlarged. February 6, 1896, this church was completely destroyed by fire during the worst flood that Bound Brook has ever known, the church being surrounded by water five feet deep at the time of the fire. The cornerstone of the present stone structure, at Union and Mountain avenues, was laid August 1, 1896, and the church was dedicated June 30, 1898, free from all debt.

Rev. C. J. Culp, the present pastor, was installed December 3, 1903, the eleventh regularly installed pastor in the church's history. Rev. High MacCauley and Rev. Titus E. Davis, who spoke last night, are the only living former pastors.

ARRESTED LAUNCH CREW.

Hopatcong Boat Had Neither Licensed Pilot Nor Licensed Engineer.

Lake Hopatcong, July 1.—Steamboat Inspector J. Fred Runyon, of Morristown, who has a summer home in Halsey Island, yesterday took into custody two men from the launch Hollywood for running without either a licensed engineer or a licensed pilot. The men were taken bfore Justice of the Peace Cyrus E. Cook at Mt. Arlington, but formal charges were not preferred, since Mr. Runyon was inclined to be lenient. When the two men were placed under arrest at the landing dock they showed fight. Louis and Herman Decker assisted Runyon.

SPECIAL SESSION POSSIBLE.

Governor Fort Undecided as to the Calling of One.

Trenton, July 1.—Governor Fort declared yesterday that he was still undecided as to the calling of a specitl session of the Legislature. He will take the matter up Friday, and will then see what can be done as to supplying the funds to run the various State institutions until the close of the present fiscal year.

The Governor met with the State House Commission yesterday, and it was said that it was practically decided not to begin the alterations of the Senate chamber this year.

Brewers Get Boynton Beach?

New Brunswick, July 1.—There is a persistent report that a large Newark brewery has purchased Boynton Beach on Staten Island Sound, which has been conducted by Captain C. W. Boynton as a temperance resort for a number of years. The report started soon after Captain Boynton's death, a couple of weeks ago, and was denied by the Boynton Brothers, who now conduct the resort. It has bobbed up continually since, and today a man who claimed to have inside information said that if the deal had not been concluded it would be soon. The Boyntons again denied the report.

Gambling Raid at Shore.

Atlantic City, July 1.—A raid was made at 11 o'clock Monday night by the police on the cigar store at 818 Atlantic avenue, conducted by Louis Schoenthal. The proprietor was arrested on a gambling charge. A dozen young men who were in the place were taken to police headquarters as witnesses. Schoenthal was released under $500 bail.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Wilson S. Frederick and Postmaster Henry S. Garrretson attended a preliminary meeting of the newly formed Middlesex County Republican Club at New Brunswick last night, and it is probable that a large percentage of local Republicans will be enrolled when the organization is completed. The purpose is to have a county organization for the regulars, and the first work of the new club will be to have a perfect exposition of the primary law. Candidates which the organization will support for the county offices have not yet been announced.

Mrs. Michael Nolan, Thomas Brennan and N. E. Meyers, who were injured when a main line trolley car jumped the track at DeKalb avenue Saturday night, are reported to be improving steadily. Mrs. Nolan was the most severely injured of the local victims of the accident, and is suffering with severe contusions, as well as many cuts and bruises. The probability of internal injury cannot yet be ascertained although an examination has been held.

Superintendent Lester Meseroll is making up a camping party of borough boys and is planning to lead an outing to Lake Hopatcong next week. Several have signified their desire to join the tent dwellers at the lake side and there will probably be about a dozen of the campers.

Miss Olive Bodine is visiting Miss Gertrude Robbins, who has returned to spend the summer at her home at Hyde Park, Mass.

Joseph Fisher is spending a few weeks visiting at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Susan Ramsey, at Lebanon.

Mrs. Edmund Teel and son Edmund are summering at Ontario, Canada.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The fans will enjoy two ball games on the Fourth. In the morning the annual game between the Benedicts and single men will take place, game will be called at 10:30. The Benedicts, notwithstanding the cares, trials and troubles of married life, can play ball some and the single men will have to put up a good game to retain the championship which they won last season. In the afternoon at 3:30 the regular team will play the All-stars of Newark.

The members of the Epworth League are arranging to hold a picnic in Johnstown woods, on the afternoon and evening of July 9.

John Cottrell, formerly of this place, but for a number of years past a resident of Bayonne, is planning to build a house in Plainfield or its suburbs in the near future.

Benjamin Clark, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital last week, suffering from a complication of diseases, is reported as improving nicely.

The work of remodeling the borough building, which will be used as a borough hall, is about completed.

The school building in district No. 2 is receiving a new coat of paint. Henry Keuhn has the contract.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The general committee of the Independence Day celebration has issued a call to all citizens asking them to decorate their houses and place of busines on July 4. At the final meeting which will be held this evening, the ful program will be arranged. The Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company has accepted the invitation to parade and it is expected that the Polish Artillery will also take part in the festivities.

Miss Nellie Manning is resting at home for a few days after a half year's work in the public school at Irvington. She wil shortly proceed to Northfield, where she will enjoy the conference, and remain for the balance of the summer.

Robert Horn, Jr., who came over on Sunday to attend the funeral of his aunt, has returned to his home in Brooklyn.

Miss Grace Norman will return home Friday, after a stay of two weeks with her grandmother at South River.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Jackson, of Camden, are staying with their son, Charles, on Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne have returned from a pleasant visit with friends in East Orange.

Lester Soper, who has been visiting relatives in Newark, is expected back on Friday.

TRENTON UNVEILS ROEBLING MONUMENT.

The $14,000 bronze statue, erected by a popular subscription of the citizens of Trenton in honor of John A. Roebling, designer and builder of the Brooklyn Bridge and founder of the John A. Roebling's Sons Company, the largest single industry in the city, was unveiled with elaborate ceremonies at Trenton yesterday. The dedication exercises were preceded by a street parade in which six thousand workmen employed in the Roebling plant, in Trenton and the town of Roebling, participated, marching to the music of nine bands. The monument stands on the most commanding knoll in Cadwallader Park. It is an heroic representation of the late Mr. Roebling in a siting position and surmounts a massive pedestal of Swedish granite.

Governor Fort attended the unveiling. The dedicatory address was made by Henry D. Estabrook, of New York, general counsel for the Western Union Company, who is connected by marriage with the Roebling family. He traced the career of Mr. Roebling from boyhood, laying especial stress upon his unselfish devotion to the work of building the Brooklyn bridge, in which work he developed the ailment that caused his death. Mr. Estabrook was introduced by Edward C. Stokes. The statue was unveiled by Miss Emily M. Roebling, daughter of Charles G. Roebling and granddaughter of John A. Roebling.

A course of two hundred voices, led by Dr. Carl Hoffman, sang patriotic selections, and German folk singers and nine massed bands played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Washington A. Roebling, Ferdinand W. Roebling and Charles G. Roebling, sons of John A. Roebling, with their wives and children and grandchildren, occupied places of honor during the unveiling ceremony. A fine bronze wreath, sent by the people of Muhlhausen, Germany, Mr. Roebling's birthplace, was placed on the statue after it was unveiled.

WAS FIRST USED AS A SYMBOL.

Origin of the Star and Crescent on Turkish Flag.

Very ancient are the star and crescent of the Turkish flag. Their origin is explained as follows: The characters of the language of Mesopotamia, like the Egyptian, were originally hieroglyphic. One of the early picture words was a crescent and a star and this picture, which was pronounced "shiptu," was employed to express an incantation or exorcism, or anything capable of driving the evil spirit from the body of which it had taken possession. Clay tablets recording the ancient exorcisms have been found in the ruins of Mesopotamia and at the beginning of such tablets appears the sign which developed from the crescent and the star. The symbol, therefore, may have been not only the word for incantation, but a charm from which the evil spirits were supposed to flee. In every age in the orient the people have possessed similar charms. The Assyrian kings stationed winged monsters with forms half human at their gateways, to keep all evil from entering within the palace. The poorer people suspended clay tablets above the entrances of their houses. The modern oriental may purchase in the bazars blue glass beads, verses from the Koran wrapped in leather cases and other devices to serve a similar purpose. The crescent and star formed a symbol which the Mesopotamian of 6,000 years ago employed as a charm.

EARLY FERNS OF SPRINGTIME.

Interesting Development of the Cotton Into the Fiddle Head.

As real names, cotton and fiddle heads have not enough in common to bring them together in one title; but as fanciful names for the two earliest stages of the springtime ferns, the two are closely associated. The "cotton" fern soon merges into the "fiddle head."

Just as the buds of trees and shrubs are beginning to swell cottony tufts appear all over the ground of the lowlands in many places, and so close is the resemblance that at first glance it seems as if little balls or wads of cotton had there been scattered broadcast. These balls conceal the ends of the young fern fronds, the botanist using the term "circinate" to describe the form of rolling or unrolling. As soon as the fern has grown an inch or two in height the cottony appearance disappears and the "fiddle head" form becomes very marked.—St. Nicholas.

Too Hard to Pronounce.

A well dressed man entered a florist's shop near the city hall the other day, threw down a dollar and said he wanted some flowers to take home, declares the Cleveland Star. He was quite unsteady, evidently tapering off a spree, and the flowers were apparently intended as a domestic peace offering. The florist picked out a collection of hyacinths and the caller started to leave, but at the door hesitated, "I say," he said, thickly, "what's these flowers called?" "Hyacinths," said the florist. The customer shook his head, and, as he walked back to the counter, said: "Gotter have something easier. Gimme a dozen roses."

Lucky Herdman.

A curious legend attaches to the discovery of the marble of which Ephesus was built. The rams of a herdman named Pixodorus fought whilst feeding on the hill. One of them—in the contest—with his horn, broke the crust of the whitest marble. The peasant running to his Ephesian fellow-citizens with the specimen, his prize was received with applause, and his name was changed to "Evangelus—Giver of Glad Tidings," and the stone being excavated for Diana's Temple divine honors were subsequently paid to him!

Military Logic.

"But experience teaches that there is no stopping the flow of military logic. From its own point of view it is quite reasonable. The security of one range of hills requires the occupation of the next; and the retention of that second range requires the conquest of a third. So it goes on. As Lord Salisbury once said to Lord Cromer: 'If you listened to all that soldiers want, you would be asked to consent to the fortification of the moon against a possible attack on the earth from Mars.'"—London Spectator.

To Banish the Goat.

Malta's celebrated goats are likely soon to be only a memory on the historic island, for it has been found that banishing goats' milk means an end to the ravages of Malta fever. The commission appointed in 1907 to trace the origin of the fever in the garrisons and crews of warships made the discovery that the germ of the fever was present in the milk of the goat. Wherever the use of this milk has been prohibited the fever has disappeared.

Phonetics.

"What picture does it bring to your mind, Katie Smith, when we sing 'Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue?'"

"I see's 'em bring out three chairs, teacher; a chair for the red, a chair for the white and a chair for the blue."

Lovely Woman.

Miss Oldgirl—Mr. Dasher hadn't been alone with me five minutes before he offered to kiss me.

Miss Caustique—Well, he's considered to be the most charitable man in the city.—Brooklyn Eagle.

NO TIME WASTED.

Prompt Action Is Pleasing Many Plainfield Citizens.

Get down to the cause of everything.

Bad backs are caused by sick kidneys.

Cure the kidneys you cure backache.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidneys only.

Plainfield people endorse their merit.

Mrs. C. Rosseter, of 127 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Years ago I had backache and headaches, and was troubled also from attacks of rheumatism. On being advised that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, I got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy, and found relief soon after I began using them. I now keep them in the house, and use them whenever I feel a twinge of pain in the back or any other symptom of kidney trouble, and it only requires a few doses to chase the pain away. I especially recommend them for rheumatic pain, for my system seemed to be filled with it before I used the remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SCHOOL CHILDREN WITH MONEY.

"Where do school children get all the money they take to school?" was asked a New York teacher who was worrying over the frequent thefts from the pupils in her room.

"I don't know," she said. "The situation is puzzling. It is a fact that almost every child brings money to school. Many of them have only a cent to buy a doughnut or a stick of candy, but others carry surprisingly large sums. Not long ago the charges of theft were so frequent in my room that I tried to stop this universal carrying of money. I asked the mothers not to give their children money during school hours, except in cases where it was really needed to buy luncheon. Many of them promised to cut off the allowance, but the small coins continued to circulate just the same. A few mothers declared that they gave the children money for safe keeping. I learned that one girl in my class came to school day after day with from $20 to $30 pinned in her clothes. The father spent everything he could lay his hands on, and as the little girl's garments were the only place where he could never find the money she was converted into the family bank."

The plan seemed to work, so far as the spendthrift father was concerned, but it worried the teacher.

WAS NOT THE VICTIM OF CUPID.

Young Man There for Quite Other Than Sentimental Reasons.

She said it was a shame, an outrage. She was a timid, reserved girl, who gave no man encouragement to flirt, yet—

"There is that man," she said, "bothering the very life out of me. I don't know how many times he has seen me in the street somewhere and has followed me right up to the door. The next time he annoys me I shall get the hall boy to order him away."

She had occasion to speak to the hall boy the next evening.

"Do you see that man in the vestibule lighting a cigar?" she said. "I wish you would order him away."

"I can't," said the boy.

"But you must," she said, angrily. "He has no business to be hanging around here."

"Pardon me, but he has business here," said the boy. "He lives on the third floor."

Old Gloves.

They have about 50 or 60 kid gloves at the ticket office down at Union station, gray suedes, undressed kids—every old kind. But the trouble is that among them all there is not one pair. They are all odd gloves, mostly "lefts." You see most men carry their money in their left-hand pockets, and when they're buying railroad tickets, they take off the left glove. Then when they go away and leave the gloves the boys in the ticket office are no better off than if they had left nothing behind but an air of mystery.

"It's surprising, too," they say at the ticket office, "how many men have one or two fingers missing. Out of the lot of old gloves now there, a dozen or more have at least one finger gone. The ticket sellers watch for men who have fingers missing and try to match them up with gloves that correspond. With that exception, most of the gloves go to waste.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The "Woman of Stenay."

The name of the "Woman of Stenay" is revered in Lorraine as a national heroine. In the Napoleonic wars a detachment of Austrians visited Stenay and demanded a cask of wine. "The Woman of Stenay" promptly brought one, telling the soldiers they were welcome to her store, and drank a cup of wine to their health. The soldiers promptly drank, but in a few moments 400 men were writhing in agony on the ground; the "Woman of Stenay" rose from her seat, saying: "You are all poisoned! Vive la France!" and she fell back a corpse.

Birthplace of the Icebergs.

We might call Greenland the world's ice box. If you glance at the map you will see that the state of New York, large as it seems to us, is not over one-twentieth of the size of Greenland, for New York contains only 47,000 square miles.

Then think that the glaciers are steadily moving away from the center of Greenland, really being crowded off the land, and it will not seem so strange that here is the birthplace of nearly all of the icebergs that are so feared by the mariner.—St. Nicholas.

In Bulk Only.

"What are you paying for poetry to-day?" the long-haired man inquired.

"I'll have to consult the janitor," he said. "We are not buying heavily at present. Just a little now and then to accommodate our friends. But we never buy it in less than ten-pound lots."

Whereupon he went back to his desk and the caller faded away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

According to Orders.

"How do you do!" exclaimed the letter carrier as he greeted the auctioneer.

"I do as I am bid," answered the auctioneer, with a fiendish grin.

"Much the same here," rejoined the l. c. "I do as I am directed."

THE PRINCESS ELOPES

(COPYRIGHT, 1905, BOBBS-MERRILL CO.)

By HAROLD MacGRATH

AUTHOR OF "THE MAN ON THE BOX," "HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

CHAPTER VI.

The princess rose at dawn the following day. She routed out Hans, the head groom, and told him to saddle Artemis, the slim-limbed, seal-brown filly which an English nobleman had given her. Ten minutes later she was in the saddle, and the heaviness on her heart seemed to rise and vanish like the opal mists on the bosom of the motionless lake. A pale star blinked at her, and the day, flushed like the cheek of a waking infant, began drowsily to creep over the rolling mountains.

How silent all the city was! Only here and there above the chimneys rose a languid film of smoke. The gates of the park shut behind with a clang, and so for a time she was alone and free. She touched Artemis with a spur, and the filly broke into a canter toward the lake road. The girl's nostrils dilated. Every flower, the thousand resinous saps of the forest, the earth itself, yielded up a cool sweet perfume that was to the mind what a glass of wine is to the blood, exhilaration.

Mottled with pink, and gray, and blue, and gold, the ever-changing hues of the morning, the surface of the lake was as smooth as her mirror and, like it, always reflecting beauty. Fish leaped forth and fell with a sounding splash, and the circles would widen and gradually vanish. A blackbird dipped among the silent rushes; a young fox barked importantly; a hawk flashed by. The mists swam hither and thither mysteriously, growing thinner and fainter as the gold of day grew brighter and clearer. Suddenly—in the words of the old tent-maker—the false morning died, and it was day.

I'm afraid that somewhere among the princess' ancestors there was a troubador; for she was something of a poet. Indeed, I have already remarked that she wrote verses. The atmospheric change of the morning turned her mind into sentimental channels. How she envied the peasant woman, who might come and go at will, sleep in the open or in the hut, loving or hating with perfect freedom! Ah, Prince Charming, Prince Charming! where were you? Why did you loiter? Perhaps for her there was no Prince Charming. It might be so. She sighed.

She would never marry Doppelkinn—never. That horrible Steinbock! She was glad, glad that she had struck him, again and again, across his lying eyes and evil mouth. She had believed that she knew the world; it was all yet a mystery; the older she grew the less she understood. Wasn't anybody good? Was everybody to be distrusted? Which way should she turn now? The world was beautiful enough; it was the people in it. Poor Betty! She had her troubles, too; but somehow she refused to confide them. She acted very much as if she were in love.

She gazed at the hawk enviously. How proud and free he was, so high up there, circling and circling. Even the fox was freer than she; the forests were his, and he might go whither he listed. And the fish that leaped in frolic from the water, and the blackbird in the rushes! She could not understand.

She would never marry Doppelkinn—never.

But how should she escape—how? On Wednesday night she would be given her quarterly allowance of a thousand crowns, and on Thursday she must act. . . . Yes, yes, that was it! How simple! She would slip over into Doppelkinn, where they never would think to search for her. She knew a place in which to hide. From Doppelkinn she would go straight to Dresden and seek the protection of her old governess, who would hide her till the duke came to his senses. If only she had an independent fortune, how she would snap her fingers at them all!

She was distracted by the sound of jangling steel. Artemis had cast a shoe. How annoying! It would take ten minutes to reach old Bauer's smithy, and ten minutes more to put on a shoe. She brought the filly down to a walk.

What was the use of being a princess if one was not allowed to act in a royal fashion? It wasn't so terrible to wear men's clothes, and, besides, they were very comfortable for riding a horse; and as for riding a bicycle in the public streets, hadn't that ugly Italian duchess ridden through the streets of Rome, and in knickerbockers, too? Nobody seemed to mind it there. But in Barscheit it had been little short of a crime. She recalled the flaming fagots and the red-hot wire of her unfortunate wheel. A smile rippled over her face, but it passed quickly. There was nothing left to smile over. They were going to force her to marry a tomb, a man in whom love and courage and joy were as dead things. Woe to Doppelkinn, though—woe to him! She would lead him a dance, wild and terrible.

If only she were Betty, free to do what she pleased, to go and come at will! She wasn't born to be a princess; she wasn't common-place enough; she enjoyed life too well. Ah, if only she might live and act like those English cousins of hers with whom she went to school! They could ride, man-fashion, hunt man-fashion, shoot, play cards and bet at the races man-fashion, and nobody threatened them with Doppelkinns. They might dance, too, till the sun came into the windows and the rouge on their faces cracked. But she! (I use the emphasis to illustrate the decided nods of her pretty head.) Why, every sweet had to be stolen!

She would never marry Doppelkinn—never. She would never watch his old nose grow purple at the table. She would run away. And since Prince Charming was nowhere to be seen, it were better to die an old maid.

Presently the smithy came into view, emerging from a cluster of poplars. She rode up to the doors, dismounted and entered. Old Bauer himself was at the bellows, and the weird blue light hissing up from the blown coals discovered another customer. She turned and met his frank glance of admiration. (If she hadn't turned! If his admiration hadn't been entirely frank!) Instantly she sent Bauer a warning glance which that old worthy seemed immediately to understand. The stranger was tall, well-made, handsome, with yellow hair, and eyes as blue as the sky is when the west wind blows.

He raised his cap, and the heart of the girl fluttered. Wherever had this seemly fellow come from?

"Good morning," said the stranger courteously. "I see that you have had the same misfortune as myself."

"You have lost a shoe? Rather annoying, when one doesn't want a single break in the going." She uttered the words carelessly, as if she wasn't at all interested.

She was glad that she had chosen the new saddle. The crest and coat of arms had not yet been burned upon the leather nor engraved upon the silver ornaments, and there was no blanket under the English saddle. There might be an adventure; one could not always tell. She must hide her identity. If the stranger knew that she belonged to the House of Barscheit, possibly he would be frightened and take to his heels.

But the Princess Hildegarde did not know that this stranger never took to his heels; he wasn't that kind. Princess or peasant, it would have been all the same to him. Only his tone might have lost half a key.

Bauer called to his assistant, and the girl stepped out into the road. The stranger followed, as she knew he would. It will be seen that she knew something of men, if only that they possess curiosity.

"What a beautiful place this is!" the stranger ventured, waving his hand toward the still lake and the silent, misty mountains.

"There is no place quite like it," she admitted. "You are a stranger in Barscheit?"—politely. He was young and certainly the best-looking man she had seen in a month of moons. If Doppelkinnn, now, were only more after this pattern!

"Yes, this is my first trip to Barscheit." He had a very engaging smile.

"You are from Vienna?"

"No."

"Ah, from Berlin. I was not quite sure of the accent."

"I am a German-American,"—frankly. "I have also spoken the language as if it were my own, which doubtless it is."

"America!" she cried, her interest genuinely aroused. "That is the country where every one does just as he pleases."

"Sometimes." (What beautiful teeth she had, white as skimmed milk!)

"They are free?"

"Nearly always."

"They tell me that women there are all queens."

"We are there, or here, always your humble servants."

He was evidently a gentleman; there was something in his bow that was

"I'm Hildegarde von—von Heideloff."

courtly. "And do the women attend the theaters alone at night?"

"If they desire to."

"Tell me, does the daughter of the president have just as much liberty as her subjects?"

"Even more. Only, there are no subjects in America."

"No subjects? What do they call them, then?"

"Voters."

"And do the women vote?"

"Only at the women's clubs."

She did not quite get this; not that it was too subtle, rather that it was not within her comprehension.

"It is a big country?"

"Ever so big."

"Do you like it?"

"I love every inch of it. I have even fought for it."

"In the Spanish war?"—visibly excited.

"Yes."

"Were you a major or a colonel?"

"Neither; only a private."

"I thought every soldier there was either a colonel or a major."

He looked at her sharply, but her eye was roving. He became suspicious. She might be simple, and then again she mightn't. She was worth studying, anyhow.

"I was a cavalryman, with nothing to do but obey orders and, when ordered, fight. I am visiting the American consul here; he was a school-mate of mine."

"Ah! I thought I recognized the horse."

"You know him?"—quickly.

"Oh,"—casually,—"every one hereabout has seen the consul on his morning rides. He rides like a centaur, they say; but I have never seen a centaur."

The stranger laughed. She was charming.

"He ought to ride well; I taught him." But the gay smile which followed this statement robbed it of its air of conceit. "You see, I have ridden part of my life on the great plains of the west, and have mounted everything from a wild Indian pony to an English thoroughbred. My name is Max Scharfenstein, and I am here as a medical student, though in my own country I have the right to hang out a physician's shingle."

She drew aimless figures in the dust with her riding-crop. There was no sense in her giving any name. Probably they would never meet again. And yet—

"I am Hildegarde von—von Heideloff," giving her mother's name. He was too nice to frighten away.

The hesitance over the "von" did not strike his usually keen ear. He was too intent on noting the variant expressions on her exquisite face. It was a pity she was dark. What a figure, and how proudly the head rested upon the slender, but firm white throat! After all, black eyes, such as these were, might easily rival any blue eyes he had ever seen. (Which goes to prove that a man's ideals are not built as solidly as might be.)

"It is rather unusual," he said, "to see a woman ride so early; but you have the right idea. Everything begins to wake, life, the air, the day. There is something in the dew of the morning that is a better tonic than any doctor can brew."

"Take care! If you have no confidence in your wares, you must not expect your patients to have."

"Oh, I am a doctor of philosophy also."

"That is to say," she observed, "if you lose your patients, you will accept their loss without a murmur? Very good. May I ask what you have come so far to study?"

"Nerves."

"Is it possible!"—with a smile as fleet as the wind.

He laughed. This was almost like an American girl. How easy it was to talk to her! He tried again to catch her eye, but failed. Then both looked out over the lake, mutually consenting that a pause should ensue. He did not mind the dark hair at all.

"Do you speak English?" she asked abruptly in that tongue, with a full glance to note the effect.

"English is spoken to some extent in the United States," he answered gravely. He did not evince the least surprise at her fluency.

"Do you write to the humorous papers in your country?"

"Only to subscribe for them," said he.

And again they laughed; which was a very good sign that things were going forward tolerably well.

And then the miserable fellow of a smith had to come out and announce that the stranger's horse was ready.

"I'll warrant the shoe," said Bauer.

"You haven't lost any time," said Max, his regret evident to every one.

The girl smiled approvingly. She loved humor in a man, and this one with the yellow hair and blue eyes seemed to possess a fund of the dry sort. All this was very wrong, she knew, but she wasn't going to be the princess this morning; she was going to cast off the shell of artificiality, of etiquette.

"How much will this shoe cost me?" Max asked.

"Half a crown," said Bauer, with a sly glance at the girl to see how she would accept so exorbitant a sum. The princess frowned. "But sometimes," added Bauer hurriedly, "I do it for nothing."

"Bauer, your grandfather was a robber," the girl laughed. "Take heed that you do not follow in his footsteps."

"I am a poor man, your—mm—Fraulein," he stammered.

"Here's a crown," said Max, tossing a coin which was neatly caught by the grimy hand of the smith.

"Are you very rich?" asked the girl curiously.

"Why?" counter-questioned Max.

"Oh, I am curious to know. Bauer will tell it to every one in Barscheit that you overpay for things, and from now on you will have to figure living on a basis of crowns."

It is worth any price to hear a pretty woman laugh. What a fine beginning for a day!

"May misfortune be kind enough to bring you this way again, Herr!" Bauer cried joyfully, not to say ambiguously.

"Listen to that!" laughed the girl, her eyes shining like the water in the sun. "But he means only to thank your generosity. Now,"—with a severe frown,—"how much do I owe you? Take care; I've only a few pieces of silver in my purse."

"Why, Fraulein, you owe me nothing; I am even in debt to you for this very crown." Which proved that Bauer had had his lesson in courtiership.

The assistant soon brought forth the girl's restive filly. Max sprang to her aid. How light her foot was in his palm! (She could easily have mounted alone, such was her skill; but there's the woman of it.)

"I am going toward the Pass," she said, reading the half-veiled appeal in his blue eyes.

"Which way is that?" he asked, swinging into his own saddle.

"That way," nodding toward the south. After all, there could be no harm! in two or three hours their paths would separate for ever.

"Why," delightedly,—"I am going that way myself."

Old Bauer watched them till they disappeared around a turn in the road. He returned to his forge, shaking his head as if confronted by a problem too abstruse even for his German mind.

"Well, he's an American, so I will not waste any pity on him. The pity is that she must wed old Red-nose."

It would have been if she had!

So the princess and Prince Charming rode into the country, and they talked about a thousand and one things. Had she ever been to France? Yes. To England? She had received part of her education there. Did she know the Princess Hildegarde? Slightly. What was she like? She was a madcap, irresponsible, but very much abused. Did she know Mr. Warrington, the American consul? She had seen him on his morning rides. Wasn't it a fine world? It was, indeed.

Once they stopped at a farm. The girl refused to dismount, bidding Max to go in and ask for a drink of milk. Max obeyed with alacrity, returning with two foaming goblets of warm milk.

From time to time the princess stifled the "small voice." It was wrong, and yet it wasn't. What worried her was the thought that Betty might take it into her head to follow, and then everything would be spoiled. Every now and then she turned her head and sighed contentedly; the road to rearward was always clear.

"Follow me!" she cried suddenly, even daringly.

A stone wall, three feet high, ran along at their right. The foreground was hard and firm. Pressing the reins on the filly's withers, she made straight for the wall, cleared it, and drew up on the other side. Now, Max hadn't the least idea that the horse under him was a hunter, so I might very well say that he took his life in his hands as he followed her. But Dandy knew his business. He took the wall without effort. A warm glow went over Max when he found that he hadn't broken his neck. Together they galloped down the field and came back for the return jump. This, too, was made easily. Max's admiration knew no bounds. It was a dangerous pastime in more ways than one.

At eight o'clock they turned toward home, talking about another thousand and one things.

"It has been a delightful ride," suggested Max, with an eye to the future.

"I take this road nearly every morning," said she, looking out upon the water, which was ruffling itself and quarreling along the sandy shores.

Max said nothing, but he at once made up his mind that he would take the same road provided he could in any reasonable manner get rid of me.

"Did you enjoy the ride?" asked the Honorable Betty, as her highness came in to breakfast. There were no formalities in the princess' apartments.

"Beautifully!" Her highness guiltily wondered if there was any logical way to keep Betty in the house for the next few mornings. She sat down and sipped her tea. "The duke talked to me last night. Steinbock played double."

"What!"

"Yes. He sold us to the duke, who patiently waited for me to speak. Betty, I am a fool. But I shall never marry Doppelkinn. That is settled."

"I suppose he will be inviting me to return to England," said Betty shrewdly.

"Not for the present."

"And I have just grown to love the place,"—pathetically. "Mr. Warrington has asked me to ride with him afternoons. His ankle prevents him from taking the long morning jaunts. If it will not interfere with your plans, dear—"

"Accept, by all means," interrupted her highness. "He is a capital horseman." She smiled mysteriously. Happily her companion was absorbed in thought and did not see this smile.

Max came in at a quarter of ten, went to tub, and came down in time for the eggs.

"Have a good ride?" I asked.

"Bully! Beautiful country!" He was enthusiastic.

"How these healthy animals eat!" I thought as I observed him occasionally.

"Wish I could go with you," I said, but half-heartedly.

"I'll get the lay of the land quick enough," he replied.

The rascal! Not a word about the girl that morning, or the next, or until Thursday morning. If only I had known! But Fate knows her business better than I do, and she was handling the affair. But long rides of a morning with a pretty girl are not safe for any bachelor.

P. C. C. Men's Doubles Saturday.

The annual men's tournament for the doubles championship in tennis at the Plainfield Country Club will be held at the club courts Saturday morning, Independence Day. The tourney is open to members of the club and the entries will be paired by the club tennis committee. Prizes will be awarded the winners and the runners-up. The committee in charge consists of D. G. Runkle, chairman, Elliott Cutter, M. J. Dumont, Wylie Brown and H. L. Righter. Play will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Garwoods Whitewash Juniors.

The Jr. O. U. A. M. team was defeated on Saturday by the Garwood A. C., at the latter place, by a score of 7 to 0, it being the first shutout for the Plainfielders this season. The aggregation played a good fielding game, but was unable to connect with Farrell's twisters. Each club has now won a game and the "rubber" will be played in the near future. The lineup and score by innings:

Record Price for Ball Players.

The New York National League Club has just closed one of the greatest deals ever pulled off in baseball, it being stated that Manager McGraw has secured Pitcher "Rube" Marquard of the Indianapolis team of the American Association by paying the price of $11,000. The other player who figures in the deal is Jack Meyers, of the St. Paul Club. Meyers is a catcher who has attracted so much attention this season that he was sought by several American League managers. He is said to be a full-blooded Chippewa Indian. The price paid for Meyers is said to be $6,000, making $17,000 for the battery.

Wanamassa B. C. Team to Race.

Borough Clerk Fred A. Martin and Stryker Hoagland are entered as a team to represent the Wanamassa Boat Club in the tandem canoe race at Cranford Independence Day. The race will be over a quarter mile course on the Cranford river. Various races will be part of the day's program, and the meet is under the auspices of the Ulhigh Boat Club of Elizabeth. Canoe teams from Newark, Elizabeth, Bayonne and Cranford are entered in the various events.

TO PROBE SOUTH RIVER.

Grand Jury Suggests Audit of Officials' Accounts.

New Brunswick, July 1.—After a couple of weeks of probing the Middlesex Grand Jury yesterday afternoon handed to Justice Voorhees a presentment upon the conduct of South River officials and recommended that the court appoint an accountant with summary power to audit the books and accounts of the officials.

The probe was started by Robert P. Judge, president of the South River borough Council, who is a member of the present Grand Jury. Sensational reports were circulated that officials had collected fines and had not turned them over to the borough and that the Mayor had acted in civil actions, settling them out of court. Mayor Mark, who was made the subject of most of the attack, declared that it was persecution because he had refused to resign at the behest of a few men. He retained Senator George S. Silzer and Former Senator Robert Adrain to fight any action that might be taken by the Grand Jury. In its presentment the Grand Jury does not mention the names of any officials.

FIGHT OVER MOSQUITO MONEY.

Elizabeth Health Department Wants More Cash—Council Seems Indifferent.

L. R. Richards, supervisor of health, of Elizabeth, said yesterday that he believes the mosquito question has never been so encouraging as at the present time, in so far as Elizabeth is concerned. He believes that no further appropriation will be needed until the fall, when, he says, $1,500 will go a long way toward effecting a permanent extermination of the pest. Mr. Richards said:

"Elizabeth suffered one week in May, but since that time the conditions have been better than they have ever been before. We are following up the work as best we can, and, while we need no more money just at present, the ditches between here and Newark will have to be looked out for in the fall. I think one more appropriation of $1,500 will go a long way toward a complete remedy of the situation."

Although they agree that conditions are better this year than they have ever been before, the councilmen are not ready to say at present that another appropriation will be made, and it is likely that it will be a difficult matter to obtain more money for this purpose.

DEATH FROM BLOOD POISONING

Driver of Elizabeth Fire Engine Cut Himself While Shaving.

Elizabeth, July 1.—Joseph Sullivan, driver for Hibernia Engine Company No. 5, of the Elizabeth Fire Department, and who was suffering from blood poisoning, died yesterday morning in the Alexian Hospital here. The victim was thirty-two years old, single and a man of powerful physique. He cut himself slightly on the hand last week with a razor while shaving and some of the stuff used to clean the harness of the fire engine horses got into the cut. He paid no attention to the matter and blood poisoning rapidly developed.

Mr. Sullivan was a member of the old volunteer fire department, also of the Exempt Firemen's Association and the Firemen's Relief Association. He likewise belonged to Court Columbus, Independent Order of Foresters. He was born at Elizabethport and was a communicant of St. Patrick's church. He is survived by two brothers, one of whom is captain of Hibernia Engine Company. There is also one sister, who is married to Sergeant Eugene Kirk, of the Elizabeth police department.

TWO FIRES IN PERTH AMBOY.

Volunteer Firemen Kept on Hustle in Early Morning.

Perth Amboy, July 1.—The volunteer fire department was kept on the hustle yesterday from 2 o'clock until 5 a. m. by two fires three-quarters of an hour apart. At 2 o'clock the firemen were called to the saloon of Adam Laskowiski on State street, where they were kept at work for an hour. The damage was about $1,000.

Before they had returned to the fire houses an alarm was turned in for a fire in the store of Jacob Kreielsheimer, a milliner and furrier, at 117 Smith street. The damage to stock will amount to $5,00 and to building $2,000. The building is owned by Henry Wolff, of South Amboy, a millioniare dry goods merchant and real estate operator.

PERSONAL.

The Misses Borden, of Third place, have gone to Maine for their summer outing.

Miss Anna Seifert, of Newark, is the guest of Miss Amy L. Moore, of West Fourth street.

Miss Agnes F. Strong, of Central avenue, is registered at "The Meadows," Southampton, L. I.

Mrs. William Vreeland, of Long Island, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

Miss Nellie Dempsey, a pupil nurse at Muhlenberg Hospital, is spending her vacation at Whitehouse Station.

D. Van Mater, of this city, was among those who registered at the Paris office of the New York Herald yestrday.

Former Judge W. R. Codington and family, of Sandford avenue, will leave next week for Portland, Me., to spend part of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, who have been enjoying an extended trip through Japan, have returned and are spending a few days in Plainfield.

Mrs. Frank Hedden, of Brook avenue, formerly of the New Madison, recently underwent a severe surgical operation. It proved successfully and she is now recovering rapidly.

STATE'S SUMMER CAPITOL IS FORMALLY OPENED.

The State summer capital opened at Sea Girt today with the arrival of Governor Fort, his family and official staff. The State military encampment opened when the Second Regiment, of Trenton, and Second Troop, of Red Bank, arrived.

The former command is under Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, and the latter under Captain Edwin Field. General Dennis F. Collins is the commandant of the Second Brigade, of which these commands are a part, and the second week he will have the Third Regiment, of the First Brigade, with the exception of those troops now at Pine Plains and under the command of General Edward A. Campbell, will be here for two weeks. This consists of the Fourth and Fifth regiments, of Paterson and Jersey City, and the signal corps and Battery A, of Jersey City and East Orange.

SALOONKEEPERS GIVE UP FIGHT

Brewers Find Bishops' Law Provisions Are Driving Retailers from Business.

Brewery agents in Hudson county estimate that at least 10 per cent. of the saloonkeepers will retire from business at the close of the present license year. The brewers have decided not to advance money for the license fees where they have sustained al oss during the current year. The enforcement of the Bishops' law is the cause, as it has interfered with saloons doing business practically in the open on Sunday, which has been the busiest day of the week for many saloon men.

In Jersey City, where more than one thousand saloons were licensed last July, it is expected that one hundred and fifty will close. The license fee is $500 in Jersey City. It is predicted that twenty-five saloons will close in Hoboken and twenty in West Hoboken, where the license fee is $300.

BIRDS MUST NOT SING.

Montclair Man, Freed from Barking Dogs and Ringing Bells, Wants More Silence.

The town of Montclair has silenced the dogs and early morning church bells, and now a nervous resident has asked Councilman Charles H. Hartshorne, the instigator of the curfew for dogs, to take measures to silence the birds of the town.

This disgruntled citizen takes particular exception to the noise of the robin and the sparrow, which, he says, awaken him too early every morning. A woman on Valley Road has also asked the Councilman to introduce a "curfew law for the howling cats of the town."

Seeks Divorce From Bigamist.

Trenton, July 1.—John A. Hoff, of Richmond Centre, Pa., formerly of this city, commenced suitin the Court of Chancery here yesterday for divorce from his wife, Anna Bell Hoff. One of the features of the case is that Mrs. Hoff has served a term in the county workhouse for bigamy, she having married Robert Beatty in this city about a year ago. The Hoffs were married in Windsor, near Trenton, in 1902, and the husband charges that the wife deserted him in 1904.

Thieves Make Clean Haul.

Rahway, July 1.—The residence of Captain and Mrs. William H. Cloke, on Hazelwood avenue, was robbed Monday night. All the silverware, the cut glass, a pound cake, the captains uniform and overcoats from the hallrack, and six hats, new and old, were stolen. A huge basket of laundry linen was not overlooked. Company had been entertained last night and it was late when the family retired, and all slept through till daylight. There is no clue.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Charles A. Hazeltine.

Mrs. Lettie B. Hazeltine, wife of Charles A. Hazeltine, died yesterday at her home on Westervelt avenue following a long illness. She had been suffering from a malignant growth for which she had sought in vain for relief. Mrs. Hazeltine was a most estimable and Christian woman and enjoyed the respect of a large circle of friends. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and previous to her illness had been prominent in the work of its organizations. She bore her long illness with patience and fortitude and at all times maintained the cheerful disposition that characterized her life. Surviving her are three sons, Charles, of New York, Frank and Arthur, residing at home, and two daughters, the Misses Gertrude and Maude Hazeltine. The funeral will be held at her late home Friday afternoon at 2:30 and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring.

Mrs. James S. Church.

Mrs. Georgianna Church, wife of James S. Church, of Somerset street, died yesterday after a brief illness She had been a resident of the borough for the past two years, coming here from Hoboken. She is survived by a family of three sons and daughters. The funeral will be held at her late residence tomorrow and will be private.

The ways and means committee of Hope chapel will hold an important meeting tomorrow night.

RAILROADERS' PROBLEMS

Wm. McIntosh, as Retiring Head, Addresses American Master Mechanics Assn.

THE ATTITUDE OF LABOR.

Great Subject of the Day Is the Selection, Treatment and Organization of Men.

William McIntosh, of North Plainfield, master mechanic of the New Jersey Central, who has just retired as the president of the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association, at its forty-first annual convention held in Atlantic City, delivered an address which has attracted wide-spread attention from railroad men throughout the country and has been generally commented upon by editorial writers of prominent publications, including leading newspapers. Among other things Mr. McIntosh said:

"Let us remember that this association has seen the small problem grow to be one of the very greatest problems faced by man. Think a moment of the locomotives and trains, the ships, the bridges, the tunnels, the buildings, the cities which we knew as children; think of them again as they have grown to their present state. Statistics are not needed to show that we have a man's task before us. A gray hair or two that speaks experience is the authority upon which we place before those who are to take our places the rule of life that will be most greatly needed in the future.

"Without question our greatest problem is that of the selection, treatment and organization of men. The recent years of abnormal business activity have brought to the surface the slumbering tendency of organized labor to drift away from harmonious relations with employers and array itself on the side of the radical and demagogue, who seek notoriety and selfish advancement in creating and fostering discord between employers and employes whose every interest are identical. We know that any attempt on the part of either to operate independently must result disastrously.

"The sovereign remedy is lower tariffs, in the face of low rates and already large reductions from natural causes, and other embarrassment of the railroads with class legislation and impracticable laws, confiscatory in scope and surrounded with political red tape, that would largely increase operating expenses and further reduce earnings. How can employes expect to be benefitted by such complications? Their interests are so closely allied with the interests of the company they serve that they must be proportionately affected by reduced earnings.

"The points of issue between railroad companies and their employes are usually few in number and easy of solution. Wages are at present generally satisfactory, and only questions of methods conflict. Mechanics, especially machinists, are reluctant to adopt other than hourly rates of pay, while manufacturers and corporations are in favor of some system of fixted output, profit sharing or piece work. The men claim, and with some ground for their contention, that they have frequently been treated unfairly where piece-work has been adopted. On the other hand, workmen have interfered with normal results by restricting the output, under the mistaken idea that they would benefit thereby. Abnormal rates are bound to result from such methods and dissatisfaction and protests from the workmen follow, for no matter how fairly and carefully these adjustments are made, the workmen are naturally suspicious that some advantage is being taken of them.

"The only one to suffer under the stipulated output system is the indifferent and lazy workman. There should be no place in the ranks of honest railroad mechanics, nor in the membership list of labor organizations, for the dissolute, floater, inefficient imposter and agitator, who demands the highest rate of pay for the smallest return.

"There is another kind of workman, however, who should be welcome to both the companies and the unions. He would first be a citizen of good repute, or at least declared his intention to become a citizen; he should be a good mechanic—his union demands that; he would be a man of good habits—his union requires that, too; he would do an honest day's work, seeing that the tools and machines entrusted to his care were properly handled, and that the latter were always working to their full capacity, and that his employer's interests would be advanced in every way possible.

"In my railroad experience extending over forty years of active service in different departments and

TO SUPERVISE BUILDINGS

Mayor Townsend Heads a Movement for Borough Building Ordinance.

THE BOROUGH NOW POWERLESS

Action of G. W. Arnet in Erecting Houses on Westervelt Avenue Shows Council's Lack of Power.

Hampered in the control of the buildings erected in North Plainfield because of the lack of a building ordinance to control certain parts of the borough and the entire borough for a certain kind of buildings, the borough fathers discussed the matter of securing such an ordinance at their meeting last night and it is probable that the necessary measure will be introduced in the State legislature to give the power sought. Mayor Samuel Townsend is at the head of a movement to secure the new law, and seemed confident last night that it would be introduced at the next session of the Legislature. The matter has been referred to the law and ordinance committee for consideration.

The realization of their lack of control of buildings erected in North Plainfield came home to the borough fathers a short time ago, when George W. Arnet, chief engineer of the Lambertville fire department, took matters in his own hands and started the erection of ten frame dwellings on Westervelt avenue, after his petition for their erection had been refused by the Council. As the law provides now, the borough has authority on permits only within certain districts in North Plainfield, and cannot control the larger buildings, where three or more families are accommodated.

Speaking of the matter last night at the meeting, Mayor Townsend said that the growth of the borough has brought out the need for a building ordinance to cover all classes of buildings in every part of the borough. Consultation with Former State Senator Charles A. Reed, the borough counsel, shows that the borough now is powerless, and Mr. Townsend stated that he thought the borough should have the same power of controlling the erection of buildings as has Plainfield.

Permits for two buildings, a barn and a garage were granted by the council last night. The barn is to be on property belonging to Henry DeMott, at 40 Pearl street, and the graage is to be at the home of A. L. Gaddis, of Manning avenue. A. Ferraro's petition to build an addition to his store at 183 Somerset street was held up because the nature of the repairs was not specified. On recommendation of Councilman Smith, the petition of Adolph Bohren to move a frame building from Greenbrook road to Somerset street, was refused because it would be too close to other buildings.

THIS PLAINFIELDER MADE HIS MARK IN RHODE ISLAND.

In the current issue of The Sabbath Recorder, under the caption, "Representative Seventh-Day Baptists," the following concerning George Herbert Utter, a native of this State and former Governor of Rhode Island, is of local interest:

"George Herbert Utter (1854) Governor of the State of Rhode Island. He has the following offices in the government of the State of Rhode Island: Member of the staff of Governor Augustus O. Bourn, 1883-85; Representative in the General Assembly, 1885-89; Speaker of the House of Representatives, 1889; State Senator, 1889-91; Secretary of State, 1891-94; Lieutenant Governor, 1904-05; Governor, 1905-06. He has been president of the Seventh-day Baptist General Conference. He is treasurer of the Seventh-day Baptist Missionary Society, and a trustee of Alfred University."

The Recorder also contains sketches of the late George Hermon Babcock and Charles Potter, who for a great many years were prominent factors in the life and growth of Plainfield.

Buys Lunch Business.

Patrick J. Melvin, who recently succeeded E. H. Clevely in the restaurant and lunch business on North avenue, sold the place yesterday to Edwin F. Brown, of the borough. The new proprietor is a hustling young business man and will undaubtedly make a success of his venture. Mr. Melvin will continue as his chief clerk.

—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. store will be open on Friday evening and on Saturday morning until 9 o'clock. No delivery on Saturday. ***

Mrs. Irving Niles and daughter, Dorothy, of West Fifth street, will spend the month with relatives at Alfred Center, N. Y.

NEW ELECTION DISTRICT

Borough Fathers Pass Three-District Ordinance on First and Second Readings.

AT NORTH END OF BOROUGH.

Feeling Against Voting Machines Responsible for the Measure to Save Time for Election Tellers.

An ordinance to make a third election district in North Plainfield was unanimously passed on its first and second reading at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council held last night. It wil come up for its final reading at the August meeting and will take effect August 20. The new district will be at the north end of the borough, beyond the line formed by Green Brook. Framed by Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, its passage called for the repealing of the ordinance of March, 1901, by which North Plainfield was divided into two election districts.

The first district under the new ordinance wil include that part of the borough included in a boundary running from the centre line of Somerset street at Green Brook, westward to Rock avenue, to Greenbrook road, to Grove street, to Linden avenue, to Somerset street, to the point of starting. The second district boundary starts from the same point extending eastward to Raymond avenue, to Mountain avenue, to Norwood avenue, to Grandview avenue to Somerset street and to the point of starting. The territory in the borough limits not included in these boundaries will constitute the third election district.

With the strong feeling against voting machines in the borough, the formation of a third district, provided by law when the number of voters in each existing district shall exceed 600, will make less work for election tellers by giving fewer votes to count. The resolution for the new ordinance was proposed by Councilman Nichols, chairman of the law and ordinance committee of the Council.

In connection with the discussion about the number of voters in each district, Mayor Townsend called the attention of the Councilmen to the fact that the borough keeps no record of the election returns at the various elections. He suggested that such a record be kept and that the borough clerk secure the figures from the County Clerk's office and enter them in a book. The suggestion met with the endorsement, and Councilman Woolston suggested that the record of the election returns be kept in the clerk's book of minutes.

1,500 GO TO THE SHORE ON THE FIRST EXCURSION

Seeking relief from the heat forecasted by a glaring sun and cloudless sky, fifteen hundred Sunday school pupils, with their parents and friends went to Asbury Park today on the first Sunday school excursion of the season. The Sunday schools of the Crsecent Avenue church, Holy Cross, Grace, St. Stephen's, Heavenly Rest and the Seventh-Day Baptist churches, were accompanied by a delegation of about four hundred colored people in the cars reserved for the Bethel Chapel school. J. W. Gavett, as chairman of the general committee in charge of the outing, was assisted by about a score of ticket sellers, representing the various Sunday schools.

The excursion went off in two sections, the first train pulling away from the North Avenue station at shortly after 8:15 o'clock. It consisted of fourteen cars and a combination baggage and smoker, and was in charge of Conductor Thomas Flannigan. Engineer William Dunham was at the throttle. Ten of the fifteen cars of the second section, which immediately followed the first, were filled with the excursionists, and the empty cars were cut off at Roselle. Conductor Peter Gilmore was in charge of this train, and Engineer Lester L. Brightman was in the cab.

By having the excursion leave fifteen minutes later than the Sunday school outings of last year, there was less confusion on the crowded platform when the commuters' trains came in and less danger. Everybody got aboard this morning, and there were no tearful left-behinds. The excursion wil leave Asbury Park on the return trip at 6:30 o'clock and the first section should arrive in this city at shortly after 9 o'clock.

Sixteen Boarders Last Month.

Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver's report for the month of June, presented at the North Plainfield Council meeting last night, showed sixteen arrests and $18 in fines collected.

NETHERWOOD TROLLEY DERAILED AT CURVE

Derailed by a piece of macadam on the curve at Richmond street and Putnam avenue, trolley car No. 489, bound for Netherwood, jolted over the roadway for forty feet at shortly after 7 o'clock last night before Motorman Cannery finally brought it to a stop beyond the opposite crossing of Putnam avenue on Richmond street. Four passengers in the car, of whom two were women, were jolted by the accident but escaped uninjured. One of the women was Miss Edith Hand, daughter of Charles H. Hand, of Belvidere avenue.

The roadbed at the corner was repaired with ballast recently, but the macadam was not rolled down, and there was no top dressing put on. A passenger said that there was little or no jarring "more than usual" as the car left the rails and plunged on, directly in the middle of Richmond street, toward Watchung avenue. Motorman Cannery did his best to bring the car to a stop, but did not succeeed until the front platform had passed the crosswalk on the west corner of Putnam avenue. There was no suggestion of panic, for the passnegers saw that the car was directly in the middle of the road.

Traffic Manager Luhrs, of the P S. C., who arrived on the scene shortly after the accident, cleared the motorman from blame in the matter, stating that the trouble was due to a stone on the rail. The curve at this point is in poor condition, the flange having been worn down so that there is constant danger of derailment. The macadam was put on by the P. S. C., and residents in the vicinity assert that it was just thrown on between the rails, without rolling.

It was an hour before the car, which was undamaged, could be again set on the rails. On account of the accident, the Grant avenue service was temporarily discontinued and Netherwood passengers transferred around the disabled car.

WILSON AVENUE TO BE WIDENED AND RE-GRADED.

After years of trouble from washouts by surface water during storms, Wilson avenue is at last to be regraded, and adequate improvements made to prevent further damage to the roadway by heavy rains. The action was taken at the meeting of the North Plainfield Council last night, and the work will be commenced as soon as the amounts pledged by the various property owners have been collected.

The improvement involves a scheme for the widening of the roadway the narrowing the sidewalks so as to make larger gutters for carrying off the water. The street has always required lots of work by the street department to keep it in condition, but the days of "patching up" are now at an end. The improvement was first agitated about eleven years ago. The gutters are to be paved and storm sewers installed.

The repairs will cost a considerable sum of money, and $200 has been subscribed by the property owners for the improvement. Some of the property owners have volunteered to help with the actual work on the street.

MAYOR DOESN'T WANT COUNCIL CHAMBER PAPERED.

Contracts for the renovation of borough fire headquarters, involving painting, varnishing and papering, were held up at the borough council meeting last night until some suggestions about the improvements can be acted upon. Two firms entered bids, Cranston Bros. offering to do the work for $146.06, and Woolston and Buckle's bid being $147. Contracts will be awarded at the next meeting.

Mayor Townsend objected when he heard that it was the plan to paper the council chamber, claiming that the present finish, if freshened up, would be superior to papering. Councilman Woolston urged that the walls be papered, saying that it would make the room look "more dressy and beautiful."

"Nip," the surviving horse of the borough fire department team, replaced after "Tuck's" death by the new pair, "Sam" and "Newt," was reported to be "eating his head off," and useles to the department. The street and fire committee was auhtorized to dispose of the horse at a fair price.

Funeral of Mrs. Clifton.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Clifton, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Whitall, of Thornton avenue, at the age of ninety-seven years, was held yesterday afternoon at the Watchung avenue meeting house. W. D. Williams, of the Society of Friends, spoke at the service. Burial was made in the Friends cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: Dr. J. H. Cooley, Dakin and Harry Wagner, William D. Dakin, Charles B. Clifton and W. C. Whitall.

DR. ENDICOTT HONORED

BIG FEE PAID IN ADVANCE.

Dr. August Bier Through Patient's Lawyer, Calls Him to Berlin —He Sailed This Morning.

Summoned by cable by one of the world's most famous surgeons, Dr. George W. Endicott is hastening to Europe as fast as the La Lorraine can carry him, to hold a consultation over a patient whom he never saw nor hear of. Dr. August Bier, professor of surgery at the University of Berlin, the owner of one of the greatest of Europe's private hospitals and a man whose name is of world-wide reputation in the surgical world, is the physician who is awaiting the opinion of the Plainfield medical man before deciding what to do in the case which perplexes him.

Dr. Endicott was not inclined to leave his practise here when visited by the New York lawyer of the young woman who refuses to allow the great German specialist to amputate her foot until he gives his opinion. But it is said that the largest fee that has ever been paid to a New Jersey doctor induced him to obey the summons. The fee he fixed is away up in the four figures and before the New York lawyer left his office the doctor had the check in his purse. In addition he will be paid all his traveling and hotel expenses. Dr. Endicott's son accompanied him and the two will be gone a month.

Who the patient is, no one here seems to know, excepting that she is a young American of wealth, studying art in Germany. Some time ago she underwent an operation for adenoids and subsequently blood poisoning set in her left foot. One specialist after another was consulted by her and finally she was urged to go to Dr. Bier's famous hospital. The doctor told her that it would be necessary to cut off her foot, but she refused to submit to the operation. She said that she would not agree to the operation until one "Doctor G. W. Endicott, of Plainfield, N. J.," would tell her that it must be done. Accordingly, Dr. Bier cabled her lawyer in New York her ultimatim and the latter lost no time in hurrying to this city. At first Dr. Endicott would not consider the idea but he was finally induced to do so.

WITNESS GETS FLUSTERED UNDER CROSS EXAMINATION

Hearing was continued in the city court, this morning, in the Berlowitz versus Wilensky and Wilensky versus Berlowitz cases but was not concluded. Counselor Francis J. Blatz apepared for Harry Berlowitz and owing to the fact that the action was delayed in starting he had to leave before it was finished to keep another appointment. Judge Runyon granted his request to have the cases adjourned until next Monday morning.

Several witnesses produced by Mrs. Wilensky went on the stand and testified that she did not use profane language toward Berlowitz on the date he specified last Monday, all having been in her store at the time he mentioned. One of the witnesses was John Harding, who upset the dignity of the court by getting in an awful flutter when he discovered that Counselor Blatz was pinning him down to direct statements.

"I suppose you're cross-examining me," he exclaimed, "but I can't help it" and the expression on his face indicated that he was resigned to his fate. When he passed through the ordeal with credit to himself he became emboldened by his success and insisted on coming back to tell things he forgot to mention until Judge Runyon had to bench him.

Mrs. Wilensky strengthened her case by stating that Berlowitz had entered the store after the first hearing last Monday and further annoyed her by offering to bet $3 that he could lock her up any time he wanted. Her complaint against him was for continually threatening to have her taken to jail in the patrol wagon. The special officer did not enter any denial of her assertion or another one that his mother had gone to Mrs. Wilensky's store and called her bad names for having the son in court.

POLICE GET GIRL BURGLAR

Thirteen-year-old Freda Richter Held for Juvenile Court on Six Charges

ROBBED HOME OF RELATIVE.

Colored Accomplice a Year Her Senior Arraigned at Same Time and Also Committed.

Following a hearing in the city court, this morning, Freda Richter, of East Second street, the thirteen-year-old girl who has given the police a lot of trouble in the past three months, was held without bail to wait the action of the juvenile court. Six charges in all were made against her and it is probable that she will be sent to one of the State institutions. Laura Waldron, a fourteen-year-old colored girl who has been assisting her in a number of petty crimes, was arraigned at the same time this morning and was also committed.

The Richter girl is known by the police as the "kid burglar," and seems to have no conception of the difference between right and wrong. She first came into notice by breaking into a relative's home and stealing $50 from a strong box. She was caught soon afterward but claimed to have spent half the money. When she was let go pending disposition of the case, she ran away to South Beach and had a day's junket on part of the stolen $50 that she had hidden. After it had been spent she was picked up by the South Beach police and was held until her mother went after her.

As soon as she returned to Plainfield, Freda started in afresh to commit various crimes and when she was finally arrested yesterday afternoon a dozen complaints were made to Chief Kiely and Detective-Sergeant Flynn. The principal ones were the stealing of various articles from a Johnson avenue residence; breaking, entering and stealing at the home of Mrs. Michael Monohan, of Plainfield avenue, and the theft of a bicycle from a Polak girl living on Liberty street. The Waldron girl assisted her in taking the wheel which had been left in the house while the family was away. They effected an entrance by way of the cellar and lifted the machine out of a window.

Freda spent last night in a cell, but the Waldron girl was not caught until this morning. The former's mother was in court and told Judge Runyon that it was impossible for her to control the child and that she was willing to have her sent away. Freda cried at first when she was asked to tell about her wrongdoing but she giggled continuall while Laura was being quizzed. Under pressure the colored girl admitted having a hand in the Monohan theft and also helping her sister to pose as the daughters of a washwoman in order to collect money from families in the Bristol building. They succeeded in getting money in two places.

The police stated after the hearing that Freda is the most accomplished and nerviest lawbreaker they have ever had to deal with. She got into the relatives home by demolishing a door with an axe and then smashing the strong box. The Monohan home was entered much the same way and every bureau was ransacked as though it had been done by a professional. She went through the rooms while Laura Waldron kept watch outside and they divided the loot, thirty cents in change, a pocketbook or two and several pieces of silk. When Freda was arrested she told a string of falsehoods that had Detective-Sergeant Flynn all at sea and which he did not straighten out until he had visited nearly all the people she had robbed.

Back Assessment Cancelled.

By action of the Borough Council at its meeting last night, the assessment for Somerset street improvement expenses, made in 1880, was cancelled from the estate of H. Uhrhahan. William Uhrhahan petitioned his, and his claim that the liens had expired because not urged for payment within twenty years after the assessment, was supported by the Council. The assessment was made before North Plainfield became a borough.

OFFER POSTOFFICE SITES

Five Bids Announced by Secretary Cortelyou of Treasury Department.

THE DECISION IN SEPTEMBER.

All in the Business Section and Prices Set Range from $8,000 to $60,000—Commision to Inspect Them.

Not until September is it likely that the Government will decide upon a site for the proposed Federal building in this city, although the bids advertised by the Treasury Department were opened yesterday by Secretary Cortelyou. Much to the surprise of the local public only five offers were submitted, but this does not necessarily imply that any one of the number will be chosen. It may be that the district commissioner of the department may hit upon another location, but this is purely a matter for him to decide.

David T. Kenney, in person, submitted a proposition to Secretary Cortelyou. He offered a location on the north side of East Second street, between Watchung avenue and Park avenue. His proposal included an agreement to open, curb, pave and macadamize a thoroughfare between Second and Front streets, so that the postoffice would be located on a corner. His price was $42,000 for a tract 160 by 147 as demanded in the specifications.

Charles H. Lyman submitted a bid of $40,000 for the Friends' Meetinf House property at Watchung avenue and Third street. J. F. MacDonald offered the Durlach property at the northeast corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. The price asked was $60,000. The Mary Embury estate propsed to the Government that it purchase the tract at the southeast corner of East Front street and Church street. The estate proposed to give a deed for it for the smal sum of $8,936.

As agent for various property owners, Thad Doane, Jr., offered as a site the southeast corner of Park avenue and Fourth street near the Jersey Central station driveway. This includes tracts owned by John Manley, Smalley Brothers and L. E. Hart. $60,000 is asked for the entire tract.

Until July 21, the Secretary of the Treasury will continue to open bids for Federal building sites throughout the United States. He will be guided largely by the advice of the supervising architect of that department and after that date a district commissioner will pay a visit to Plainfield. It will be his mission to hit upon the most advantageous offer, but according to Postmaster Bird not until September is it likely that an agreement will be reached.

In case the Government decides that a bid submitted upon a property it desires for the purpose is too high, it has power to proceed by condemnation and buy the tract at a figure set by the court.

LOCAL MEN CHOSEN OFFICERS IN VETERANS' ORGANIZATION.

NEW PERFECTION

is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is the ideal lamp for family use—safe, convenient, economical and a great light giver. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

The home of George W. Field, the coal and lumber merchant at North Branch Depot, was threatened by fire Monday evening. The blaze started from an oil stove, which exploded, and the kitchen was soon in flames. Volunteer firemen extinguished the fire. The damage was slight.

Mr. and Mrs. William V. D. Jelliffe, who live near North Branch Depot, tendered a reception to their son, William Jelliffe, and his bride the other night. The couple had just returned from their honeymoon trip.

Noyes R. Thomas, of Jersey City, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vander Voort, near North Branch, for a few days.

Mrs. Catherine Bowers has returned to her home at Pluckemin, after a visit to friends at Peapack and Gladstone.

Clarence R. Griggs and mother, of Union, have been visiting at the home of Dr. J. E. Anderson, at Neshanic.

Frank Honeyman has returned to his home at North Branch, after a visit to relatives in Somerville.

Miss Emma Beatty of Whitehouse, has been visiting her brother, Robert B. Beatty, in North Branch.

Mrs. Charlotte Chapman, of Trenton, has been spending some time with relatives at Pluckemin.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield Council is very anxious to stop a practise every Sunday that is preliminary to the sale of building lots on the outskirts of the town. As the practise is out of the Council's jurisdiction, the county authorities have been asked to stop it. There is no auction on the grounds. People simply walk over the property, and no contracts are made. The Fanwood officials, where the land is situated, refuse to make any attempt to stop the Sunday excursions. The Westfield Council, too, has asked the town attorney to ascertain if there is a law that gives the Council authority to forbid the Central Railroad stopping the Sunday excursion train at Westfield. An attorney has given an opinion that so long as the excursionists get off at the station in an orderly manner and go through the streets quietly, as they have done so far, the town fathers will have a hard time stopping them.

Westfield Council will submit to the voters at the fall election for their decision the question of whether the Council shall buy the Gale clubhouse lot. The purchase of the lot and erection of the proposed town hall would put the indebtedness of the town up to $350,000. Many of the property owners do not look favorably on increasing the debt at this time.

The elm trees at Westfield Station have been almost cleaned of leaves by the elm beetle, and the pest is spreading to other parts of the town. This is the first time that elm trees in the town have been attacked.

North avenue through Westfield is being resurfaced, and as it has not yet been rolled it is hardly safe for automobiles.

Professor Vossler and family have left Westfield to spend the summer in Canada.

SLASHES WIFE.

Jersey iCty, July 2.—In a quarrel with his wife over the rental of new apartments John Keating, of 366 Johnston avenue, picked up a big butcher's knife and cut his wife in the abdomen. Mrs. Keating's screams aroused the neighborhood and somebody phoned for the reserves from the Fourth Precinct. When they arrived at the house Keating was waiting for them and helped the policemen place his wife in the patrol wagon, whence she was taken to the office of Dr. Broderick. She was later taken to the Jersey City Hospital.

Keating broke down when his wife was carried to the hospital, pleading that in his anger he did not realize what he was doing. He was locked up on the charge of atrocious assault and battery. Mrs. Keating was not fatally hurt, but her cuts are painful.

DROWNS IN RIVER STYX.

Lake Hopatcong, July 2.—William Richards, 18 years old, of New York, was drowned off the Ithanell dock, River Styx, shortly after noon yesterday. His body has not yet been recovered.

It is said that Richards, Charles Ereiner and Emil Raum were skylarking in a canoe, when the swell from a passing launch caused the canoe to turn turtle. Of the three, only Raum could swim. He and Ereiner caught the canoe, but Richards sank.

D. L. & W. Not to Drop Men.

Hoboken, July 2.—Superintendent E. C. Rine, of the Lackawanna Railroad, denies the report that the company is to lay off from 175 to 200 passenger brakemen. He said the only foundation for the report is that two brakemen have been laid off within the past two weeks. These are only temporary changes and are not to be further continued.

The Junior baseball team will play two games at Berkeley Heights on Saturday. They will make the trip in a stage.

Pittsburg is going to have a "Wagner Day," in honor of Honus Wagner, the great ball player, and a popular dollar subscription has been started to buy something nice for the big fellow just to show that the fans appreciate him, and it is taking like wildfire. July 16 is the date when the presentation will take place.

Now it is said that Clark Griffith has been offered the management of the Jersey City Club with a salary and a large share of stock in the club. Rochester also wants the former manager of the Yankees. He has given no decision as yet.

The Y. M. C. A. and Clinton Avenue teams will battle for supremacy at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon and the contest will be well worth going miles to see. Both teams are confident of victory.

"Dick" Scott will be in the lineup with Clinton Avenue Saturday afternoon and will have an opportunity to face his brother, "Jim" Scott, who will do the pitching for Y. M. C. A. Last Saturday he got a home run at Newark, but it may be different this week.

Clifford Randolph is expected to continue his winning streak on Saturday, when he faces the Y. M. C. A. aggregation and every effort will be made to wrest victory. Manager Listman feels sure that he will take away the palm and is leaving nothing undone toward accomplishing the feat.

The Newark Stars will be the opponents of the Clinton Avenues at Crescent Oval, Saturday morning. The Essex county aggregation is considered one of the strongest semi-professional clubs in the State and is sure to make the locals play their best to win.

"Old Cy" Young gave one of the finest exhibitions of pitching at American League Park, Tuesday afternoon, that has been witnessed by the fans for many moons. He blanked the Yankees by the score of 8 to 0, and besides he did not allow his opponents a single hit. Surely he grows better with age and is destined to be the best pitcher in either league.

"Phil" Smith continues to pitch good ball for the Bound Brook team, and he appears to be in his old-time form again.

GOLF.

Charles H. Seely, the Metropolitan champion, has been appointed captain of the Metropolitan Golf Association Olympic team with full power to select the players. The Olympic competition this year will be held over the Rock Island Arsenal links on Saturday, July 11.

It was thought in some quarters that the East would not be represented this year on account of the long journey West despite the fact that it won the trophy last summer at Cleveland.

The Olympic committee of the Western Golf Association offered to let the United States Golf Association or the Metropolitan Golf Association handle the contest this year, but when no reply was received the Western body made arrangements to hold the fixture at Rock Island the Saturday preceding the Western amateur championship tournament. Had the original offer been accepted permitting the event to be held here another strong team would have been certain, but as it is it may be extremely difficult for Seely to get up a representative combination willing to make the journey. The conditions call for teams of four to compete at thirty-six holes.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

While playing with his pet dog in Camden, yesterday, Policeman Jules Bosch was bitten on the hand.

The students of St. Vincent de Paul's Seminary, Germantown, Pa., will spend two months at Bonaparte's Park, Bordentown.

Rev. Frank Anderson, pastor of the First Baptist church, Millville, has received a call to Greenfield, O., which he has declined.

Captain Thomas Naylor, an old resident of Pennsgrove, who went to sea for many years, sailing the schooner Rillie S. Derby, is seriously ill.

James Moore, a farmer, of Woodbury, fell from a load of hay against a beam in the haymow last week, but did not know he had broken two ribs until he visited a doctor yesterday.

Suffering terrible pain from a swollen eye, caused by the bite of a mosquito, John McCarty, forty-five years old, of 275 Spruce street, Camden, visited Cooper Hospital yesterday. It is not believed that the sight will be affected.

Employed as a plasterer on a building being erected for the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Camden, yesterday, Charles Colman, of Masonville, fell from a scaffold and sustained contusions of the face and arms. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Stumbling downstairs at her home, Twenty-seventh street and Cleveland avenue, Camden, yesterday, Mrs. Anna Paulin, seventy-four years old, sustained a fracture of the right hip. Despite her advanced age, it was stated at Cooper Hospital today that she would recover.

Dr. E. A. Reilly, in recognition of rounding out twenty-five years of continuous practise in Atlantic City, was given a dinner at the Hotel Chelsea last evening by the practitioners of the resort. With the exception of Dr. T. K. Reed, he is the oldest physician in the city.

The members of the congregation of the United Presbyterian church of Paterson tendered their pastor, Rev. W. J. Gillespie, who has accepted a call to the United Presbyterian church at Hoboken, a farewell reception last evening, in the church. To Dr. Gillespie was presented a set of solid gold studs by Robert B. Coulson, in behalf of the congregation.

Passing along Second and Mechanic streets, Camden, yesterday, Policeman Gilbert saw a man asleep on the Reading Railway tracks, with his feet across a rail and his head resting on a tie. When awakened the man was apparently sober, and when he was told that he might have been killed, he replied: "I might as well be dead; I can't get work."

Daniel Marks, of Bridgeton, died suddenly Monday on the seventh-ninth anniversary of his birth, for which arrangements had been made to celebrate. Monday night while the family were preparing the black-bordered invitations to the funeral, the postman was delivering birthday postcards, which had been sent by his relatives and friends. Mr. Marks is survived by a widow, three daughters and a son.

Paid Firemen in Bayonne.

Bayonne, July 2.—The fire bells of Bayonne sounded for the last time last night, and this morning a full paid fire department, with five engine companies and two trucks, went into service. Ever since the organization of the old volunteer fire department thousands of residents have timed their watches and clocks by the bells.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 7:31, rises 4:29; 2 p. m., earth at aphelion, farthest from sun; moon at apogee, farthest from earth.

The New Jersey delegation interested in the defeat of the Democratic party at the polls in November, will leave tomorrow for Denver to nominate an "also ran."

As there will be no issue of The Daily Press on Independence Day, the usual church notices will be published tomorrow. Contributors are reminded of the fact that such items are not received over the telephone.

In Monday's issue will be found a complete list of the little ones whose fond but foolish parents allowed them to play with giant firecrackers and other dangerous "toys." Some day the heathenish way of celebrating the Fourth will be abolished, but until the general public throughout the United States is aroused to the absurdity and human cost of the method now in vogue, the newspapers of the land will be compelled to chronicle the lists of victims.

When the taxpayer recollects the pie-crust promises made by the P. S. C., given in consideration of being allowed to double track its trolley line on East Front street and Watchung avenue, he will be convinced how he has been buncoed. New cars by January first, improvement of switches, better service and proper tracks on Putnam and Woodland avenues were among the things the city authorities told us we would get. Nearly six months have elapsed since the time when the P. S. C. promised to "make good" and what has been done? Will it be ever thus?

Bryan and Martine! Oratory and Farmer Oratory. Every time Bryan runs for office he grows richer, but after each occasion that Jim Martine is a candidate his pocketbook shows a crimp. Both seem to enjoy the game. Why disturb the courses of these two spheres? Let them perpetuate together. Yet it is too bad that Jim Martine cannot be elected to something. We should like to see his biography in the Legislative Manual or some other directory of greatness, so that an accurate record of his sacrifices for the Democracy and of its sacrifice of him might be readily obtainable.—Elizabeth Journal.

Yea, verily; never was there a nobler, a more conscientious, a more misguided and a better fellow than James E. Martine. We love him; Plainfield loves him; Union county loves him, everybody loves him. His best friends, and they are legion, regret the fact that he has ever been and ever will be "on the wrong side of the fence," but, nevertheless, we love him.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY CONDUCTS A LAWN SOCIAL

The Ladies Aid Society of Hope chapel held a lawn social and sale at the home of the the pastor, Rev. L. R. Howard, of West Fifth street, yesterday afternoon and last night. It was largely attended by members and friends of the chapel and the orgnalzation will clear $50 for the organ fund.

The spacious lawn on the premises was occupied by booths at which ice cream, cake, lemonade and candy were sold. Japanese lanterns and flags formed the decorations and added to the attractiveness of the natural surroundings. When the lanterns were lighted last night the effect was very pretty. An additional feature of the affair was an automobile service maintained by machines loaned for the occasion by George Deighs and G. Herbert Condict. Anyone who desired was given a long ride for five cents and the plan brought in a lot of nickles.

The general committee in charge of the social was composed of Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, chairman; Mrs. L. R. Howard and Mrs. M. Clark. The sub-committees with chairman, in charge of the booths were the following: Lemonade: Mrs. Thomas, Henry, chairman; Mrs. William Hughes, Mrs. Harry Keen and Mrs. James Herron; candy, Mrs. W. H. Cook, chairman; Mrs. Margaret Sweeney, Mrs. Jacob Blimm and Mrs. Gray; ice cream, Mrs. Charles Vincent, chairman; Mrs. M. Clark, Mrs. Henry Vogel, Mrs. William Baker, Mrs. Samuel Cratsley, Mrs. George Leighs and Mrs. Rittenhouse; auto ride committee, Mrs. L. R. Howard, chairman, George Leighs and G. Herbert Condict; decorating, Mrs. Thomas Hendry, chairman, Mrs. William Doey, Charles Vincent, Frank Clark and Rev. L. R. Howard.

The following women assisted in the afternoon: The Misses Getrude Hunter, Edna Eckert, Clara Hunter, Bertha Jones and Alice Leighs.

DETECTIVE SHOOTS WIFE THEN HE KILLS HIMSELF

Patrick H. Manning, forty-eight years old, a detective employed by the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, fired four shots at his wife, Nellie, at their home, No. 95A West Sixth street, Bayonne, yesterday afternoon, and then committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. Mrs. Manning may recover, the physicians of the Bayonne Hospital said last night.

The couple had seven children. For some time Mr. and Mrs. Manning have had trouble because of his drinking. On Tuesday night he threatened several times to kil her, and she spent the night with a neighbor. Her husband continued his abuse when she returned home yesterday morning. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon she heard him send the children out to play, and she took refuge in a bedroom and barrricaded the door with a dresser, but as soon as the children went out Manning smashed down the door. He had a revolver, and opened fire on his wife. The first shot struck her in the thigh, and she fell unconscious into a corner, and her husband fired three more shots at her. One passed through the calf of her leg. Thinking her dead Manning calmly reloaded the revolver, and carefully placed it in a bureau drawer, and then, going to another bedroom, locked the door and took the acid. He died within a few minutes. Manning was formerly janitor of police headquarters and the Democratic Club.

ESCAPES CHAIR FOR MURDER.

But Bonnano May Spend His Whole Life in Prison.

Nicoloano Bonnano, an Italian cook of Kingsland, N. J., was sentenced yesterday by Judge Crain in General Sessions to not less than twenty years nor more than his natural life in the State prison for killing Mariano Caeti, another Italian, last Christmas morning because of jealousy over Maria Marchese, Gaeti's wife. His counsel advised him to plead guilty.

Assistant District Attorney Ely accepted the plea with isitation, as he believed it a clear case of deliberation murder, but he said that Bonnano would have a charge of attempted murder to answer in New Jersey on his release, if he ever is released, as he had shot Policeman Cavone, who had tried to arrest him for killing Caeti in Hoboken.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

While riding his wheel home from work at Seeley Mill, last night, Ernest Clark, of Barth avenue, was thrown from the wheel, by the handle bars turning, breaking his right leg. The injured man fortunately was with fellow employes at the time and a carriage was secured and he was brought to his home. Dr. Westcott and Long were called and set the limb. The fracture is a bad one and it will probably be several weeks before he is able to get around again.

The married and single men's game scheduled for the morning of the Fourth, promises to be an interesting contest. The benedicts are able to put up a strong team and the single men are beginning to worry already. Game will be called at 10:30.

Those interested in Miss Curry's summer work, at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, will attend the carnival to be held on the lawn at the home on the afternoon of the Fourth.

The lawn fete held last night by St. Mary's parish, Stony Hill, was well attended by the members of the church and friends from here.

Summons has been issued in Justice Clark's court in the contract case of Van Ness vs. Johnston. Summons are returnable July 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shields gave a pretty little birthday party in honor of their daughter, Essie, yesterday. Among the children who congratulated Essie on her seventh anniversary were: Margaret Kaine, Catherine Kaine, Madaline Reilly, Rose Horn, Elizabeth Horn, Helen Richards, Marion Bigley, Elmer Randolph, Tessie Hannan and Florence Hannon. A very pleasant evening was passed, and Essie received several handsome presents from her little friends. Mrs. Shields was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Collins, of Chicago, in entertaining the happy little guests.

Last evening the final meeting of the celebration committee took place. Everybody was there and everything was arraigned. The Polish artillery sent notice that they would take part. The firemen are coming out in gorgeous new uniforms and everything that ever happened anywhere will be eclipsed.

various branches of railroad work, much of the time in charge of large bodies of workmen, I cannot recall an instance where it has not been possible to adjust any of the ordinary differences that arise by free and frank discussion of the question at issue with the men affected.

"It seems fitting to sum up what the man who must assume our duties and responsibilities must be prepared to do. He must prepare himself for leadership by efficient service in subordinate places. He must know men. He must help in building up an organization of men. It is a mistake to always seek genius; it is more important to build up that combination of various abilities, capabilities and temperaments which will form a united, homogenous body before which the difficulties of the greatest problems will crumble and disappear. After a little more than a century the development in some directions seems to have been too rapid, leading to wastefulness and it is clear that our resources must be husbanded."

RAYMOND TO OPPOSE COLBY FOR SENATORIAL PLUM.

First Assistant Prosecutor Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark, made formal announcement yesterday morning of his candidacy for the nomination for State Senator from Essex county on the "regular" Republican ticket. This will mean that he will have to make a summer campaign against Senator Everett Colby, leader of the "New Idea" wing of the party, who is seeking renomination.

In making his announcement Mr. Raymond made no detailed declaration of principles, stating merely that he stands for the National and State platforms. His attitude toward the excise question, limited franchises, and the equalization of taxes was not stated.

Mr. Raymond was mentioned by the regular leaders as Senator Colby's successor as soon as the latter declined to enter into a peace compact with them and divide up the various State nominations amicably.

Mr. Raymond was until recently a District Judge in Newark. He is a son-in-law of Chief Justice William S. Gummere, and, like Senator Colby, is socially prominent.

FRED LANG READY BUT IS NOT SENTENCED

A neatly dressed boy sat in Warden Roger's office at the Middlesex count jail Wednesday afternoon, looking the dandy from the top of his carefully combed auburn hair to the tips of his patent leather shoes, the picture of modest youth and so unobtrusive that people happening in hardly gave him a second glance, and even those who had known him failed to recognize him as Fred Lang, principal character in one of the famous murder histories of Middlesex county.

Sheriff Church had received word that the boy was to be re-sentenced to death yesterday afternoon by Justice Willard P. Voorhees. It turned out later, however, that this was not the program, and the sentencing was postponed until Justice Bergen comes here again.

The Sheriff and Warden Rogers, however, made extensive preparations for the day. A new suit of clothes had been ready for the occasion for a long time. When Fred was arrested, two years ago he had a good outfit of clothing and was quite a dandy. But when he got into tantrums after his trial he tore all his clothes up. Since then his wardrobe has been limited to an old shirt and a pair of overalls.

This was hardly to be described as a court suit, hence the new clothes bought for him. The outfit included a new shirt, collar, nectie, suspenders, socks, a pair of shoes and a brown derby hat. Lang got into these in his new quarters in the witness department, half a dozen prisoners and Warden Rogers assisting him. He was much pleased with the outfit, complaining only that there were no undergarments.

"Oh, you don't need underclothes this warm weather," said the warden.

The dressing completed, Warden Rogers took Lang downstairs. He stopped at the gate of the main corridor in which he was formerly confined and greeted a number of old acquaintances there. The prisoners crowded around and shook hands with him, many evidently thinking he was about to be hanged.

Then the boy was taken into the Sheriff's office where Mr. Rogers took him into the jail yard and picked him a boutonniere of geranium and migonnette blooms, which he placed in his lapel. Fred smiled as though well pleased with himself as he came back to the warden's office.

When asked if he knew where he was going, Fred said he didn't and didn't much care. When asked if he would like to go free he said he would go if he was allowed, but was not very particular about it.

He sat in the warden's office for about an hour, then word came that he would not be wanted in court, so he had to go back to his cell and change his clothes, no chances being taken of the new garments going the way of the former outfit.

NO NOMINATION FOR JUDGE GEORGE GRAY.

Judge George Gray at Wilmington, Delaware, yesterday reiterated his former statement that he is not a candidate for the nomination of President on the Democratic ticket. He, at the same time, declared that he is not a candidate for the nomination of Vice-President, either. The declaration was given out in answer to a newspaper query regarding the report that Judge Gray had announced his willingness to accept the nomination for Vice-President from the Denver convention. He wrote:

"I have your telegram saying that it is stated positively that I will accept the Vice-Presidential nomination and asking wheter this is true. As I have repeatedly said I would not consent to being placed in nomination as a candidate for the Presidency, I now say with equal emphasis that I will, under no circumstances, consent to a nomination for the Vice-Presidency.

(Signed) "GEORGE GRAY."

SOME NEW GOLD COINS SOON.

The Mint Preparing for $2.50 and $5 Pieces.

The National City Bank of New York in its monthly circular, to be issued today, says:

"It seems to be generally understood that the Secretary of the Treasury will take no action whatever respecting the 3 per cent. loan of 1908-18. If the Secretary of the Treasury should allow the first maturity of the 3s to pass without action, he by no means loses any of the methods he now might employ in treatment of these bonds.

There will probably be a new coinage of quarter and half eagles in the near future. Dies are in course of preparation at the Mint in Philadelphia. The new pieces will likely follow the Saint-Gaudens design now familiar in the recent coinage of the twenty-dollar piece. By Aug. 1 the Mint at Philadelphia will resume, and the new coins may therefore be expected to make their appearance about that time.

"The tendency shown by continued accumulation of subsidiary cliver in the Treasury is taken to indicate a smaller retail business throughout the country. The Treasury is giving considerable though and attention to the proper construction of the Currency Association Law. From letters received at the Department it is apparent that there is widespread interest in the subject; and it is expected that the association contemplated may generally be in a fair state of organization by autumn.

AMUSEMENTS.

Proctor's Newark theatre during the week following the glorious Fourth is brim full of novelties and surprises. Foremost among the entertainers will be Ned Wayburn's Broilers, the latest novelty, introducing beautiful scenic and electrical effects and twenty pretty girls who can both sing and dance. Fred Niblo, one of America's foremost monologuists in a series of tales gathered by him in his globe trotting tour with his wife, the famous Josephine Cohan of the Four Cohans; Rosie Lloyd, the latest of this talented family, to grace our shores, will sing in her charming English style; boy violinist Fred Gill will demonstrate his wonderful technique and execution in a series of classical and popular selections; Walter Law and company will present a comedy sketch entitled "Icewater;" Mlle. Juliette Dika, a Russian importation, assisted by a clever company, will appear in a series of picturesque dances; Carter, Taylor and company will offer a farcical sketch, "Who's Your Friend;" Claire Kummer, whose claim to a niche in the hall of fame, is her authorship to the famous ditties, "Dearie" and "Egypt," from "The Girl from Kays;" also Sam Bernard's "June" and "Sufficiency," Miss Kummer will sing some of her latest compositions; new animated pictures.

TROLLEYS DELAYED BY 50-MILE WIND.

A windstorm that blew at the rate of fifty miles an hour hit Nutley and Montclair Monday night, but missed Newark. The storm struck Nutley about 7:40 o'clock. The wind was accompanied by a cloudburst. On Franklin avenue a large beech tree near the corner of Chestnut street was blown across the trolley wires, bearing them down to within a few feet of the roadway. The trolley cars of the Newark and paterson line were blocked for two hours in both directions. The company's linemen from Newark arrived in ancwer to a telephone call and cleared the tracks at nearly 10 o'clock.

The street lights were put out of commisison in part of West Nutley by a large elm tree on the corner of Franklin and Vreeland avenues, which broke the light wires. A large advertising sign on Franklin avenue, north of Chestnut street, was flattened out on the roadway. Trees and shrubbery suffered badly in all sections of the town, particularly in the park in the centre of the town. A large elm on the corner of Chestnut street was split in two.

There was no damage done in Montclair. The storm lasted only ten minutes.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES INTO WESTFIELD HOUSE.

Westfield, July 2.—An automobile belonging to P. H. Johnson, of Newark, and driven by his chauffeur, was sent crashing into the old Ross house at the bend on South avenue and South Broad street Monday night shortly after 10 o'clock.

The machine was traveling eastward, and smashed the fence and front piazza of the house, which is owned by Charles Johnson. Mr. Johnson caused the arrest of the driver of the car. The case was settled for $25, this amount being considered sufficient for necessary repairs.

SOAP WORKS BURN.

The Arnold soap factory at Avenue A and Sixth street, Bayonne, was destroyed by fire yesterday. It was a three-story brick structure. The loss is about $60,000. A loaded coal car was standing on a track close to the factory and it was also burned. The cause of the fire is not known. The plant was under restrictions at the time of the fire, residents having recently obtained an injunction preventing its operation on account of the odor.

After Mayor McClellan.

New Brunswick, July 2.—Mayor George B. McClellan, of New York, will be required to appear before Justice of the Peace Housell, here, on July 13, on a charge of exceeding the speed limit while in an automobile. It is claimed that the Mayor and a party of friends came along the road at Piscataway Township on June 26 faster than twenty miles an hour. The officers got the number of the machine, which was 14504. Spire Housell sent the number on to Commissioner Smith, of Trenton, and it was learned that the machine belonged to Mayor McClellan. The summons issued today is returnable on July 13.

Sheath Skirt Nymph Drew Crowd.

Perth Amboy, July 2.—At Bayard's bathing pavilion, about 7:30 o'clock last night, a young woman, attired in a sheath skirt, appeared with the expectation of taking a plunge. Her garb attracted so much attention that crowd soon collected. A policeman, after ordering the spectators to keep back, escorted the young woman for several blocks, when she thanked him and was soon lost to sight. The policeman avers that she did not reveal her name or address.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, of New York, have leased the house on Jackson avenue, formerly occupied by the Sisters of Mercy.

BROTHER'S LONG SEARCH BROUGHT TO AN END.

Perth Amboy, July 2.—The long search of Dominick Scioni for the body of his brother, Antonio Scioni, who was drowned in "the whirlpool" on the north bank of the Raritan river, Sunday, came to an end early yesterday morning, when the drowned man's body was found on the flats at the South Amboy end of the Long Branch Railroad bridge. The place where the body was found was almost directly across the river from the point where Scioni lost his life.

Ever since the drowning the dead man's brother, his only relative in this country, has been searching night and day for the body, wandering up and down the shores of the river and bay. The body was found where it had been left by the receding tide.

The dead man was twenty-two years old, and unmarried. He was employed by a local contractor. Although unable to swim he went in bathing at one of the most dangerous places in the river.

BOYS ON SECOND TRIAL.

Relatives of Dead Child Not Satisfied with First Dismissal of Case.

New Brunswick, July 2.—John Bartow, Joseph E. Rath, George Holzworth, Joseph Lout and Charles Henry, five boys charged with killing Joseph Chininsky last November were placed on trial before Judge Booraem today for the second time.

When young Chininsky met his death on the steps of the Richmond Street Synagogue, sensational reports were circulated that he had been pounded to death by the other boys, who had beat his head against the stone steps and had hurled rocks at him. When the case came to court there was no evidence to warrant these charges. The first trial ended on the non-appearance of a juror one morning and the boys were sent back to school.

The friends of the dead boy demanded a full trial and this was started yesterday. Former Judge Henry, of Newark, engaged by the friends of Chininsky, represents the State. In opening the case he urged the jury not to let race prejudice interfere with their giving the case a fair trial. Many witnesses have been summoned.

FORT DINED IN PASSAIC.

Guest of Honor at Dollar Dinner of Republican Club.

Passaic, July 2.—Governor Fort was the guest of honor at a dollar dinner given last night at the Chateau Speer by the Passaic Republican Club. The Fovernor's speech dealt principally with national issues and was a hearty endorsement of the Chicago platform and Taft and Sherman.

Among the other speakers were Chancery Clerk Vivian Lewis, of Paterson, who was greeted as the next governor of New Jersey; Assemblymen John Prince and Henry C. Whitehead and Dr. Gerard I. Van Schott, treasurer of the club. President Wm. T. Magee acted as toastmaster.

There were about 200 present. Governor Fort, who was brought from his home by Freeholder Drukker in his automobile, was late in arriving. He was given a hearty welcome.

W. M. Smith, of Elmwood place, has been visiting his sister at Orange for several days.

MAD DOG RUNS AMUCK.

Bites Three Persons and Scares Horses Into Water.

Perth Amboy, July 2.—A dog belonging to Douglas McFarland, thought to have been affected with rabies, played havoc on Front street, between Smith and Market streets, shortly before noon yesterday. It bit three persons, one severely, and caused one of Christian Feigenspan's brewery teams to run away and plunge off the bulkhead just south of Gordon street.

Edward Cavanaugh, 6 years old, of Smith and Water streets; a young daughter of Theodore Anderson, and Frank McCormick were bitten. Young Cavanaugh was the most severely injured. The upper portion of his face was badly cut. The others were not bitten severely.

The animal was shot by William F. Hartmann in front of his hotel in Front street. The Feigenspan horses were in front of the latter's hotel when the dog jumped at them. They became frightened and ran southward. George Smith, the driver, just missed them by a few inches as he leaped from the hotel veranda. The horses stopped short as they reached the bulkhead, but the weight of the wagon caused them to plungs over. One of them sustained a broken ankle.

Netted $1,000 for Firemen.

Red Bank, July 2.—Members of the actors' colony who are summering at Fairhaven gave a vaudeville entertainment in Frick's Lyceum last night for the benefit of the Fairhaven Fire Department. The affair was largely attended, and as the firemen had been very active in disposing of tickets the enterprise netted more than $1,000.

(COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY GEORGE MEDDELL & CO.)

By HAROLD MACGRATH

AUTHOR OF "THE MAN ON THE BOX," "HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

Thursday morning he came in late. He dropped something on the table. On inspection I found it to be a woman's handkerchief purse.

"Where the deuce did you get that?" I asked, mighty curious.

"By George! but I've been enjoying the most enchanting adventure; such as you read out of a book. I'm inclined to believe that I shall enjoy my studies in old Barscheit."

"But where did you get this?" If there was a girl around, I wanted to know all about it.

"She dropped it."

"She dropped it!" I repeated. "What she? Why, you old tow-head, have you been flirting at this hour of the morning?"

"Handsome as a picture!"

"Dark as a Spaniard, and rides like Diana." His enthusiasm was not to be lightly passed over.

"Don't be an ass! You know very well what I mean."

"I've no argument to offer, nor any picture to prove my case. You've had an adventure; give it up, every bit of it."

"One of the finest horsewomen I ever saw. Took a wall three feet high the other morning, just to see if I dared follow. Lucky Dandy is a hunter, or I'd have broken my neck."

"Very interesting." Then of a sudden a thought flashed through my head and out again. "Anybody with her?"

"Only myself these three mornings."

"H'm! Did you get as far as names?"

"Yes; I told her mine. Who is Hildegarde von Heideloff?"

"Heideloff?" I was puzzled. My suspicions evaporated. "I can't say that I know any one by that name. Sure it was Heideloff?"

"Do you mean to tell me," with blank astonishment, "that there is a petticoat on horseback in this duchy that you do not know?"

"I don't know any woman by the name of Hildegarde von Heideloff; on my word of honor, Max, I don't."

"Old Bauer, the blacksmith, knew her."

Bauer? All my suspicions returned. "Describe the girl to me."

"Handsome figure, masses of black hair, great black eyes that are full of good fun, a delicate nose, and I might add, a very kissable mouth."

"What! have you kissed her?" I exclaimed.

"No, no! Only, I'd like to."

"H'm! You've made quite a study. She must be visiting some one nearby. There is an old castle three miles west of the smithy. Did she speak English?"

"Yes,"—excitedly.

"That accounts for it. An old English nobleman lives over there during the summer months, and it is not improbable that she is one of his guests." In my heart I knew that her highness was up to some of her tricks again, but there was no need of her shattering good old Max's heart. Yet I felt bound to say: "Why not look into the purse? There might be something there to prove her identity."

"Look into her purse?"—horrified. "You wouldn't have me peeping into a woman's purse, would you? Suppose there should be a box of rouge? Her cheeks were red."

"Quite likely."

"Or a powder-puff."

"Even more likely."

"Or—"

"Go on."

"Or a love letter."

"I have my doubts," said I.

"Well, if you do not know who she is, I'll find out,"—undismayed.

Doubtless he would; he was a persistent old beggar, was Max.

"Do not let it get serious, my boy," I warned. "You could not marry any one in this country."

"Why not?"

"Have you been regularly baptized? Was your father? Was your grandfather? Unless you can answer these simplest of questions and prove them, you could not get a license; and no priest or preacher would dare marry you without a license."

"Hang you, who's talking about getting married? All I want to know is, who is Hildegarde von Heideloff, and haw am I to return her purse? I shall ask the blacksmith."

"Do so,"—taking up my egg spoon. Max slipped the purse into his breast-pocket and sat down.

CHAPTER VII.

It was eight o'clock, Thursday night, the night of the dinner at Muller's. I was dressing when Max entered, with a miserable cheroot between his teeth.

"They say," he went on, "that in Russia they drink the finest tea in the world, simply because it is brought overland and not by sea. Unfortunately, tobacco—we Americans recognize no leaf as tobacco unless it comes from Cuba—has to cross the sea, and is, in some unaccountable manner, weakened in the transit. There are worse cigars in Germany" than in France, and I wouldn't have believed it possible, if I had not gone to the trouble of proving it. Fine country! For a week I've been trying to smoke the German quality of the weed, as a preventive, but I see I must give it up on account of my throat. My boy, I have news for you,"—tossing the cheroot into the grate.

"Fire away," said I, struggling with a collar.

"I have a box of Havanas over at the custom house that I forgot to bail out."

"No!" said I joyfully. A Havana, and one of Scharfenstein's!

"I've an idea that they would go well with the dinner. So, if you don't mind, I'll trot over and get 'em."

"Be sure and get around to Muller's at half-past eight, then," said I.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

MURDERER WAITS, BUT —SENTENCE IS WITHHELD.

New Brunswick, July 2.—When arraigned before the court to hear the sentence of death pronounced upon him yesterday, Frederick Lang, the convicted murderer of his niece, Miss Katherine Gordon, was dressed in his best clothes. He seemed much disappointed on learning that the court had decided not to take any action in the case for the present.

Lang has been in jail two years waiting to be hung or freed through insanity proceedings. He was convicted and sentenced to death and appealed his case from the State to the United States courts, expecting a reversal of the verdict, but all the courts sustained the conviction.

It was expected Justice Bergen would resentence him to death yesterday, the justice having come here to receive the grand jury which handed in a murder indictment in the case of Paul Herman, alleged to have stabbed a companion in a card game at Roosevelt. Later it was decided to have Justice Voorhees, who lives here, receive the grand jury. He failed to take the plea in the murder case and did not resentence Lang.

Pending the arrival of the judge from Trenton Lang sat in the sheriff's office neatly dressed, wearing a rose in his buttonhole. Proceedings to test his sanity will probably be taken in the last effort to save him from the gallows. He was sentenced under the old law, which provided hanging as the penalty.

ORCHARD NOT TO BE HANGED.

Idaho Board of Pardons Commutes His Sentence to Life Imprisonment.

The State Board of Pardons yesterday commuted to imprisonment for life the sentence of Harry Orchard, who was to be hanged next Friday for the murder of ex-Gov. Frank Steunenberg at Boise, Idaho.

Orchard, after he had told the story of wholesale assassination which shocked the world, pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree. In pronouncing the sentence of death a week later, Judge Wood recommended that the Board of Pardons commute it, saying he was firmly convinved that Orchard had told the whole truth at the trials of Haywood and Pettibone, and that he was therefore entitled to celemency. The board acted upon the recommendation of Judge Wood.

Orchard to the last was opposed to having his sentence interfered with. Only yesterday he said to the attorney that he hoped efforts to save him from the gallows would fail.

HAD $1,000 IN HER DRESS.

Homeless Woman, Who Recently Lived at Atlantic Highlands, in New York Hospital.

New York, July 2.—A woman who gives her names as Annie Hart, thirty-eight years old, no home, is being taken care of at Bellevue Hospital, where she appeared Wednesday. The hospital authorities desire to locate relatives of the woman, as she has more than $1,000 in cash in her dress.

The woman said she had no home and no friends. She recently had worked as a domestic in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., she said, but did not remember the name of the people she worked for. She had been married, but her husband had died about two years ago, when the couple were in Ireland.

Besides $964 in American money she had £17 in English money, but she said that outside of her visit to Ireland two years ago she had been here for the last ten years.

A Patriotic Display.

B. J. Schreiner, the Park avenue pharmacist, has a patriotic display in his show windows that includes a fac-simile of the original Declaration of Independence. The signatures are shown just as they were appended in 1776 and have attracted much attention. The decorating embodies several clever ideas and is in observance of July 4.

PIERCE POWERS GETS $100 ON CONTESTED AGREEMENT.

After being closeted but a few minutes, the jury in the case of Pierce Powers against Joseph Galbraith at the District Court this morning brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, who was represented by Francis J. Blatz. This means that Galbraith must pay him $100, being a balance on $300 of an agreement made in 1906. Powers made an agreement with Galbraith two years ago to sell him the stock on a farm at Scotch Plains for $300, a condition being that he, Powers, was to have a home there as long as he wished. Powers voluntarily left the place last year, however, when but $200 had been paid. Galbraith claimed that the balance was not due him. Witnesses proved the case to the jury who needed no deliberation before announcing their decision.

William R. Townsend was foreman of the jury, which was composed of Thomas J. Hughes, Harry De Meza, Patrick Guinee, Silvester P. Abniste, Thomas Burke, Edward McCann, Frederick Stranzenbach, Napoleon B. Snell, William Kregar, George Walton and George E. Allen. Galbraith's attorney was S. S. Swackhamer.

PROVIDING VACATIONS FOR YOUNG NEW YORK GIRLS.

To raise funds for middle-aged New York girls who need a vacation from their homes in the tenement house districts, a cake, candy and ice cream sale will be given on the lawn of George H. Goddard's residence, 205 East Ninth street, tomorrow afternoon.

No charity provides for girls between the ages of 12 and 16 years, for such girls are too old to go to the fresh air camps and cannot earn money for vacations because of the child labor law. Accordingly, a number of Plainfielders have procured a farm at Winsted, Conn., belonging to Miles Roberts, of Kensington avenue, and twenty-four girls are to be taken there to spend two weeks in August. The amount needed to carry out this project is $300, and contributions may be sent to W. L. Glenney.

Fete For Baby Camp.

A lawn fete and bazaar is being held today on the lawn of John Hummel, at Duer street and Lincoln place, the proceeds to be devoted to the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain. The affair is now in full sway, and prettily decorated booths, at which young women of the neighborhood preside, have been constructed on the lawn. There is a fancy booth, cake booth, ice cream booth, grab bag and lemonade well, and among the attractions is a mammoth doll, offered by M. Tepper, which will be awarded to the lucky voter tonight.

Fire Department Changes.

The new team of horses purchased by the city a few days ago to be used for the steamer in No. 1 house wil not be delivered until Monday. In the meantime, Captain Hand's horses will be used as heretofore and Edward Vail will be the regular driver. He formerly drove the ladder truck and has been transferred from headquarters to his new place. Vincent Carroll will be truck driver in the future.

R. A. Meeker Goes to Atlantic City.

Accompanied by his wife and son, Robert, State Supervisor R. A. Meeker left today in his automobile for Atlantic City, where he will spend several weeks. His son has secured a position as marker at the Sea Girt riffe range targets and Mr. Meeker will be employed with road business there for a fortnight. Mrs. Meeker will remain the entire summer on a vacation sojourn.

John William Louden.

John William Louden, who was recently committed to the Rahway reformatory from Middlesex county, died at the institution yesterday. The body was brought to this city and the funeral will be held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Louden, of West Third street, tomorrow afternoon at 4:30. Burial will be at Hillside.

Called to Germany in Consultation.

Dr. George W. Endicott has been called to Germany in consultation with Dr. Augustus Bier, of the University of Berlin, and sailed today with his son, George Endicott, on La Loraine, of the French Line. They will be abroad a month. They purchased their tickets through the agency of Mulford Estil.

Emma Taylor Scribner.

Emma Taylor Scribner, the three year-old daughter of Henry S. and Mary L. Scribner, of Pittsburg, formerly of this city, died yesterday. The body will be brought to Plainfield for burial in Hillside cemetery tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

DENVER TRAIN COSTS DELEGATION $20,000

At least 100 Democrats including "We-are-going-to-win-Martine will leave New Jersey tomorrow for the Democratic national convention at Denver. When the committee met in James R. Nugent's Newark office, more than 90 names were listed to go to the convention city. Final details were perfected.

There will be only one Jersey train. Robert Davis and 39 other Hudson county Democrats will be of the party. The train wil consist of five Pullmans, a diner and a baggage car, and will be made up in Jersey City. Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., will board the train with the Newark delegation. Others will be picked up at Elizabeth, Trenton and Philadelphia.

Former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, will probably be chosen by the New Jersey delegation as the state's representative on the committee on resolutions.

The special train which will convey the Jersey delegation wil cost them $20,000. The tour includes trips to Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs and other points of interest. Each member of the party will be assessed $200.

PERSONAL.

Miss Laura Sopher, of Cranford, has been visiting her friend, Mrs. George Morris, of Cental avenue.

Miss May Shreve, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Shreve, of Grove street, has gone to Poughkeepsie to visit friends.

Pierre Mali, of New York, whose summer home is on East Front street, has been elected treasurer of the Washington Park Association, N. Y., organized for the protection and improvement of that section of the city.

HE SUES FOR SLANDER; GETS 6-CENTS VERDICT.

After being out all night and for more than twenty-four ours, a jury in the Mercer Court at Trenton returned yesterday with a verdict of 6 cents damages for Rutherford C. Haven, son of former City Engineer Charles C. Haven, in his slander suit against former Sheriff Thomas H. Thropp.

Thropp does not mind the payment of the damages assessed, particularly as he is very well to do financially, and Haven feels satisfied that he has won a moral victory in the case.

The suit was brought on the ground that Thropp had slandered Haven after the latter had given testimony in a case in which Thropp's brother was interested. Haven alleged that Thropp called him a perjurer, and questioned his ability as an engineer. Thropp's defense was that his criticism was very mild, and did not justify the bringing of thes uit.

Much attention was attracted to the litigation because of the prominence of the parties involved.

PEACH STONE IN HIS THROAT.

William H. Watson, Sr., of Paterson, died at his home Tuesday evening after an operation at the Passaic General Hospital had failed to remove a peach nut from his throat. The nut or stone lodged in the throat a week ago just beneath what is commonly called the "Adam's Apple."

While the operation failed to remove the stone Mr. Watson's death was immediately due, the physicians say, to lack of vitality, caused by constant deflating of the lungs.

Mr. Watson was the junior member of the firm of Powless & Watson, undertakers of 313 Market street.

Vice-Consul Taking Treatment.

Maurise Heilmann, French Vice-Consul, who lives in Orange, and has several dogs, noticed a few days ago that one of them seemed to show symptoms of rabies, and killed it. Ten days later a cow that had been stabled with the dog showed similar symptoms of the disease and died. Mr. Heilmann had its brain examined at the Pasteur Institute and it was found that the cow had died of rabies. By advice of the officials of the Pasteur Institute, New York, Mr. Heilmann is now taking treatment.

Hot After Public Service.

A gang of Street Commissioner Gavett's men began work, yesterday, repairing West Fourth street at the point where the Public Service recently installed its new turnout. The roadway was left in a dangerous condition for two weeks without any prospect of betterment and residents made complaint. The work will be charged to the Public Service as it was notified on several occasions to "get busy."

Special Music at Union Service.

In connection with the first union service to be held at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday night, the quartet choir, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, will render special music, comprising anthems, duets and soprano solos. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, will preach the sermon.

Stole Contractor's Lumber.

Theodore Zeller, a contractor erecting a house at the foot of Spruce street, reported to the police this morning that someone has been stealing lumber from the premises during the past two nights. A total of 400 feet has been carted away and hereafter a watch will be kept on the supply.

DEDICATE TOMORROW FRELINGHUYSEN MEMORIAL

The Frelinghuysen Memorial Chapel will be dedicated tomorrow. The structure is erected in memory of Rev. Theodorus Jacobus Frelinghuysen, the first minister of the congregation of the Franklin Park Reformed church. He came over from Holland in 1720 to take the pastorate.

The principal addres will be made by State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, a lineal descendant of the man in whose honor the memorial is erected. Rev. Clifford P. Case, the latest pastor of the church, now of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will also speak, and other clergymen who will take part in the exercises are Andrew J. Walter, of Harlingen; J. R. Samson, of Belle Mead; Floris Ferwerda, of Millstone; J. A. Thomson, of Middlebush, and Garret M. Conover, of Rocky Hill.

Rev. Henry Lockwood, of Millstone, will have charge of the dedication exercises.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL NAMES AN EXCURSION COMMITTEE

At a meeting held last night, Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, made further arrangements for the excursion it wil conduct to Asbury Park, August 6 and on which it will have as guests 600 children from St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes. A committee composed of the following was appointed to attend to al preliminaries and look after the comfort of the boys and girls who will enjoy the hospitality of the organization: John J. Carty, chairman; Charles L. Kling, Andrew E. Kenney, Florence S. McCarthy, John J. Kenney, John J. Hines, Peter Duffy and Arthur A. Cannon.

The excursion train will be in two sections as it is estimated that fully 500 people in addition to the children will avail themselves of the opportunity for a good day's outing. It will be the first time the Knights have planned an affair of this kind but they have determined to make it a big success and the committee will have a lot to do between now and the date. A number of features will be introduced that are new to the shore trips running out of the city and which will enhance the enjoyment of the participants, whether large or small.

THE CHARITY IS WORTHY; WILL YOU HELP ALONG?

Under the patronage of several Plainfield people a cake, candy and ice cream sale is being held on the lawn of George H. Goddard's residence, 205 East Ninth street, this afternoon and evening, the purpose being to raise $300 with which to send a number of young girls from the tenement district of New York to the country for a two weeks vacation. There is no charity that provides for girls between the ages of 12 and 16 years and owing to the child labor law they are not permitted to work and earn money to take such a vacation.

Through the kindness of Miles Roberts, of this city, and Mrs. Burton Moore, of Winsted, Conn., a large farm has been set aside for this work at Riverton, Conn., and several young women from this city will take turns during the summer in looking after the girls who are sent there. Persons interested are requested to send contributions to W. Lester Glenney, of Stelle avenue.

Honeyman Tourists Sail Tomorrow.

Among the passengers sailing on the steamship Konigin Luise, of the North German Lloyd Line tomorrow, will be A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, and his party of eighteen tourists. They will be abroad about two months. They will go to Naples and Genoa, via Gibraltar. Those in the party are as follows: A. V. D. Honeyman, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Rynier Veghte, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac C. Toone, Miss Emma G. Allen, Miss Eleanor P. Day, Mrs. Julia G. Hills, Mrs. Mary D. Kleinhaus, Mrs. Sarah D. Page, Miss Marie de Pont, Miss Louise de Pont, Miss Catherine B. Sturgeon, Miss E. Sturgeon, Miss Margaret N. Taylor, L. DeWitt Taylor and Wilbur R. Veghte.

NO DAILY PRESS TOMORROW.

There will be no issue of The Daily Press tomorrow, The Fourth of July.

Lodges Install Officers.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., and Franklin council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., installed officers last night. Both organizations enjoyed a social time after the work. Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will install tonight.

—Neuman Brothers store will be closed all day tomorrow. Open later this evening for the convenience of customers.

"JIM" OFF FOR DENVER WITH HUDSON DELEGATES

A large delegation has gone from Hudson County to attend the Democratic National Convention at Denver, and will before their return go on a trip to the Rocky Mountains and visit the Yellowstone Park and stop at Salt Lake City. FORMER JUDGE BARTINE IS DEAD AT SOMERVILLE

Former Judge John Dodd Bartine passed away last night at his home on West End avenue, Somerville, after an illness of several weeks, from blood poisoning. The amputation of a limb would probably have saved his life, but his physical condition was such that the administration of an anesthetic was impossible. Skilled physicians did everything known to science to alleviate his sufferings.

Judge Bartine was born near Princeton, October 16, 1836. He attended country school and later took a course at Lawrenceville. He was admitted to the Bar here and later appointed to the Bench, serving three terms of Judge of the Somerset County Courts, being succeeded by the present incumbent, Judge Schenck. He is survived by a widow and two children—Edward V. Bartine of this city, and Mrs. Thomas Dyer, of Wing's Station, N. Y.

He had served the town as a member of the Board of Education and also as a member of the Board of Commissioners, having been the presiding officer of both. It was said of him that during his fifteen years on the bench he never had a single case reversed on appeal.

No man in Somerville has gained more distinction in the public life of the town than Judge Bartine. A lawyer with much ability, he was years ago recognized as one of the leading citizens of the county. He was a man of sterling character, honest convictions and one not easily swerved from the path of duty. A friend to everyone in need and in the past few years of his life his affluence of this worlds goods made him a benefactor to many needy families. He took an active part in politics with the Democratic party and his ideas were that of the old school of politics.

His favorite pastime was hunting and fishing and it was only recently that he took a trip to New York state and enjoyed a most excellent time catching trout.

He also took great pride in his home, which is one of the most beautiful in the west end of the town. He owned a farm near Harlingen.

The past few years his extensive law practice has been practically conducted by his able partner, D. H. Beekman. He was an executor of the will of the late millionaire William Rice, who at one time lived near town. Mr. Rice was murdered, and Albert Patrick, a lawyer, is now in Sing Sing, serving a life sentence for the crime.

WEDDED THIRTY-SIX YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark Jr., Observed Anniversary Yesterday.

HELD A FAMILY REUNION.

Celebration a Surprise to Mrs. Clark—Couple the Recipients of Many Useful Gifts.

The thirty-sixth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, was observed by a reunion of the Clark family at their home on Jackson avenue last night. The affair, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, his daughter-in-law, was a complete surprise to Mrs. R. Clark. The couple received many presents of cut glass, silver and china from relatives and friends, and the dozen guests passed a delightful evening with music and singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark came to North Plainfield twenty years ago and have a large circle of friends in city and borough. They were married in Newark thirty-six years ago yesterday, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Isaac Brokaw at Trinity Reformed church in that city. They lived on Lafayette street, Newark, for sixteen years after their wedding, and then moved to North Plainfield. Their three sons, Robert, Edward and Albert, were at their home last night, and a feature of the reunion was a family dinner. The dining room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and bunting, and mang the flowers was a mammoth "36," executed in red and white roses, with a background of dark leaves. Following the dinner, the party spent the evening in an informal way on the piazza, vocal and instrumental music contributing to the enjoyment. Among the presents received during the day was a cut glass clarat set, the gift of Mr. Clark to his wife.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Clark, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark, and children, Albert Clark, Mrs. S. B. Moffett and daughters, of Rahway; Miss Florence Acker, of Watchung, and Mrs. Annie Martin, of Rahway.

Caught Three Bass.

A fishing party composed of Will Russell, F. Clyde Doane, Paul R. Collier and V. W. Rafferty spent yesterday afternoon at New Market pond and returned last night with three good-sized bass. Of these, two yielded to attractive worms on Russell's hook, and Doane persuaded the smallest one to leave the water. Russell says that the two he caught weighed three pounds apiece. The four fishermen had a light luncheon off their catch today.

SOMERSET'S FREEHOLDENS GIVE BOROUGH ATTENTION

The Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders met the other day and viewed the bridge at Somerset street and Green Brook road in North Plainfield, when the members were all present, excepting Walter M. Vreeland. Member Lutkins moved that the bridge built at that point be accepted. Carried.

A communication from George W. Bird, directed to County Engineer Doughty, was written in reference to the amount of land taken from him in the construction of the Watchung county road. It was read and placed on file.

The board also visited the bridge on Codington avenue, and for which John C. Cooper presented a bill for extras, as ordered by former Mayor Smalley. It was decided that the board was not responsible for the extras.

It was determined to notify the Dover Boiler Works that the Duer street bridge has not been satisfactorily completed

The clerk was instructed to notify the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, to remove pole B. D. 390, near Thomas Moore's on the Pluckemin road, the same standing in the road gutter and being an obstruction.

The board then adjourned to meet on the South Bound Brook road on Tuesday, July 7, at 2 p. m.

CHANGES AT CASINO FOR HARTRIDGE SCHOOL

The contracts for the recitation hall of the Hartridge School, which is to be located at the Casino in the near future, have been awarded to Alexander Milne. The work has been started and Mr. Milne expects to have the building in readiness by September 1.

For the kindergarten and elementary department an entirely new addition will be built on the southside of the present auditorium, containing nine bright, sunny rooms, with adjoining cloak-rooms. For the academic department the former clubhouse will be remodeled providing six corner class-rooms, a large reception room and a well-appointed office. The former gallery will be altered and adapted for the boys' department.

In adition to these improvements, the contracts call for an entirely new system of plumbing throughout and for a complete system of steam heating. Miss Hartridge recently acquired this property, having outgrown the buildings on East and West Seventh street, where she has conducted her school since coming to Plainfield. She has been unusually successful and when the fall term opens there will be a large increase in the enrollment of pupils.

FIRST OF 4TH'S MISHAPS, FOND MOTHERS NOTE!

The first accident as the result of a premature Independence Day celebration occurred at Dunellen, this morning, when Gibson Fairman, a thirteen-year-old youth of that town filled a tin can with gunpowder and touched a match to it for the purpose of seeing what would happen. He did not have to wait long. The explosion followed too quickly to suit the lad and before he could escape he was frightfully burned about the face, hands, neck, while the left eye was burned to such an extent that the physicians are afraid that he may entirely lose the sight of the optic.

The lad was playing about the yard at his home when the accident occurred and his screams startled the whole neighborhood. A number of women rushed to the scene and found the boy frantic with pain. A hurried call brought a physician to the boy's assistance and he was given temporary treatment and then brought to Muhlenberg Hospital on a trolley car. He wil probably be detained there for several weeks.

RICHTER GIRL WILL GO TO THE GOOD SHEPHERD HOME

Freda Richter, the thirteen-year-old girl who startled the police by the boldnes of her waywardness and stealing, will be taken today to the House of the Good Shepherd at Newark. This disposition of her case was arrived at after a consultation between her mother, Chief Kiely and Judge William N. Runyon. The child has absolutely no conception of right and wrong and it is the belief that incarceration under kindly influences may make a change for the better.

Freda has been in a cell at Police headquarters since yesterday morning but instead of boo-hooing as the ordinarly boy or girl does when locked up, she has taken the whole affair as a huge joke. She sang herself to sleep last night and early this morning roused up the reserve policemen by continually calling to a friendly cat that surveyed her through the steel bars. Since then she has been singing, whistling and laughing by turns and making fun of Laura Waldron, her fourteen-year-old colored accomplice who sits in a nearby cell shedding real tears.

Disposition of Laura's case is still pending as her relatives refuse to sign papers for her commitment to a home and the charge against her must be disposed of by the Juvenile court.

WHAT IS DOING AT THE PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB.

The new house committee of the Plainfield Country Club announces a radical change in the management, which will be put into effect during the coming week, and which it is believed to meet with the approval of the members.

The club itself, through it house committee, will next week assume direct management and control of the running of the house in all its departments, including the restaurant. The Misses Scott, of Orange, N. J., who have had wide and varied experience in work of this kind, will take charge. They will make their home in the club house, and will engage and personally supervise all employes and attend to all the details of the management.

The change which is about to be made has had necessarily to be postponed pending the termination of the contract outstanding with the present steward. For this reason it has seemed best this year to forego the extra features of entertainment which are usually provided for the Fourth of July, although the house and grounds will, of course, be open to members and their guests as usual and a dance, with an enlarged orchestra will take place in the evening. Stages will meet cars during the afternoon and evening and will convey members and guests to and from the club house without charge.

Netted $15 for Baby Camp.

Fifteen dollars, the proceeds of a lawn fete held at the home of John Hummel, of Duer street, yesterday afternoon and evening, has been left at The Daily Press office for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountain. Attractive booths on the lawn were presided over by the young people of the neighborhood, and the fete was well attended. The doll offered by M. Tepper was awarded to Mrs. D. Hogan. Miss Helen Hummel and Miss Elsie Hodgskin were at the ice cream booth and Miss Ida Hummel and Margaret Hogan presided at the candy table. Miss Frances Newman was at the cake booth and Miss Mildred Conover was in charge of the lemonade well. Fritz Hummel had charge of the grab bag and George Hummel acted as ticket taker.

PROGRAM FOR THE 4TH

Complete List of Events Offered in Plainfield for Independence Day.

ALL SORTS OF ATTRACTIONS.

Golf, Tennis, Baseball, Race Events, Dances, Fireworks and What Not for Tomorrow.

No day in the year provides more events of a general interest, including in celebrations and sports, than the Fourth of July, and Plainfield and vicinity will have its share tomorrow when there will be affairs of all sorts to engage the attention of everyone. There will be a general cessation of business, all of the merchants practically agreeing to close their shops. The shops will be kept open until 12 o'clock tonight, and in some cases, in the mater of perishable goods, housekeepers may be able to defer their trading until morning, when an opportunity will be given for a short time during the early hours. It is advisable, however, to complete your shopping tonight if possible.

There will be no general public demonstration here tomorrow, but there will be numerous events at the various clubs, baseball, tennis, horse racing, golf, etc. In addition there will be several private displays of fireworks which will attract many.

An event of special interest will be the matinee race-meet at the driving park in the afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club. There will be six events, including two running races a steeplechase, and trotting and pacing races. Valuable prizes, purses and cups will be offered in each. The Watchung Hunt Club will enter several horses in the steeplechase event. The remaining part of the card has attracted a large number of the best horses in this part of the State.

There will be two good baseball games on Crescent Oval tomorrow. In the morning the Clinton Avenues will meet the Newark Stars, one of the best semi-professional teams in the State. Randolph and O'Loughlin will do the battery work for the Plainfield team, and they will also be in the points in the afternoon, when the club will meet the Y. M. C. A. boys on the Oval at 3:30 o'clock. Randolph has requested Manager Dorflinger to let him pitch both games, feeling confident that he can win the contests. The one in the morning will begin at 10:30 o'clock promptly.

The lineup of the Newark Stars will be as follows:

Mille or Bellingroth, p; E. Faix, c; Silkey, 1b; Schaffles, 2b; B. Booth, ss; F. Faix, 3b; Guerin, lf; Mills, cf; Sallager, rf. The Clinton Avenues will present their regular lineup in the morning and afternoon, the only change being that Allen Snyder will play right-field. The Y. M. C. A. will also present its regular lineup in the afternoon, with Jim Scott and Ralph Schoonmaker in the points. Scott has been held in reserve for this game and he hopes to defeat his old team-mates.

For those who are fond of golf there will be plenty doing at both the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club. At the former club there will be concluding play for the club championship, first and second eights, and in addition there will be an 18-hole, medal play, handicap, morning or afternoon for the best gross and the best net scores in Classes A and B. There will be social events at the clubhouse in the afternoon and a dinner-dance in the evening, for which an enlarged orchestra has been engaged. There will also be tennis events on the club course.

At the Park Golf Club there will be tennis events on the club course.

At the Park Golf Club there will be play for the Holiday cup, members' bogey handicap, eighteen holes, match play; to be competed for morning and afternoon; an approaching and putting contest, mixed couples, open to members and their guests; to start at 4 o'clock. Besides there will be play for the President's and Golf Club cups, weekly competition. A special feature will be the tennis on the club's new courts. There will be an informal reception at the clubhouse in the afternoon. In the approaching and putting contest two silver cups will be awarded the winners.

There will be the customary celebration at the Park Club, including tennis play on the club courts in the afternoon, a tea and reception at the clubhouse, to be followed in the evening by the usual dance and a handsome display of fireworks, for which the club is noted. Admission to the grounds will be by card of invitations issued through the members. The clubhouse and grounds will be elaborately decorated for the

Three hundred passengers on the New Jersey Central ferryboat Bound Brook, many of them from Plainfield, early yesterday morning had a thrilling experience when the craft, driven by a heavy tide, ran into the piling on both sides of the Liberty street slip. Men and women were thrown down and, while no one was hurt, many suffered bad scares, the excitement in the forward part of the boat being increased when a driver of a big coal wagon lost control of his two big grays for a few moments and they threatened to plunge forward among the passengers collected in front of the guard chains.

The Bound Brook, which left the Communipaw slip at 6:45 o'clock, carried two train loads of commuters, those arriving on the Somerville express and a way train. All went well until the slip at the foot of Liberty street was reached, when the boat, carried by the tide, sideswiped the piling on the south side of the slip. The pilot's warning, "Steady!" to those below prepared them for the shock, which was not very serious.

Rebounding after the contact the boat swerved to the southward and before the reversed power could diminish its speed to any great extent it ran full tilt into the other piling down in a confused mass and burying most of them under the water before the boat came to a standstill.

This second crash, although the pilot repeated his warning, caught a number of passengers unprepared, and many of them were thrown by the force of the impact. Women screamed and ran to the front part of the cabin, but were soon calmed by the employes on the boat.

The excitement there was increased by the wild behavior of a pair of big dray horses drawing a loaded coal wagon. The driver of the horses, after the first crash, had indulged in much jocularity at the expense of the pilot, but when his team began to plunge forward in the direction of a hundred terrified passengers gathered in front of the ferryboat gate he had all he could do to restrain the big beasts. With the aid of some of the passengers who pluckily seized the horses' bridles they were finally got under control.

The boat was forced to back out and make the slip to the south, causing a delay of ten minutes to the passengers.

BERKELEY HEIGHTS' UPLIFT.

To Be Brought About by Campaign of the Township Improvement Society.

Berkeley Heights, July 3.—If the plans of the Township Improvement Society, outlined at their last meeting, do not miscarry, there will be a great improvement in the social well being of this section in the near future. Classes for the children are to be organized, military drills for the boys, games for the girls, parliamentary law classes for both parents and children, singing classes for boys and girls and an orchestra for the boys are among the immediate reforms to be instituted.

The improvement society says that it will take an active part in the coming political campaign, but proposes to keep out of politics. This is to be accomplished by demanding that all candidates for local offices declare themselves in sympathy with the organization's aims.

William Jeffery was elected to succeed Frank C. Shaffer as president of the society, and Robert G. Rogers, Frank C. Shaffer and William Jeffery were elected members of the board of governors.

Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson, president of the State Civil Service Commission, made an address on "Good Citizenship," and arrangements were made for a party of fifty men to march to New Providence Saturday afternoon to participate in the Independence Day celebration to be held there.

INDICT BALLOT BOX STUFFERS.

Jersey City, July 3.—Among a batch of indictments handed into court yesterday by the Grand Jury were several against Republican election boards who officiated at the primaries in May for the election of delegates to the State convention. It is understood that election boards of the Ninth and Tenth wards of this city are included in the list.

The indictments allege conspiracy. The indicted men are known as organization Republicans, and the evidence against them was furnished the Grand Jury by New Ideaites. Alleged primary frauds in Hoboken are to be investigated at Friday's session of the Grand Jury.

To Serve Potatoes.

A delicious way of serving potatoes is the following: Boil and mash twelve medium sized white potatoes, using one tablespoonful of butter instead of milk. When they are nearly cold add beaten yolks of three eggs, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one-quarter teaspoonful of grated nutmeg and six drops of onion juice. Stir these ingredients together until they are smooth. Make up into small cone-shaped croquettes and stand away to harden. When they are firm roll them in the beaten whites of the eggs and cracker dust and fry in deep boiling lard until a light brown. This wil make twenty-five croquettes.

They had a fight at an anniversary celebration of a tribe of Red Men to which both belong Swoveland charged Barr with having fire-water in the refreshment room and Barr ordered him out, but Swoveland refused to go. Indian warfare followed, and Brave Swoveland was worsted. Half the costs of the case were placed on each.

A $400 horse owned by James J. Campbell, a contractor of Williamsburg, was struck and killed Monday by a long Island Railroad train at Hamburg avenue and Evergreen Cemetery. Some persons who saw the accident said it was a case of suicide. The horse got out of its stable near the railroad tracks, and when its owner tried to coax it back the animal dashed upon the rails. When the train came along the engineer blew his whistle, but the horse refused to budge. Again the engineer whistled, while a stableman tried to beat the horse from the front of the fast-moving train. The next instant the huge locomotive crashed into the horse, hurling it seventy-five feet away.

The officials of Norwalk, Conn., have received a unique complaint from Edward Schoonover, a Winnpauk farmer, who wanted permission to shoot the deer that was running up and down the roof of his barn, wearing the shingles out and kicking the weather vane off.

Schoonovers barn is an old fashioned one and backs up against a hill, from which the deer jump to the roof. The police officials referred the farmer to Wilbur F. Smith, game warden, who has decreed that Schoonover has no right to kill the deer unless they eat his crops. It is Schoonover's intention to remove the lightning rod from the barn and make of it a fence at the edge of the roof with a barbed wire at the top.

Lander Bernhart, of Yoe, thinks he has found a substitute for the incubator. He says he has evidence that the sun can do the work. While in his barnyard he was much surprised to hear a peeping from a pile of sawdust, and to see three fluffy chicks issue forth. He raked over the pile and found three empty egg shells. He thinks that the eggs were accidentally covered over and that the hot sun of the last few weeks hatched them out.

A strange story comes from one of the Balkan States, where commercial morality is still in its infancy. At a recent banquet given at the house of the Prime Minister a distinguished diplomat complained to his host that the Minister of Justice, next to whom he was sitting, had taken his watch. The Prime Minister said: "Ah, he shouldn't have done that. I will get it back for you." Sure enough, toward the end of the evening the watch was returned to its owner. "And what did he say?" asked the guest. "Sh-h! He does not know I have got it back," said the Prime Minister.

CURIOUS HOTEL CUSTOMS.

A curious custom prevails at an Edinburgh hotel. Whenever a customer is heard to swear he is required to place a penny in a box on the bar counter. It is not a matter for surprise that the landlord hears much less bad language than some of his fellow publicans in the capital of Scotland. The following is a quaint idea for providing funds for picnics and social evenings. It is carried on with much success at an Ashton-on-Mersey inn. A "knocking club" is connected with the inn, and when a customer calls for refreshments he is expected to knock on the table or counter before drinking. If he fails to do this he is fined 1 penny. Any one who wrongfully accuses another of breaking this unique rule is also fined. The money thus obtained provides funds for many enjoyable outings and pleasant evenings during the course of the year. At another hotel, known as the Old Hundred, customers are allowed only one drink. If one is not sufficient to quench their thirst they are obliged to go out of the hotel and take a walk before they are allowed to have another. Till recently the proprietor of an old-time hotel in Warwickshire used to invite all his customers to accompany him and his wife to the service at the parish church on Sunday mornings, which was situated on the opposite side of the road, the house being closed while they were away. On returning each customer was invited to partake of refreshments offered by the hispitable landlord free of charge. Visitors to a certain hotel in Aberdeenshire who wear brown boots must remember to keep them in their room over night. Othewise the boots will be blackened, regardless of the original color of the same. In one of the rooms of a Dumfries public house is an old arm chair, which is said to have been freqquently used by the poet Burns. All who sit in this chair are expected to treat everyone who is in the room at the time, and often the immortal memory of the famous Scottish national poet is drunk.

FOOD FOR REFLECTION.

It is a great shock sometimes in after years to meet one's first love and reflect how narrowly one escaped marrying him. But we sometimes suffer even more when we encounter a man we despised and rejected in our salad days, but whom we know, in our later wisdom, to be a splendid type. These are the ironies of life. I know a woman who refused a $1,000 a year man and married one with $2,500 a year—not because she liked him better, but because he had $1,500 a year more.

Ten years later the man who was too poor for her to marry had become a mild type of millionaire. Her own husband never got beyond his $2,500 salary.

Let us think long before we turn down the poor man merely because he is poor. Character and ambition are the first considerations.

BIG ORGAN TRIED OUT.

Mark Andrews Says It Is Most Remarkable in World.

Ocean Grove, July 3.—Curiosity concerning the new Ocean Grove organ, the first public recital of which will be given tomorrow night, has reached a high pitch. Today Mark Andrews, the organist from New York who is to give the recital, came to Ocean Grove and began practising on the big instrument. He said last night that he was full of wonder at the result obtainable, and that he had no doubt that it was the most remarkable organ in the world. Tali Esen Morgan, musical director, says there is a great demand for tickets, and that he believes he could fill the Auditorium twice over the first concert, so he has engaged Mr. Andrews for five more nights, and he will also play on July 4 from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. Three hundred organists from various parts of the country will attend the opening recital Friday. Among these the most noted will perhaps be Clarence Eddy and Charles Heinroth.

Public music on the beach began at Lillagore's Pavilion yesterday. The orchestra will continue until September. Its old location has been changed, the musicians having been placed near the skating rink.

Dr. F. C. Freemantel, of Philadelphia, is going to take a good deal of the burden off Mr. Morgan's shoulders this year in the training of singers. He arrived yesterday, and last night conducted his first rehearsal. Mr. Morgan has heretofoe done all the work the elaborate musical program calls for without assistance.

Second Brigade to go Into Camp.

Orders have been issued to the 2d Brigade, N. G. N. J., to go into camp at Sea Girt for two weeks, beginning July 11. The organizations which this order affects are the 2d and 3d Infantry, 2d Troop and Battery B, of Camden. Brigadier-General Collins will be in command of the 2d Regiment forces at the seashore.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

J. T. Hallock, of Iona, announces himself as a Republican candidate for Assembly from Gloucester county.

Another Republican has announced himself a candidate for the nomination for Mayor of Beverly—Justice of the Peace Frank Jones.

While on a visit to friends in Camden yesterday John W. Ayers, sixty-four years old, of Dayton, O., fell and was badly injured about the head. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

The two-year-old son of Frank Brazo, of Rosenhayn, tumbled from a bank under a road scraper and was badly hurt. Dr. George Cunningham found a broken hip, but thinks the child will live.

For bombarding the home of Mrs. Mary Wilkinson, at Fourth and Division streets, William Laden, twelve years old, was sentenced to be spanked by Justice of the Peace Baldwin, in Camden yesterday.

Alloway, last night, joined in the local option fight by organizing to suport Joel Borton, the local option candidate from Salem county for the State Legislature. This is the seventh town in the county which has organized for the fight.

When the big iron door of a vegetable cave was opened at the Training School for Feeble-minded Boys and Girls at Vineland, yesterday, one of the boys, eleven years old, was found in the cave asleep. When the big door blew shut the night before the little fellow cried and shouted, but no one heard him. Attendants searched for the lad, and finally concluded that he had run away.

It has just been announced that Miss Anna Beesley and Joseph Hamil, both of Paterson, have been man and wife for a little more than a year past. They were married on June 1, 1907, at the Church of the Carmelites, New York City, by the rector, Rev. Father McCaffrey. The young woman is quite wealthy in her own right, being heir to a large part of the fortune left by her father, who died a few years ago.

Captain Charles Haines, of the steamboat Sylvan Glen, of the Washington Park line, Gloucester City, was stricken Tuesday night with paralysis at the wheel of the boat just after leaving Arch street, Philadelphia, and later was taken to his home in a serious condition. James Russel, the pilot, was on duty and took the captain's place, and the passengers were unaware of the captain's condition.

Running across Twenty-fifth and Federal streets, Camden, last night, with several companions, while at play, John Keige, thirteen years old, of 20 North Twenty-fifth street, that city, was knocked down by a trolley car and his right leg was cut off below the knee. The boy was also seriously injured about the body and is in a serious condition. He was removed to the Cooper Hospital.

On her way from the Camden courthouse, where she had testified as a witness in a case yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Ada M. Middleton was arrested on a charge of bigamy and committed to the county jail by Justice of the Peace Schmitz. Joseph C. Jones made the complaint. He said he was not aware until a few days ago that the woman was married at the time he took her as his wife.

Striking a match to light a cigarette, a boy set fire to oily waste in a wagon belonging to Lionel Simpson, a plumber, at Second and Arch streets, Camden, yesterday, and the flames spread so rapidly that the horse ran away. Jumping into the wagon to extinguish the blaze, Ernest Simpson, the driver, leaped out as the horse made a thrilling dash down Federal street, carrying the blazing vehicle at its heels. At Delaware avenue the team was stopped, the horse cut from the blazing vehicle by several men and the fire extinguished. The horse's tail was singed and the wagon badly damaged.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS TO MEET AT ELIZABETH.

The annual encampment of the New Jersey Spanish War Veterans will be held in Elizabeth on Wednesday, July 8. The headquarters of Camp William J. Sewell, 10, at No. 109 Broad street, have been selected as the place of meeting where delegates from every camp in the state will gather. Maj. Robert L. Patterson past department commander, is the chairman of the arrangement committee, and has planned many attractive novelties for the visitors. Among these is a military luncheon, which will be served at noon.

The delegates will be called to order at 10 o'clock. Reports of officers will be read and during the day officers will be elected. Captain John P. Desmond, of Camp Wikoff, of Jersey City, is a candidate to succeed Department Commander John T. Collins, of Rutherford. There are no contests for other offices.

Good Roads Delegate Withdraws.

Angus Sinclair, a delegate to the good roads convention to be held in Buffalo next week, has sent his declination to Governor Fort, as he will sail for Scotland on Saturday. Mr. Sinclair is a former president of the North Jersey Automobile Club and is president of the Arsdale Golf Club of East Orange.

SOMERS GETS OFF CHEAPLY.

Assailant of Dobbins Convicted of Assault and Battery.

Jersey City, July 3.—The jury in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Jersey City, which sat for two days at the trial of John Somers, indicted for the murder of Martin A. Dobbins, a retired milk dealer, in Jersey City, on March 29, returned a verdict Tuesday finding the defendant guilty of assualt and battery. Somers got into a fight with Dobbins while the latter was taking a walk with a mulatto woman. He claimed that Dobbins drew a knife and he struck him in self-defense. The ex-milkman fell, fracturing his skull.

Without leaving the courtroom yesterday a Camden jury convicted Nicholas Veratti, a saloonkeeper, of 842 Locust street, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Before Dr. Endicott sailed for Germany today he left at his home written instructions that nothing should be given out concerning his absence except that he had been called to Berlin to consult with Dr. Augustus Bier, of the University of Berlin, and that he had sailed today with his son George and would be gone about a month.

From the articles which appeared in today's newspapers, it is evident that the enterprising Plainfield reporters did not rest content with the information obtained from the doctor's home. Dr. Endicott knew perfectly well the name of the patient who sought his aid as consulting surgeon and the particulars of the case, but with punctilius regard for the ethics of his profession, declined to make the letter known even to his most trusted friends. It is enough to say that they were such as in his judgment made the call imperative. He responded to the call as he was in duty bound, after ascertaining that he could make proper provision for the professional care of his patients at home during his short absence. The rumors concerning his fee and the other alleged details were figments of some friend's (not the reporter's) creative imagination. Those who know, as I know, the extent to which Dr. Endicott and his professional brethren in New Jersey constantly give of their time and skill to the uttermost to patients who cannot afford to pay any fee do not need to be told that there is no profession or calling freer from mercenary motives than that of which he is a member. As his friend and on his behalf, since he is not here to speak for himself, I ask you as a matter of simple justice to publish this correction in your issue of tomorrow.

WOMEN'S VETERAN CORPS ELECTS YEAR'S OFFICERS

The annual encampment of the Women's Veteran Relief Union of New York and New Jersey, was held in Pittis' Hall, on East Front street, yesterday afternoon. After the transaction of routine business, these officers were elected for the coming year:

Department president, Mrs. Hattie Davis, Jersey City; senior vice-president, Mrs. William Drewnell, Jersey City; junior vice-president, Mrs. E. E. Townley, Plainfield; chaplain, Mrs. Elizabeth Naylor, Plainfield; conductor, Mrs. Ida Mulford, Plainfield; assistant conductor, Mrs. Sophia Thompson, Plainfield; secretary, Mrs. Abby Naylor, Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. James Garretson, Jersey City; flag bearers, Mrs. Harriet Gibbons, Westfield; Mrs. Sarah Keoyer, Plainfield; inside guard, Mrs. Joseph Chambers, Penn Yan, N. Y.; outside guard, Mrs. William Blauvelt, Waterloo, N. Y.

Last night at the Christian church a camp-fire was held under the auspices of the Women's Veteran Relief Union. The program consisted of addresses by Gen. Albert E. Perry, and C. M. Raybert, of this city; Edward Pearsall, of Westfield; piano solos by Miss Lydia Edgar; recitations, Miss Ellen Thompson; instrumental selections, Vroom Brothers; dialogue, by the Sweet family, comprising eight women from the Union. At the conclusion the department president was presented with a belt pin and Miss Lydia Edgar received a large bouquet of flowers.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

A SCHEME WORTH WATCHING.

According to the Elizabeth papers a scheme is on foot, in Union and Hudson counties, that deserves to be watched and, if need be, fought at every step. It is a scheme to revive, under somewhat new conditions, the old and thus far unsuccessful effort to build a new bridge across Newark Bay, connecting Elizabeth and Bayonne.

The plan as outlined is to extend Westfield avenue at North Broad street, eastward till it connects with one of the avenues leading down to the westerly shore of Newark Bay, and then build a bridge to connect with the Bayonne boulevard leading to the Hudson river. This, it is argued, would provide a most attractive highway, of modern construction, from Jersey City to Bayonne, and thence by direct route to Elizabeth, Roselle, Cranford, Westfield, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, and later to Easton. The new bridge, it is contended, would be the connecting link between two of what are already the finest boulevards in the State, and would make a magnificent course for automobiles and open up a cross-the-State highway for traffic that has hitherto been checked at Elizabeth and diverted to Newark.

Now the city of Newark is not in the least jealous of this traffic. It has enough of its own. Neither does it object to a broad, beautiful highway over the route projected. Nor yet does it desire to stand in the way of a bridge that will properly connect Elizabeth and Bayonne. But it does most strenously oppose and will continue to oppose any additional, unnecessary bridging of Newark bay, for the reason that such a structure cannot fail to seriously interfere with the rapidly increasing waterway commerce of this city.

The Union County Board of Freeholders, which has hitherto opposed all the efforts of Congressmen Dunn, Benny and Van Winkle to get the consent of Congress and the War Department to build a new bay bridge, is now said to look upon the project with somewhat of favor, and wealthy Union county land owners and officials, who are largely interested in property contiguous to the proposed western terminus of the new bridge, are pushing the scheme with considerable energy.

There is but one right way to meet this bay bridge question, and that is, to build a railroad bridge and a public bridge as one structure. The Central Railroad Company must, in the near future, reconstruct its old bridge from shore to shore. The War Department will not much longer tolerate the old spile structure that has been repaired till it has become an obstruction and a menace to navigation. What should be done, and done in the near future, is for competent engineers representing all interested parties, to get together and adopt plans for a combination bridge, adequate for all traffic now and for the next half century. Such an improvement would meet with no objection and would complete the proposed boulevard system across the State. It would advance every commercial interest without being a detriment to any.—Newark News.

Another event of special interest will be the lawn fete and dance at the Watchung Hunt Club's handsome new home on Plainfield avenue. The house committee announces that the membership will be privileged to entertain any guests to whom they may wish to extend an invitation for the day. Besides the outdoor events in connection with lawn fete, a feature will be table d'hote luncheons and dinners at the clubhouse. A stage will run between the trolley terminus, Seventh street and Monroe avenue and the clubhouse.

The circulating department of the Public Library will be closed all day. The reading room will be open from 2 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon, with a member of the staff in attendance. The art gallery will be open from 2 until 5 o'clock.

The local drug stores will, as usual close in the afternoon from 1 until 6 o'clock.

The New Jersey Central will run excursions to Mauch Chunk and Lake Hopatcong for those who do not care to remain in town. These outings are popular with a great many people who are accustomed to seeking the mountains on Independence Day.

The last regular shooting for the season's trophy at the ranges and traps will be held at the Independent Gun Club grounds on the holiday, and there will be special sweepstakes shooting at trap and range for the members and their friends, men and women. The Gesang and Turn Verein will have their usual outdoor celebration at their grove, and there will be holiday doings at Saengerbund Hall in the evening.

At the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, where preparations have been completed for the reception of two hundred New York children when the camp opens Monday, there will be a fair and bazaar in the afternoon and evening. Various booths will be in charge of church workers of city and borough and the proceeds will be used to give children a few weeks vacation at Netherwood.

The Plainfield A. C. wil play two games tomorrow. In the morning the club wil play the Hamilton A. C., of Rahway at the latter place, and in the afternoon will meet the strong Marion A. C., from Lincoln on the Clinton avenue grounds. The battery for the morning game will be Slocum and Francisco and the afternoon, Luthman and Muir.

Martin Cronce, of Essex street, has returned home after a weeks visit with relatives at Pittstown, Hunterdon county.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Notice was given in yesterday's issue as on many previous occasions, that notices for the church column will not be received over the 'phone. Pastors will kindly send them by mail or messenger.

Rev. Mr. Perkins, who has been at Liberia, Africa, and associated in the work of the late Gertrude S. Mair, will preach on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at Warren chapel. He will tell of his work and his friends are invited. Mrs. Perkins will also be present.

Recommend McGauley's Release.

The jail committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders yesterday passed a resolution, recommending that James McGauley, of this city, be discharged from custody. He was sentenced by Judge Runyon to sixty days and a fine of $100 for disorderly conduct and the purloining of a hackman's rig. The sixty days expired on May 29 and as there is no prospect of his paying the fine the freeholders believe he should be released. A copy of the resolution will be sent to Judge Runyon for consideration.

Died at Parents' Home.

The Daily Press was in error yesterday in stating that John William Louden had died at the Rahway Reformatory. He passed away at the home of his parents after a lingering illness from pulmonary troubles. An older brother is at the reformatory and a confusion of names caused the mistake.

Will Take Mt. Clemens Treatment.

J. Alexander Wilson, of Grove street, will leave Sunday for Mount Clemens, Mich., where he will begin treatment at the sanitarium there for rheumatism. He will be accompanied by W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, who will spend a few days at Detroit and St. Clair before returning.

Found Handerkerchief Through Ad.

Mrs. Hendrickson, matron of the Children's Home, recovered a handkerchief lost two weeks ago through a "lost" advertisement in yesterday's Dail Press. The "ad" was seen by Mrs. Grant, a neighbor, who returned the handkerchief last night.

Horse Broke Leg in Stable.

A horse belonging to the Natural Ice company broke its leg in Stonewall Jackson's stables on Somerset street yesterday and was subsequently shot by Chief Marhal Weiss of the North Plainfield police.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Retiring from the drug business after thirty-five years at his store, the first drug store in Dunellen, Dr. P. W. Brakeley has sold his business to Edward Pennock, who took possession of the business immediately after the papers of transfer were signed yesterday morning. Mr. Pennock is a druggist of experience and comes to Dunellen after several years in the wholesale drug business in New York. He has a certificate of registry from the State Board of Pharmacy. Dr. Brakeley, retiring from all active business, will endeavor to build up his health.

The local celebration of Independence Day will centre at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, where the members of William G. Holton Council have arranged for a mammoth celebration, both indoors and out. Within there will be "open house" all day, and dancing in the evening, while on the lawn adjoining will be games and a fair. The principal ball game will be in the morning, when the Dunellen F. C. meet the Highland Park A. C. on the local diamond. Both teams have been strengthened for the game. In the afternoon the Dunellenites will play at Whitehouse.

The cannon secured through the local board of education for the grounds of the Whittier School arrived in town yesterday and will be put in position on the lawn at once. It is planned to have some public exercises at the time, and Congressman B. F. Howell, who secured it for the school board, will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. W. W. Casselberry left yesterday for a month's visit with her sister, Mrs. I. L. Hunt, of Adams, N. Y.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The only special attractions for tomorrow, the Fourth, will be the two ball games. In the morning at 10:30, the benedicts and single men will have their annual game. In the afternoon at 3:30 the strong All-Star team of Newark, will try and lower the locals pride.

There will be the usual noise as well as burnt fingers tomorrow, the town in general taking a full holiday. The stores will remain open part of the day on account of it being Saturday.

A number of those interested in Miss Curry's Fresh Air work will attend the carnival to be held tomorrow afternoon on her lawn of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

The weekly prayer meeting will be held tonight in the parlors of the Baptist church. At the close of the sermon Sunday morning, the monthly communion will be held.

Ortlieb will be unable to pitch for the locals tomorrow, on account of a sprained ankle, which will keep him out of the game for a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper and children, of Front street, are spending several days with Mr. Harper's parents, at Southport, L. I.

Mrs. Thomas Dobbins, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole, has returned to her home in Newark.

The Depot Park has received a much needed cleaning up. The improvement being very noticeable.

The township committee meets tonight in the town rooms.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A runaway cow created quite a little diversion yesterday morning. She was first discovered helping herself to beans, peas, lettuce and other vegetables along the gardens and truck farms on Clinton avenue. Upon being remonstrated with she hurried into town with the evident intention of appealing to Marshal Reilley, but Samuel Goff rounded her up in true western fashion and took her to one of his barns. Later in the day she was claimed by Charles Norway.

There will be continuous auto service between Rowley's drug store and South Plainfield, starting at 10 a. m. tomorrow for the celebration. The grounds are being prepared for the celebration and a force of workers is engaged in decorating, erecting dining tables and booths.

The Rev. C. W. F. Atlee will preach a patriotic sermon on Sunday evening in the Baptist church. His morning topic will be "I Am the Bread of Life." The Christian Endeavor subject will be "Songs of the Heart—Longings and Satisfaction."

Phil Smith will pitch two games tomorrow at Bound Brook.

SAY FALL CAUSED DEATH.

Five Boy Defendants Tell New Brunswick Jury How Chininsky Died.

New Brunswick, July 3.—Denying absolutely all criminal responsibility for the death of little Joseph Chininsky, the five boys on trial for assaulting him went upon the stand yesterday and told Judge Booraem and the jury that they had only had a fight such as is common among boys, and that Chininsky fell off the steps of the Richmond Street Synagague and died.

John Bartow, George Holzworth, Charles Harris, Joseph Erart and Joseph Lout, the defendants, were in court early with their parents ready for the concluding day. Senator Strong, in opening for the defense, said that he would show that there was no criminal responsibility resting upon the defendants. He would show by State's witnesses at the former trial, he declared, and physicians of repute, that death had been caused by a rupture of blood vessels produced by a fall or excitement. They would show that the boy had been in bad health, poorly nourished and suffering from diseased arteries.

He declared that everybody had been satisfied when the boys were discharged after the first trial, and that it was almost contrary to the constitutional provision that the defendants should be placed twice in jeopardy for the same crime.

TWO BATHED IN BOILING TAR.

Parents of Ethel Nevins, Who Was Murdered, Are Terribly Burned.

Camden, July 3.—The upsetting of a pot filled with a mixture of boiling coal tar and coal oil caused serious injuries to Harry F. Marx and his wife, Mrs. Minnie Marx, or Nevins, of 33 South Forty-first street, East Camden, yesterday. Mrs. Marx is the mother of nine-year-old Ethel Nevins, who was murdered on October 3 last by fifteen-year-old "Joe" Wood, who is serving a sentence of thirty years in State prison for his crime. Mrs. Marx was frightfully burned about the body and is in a critical condition. Marx's injuries consist of burns of both arms from his elbows to the tips of his fingers.

Marx had heated the coal tar mixture to use in painting his chickenhouse. As he was lifting the pot from the gas range in the kitchen his wife accidentally bumped against his elbow. The stuff was spilled on his arms and caused him to drop the pot with a cry of pain. The mixture spilled over Mrs. Marx and caught fire. Nearly all of her clothing was burned from her body before neighbors, who had run to her assistance, could extingfuish the flames with rugs and coats that they wrapped about her.

NEW PROVIDENCE PATRIOTISM.

It Will Find Expression in Fourth of July Celebration.

New Providence, July 3.—Plans for the greatest Fourth of July celebration ever held in this old Revolutionary town are now practically complete. The program will open with a baseball game on the Murray Hill grounds between the New Providence A. C. and the Myersville A. A.

The formal exercises will occur at 4 o'clock on the large lawn in front of the New Providence M. E. church. From a platform to be erected for the occasion, and with the Rev. T. E. Gordon, the pastor of the church, presiding, the Declaration of Independence will be read by John Morris Wilcox, an old G. A. R. man. The oration will be delivered by Otheman Stevens, of California, and will be followed by addresses by Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson, president of the State Civil Service Commission, and a resident of the town; William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, and others. Music will be furnished by a male quartet and by Charles Lush and Harry Hook. In the evening there will be fireworks.

HEIRS SEEK BIG ESTATE.

Descendants of Christopher Worman Empower Attorney to Fight for Alleged Millions.

Washington, July 3.—Another meeting of the Worman heirs was held at the office of Justice of the Peace J. R. Lindaberry yesterday, when a dozen or more of the heirs signed the papers giving S. B. Metler, of Pittstown, the power of attorney to represent all the heirs to the estate of Christopher Worman.

He died in London two centuries ago, leaving an estate now said to be worth $80,000,000.

Two hundred of the heirs in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio have given Mr. Metler power of attorney. He expects another hundred signatures before October 30, when the limitation of time will expire.

Mr. Metler has a diagram chart setting forth the family tree and giving the names of all heirs and parties in the case, and is to present the claims of the heirs through the United States consular service to the Court in Chancery abroad.

MANGLED BY RUNAWAY CARS.

Workman Near Califon Meets Terrible Death While Laboring on Track.

Califon, July 3.—Joseph Olando, thirty-five years old, was killed instantly at the Califon Limestone Company's quarries at Vernoy yesterday. Olando, with another workman, was repairing the railroad track near the company's stockhouse when three cars broke loose and bore down upon them. Olando was caught before he could escape. The wheels passed over his body and face. His neck was broken and his face was mangled beyond recognition. Portions of flesh was found scattered a distance of twenty-five feet along the track. Coroner Hoffman, of Whitehouse, gave a burial permit.

The body was taken to a morgue and buried today in the Lower Valley Union cemetery. Olando had been in the employ of the company about three years. A wife and three children are living in Italy.

Walked Right to the Jail.

Mt. Holly, July 3.—Following his man and letting him get nearer and nearer the county jail as he was walking on High street yesterday morning, Detective Ellis H. Parker, when opposite the jail, arrested Harvey Still, colored, as the burglar who robbed the residence of Mrs. Theodore H. Risdon. After his arrest Still made a confession. The police search disclosed several five-dollar gold pieces and a revolver taken from Mrs. Risdon, who lives next door to Rear Admiral John J. Read, by whom Still was employed. It is alleged by the police that Still planned to rob the residences of John D. Johnson, Mrs. Rachel Sailor and Prosecutor Samuel Atkinson. When taken in custody Still was on his way to Seaside Park, where he expected to spend the summer.

WHERE MAN IS SUPERIOR.

A woman's knowledge of cooking is almost entirely a knowledge of how to prepare things that will taste nice. She thinks of every dish as an entity, and she seldom considers it in relation to the courses that precede and follow it. She has experience of tastes, but no instinct for suggested flavors. The reason is that she considers food as the wherewithal to remove hunger and leaves out of her calculations the fact that food is only half the question and drink is the other. The world owes to wine a good deal of good humor, a great deal of fine literature and a good deal of artificial optimism, which, if not as good as the real thing, is at least better than any sort of pessimism. But women are no judges of wine, for the simple reason that they have not been educated to it. It is an art and does not come by nature. That is why the best cook is a man. He is like the leader of an orchestra, who knows every instrument beneath him, its capabilities, where it should blend, where it should detach itself and its proportion to the whole; whereas the woman cooks solos, not concertos. Food as a necessity of daily life is the province of the woman; food as a fine art is only mastered by the man, with centuries of civilization behind him. The chef who is an artist does not value a woman's approbation at all. In the external treatment of the picture called a woman the man has the advantage of detachment from his subject, whereas a woman has a hundred prejudicies. As a rule, a woman falls in love with a frock or a hat, purely on its own merits, and not because it will suit her so admirably. Just as the man cook knows that food and wine are parts of the whole and must be studied together, so that man milliner knows that the woman and her clothes are one entity, and just as the woman cook has concentrated all her energies on food, the woman dressmaker considers clothes apart from their wearer. It is this cultivated eye fro the whole, the cultivated palate for the whole, which makes the man the supreme artist."

SOME SUMMER MEANNESS.

It is stated that the coming season at Newport, R. I., will be uncommonly brilliant. It is also stated that a merchant in Newport has filed an attachment on a humble thatched cottage of a summer resident in the hope of collecting a debt of about a thousand dollars owed for groceries supplied. There will be oter attachments for a similar purpose, it is said, if settlements of long-standing debts are not soon made. Shopkeepers in many towns and villages where city folk spend the summer will read the news from Newport with much interest. Reading, they might say: "I am the man; I suffered; I was there." For the name of this Newport grocer or provision man is legion. It is surprising how many summer dwellers forget to pay the local tradesmen and workmen and how indifferent they are to courteous and timid reminders. The men that keep markets or drive about in carts have themselves only short credit; the workmen are sadly in need of ready money and wish to to settle their account at the village store. They do not like to press their claims from fear of losing trade. Sometimes the summer residents, when they are reminded of their indebtedness, are incredibly small and mean. So, too, every summer in the city humble tradesmen, sewing women, carpenters, locksmiths and the like are injured by the forgetfulness or the indifference of the well-to-do, who, leaving town, put off payment to a more convenient season. "It's a small amount. Wait till it is worth while," or the answer is: "I'll settle with you in the fall;" or, as is too often the case, there is no answer. The man who thinks little of signing a check for $5,000 will haggle over a bill for $5 or not take the troble to pay it. These small sums are needed by those who have supplied or worked. Genteel indifference to just demands is in reality a fine brutality.

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

There has been an epidemic of suicides in St. Petersburg for three months, the average number being eighty-five a month. The high record for a day was reached lately, when eighteen persons killed themselves. Many of the suicides were destitute, but most were despondent.

The American Museum of Natural History is to have a novel representation of the bottom of the sea, showing coral reefs in all stages of development. The section of the floor to be cut out will be 6 by 30 feet. The task is a very delicate and tedious one, and it will require six months for competition.

The United States government has, after a series of tests, shown that if it wants men in the army and navy it will have to advertise for them, and has also proved that the newspapers are better mediums than are the periodicals and magazines. It has been proved after an exhaustive examination of the recruits that but a small part of them ever read any advertisement in a magazine, but that a great proportion had read about the enlistments in the daily newspapers.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Plainfield Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the sympotoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Plainfield testimony:

S. C. Conklin, of 134 West Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from aches and pains in my side, back and hips. My kidneys did not work as they should, and as far as I could learn from physicians I was in very bad shape with by kidneys and bladder. I was casting about for a cure but nothing I did helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills procured at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy. I took three boxes and they cured me. I gave a statement at that time telling what this remedy did for me and I am glad to repeat thep raise I gave Doan's Kidney Pills at that time."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 5, 1908.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Songs of the heart.—VII. Longings and satisfactions.—Ps. lxiii. (Consecration meeting.)

The history of mankind is a history of human longings. There never is a time in a man's life when he does not long for something. He is no sooner born than he longs for food and comfort, and all through the days of his life the desire for something outside and beyond him remains with him. Nor does his longing cease with great achievement or the accumulation of great welath. No merely earthly accomplishment ever stills his fond desire for something not yet achieved or possessed. Nor is it probable that God ever meant that man should find complete satisfaction for his purely human longings. Such a possibility would greatly retard human progress and make man feel that he was independent of his God. Hence there is much truth, so far as human affairs alone are concerned, in the poet's couplet—

Hope beats eternal in the human breast.
Man always is, but never to be, blessed.

How foolish, then, to expect or to strive to find perfect satisfaction in things which are but temporal and transitory!

The supreme longing of the human soul is for God. Men in all times and in all places have felt it. The crudest altar ever erected, the most hideous idol ever worshiped, but express the longing of the soul for God. David experienced this soul thirst. He felt it as a shepherd boy, tending his father's flocks. He felt it especially when an exile from Jerusalem through the jealousy of Saul or the base rebellion of his own soul. It was during such exile that he expressed this longing in the psalm before us. How deep must have been this spiritual thirst! "My soul thirsteth for Thee [O God], my flesh longest for Thee, in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is." He longed to see God's power and glory as he had seen it in the sanctuary. Alas, how many of us only appreciate our blessings when they have departed from us! We long for God in His absence, while we have rejected Him when he was present. We long for His sanctuary when absent from it and yet neglect it when the opportunity to worship God in it is before us.

It is a matter of the greatest importance that soul longings may be satisfied. God is not afar off, but always nigh unto us. "In Him we live and move and have our being." He is nigh us in nature, in the Bible and especially in His Son Jesus Christ, whose blood shed on Calvary reconciles God to us and us to God. David found satisfaction for his soul's longing even in the remembrance of God. "My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness * * * when I remember Thee upon my bed and meditate upon Thee in the night watches." If you want one great longing satisfied, long for God, hunger and thirst after the righteousness, for Christ Himself hath said, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xvii, 15, 23; xxxiv, 1-4; xxxvii, 1-7; xliii, 1-11; lxxxiv, 1-12; ciii, 1-5; Matt. v, 6; Eph. iv, 8-13; Heb. xiii, 12-21.

The Pledge Interpreted.

We find in the interesting topic card used by the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church in Pasadena, Cal., the following message regarding the Christian Endeavor pledge, written by the Rev. Malcolm James McLeod, the pastor of the church:

I think every Christian Endeavorer should read his pledge daily. You will notice it divides itself into three parts.

First, there is the promise to read the Bible every day. If an Endeavorer is not reading his Bible every day, he is breaking his pledge—that is all there is to it—for, mark, there is no conscientious clause excusing; the language is plain and inflexible. We are not told how much to read nor how little. We are not told to read a book or a chapter—just to read. One verse may suffice; that is for each one to arrange with his Master. We do not lay down how much to eat at dinner. Nature knows; follow nature. So let each be led by the Spirit.

Then, secondly, he promises to pray. If a Christian Endeavorer does not pray every day, he, too, is violating his oath; he is not keeping his promise; he is false to the vital center. And here again the pledge does not submit how long to pray nor how often. Just pray. Let teacher and scholar fix particulars. Prayer is not a matter of periods. Prayer is fellowship, partnership, secret and consecrated communion.

The third article is loyalty to church—one's own church. Here is a clause governing the conscience—"unless prevented." And please note the specifications—Sunday and midweek. That means the prayer meeting. The first two parts are ironclad; the third is not, but it is heart searching, heaven satisfying. No excuse is valid that will not please Him. Lord Jesus, give us grace.

We cannot agree that the pledge is quite as inflexible as Dr. McLeod considers it, even in regard to the first two points, for in the expression "I will make it the rule of my life to pray and to read the Bible every day" it is the intention to leave room for unavoidable failures to do these things caused by sickness, accident and perhaps other reasons. Doubtless Dr. McLeod would agree with this. His message is so strong and helpful that we want all our readers to consider it carefully.—Christian Endeavor World.

Training.

The key word of Christian Endeavor is training—training in expression, training in service, training in living, training of the heart, training of the mind, training of the tongue, training of the boy and girl, training of the young man and woman, training to make men and women, training to make citizens, training to make effective Christians, training in the church, training for the church and training by the church.—Australian Roll Call

(COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HAROLD MACGRATH)

By HAROLD MacGRATH

AUTHOR OF "THE MAN ON THE BOX," "HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

"I'll be there." He knew where to find the place.

Muller's rathskeller was the rendezvous of students, officers and all those persons of quality who liked music with their meat. The place was low-ceilinged, but roomy, and the ventilation was excellent, considering. The smoke never got so thick that one couldn't see the way to the door when the students started in "to clean up the place," to use the happy idiom of mine own country. There were marble tables and floors and arches and light, cane-bottomed chairs from Kohn's. It was at once Bohemian and cosmopolitan, and, once inside, it was easy to imagine oneself in Vienna. A Hungarian orchestra occupied an inclosed platform, and every night the wail of the violin and the pom-pom of the wool-tipped hammers on the Hungarian "piano" might be heard.

It was essentially a man's place of entertainment; few women ever had the courage or the inclination to enter. In America it would have been the fashion; but in the capital of Barscheit the women ate in the restaurant above, which was attached to the hotel, and depended upon the Volksgarten band for their evening's diversion.

You had to order your table hours ahead—that is, if you were a civilian. If you were lucky enough to be an officer, you were privileged to take any vacant chair you saw. But heaven aid you if you attempted to do this not being an officer! In Barscheit there were also many unwritten laws, and you were obliged to observe these with all the fidelity and attention that you gave to the enameled signs. Only the military had the right to request the orchestra to repeat a piece of music. Sometimes the lieutenants, seized with that gay humor known only to cubs, would force the orchestra in Muller's to play the Hungarian war song till the ears cried out in pain. This was always the case when any Austrians happened to be present. But ordinarily the crowds were good-natured, boisterous, but orderly.

It was here, then, that I had arranged to give my little dinner. The orchestra had agreed—for a liberal tip—to play "The Star-spangled Banner," and there was a case of Doppelkinn's sparkling Moselle. I may as well state right here that we neither heard our national anthem nor drank the vintage. You will soon learn why. I can laugh now, I can treat the whole affair with becoming levity, but at the time I gained several extra gray hairs.

If the princess hadn't turned around and if Max hadn't wanted that box of Havanas!

When I arrived at Muller's I found my boys in a merry mood. They were singing softly from "Robin Hood" with fine college harmony, and as I entered they swarmed about me like so many young dogs. Truth to tell, none of them was under 20, and two or three were older than myself. But to them I represented official protection for whatever they might do. I assumed all the dignity I dared. I had kept Scharfenstein's name back as a surprise.

Ellis—for whom I had the passports—immediately struck me as being so nearly like Max that they might easily have been brothers. Ellis was slighter; that was all the difference. I gave him his papers and examined his tickets. All was well; barring accidents, he would be in Dresden the next day.

"You go through Doppelkinn, then?" said I.

"Yes. I have friends in Dresden whom I wish to see before going home."

"Well, good luck to you!"

Then I announced that Max Scharfenstein, an old college comrade, would join us presently. This was greeted with hurrahs. At that time there wasn't an American student who did not recollect Max's great run from the ten-yard line. (But where the deuce was Max?) I took a little flag from my pocket and stuck it into the vase of poppies, and the boys clapped their hands. You never realize how beautiful your flag is till you see it in a foreign land. I apologized for Max's absence, explaining the cause, and ordered dinner to be served. We hadn't much time, as Ellis' train departed at ten. It was now a quarter of nine.

We had come to the relishes when a party of four officers took the table nearest us. They hung up their sabers on the wall-pegs, and sat down, ordering a bottle of light wine. Usually there were five chairs to the table, but even if only two were being used no one had the right to withdraw one of the vacant chairs without the most elaborate apologies. This is the law of courtesy in Barscheit. In America it is different; if you see anything you want, take it.

Presently one of the officers—I knew none of them save by sight—rose and approached. He touched the flag insolently and inquired what right it had in a public restaurant in Barscheit. Ordinarily his question would not have been put without some justification. But he knew very well who I was and what my rights were in this instance.

"Herr Lieutenant," said I coldly, though my cheeks were warm enough, "I represent that flag in this country, and I am accredited with certain privileges, as doubtless you are aware. You will do me the courtesy of returning to your own table." I bowed.

He glared at me for a brief period, then turned on his heel. This was the first act in the play. At the fellow's table sat Lieut. von Storer, Doppelkinn's nephew and heir-presumptive. He was, to speak plainly, a rake, a spendthrift and wholly untrustworthy. He was not ill-looking, however.

My spirits floated between anger and the fear that the officers might ruin the dinner—which they eventually did.

Things went on smoothly for a time. The orchestra was pom-pomming the popular airs from "Faust." (Where the deuce was that tow-headed Dutchman?) Laughter rose and fell; the clinkle of glass was heard; voices called. And then Max came in, looking as cool as you please, though I could read by his heaving chest that he had been sprinting up back streets. The boys crowded around him, and there was much ado over the laggard.

Unfortunately the waiter had forgotten to bring a chair for his plate. With a genial smile on his face, Max innocently stepped over to the officers' table and plucked forth the vacant chair. For a wonder the officers appeared to give this action no heed, and I was secretly gratified. It was something to be a consul, after all. But I counted my chickens too early.

"Where are the cigars?" I asked as Max sat down complacently.

"Cigars?"—blankly. "Hang me, I've clean forgotten them!" And then, oblivious of the probable storm that was at that moment gathering for a downpour over his luckless head, he told us the reason of his delay.

"There was a crowd around the palace," he began. "It seems that the Princess Hildegarde has run away, and they believe that she has ridden toward the Pass in a closed carriage. The police are at this very moment scouring the country in that direction. She has eloped."

"Eloped?" we all cried, being more or less familiar with the state of affairs at the palace.

"Good-by to Doppelkinn's frau!"

"Good girl!"

"She has been missing since seven o'clock, when she drove away on the pretense of visiting her father's old steward, who is ill," went on Max, feeling the importance of his news. "They traced her there. From the steward's the carriage was driven south, and that's the last seen of her. There won't be any wedding at the cathedral next Tuesday,"—laughing.

Queries and answers were going crisscross over the table, when I observed with dread that Lieut. von Storer had risen and was coming our way. He stopped at Max's side. Max looked up to receive Von Storer's glove full on the cheek. It was no gentle stroke. Von Storer at once returned to his table and sat down.

For a moment we were all absolutely without power of motion or of speech, Max's face grew as white as the table-cloth, and the print of the glove glowed red against the white. I was horrified, for I knew his tremendous strength. If he showed fight, Von Storer would calmly saber him. It was the custom. But Max surprised me. He was the coolest among us, but of that quality of coolness which did not reassure me. He took up his story where he had left off and finished it. For his remarkable control I could have taken him in my arms and hugged him.

The officers scowled, while Von Storer bit his mustache nervously. The American had ignored his insult. Presently he rose again and approached. He thrust a card under Max's nose.

"Can you understand that?" he asked contemptuously.

Max took the card, ripped it into quarters and dropped these to the floor. Then, to my terror and the terror of those with me, he tranquilly pulled out a murderous looking Colt and laid it beside his plate. He went on talking, but none of us heard a word he said. We were fearfully waiting to see him kill some one or be killed.

No one was killed. The officers hurriedly took down their sabers and made a bee-line for the door on which I have spoken.

Max returned the revolver to his hip-pocket and gave vent to an Homeric laugh.

"You tow-headed Dutchman!" I cried, when I found voice for my words, "what have you done?"

"Done? Why, it looks as if we had all the downs this half," he replied smartly. "Oh, the gun isn't loaded,"—confidentially.

Ellis fumbled in his pocket and produced his passports and tickets. These he shoved over to Max.

"What's this for?" Max asked curiously.

"Ellis," said I, "it is very good of you, Max, take those. Mr. Ellis wishes to save your hide. Take them and get to the station as quickly as you can. And for the love of mercy, do not turn around till you're over in Doppelkinn's vineyards."

"Well, I'm hanged if I understand!" he cried. "I'm a peaceful man. A beggar walks up to me and slaps me in the face for nothing at all, and now I must hike, eh? What the devil have I done now?"

Then, as briefly as I could, I explained the enormity of his offenses. To take a chair from a table, as he had done, was a gross insult; to receive a slap in the face and not to resent it, was another insult; to tear up an opponent's visiting card, still another; to take out a revolver in Barscheit, unless you were an officer or had a permit, was worse than an insult; it was a crime, punishable by long imprisonment. They could accuse him of being either an anarchist or a socialist-red, coming to Barscheit with the intent to kill the grand duke. The fact that he was ignorant of the laws, or that he was an alien, would remit not one particle of his punishment and fine; and weeks would pass ere the matter could be arranged between the United States and Barscheit.

"Good Lord!" he gasped; "why didn't you tell me?"

"Why didn't you tell me that you carried a cannon in your pocket? Take Ellis' papers, otherwise you stand pat for a heap of trouble, and I can't help you. Go straight to Dresden, telegraph me, and I'll forward your luggage."

"But I came here to study!" Max argued.

"It will be geology in the form of prison walls," said Ellis quietly. "Don't be foolish, Mr. Scharfenstein; it is not a matter of a man's courage, but of his common sense. Take the tickets and light out. I have lived here for three years, and have seen men killed outright for less than you have done."

"But you don't expect me to leave this place without punching that beggar's head?"—indignantly. "What do you think I'm made of?"

"You'll never get the chance to punch his head," said I. "We are wasting valuable time. Those officers have gone for the police. You have about 20 minutes to make the train. Come, for heaven's sake, come!"

He finally got it into his head that we knew what we were talking about. How we got him to the station I do not remember, but somehow we got him there. He sputtered and fumed and swore, as all brave men will who feel that they are running away in a cowardly fashion. He wasn't convinced, but he thanked Ellis for his kindness and hoped that he wouldn't get into trouble on his (Max's) account.

"Go straight to Dresden; say you've been studying medicine in Barscheit for three years, refer to me by telegraph if there is any question as to your identity," said I. "You're the only man in the world, Max, that I'd lie for."

He stumbled through the gates, and we saw him open the door of a carriage just as the train began to pull out. A guard tried to stop him, but he was not quite quick enough. We watched the train till it melted away into the blackness beyond the terminus covering; then we, I and my fellow diners, went soberly into the street. Here was a howdy-do! Suddenly Ellis let out a sounding laugh, and, scarcely knowing why, we joined him. It was funny, very funny, for every one but poor old Max! The American spirit is based on the sense of humor, and even in tragic moments is irrepressible.

We did not return to Muller's; each of us stole quietly home to await the advent of the police, for they would rout out every American in town in their search for the man with the gun. They would first visit the consulate and ascertain what I knew of the affair; when they got through with the rest of the boys Max would be in Doppelkinn. The police were going to be very busy that night: a princess on one hand and an anarchist on the other.

There were terrible times, too, in the palace. Long before we watched Max's train and the vanishing green and red lights at the end of it the grand duke was having troubles of his own. He was pacing wildly up and down in his dressing-room. Clutched in his fist was a crumpled sheet of paper. From time to time he smoothed it out and reread the contents. Each time he swore like the celebrated man in Flanders.

"You forced me and I warned you that I would do something desperate. Do not send for me, for you will never find me till you come to your senses. I have eloped. HILDEGARDE."

INTEREST IN NEXT WEEK'S PETIT JURY

Owing to the fact that the next panel of petty jurors, those drawn on Monday, will have to handle a number of excise trials, there is unusual interest both among the members of the panel themselves and in court and legal circles where the make-up of the jury is being discussed.

Several cases will come to trial next week on indictments of the present grand jury for violation of the liquor law, and as this question is one of paramount importance just at present, the result of these cases will be looked upon with interest.

Most of the cases are against Elizabeth men, and a survey of the list of Elizabeth jurors fails to disclose any likelihood of personal considerations entering into the proceedings against saloonkeepers there. All of the Elizabeth men are well known, and are independent. The name of Dennis F. Hennessey appears significantly in view of the fact that he is president of the Total Abstinence Society of that city.

As one lawyer stated today in speaking of excise cases. "There is hardly any other kind of case in which personal views of a juryman are so likely to have effect upon his decision as in the liquor question A man may be causually interested in the law respecting capital punishment, and he may be somewhat interested in the degrees of murder charges, but he is never likely to be as firmly set in an opinion on these questions of criminal law, as he is on the liquor question. Therefore, it is well to study the personnel of a jury that is to try a liquor case even more closely than in the case of a murderous assault, if one is to get any idea or make any speculation upon the result. A man may listen to evidence for hours, but if he is firmly in sympathy with the liquor dealer, he is not likely to vote for conviction, any more than a strong temperance advocate will miss a chance on general principles to give the traffic a rub."

Gunpowder Near Fire Explodes.

Nutley, July 3.—James Lee, a huckster, is in St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, with his hands mangled and the flesh about his body badly burned as the result of a premature explosion of some powder. Lee was showing Walter Woodruff, a friend, the powder in a bottle. He poured some of the powder into the palm of one hand. Near by a bonfire was burning, and a spark fell on his hand. Immediately there was an explosion, the contents of the bottle having become ignited. Lee may not live.

VICE CHANCELLOR WOULD PROSECUTE CORRESPONDENTS.

Vice-Chancellor Howell, sitting in Newark yesterday, declared the County Prosecutor should take criminal action against proved corespondents in divorce cases. The action was one in which two families were broken up, according to testimony of Christopher N. Scardulla, a barber, who sued his wife, Mercedes S. Scardulla, for divorce, naming William Yates as corespondent.

The chancellor said when he stated that the husband was entitled to a decree of divorce that he would ask counsel for the husband to complain to the Prosecutor of the Pleas of Essex county.

"If this story of this man is true," the vice-chancellor said, referring to Scardulla, "two families have been broken up by the acts charged. The sooner the criminal authorities take action to stop such business the better it will be, and the attention of the criminal courts should be called to the facts in this case."

Inspecting Hudson Institutions.

The Crime and Dependency Commission recently appointed by Governor Fort, which has been investigating tenement house conditions in Jersey City, yesterday began an inspection of the Hudson county institutions. This the commission was moved to do because of the recent order by Judge Cross, of the United States Circuit Court, that United States officials in Hudson county shall send their prisoners to the Essex county jail.

Trolley Kills Man Near His Home.

John S. Phinney, of No. 138, Lake View avenue, Paterson, was killed by a White Line trolley car this morning. The motorman of the car, William Campbell, of No. 79 East Twenty-second street, says that Phinney was lying across the tracks when run over. The place where Mr. Phinney was killed is within sight of his home County Physician Armstrong, of Passaic, is making an investigation.

Falling Ceiling Proves Fatal.

Mrs. Richard P. Paulson, seventy years old, who a few weeks ago at Hackensack, was injured by the falling of the kitchen ceiling, died last evening. The accident was laughed off by Mrs. Paulson at the time, as there was not even a mark on her head. The blow was heavy enough, however, for a clot of blood to form on the brain. Mrs. Paulson leaves a husband and three children.

Senator Colby off For Vacation.

Senator Everett Colby left Newark for the Thousand Islands yesterday, where he will spend his annual vacation. This will be much shorter than usual this year, as he will return in time to open his primary campaign on July 23.

HOW YOU MUST TREAT THE FIREWORKS WOUNDS

These directions, taken from an article by Dr. H. J. Scherck, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, are commended in the June number of the United States Health reports:

To incise freely every wound.

Carefully and thoroughly to remove from the wound every particle of foreign matter.

To cauterize the wound thoroughly with 25 per cent. carbolic acid.

To apply loosely a wet pack of 2.5 per cent. carbolic acid.

To give a full dose of antitetanine serum.

To require to return every day for observation and dressing of the wound.

HANDY TIME-TABLE.

Plainfield Trust Company's Free Booklet.

The Plainfield Trust Company now has ready for distribution its handy little time tables, corrected to June 28th when the summer schedule of train service, Plainfield to New York, was put into effect.

Those who appreciate this information in a compact form will find these time tables very convenient, including, as they do, the express trains that stop to let off passengers. They may be obtained without cost by applying to The Plainfield Trust Company.

GOVERNOR TO SEE AUTO RACE.

Has Engaged Box for Contest on July 4.

Governor Fort and his staff will attend the automobile race meet at Elkwood Park on July 4. He has engaged a box.

A big field of fast, high-power cars has been entered. The meet is arranged for the benefit of the Long Branch Hospital. The track has been scraped and leveled and the turns have been banked.

The big event of the day is expected to be the five-mile match for the Lewisohn trophy.

Murderer to Die in August.

Sabino Mallillo, who was found guilty on Tuesday of the murder of Alphonso Bechino in Jersey City on May 9 last, was sentenced yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer by Judge John A. Blair to be put to death in the electric chair in the State prison at Trenton in the week beginning August 10. Mallillo will be taken to the prison within ten days.

Case Again Adjourned.

In the city court, this morning, adjournment was again made of the case against Robert Dennison and Howard Sergeant, who broke a window in the Hotel Kensington during a scuffle. Several witnesses were absent and Judge Runyon announced that failure to produce them one week from today would result in summonses being issued.

POLICE WILL CONFISCATE FOURTH OF JULY PISTOLS

The small boy who is preparing to celebrate the Fourth with a pistol and tetanus-dealing blank cartridges is hereby warned that he had better change his plans. Following up the policy adopted last year and which is in vogue all over the country, Chief Kiely has decreed that patriotism must be displayed in some other way than by the bang, bang of five and seven shooters. His patrolmen have been instructed to confiscate every revolver they see in the hands of celebrators and they will obey orders to the letter. Last year the police grabbed guns right and left and the station house on July 5 looked like an arsenal.

The police in New York and many other cities have been conducting a crusade against the use of pistols on Independence Day owing to the fact that they have been responsible for hundreds of accidents. Stray bullet cartridges frequently find their way into the chambers and a killing follows. More often the wadding from blanks is shot into the hands of small boys and the deadly lockjaw develops a few days later. A case of this kind was reported from Scotch Plains last year where a ten-year-old boy died in terrible agony after operations had proved futile.

PERSONAL.

Elmer Ga Nun and family have removed from Steiner place to Dunellen.

Miss Kenenna Hansen, of East Second street, is detained at home by illness.

Miss May Rodman, who has been stopping with friends in town, has gone to Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Elderton, of East Front street, left today for Asbury Park to remain until Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Winner, of West Fifth street, have gone to Nashua, N. H., to spend several weeks with relatives.

Miss Madeline Strader, of te New Madison, will leave Monday for Valois, N. Y., near Niagara Falls, to spend the month of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hersey Andrew, of 507 West End avenue, New York, have left Truell Hall, Netherwood, and taken a cottage at Fanwood, where they will be for the remainder of the summer.

Other guests stopping at the Felmly Farm, are Mrs. Mary A. Alpaugh and daughter, Miss Ethel Alpaugh, of Phillipsburg. Miss Iola Elizabeth Lewis, of Newark and Mrs. Middleditch and daughters, Misses Gertrude and Eleanor, of Brooklyn.

There is quite a colony of Plainfielders at the Felmly Farm in Round Valley, for over the Fourth. Among the guests at this popular resort from this city are Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Beysey and son Robert, and daughter Constance, Miss Anna M. Day, Miss Kate E. Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. John J F. Randolph and son Alan and Arthur E. Crone.

Excursion a Great Success.

One of the most successful excursions to Asbury Park was that of yesterday when the Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue, Presbyterian, Grace, St. Stephen's churches, the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Seventh-Day Baptist churches of this city and New Market, the First Baptist church, New Market and Bethel chapel, combined in a day's outing It required twenty-five coaches to carry the excursionists to and from the shore. The day was a perfect one and all greatly enjoyed the fine sea breeze and bathing in the ocean. Not a single accident happened to mar the pleasure of the large crowd. The excursionists reached the Park at 10 o'clock and returning, arrived home about 8:30 in the evening.

Dr. Edward Smalley Robbed.

Dr. Edward Smalley, of this city, and Dr. L. L. Smith, of Jersey City, who are partners in the practice of dentistry at 142 Newark avenue, Jersey City, suffered a loss of $100 worth of gold bridges, and crowns, at noon, yesterday. They were being displayed in a show case in front of the dental office, when a sneak thief came along, cut a hole in the glass and took the bridges and crowns without being detected. The theft was reported to the police, but there is now clew upon which to work.

To Tell of Conference.

Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will give a report of the recent International Sunday school convention at Louisville, Kentuckey, at the session of the Sunday school Sunday morning. An Independence Day program will be rendered, in which the pupils will take part. The Sunday school rooms will be appropriately decorated with flags and butning. The service will be at 9:45 o'clock.

T. A. B. Summer Festival.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society began a three nights fair and festival at its hall on West Fourth street, last night. The grounds in front have been enclosed and booths for the sale of lemonade, ice cream and berries drew a large patronage. Dancing in the hall is one of the features. The rain last night interfered with the outdoor plans somewhat but practically everything was taken inside.

CLEVELAND'S ESTATE GOES TO HIS WIDOW

That the late Grover Cleveland wrote his own will and that in it he gave the bulk of his estate to his wife became known yesterday, when it was also learned that Mrs. Cleveland will within the next ten days go from Tamworth, N. H., to Princeton, to be present at the probating of the instrument.

The will shows that the summer place at Tamworth, N. H., which has been supposed to be the property of Mrs. Cleveland's mother, was in reality owned by Mr. Cleveland. This place is disposed of in the will.

The will is now in possession of Bayard Stockton, of Princeton, who is Mrs. Cleveland's attorney. It was given to him two days after the funeral of Mr. Cleveland by Frank S. Hastings, of No. 60 Wall street, who is named as executor of the estate. On the day after Mr. Cleveland's funeral Mrs. Cleveland and Mr. Hastings read the will together.

Under the statutes of New Jersey a will is not admitted to probate less than ten days after the death of its maker. The ten days will not expire in the Cleveland case until today. Mrs. Cleveland, who is now at Tamworth with her four children, is expected to return to Princeton some day next week.

None of the persons who are in a position to know the precise value of the estate left by Mr. Cleveland would make any statement upon that subject yesterday. It was said that Mr. Cleveland had drawn his will in such a way that the reading of it will not give an exact idea of the value of his estate.

He worked over the will several times before he was satisfied with it. It is said that, although the instrument provides liberally for each of the four children, by far the greatest part of the estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Cleveland.

Mr. Stockton, Mrs. Cleveland's attorney, said last night:

"I know that there is great public interest in the contents of Mr. Cleveland's will. This interest will not be satisfied when the will is filed, because it is drawn in very general terms and gives no intimation of the value of the estate left by Mr. Cleveland."

Friends of the Cleveland family think that when the will has been probated it will be seen that the value of Mr. Cleveland's estate is greater than has been generally supposed.

JERSEY SOLDIERS GOING HOME FROM CAMP.

Watertown, N. Y., July 3.—Battle of Watertown, the most severe in the Pine Camp campaign, was fought yesterday. The fact that this city is still intact today is due to no small degree to the brave breastwork defence put up by the First New Jersey infantry and the effective cavalry work done by the troop of cavalry from New Jersey. Under a hot July sun, the Army of the Blue, including these two commands and other guardsmen and regulars, defended the city throughout the day, and so it was saved.

New Jersey infantrymen were aroused soon after midnight by the first approach of the enemy's cavalry, and they knew that the Army of the Brown was advancing from Plattsburg. A detachment of the Fifth United States infantry was also near at hand and the infantrymen gave warning. A few shots were fired and the New Jersey infantrymen went back to bed again, but many of them could not sleep contemplating the inevitable engagement of the morrow. All the troops were up at four o'clock yesterday morning. Then the general battle began, which continued throughout the day.

New erseJy cavalarymen again made the spectacular charge of the day. The infantrymen had been clashing at rather close range and indications were that the breastworks would be lost. The cavalry troops received the order to advance and they charged down upon the infantrymen from the rear, scattering the column in every direction.

First New Jersey infantry leaves for home this afternoon, having completed the service of seven days in the camp. The regiment will be sent in three sections, the first going at three o'clock; the second at four o'clock, and the last an hour later. They should arrive at Jersey City tomorrow morning soon after seven o'clock. Tomorrow the First cavalry troop leaves for its New Jersey quarters. The troop will be despatched in the afternoon at half-past three o'clock. The cavalrymen are now bringing pressure to bear so that they may be permitted to participate in the athletic events of the Fourth before they go home.

Poor Department Want a Horse.

The poor department is greatly in need of a horse to use at the city poor farm at West Front street and Rock avenue, and if any person has an animal that would be suitable for such work and would like to loan it to the city for the summer, they can communicate with Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers by telephone or otherwise.

MURAT HALSTEAD DEAD; GREAT AMERICAN EDITOR

Murat Halstead, one of the leaders in American journalism for over half a century, and widely known as a vigorous editorial and magazine writer, died at his home in Cincinnti, Ohio, yesterday afternoon, in his seventy-ninth year. At the bedside were his wife, his son, Robert, and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Stem.

Mr. Halstead had been failing in strength for several months, and yesterday suffered from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Halstead celebrated their golden wedding anniversary a little more than a year ago, at which time Mr. Halstead's health seemed frail, and as time passed he grew weaker.

The sudden death of his son Marshall, a few months ago, was a severe shock to him, and it is believed to have had an adverse effect on his health. Albert Halstead, another son, is American consul at Birmingham, England.

Mr. Halstead was one of the great editors of the last half of the nineteenth century. In 1889 his nomination by President Harrison to be American minister to Germany was rejected by the United States Senate because of articles he had published charging corruption to some members of that body.

He was a native of Butler county, Ohio, and after a short service on a literary weekly, in 1853 became connected with the Cincinnati Commercitl, in which he secured a small interest a year later, becoming chief owner in 1865. For twenty years he was editor-in-chief of the paper, as combined with the Gazette. During the last ten years he has figured largely as a magazine and special newspaper writer, besides issuing a number of books of historical interest. In the Civil War Mr. Halstead reported many battles, being rated as a war correspondent of the first class, and later, in the Franco-German war and also in the Spanish-American war, he added to his reputation. For fifty years he also attended and reported all Republican national conventions.

Monkey Hunt in Bloomfield.

Bloomfield, uJly 3.—There was a monkey hunt in the West End section of this town yesterday. The animal was discovered by Elwood Adler perched at the top of a tree in the rear of his parents' home, and he immediately notified several of his companions, who began to bombard Mr. Monkey. It finally leaped from the tree to the sidewalk and sought shelter in a chicken coup, where it was finally captured and held prisoner until it was claimed by a resident of Glen Ridge, who said the monkey had taken French leave from its cage.

Misses Wildey Loses at Tennis.

In the women's doubles, preliminary round, Middle States Lawn Tennis Championship, at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, yesterday, Miss Neely and Miss Steever defeated the Misses Wildey, of this city, 6-2 7-5, and in the semi-final round of the women's singles, Miss E. Scott defeated Miss Natalie Wildey, 6-3, 6-4.

The usual services will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church Sunday. The Sunday-school will meet at 9:30 o'clock, and at 11 o'clock there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. C. S. Kemble, followed by infant baptism and the Lord's Supper. The Epworth League will meet at 7:15 o'clock and Mr. Kemble will preach at 8 o'clock.

—The Misses Clara and Mabel Bulne, of Somerville, who have been teaching school in Somerset county, have entered the Plainfield Business College to take the stenographic course, and Sallo N. Kahn, one of the prominent graduates of the high school, this year, has enrolled in the school for the same course.

NEW JERSEY LEADS IN THE COMPANY MILL

June's incorporations in the eastern States involving $1,000,000 and over amounted to $188,164,000. That is the largest total since February, 1907, when it reached $210,000,000. In May the figures were $123,300,000, and in June a year ago $165,450,000. But last month's returns includyed the $80,000,000 Corn Producets Refining Company and $17,184,000 American Steel Founderies Company, which are practically a repetition. The Corn Products Refining Company is merely a consolidation of the old Corn Products Company and the Corn Products Refining Company, while in the case of the American Steel Foundries is only represents an amended certificate of incorporation of the reorganized American Steel Foundies Company.

The grand total last month of all the incorporations represented an authorized capitalization of $100,000 and over as well as increases, was $225,344,000, which compares with $177,080,000 in May and $267,821,300 in June a year ago.

For the first time in quite a while New Jersey headed the list of eastern States.

The distribution of the large companies among the various States has been as follows:

New Jersey	$119,184,000
Delaware	32,280,000
Maine	17,000,000
New York	16,700,000
Pennsylvania	3,000,000
Total Eastern States	$188,164,000
Other States	6,500,000

GUN SHOOTERS IN COURT

Police Confiscated All Weapons They Saw Fired by Zealous Patriots.

WARNED BY JUDGE RUNYON.

Magistrate Informs Owners That Authorities Will Not Permit the Use of Revolvers On Independence Day.

Despite the warning issued by the police last week that they would confiscate all revolvers, guns or similar weapons that they saw displayed on the Fourth of July, a lot of local young men and boys attempted to celebraie the holiday with them and as a result found themselves in the city court this morning. When the over-zealous patriots were lined up in front of Judge Runyon, the desk before him looked like the stock room of the Springfield armory. Included in the miscellaneous collection of arms gathered up by the patrolmen from Friday night until yesterday morning were twenty-four revolvers, three shot guns, an old fashioned blunderbuss of the style used in the War of 1812 and two powder-and-cap affairs, something like those shown in the pictures of Captain Kidd's trusty buccaneers slaughtering the crew of a rich merchantman.

The police kept a watch for any weapons shot off or displayed and after confiscating them, notified the owners to appear in court today. Some of them preferred to let the weapons go in place of taking the time off to get around and only sixteen responded. Only a few of them were over twenty-one years old and Judge Runyon was not disposed to deal harshly with the defendants.

"I want to say this much, however," he said in addressing them, "you must understand that the city authorities will not allow the use of pistols or guns on the Fourth. We believe in celebrating the day but it must be done without the use of weapons that endanger life and limb. I don't say that any of you would willingly use bullets in place of blank cartridges but accidents will happen and the best way to keep the number down is to act the way we have. You are all discharged but keep in mind what I say for future July Fourths."

June Weather About Normal.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has completed his statistics of weather for June as follows: Highest temperature, 96 degrees, 24th; lowest temperature, 43 degrees, 3d; mean temperature, 70; normal temperature, 69.3; mean mixamum temperature, 83.2; mean minimum temperature, 56.9; mean daily range, 26.2; greatest daily range, 39; total precipitation, 2.76 inches; normal precipitation, 4.05 inches; greatest precipitation in twenty-four hours, 2.59 inches, 15th and 16th; number of rainy days, 6; number of days clear, 18; partly cloudy, 10; cloudy, 2; dates of thunder storms, 15, 23, 24. The mean temperature for the month was about normal and the precipitation for the month was 1.29 inches below the normal.

Rahway Woman Dies from Burns.

Mrs. Benjamin Underhill, of Grand street, Rahway, who was terribly burned by gasolene while filling a stove at her home, an account of which appeared in The Daily Press on Tuesday last, died Saturday night as a result of the burns and the effects of inhaling the flames from the burning gasolene. She leaves a husband, also two daughters, Mrs. Frank Weldon, of Scotch Plains, and the other a resident of Rahway. She was a cousin of John Walton, an employe of Muhlenberg Hospital. The funeral will be held this afternoon at the Second Methodist church, Rahway, and burial in Hazlewood Cemetery, that place.

Judge Bartine's Funeral.

The funeral of former Judge John D. Bartine was held yesterday afternoon at his late residence in Somerville, and was very largely attended. Rev. Dr. William Stockton Cranmer, pastor of the First Reformed church, officiated, and burial was in the new cemetery. The floral display was magnificent. The pallbearers were the consistory of the First church. Judge Bartine was the father of Edwin V. Bartine, of this city.

Charged With Bicycle Theft.

Lewis Taylor, colored, was arrested by the police yesterday on a charge of stealing a bicycle. He was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning and remanded until tomorrow for examination.

ALAN WILSON SUDDENLY DIES AT EDINBURGH

Word was cabled to this city yesterday of the death of Alan Wilson, son of Colonel John F. Wilson, of Greenbrook road, which occurred in Edinburgh, Scotland, Saturday night. Only meagre details were given and beyond the fact that he died suddenly while at his hotel the circumstances are unknown.

Mr. Wilson had been in ill health since a year ago when he met with severe injuries in an automobile accident at Atlantic City. He eventually recovered from these so as to get about but he was subject to sudden fainting spells and hemorrhages due to a blood clot on the brain. The trip to Europe was undertaken in the hope of deriving some benefit from the sea air and change of climate.

Mr. Wilson was twenty-nine years old and unmarried. He had been living in Philadelphia of late as he hd been connected with a large firm in that city. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. J. P. Truitt.

The body will be brought to this country at once and burial will be in Baltimore after a private service.

WIRES FROM DENVER BUSY; FOR MARTINE HAS ARRIVED

When the Jersey delegation to the Denver convention had arrived at Chicago on July Fourth, James E. Martine got out his political field glasses, according to a dispatch to this paper, and announced that that "though the party disagrees as to the candidate, the nomination of Mr. William Jennings Bryan, of Fairview, seems assured." The Jersey delegates celebrated Independence Day in a manner most befitting to radical Democrats. Some of them shot off their mouths. Included in the number were Martin Hamil and Myer Remay. Brother Martine and one John Fogarty paid the bills. Of course this all happened in "The Windy City."

Mr. Martine sent this message from Denver yesterday: "We had a splendid trip and got a great ovation. I have made ten speeches today. Yes, spoke at Burlington, Iowa, to a crowd of 1,000. I verily believe that America's peerless statesman is sure to win the nomination on the first ballot. Herman Walker, who hails from Newark, Trenton, Washington and other places, is 'in our midst.' Remember me to all the boys and tell Charley Fisk that after March 4 next he can address the next President as 'the Honorable William Jennings Bryan.' Don't forget to tip Charlie off."

IT WAS A BIG DAY FOR SOUTH PLAINFIELD FOLK

Independence Day was celebrated in lively fashion at South Plainfield, where the Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church held a big time. The parade was a "grand one," the volunteer fire company especially making a good showing. In the line were floats, a bicycle division, children, a division devoted to men on horseback, while the Polish regiment gave a drill, and the Liberty Band, of Plainfield, played.

After reading the Declaration of Independence, William Faulks made an address. The entertainments in Washington Hall, the outdoor sports, the merry-go-round, were all well patronized. The awards were made as follows:

Best decorated bicycle, first, Gladys Thorne; second, Marion Bigler and Lorena Harris; floats, first, firemen; second, America; third, children's float; fourth, equestrians. Boat race—Mr. Lawrence, first, with L. Clausen, a close second. Sixty yard dash for boys under sixteen years—first, John Miller; second, Andrew McDonough; one hundred yard dash—first, J. L. McDonough; second, Bert Randolph; running broad jump—first, J. L. McDonough, 14 feet, 5 inches; second, Louis Randolph, 14 feet, 4 inches; standing broad jump—first, J. S. Linaberry, 9 feet; second, J. P. McDonough, 8 feet 10 inches; standing high jump—first, J. L. McDonough, 3 feet 9 inches; second, Bert Trimmer; running high jump—first, J. L. McDonough; second, Bert Trimmer. The bicycle race was won by Charles Randolph, who finished 500 yards ahead of Ben. Sydam. The winners in all the events except the bicycle race, received a handsome ribbon. The winners of the bicycle race received a lamp and foot pump. J. L. McDonough, who was the winner of the point trophy offered, made twenty points.

JR.O.U.A.M. CONTRIBUTES

BIG-HEARTED BILL CHIPS IN.

Plainfield Has Contributed Thus Far Ninety-one Dollars to the Fund —Honor Distinguished Jerseyman.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., bears testimony to its patriotism by contributing five dollars to the Cleveland monument fund. Somerset is the first among the fraternal organizations to become interested in the cause, which has for its object the erection of a handsome memorial in this State to the only Jerseyman who ever became President of the United States.

"Big-Hearted Bill," commonly known as William J. Counihan, proprietor of the New Plainfield theatre, proprietor of the New Orpheum theatre and proprietor of the Perth Amboy Majestic theatre, has been heard from. "Bill" sent today a check for ten dollars and "here's the very note, this is what he wrote:"

"I enclose my check for ten dollars for the proposed Cleveland memorial. I am only too pleased to contribute to such a worthy and laudable cause, and I hope that Plainfield will make a good showing. Plainfield's the Johnny Boy all right and we never do things on the half there."

Mr. Counihan is spending the summer at his bungalow, "The City Beautiful," at Fairhaven, N. J.

Shipwrecked, B'gee.

Tom Wilson, able seaman of twenty-two years' experience, just in from Liverpool, trolleyed from New York to Plainfield, Saturday, on a pleasure criuse. He dropped into a grog shop and took one drink of rum that made him lose his course. Having no chart or compass he swung to windward down East Seventh street where his cargo suddenly shifted and he went aground on a friendly lawn. He was anchored hard and fast when Bos'n Saffron, of the Marine corps, came by on the starboard tack and towed him to Sycamore Snug Harbor. Captain Runyon looked him over at six bells this morning and gave him clearance papers to Gotham without requiring salvage.

In the City Court.

The following cases were disposed of by Judge Runyon in the City Court this morning: "Cooney" Dunham, drunk and disorderly, sentence suspended; Catherine Cahill, an old offender, helpless intoxication, forty days in jail; Julius Fiester and Joseph Pritchard, colored, fighting on Madison avenue, Saturday afternoon, fined $5 each; Robert Wharton, colored, found so helplessly drunk at the North Avenue station that he had to be carried to jail on a baggage truck, sentence suspended; Walter Foster, a colored boy, arrested for breaking a window in Sam Kline's residence on West Third street, sentence suspended; Joseph Gussoff, drunkenness, sentence suspended.

City Judge Reserves Decision.

Hearing was concluded in the city court this morning in the cross complaints of Mrs. Annie Wilensky and Special Officer Harry Berlowitz, which have been before Judge Runyon for the past two weeks. The magistrate announced after the last witness had been examined that he would reserve decision for one week and that in the meantime if Berlowitz saw fit to resign as a special policeman he would be allowed to do so, intimating that this had better be done. He stated further that on several occasions people had complained to him of officiousness on the part of Berlowitz and he declared that when a city office was used to annoy citizens summary action should be taken.

FREEHOLDERS GIVE OUT TERRILL ROAD CONTRACT

The Weldon Contracting Company, of Rahway, was awarded the contract for macadamizing Terrill road between reen Brook and South avenue when the bids were opened at a meeting of the road committee of th Union County Board of Freeholders held at Elizabeth Friday afternoon. The company's bid was $7,201.27. The next lowest bid was $7,575.11, the figures submitted by the Watchung Stone Company, of this city. The rivalry between this firm and Smalley and Kitchen gave the latter firm second honors, with third highest bid of $7,604.80. The other bids follow: Joseph M. McNabb, Elizabeth, $7,826.44, and G. M. Freck, Somerville, $9,072.09. The work of improvement will be started at once.

The contract was awarded in accordance with the State Aid Act, by which the State pays one-third the cost of the job and the county the remaining two-thirds. Several property owners along the line of the improvement were at the meeting. There is a portion of Terrill road, between the brook and Mountain avenue, not effected by this improvement, for this stretch, amounting to about 250 yards, is in Somerset county. Terrill road property owners are said to be planning active measures to have this bit of road improved, and, it is reported, will bring the matter before the Somerset Freeholders. The macadamizing of Terrill road to South avenue is but a step in the plan to have the road macadamized all the way from Mountain avenue to Rahway.

SUCCESSFUL CARNIVAL AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

The Independence Day Carnival held at the grounds of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp Saturday afternoon and evening proved a signal success, and the proceeds will amount to about $200. Despite the threatening weather, there was a rushing business at the booths, most of which were constructed in the auditorium, under cover, during the entire afternoon, and the "sold" sign was on practically everything before the evening was half gone.

Miss Sara Curry, who formally opened the camp for the season today by bringing out more than a hundred children from the New York tenement districts, was at the carnival, and was welcomed by many Plainfielders who are interested in her work both at the camp and in the homes. Brilliantly decorated with bunting and flowers, and fully illuminated at night, the auditorium, where the booths were situated, presented a gala appearance. A feature of the affair was the system of transportation by automobile from the trolley to the grounds. George E. Hall and J. D. Loizeaux offered their machines for this purpose during the entire afternoon. Those in charge of the various booths follow:

Fancy booth, Mrs. J. C. Pierson, chairman, Miss Ida Dealaman, Miss Lillian Hardcastle; lemonade, Herbery Henry, chairman, Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Anna Smith; candy booth, Mrs. B. F. Hadley, chairman, Mrs. L. R. Howard, the Misses Cora R. Brokaw and Margaret Loizeaux; fruit and peanuts, Miss Mina Bock, Miss E. Morcom; fish pond, Mrs. S. A. George, chairman, the Misses Elmira Runyon, Ira Hadley and Jessie Hockridge; plant booth, in charge of Miss Lottie Conger; refreshments in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Scriven, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Conger, Mrs. E. L. Hand, Mrs. David Hand, Mrs. John Lindahl, Mrs. B. Chamberlain, Miss Lottie Conger and Miss Edna Willis; cake booth, Miss Florence Hawkins, chairman, Miss Ella C. Bendict, Miss Ella Palmer; ice cream, in charge of Joseph M. Hawkins. The Misses Marjorie Brown, Arline Brown, Marion Mortimer and May Doane acted as waitresses; mystery booth, Miss Marion Hall and Miss Van Deventer; fortune teller, Robert McCready; weighing machine, in charge of Robert Love.

S. A. George, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, is treasurer of the Carnival, and the general committee comprised Miss Florence G. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hadley and Mrs. S. A. George. The transportation committee was George E. Hall and J. D. Loizeaux. George E. Hall, S. A. George and B. F. Hadley formed the advertising committee.

Will Play at Lake Hopatcong.

The New Jersey Central has engaged Benjamin La Vere to furnish music at Lake Hopatcong every Sunday for the rest of the summer, beginning July 12. He has engaged a number of musicians, the band comprising some of the best known players in this part of the country.

APPORTION SCHOOL FUNDS

Plainfield's Share of the State Schools' Money Aggegrates $103,715.56.

FOR THE COUNTY $610,641.

How the Total Amount Is Derived and Divided—Fanwood Will Receive in All $9,756.68.

Official notification of the apportionment of State school moneys for the year which began Wednesday to the various municipalities in Union county was received yesterday from County Superintendent of Schools J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, in common with other officials. The table shows as the total amount available for school purposes in the county the sum of $610,641.12. A considerable portion of this will, however, not be expended. In Elizabeth, for instance, the sum of $61,131.79, the railroad tax money for 1908, will be carried over.

The available funds of $610,641.12 for the county are shown in the table compiled by the County Superintendent, to be devided as follows: From $200,000 State school fund, raised by riparian assessments, $9,892.77; from $1,012,840.08, State fund raised by corporation taxes, $62,949.70; from ninety per cent. of the State school tax, which is the amount the county gets back out of its levy, $226,618.92; from ten per cent. reserve fund, $20,379.88; from railroad tax of 1907, $150,678.35; from railroad tax of 1908, $140,121.50.

In the apportionment of $200,000 appropriation from the State School Fund, Plainfield gets $1,662.50, and its share of the amount apportioned from appropriation of $1,012,840.08. This city also receives $23,547.66 of the amount apportioned from the railroad tax of 1908. Out of the amount apportioned from the ten per cent. reserve fund it gets $3,424.87. The railroad tax of 1907 available for the year 1908-1909 brings to Plainfield a credit of $25,127.89. The total amount available for the school year of 1908-1909 in this city, from the State, aggregates $103,715.56.

CLINTON AVENUE CLUB SURPRISES NORMAN BARNES.

In honor of one of their teammates, who joined the ranks of benedicts recently, the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club gave Norman Barnes, the crack first baseman, a surprise party at his new residence on West Fourth street, Saturday night. The young people spent an enjoyable evening playing games and listening to a program of vocal and instrumental music. As a mark of esteem the club presented Mr. and Mrs. Barnes with a handsome parlor table. They quickly recovered from their surprise and responded with a few words of thanks. The affair came to a close after a repast served by the hostess.

Among theose present were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Barnes, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Norman Barnes, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dorflinger, Mr. and Mrs. Britt, Matin, Mrs. M. B. Stoeckle, the Misses Clara Gullberg, Mildred Barnes, Gertrude Graydon and John Martin, "Billy" O'Loughlin, James Emery, Adam Schott, Richard Scott, Clifford Randolph, William Giles, Charles Gilman and Allen Snyder.

Celebrated Second Anniversary.

Rev. G. W. Bailey celebrated the second anniversary of his pastorate at the Calvary Baptist church, Tuesday night, June 30. The sermon was delivered by Rev. E. Flowers, of Cranford, and there were addresses by Deacons Scipio Whindleton and Ransom on the success of the pastor. It was announced that the collections for the year amounted to $2,041.57. There were 125 persons added to the total membership of 415. The pastor married six couples, attended two conventions and two associational meetings. It was stated that the Middlesex District conference would be held at the Calvary Baptist church July 16.

Jockey Fred Alpers Thrown.

Fred Alpers, a gentleman jockey, who was riding "Adjutor" in the steeplechase race at the Driving Park Saturday afternoon, was thrown off his mount and the animal fell over on its rider, injuring him to some extent. Alpers was carried to the paddock, where he lay unconscious for about an hour. Stimulants were given and he finally was revived and was able to ride Harry Bourne's "Bessie Fullem," to victory in the next event, a running race for the "Independence Day cup." Mr. Alpers injuries were not serious.

DESPONDENT ITALIAN TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF

Despondent because he had received no letter from his parents in Italy, to whom he had sent some money two months ago, Zacheile Ferrarie, an Italian, aged 27 years, residing on Terrill road, attempted to commit suicide Saturday morning by slashing his throat with a razor. He cut so deep that the windpipe was severed and was in a dying condition when found by neighbors. The ambulance was summoned and the man was rushed to the hospital with all possible speed. This fact and the prompt action of the physicians in charge saved the Italian's life and afterward he said, through an interpreter, that he was sorry that he had cut his throat.

Although Ferrarie cut deep, he did not reach the main artery, which would have cost him his life instantly. However, he suffered the loss of a considerable quantity of blood and this left him in a weakened condition. The man formerly was employed by Joseph Harrigan and bears a good reputation. He has lived in Plainfield two years.

PARK AVENUE BAPTISTS CELEBRATE THE FOURTH

Independence Day was celebrated by the Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning, when there were patriotic services in the church with a special program of national music. Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the church, gave a report of the International Sunday-school convention recently held at Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Finn was one of the delegates, but was prostrated by the heat during his attendance at the convention, so could be present at but few of the sessions.

Music was a feature of the service, and the musical program follows: "America," by the school; responsive reading, "Our Flag;" hymn, "My Native Land," by the school; prayer, by W. J. Clark; hymn, "Our Country's Banner," by the school; address, by Rev. A. E. Finn; hymn, "National Anthem," by the school; prayer, by Superintendent George E. Hall; violin solo, "God Will Take Care of You," Arthur S. Mosher; sing, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," by the school. Superintendent Hall distributed shield-shaped fans of the national colors, bearing the words of the last song. Charles Van Winkle, blackboard artist of the school, drew a beautiful patriotic illustration on the blackboard with colored chalk. The auditorium was beautifully decorated with bunting and cut flowers.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS GREET REV. EDWIN SHAW

Rev. Edwin Shaw, formerly professor in Milton College, Milton, Wis., and who accepted the call to the pastorate of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, was in charge of the service at the church Sabbath morning for the first, at which time formal introduction ceremonies were held.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, spoke on behalf of the new pastor and people, in which he made a strong plea to the congregation for a deep sense of indivalual responsibility and personal work in holding up the hands of the pastor. These remarks were followed by a short address by David E. Titsworth in which he gave the new pastor a hearty welcome to the church and the city. Mr. Shaw responded with a few appropriate remarks, thinking the speakers for the kind words of encouragement and cheer and expressing the hope and confidence that through co-operation the work would be carried forward with success.

After the appropriate opening exercises, Mr. Shaw took charge of the regular communion service. There was a large attendance of communicants. At the conclusion all remained to meet Mr. Shaw and give him a hearty welcome. He will preach his first sermon next Sabbath morning. Mr. Shaw is a brother of Rev. George B. Shaw, former pastor, who is now in charge of a flourishing denominational church at North Loup, Neb.

Celebrated With Booze.

Argumentatively drunk, Elijah Post, colored, who lives on Race street, was arrested by Borough Marshal Pope last night on Somerset street. Recorder Dolliver gave him a lecture this morning and told him that he would have to pay a fine of $5 if arrested again. Warren Davis, colored, was found by Marshal Keller on Somerset street Friday night in a helpless condition from too much booze. He paid $3 at his hearing before Recorder Dolliver Saturday.

MISHAPS ON THE FOURTH

Many Minor Accidents and Several That "Might Have Been Serious."

TWO CASES IN POLICE COURT.

One Defendant Fined $10 For Firing Bullets and Another Accused of Shooting Mrs. Clifford McGee in the Neck.

Included in a lot of Fourth of July accidents that took place in the city and borough were two of the "might have been worse" variety and which led to two city court cases this morning. In one of them, Harold Vanderhoef, a young man residing on West Front street, was arraigned by Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman Saffron, who charged that he had fired a bullet from an old-fashioned "pepper box" pistol that struck Mrs. Clifford McGee in the neck as she sat in a carriage in front of the Park Club Saturday night. The force of the leaden missile had been partially spent when it hit but it was sufficient to knock Mrs. McGee from her seat and for the time being it was thought that she had been seriously hurt.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of the borough, was at the clubhouse at the time and making an investigation from the direction in which the bullet came, found Vanderhoef and another man shooting pistols just over the bridge on Washington avenue. He notified the city police and Vanderhoef was arrested, his companion running away at the sight of Patrolman Saffron. The bullet that struck Mrs. McGee was of the kind used in the "pepper box" affair the young man had in his possession but he denied putting anything else but paper and powder in the chambers.

In his statement to Judge Runyon, Vanderhoef asserted that he had fired his gun but once and that he was positive there was no bullet used. A number of other young men, he said, had been shooting pistols at Front and Washington streets and it was possible that they were responsible for the McGee accident. In disposing of the case His Honor declared that he was going to leave the matter entirely to Vanderhoefs own conscience.

"I am going to impose a fine of $5," he said, "and trust you to decide whether or not it shall be paid. If you think that the bullet that struck Mrs. McGee came from your pistol I want you to come around tomorrow and give Chief Kiely the money. If you are still convinced that you are innocent you can consider yourself discharged."

The other defendant was Thomas Wells, an East Indian negro, living on Richmond street, who began celebrating Saturday night by discharging a Winchester rifle. A bullet fully two inches long left the weapon and went crashing into the bath room at the home of S. A. Krom on Carlton avenue. Mr. Krom had just leaned over the wash bowl when the missile passed over his back and imbedded itself in the wall. He notified the police and Patrolman Saffron located Wells as the shooter. He admitted discharging the weapon but stated that he had thought the barrel was pointed in the air. He was fined $10 with the preference of twenty days in jail.

The usual number of minor accident cases were reported as a result of the Fourth's celebration but none of them was serious. The list comprised powder burns, shots from blank cartridges and torn hands from the permature explosion of cannon crackers.

Thomas Kelly, of Dunellen, held a giant firecracker too long after lighting it for a "practice celebration" Friday night. His right hand was badly lacerated when it exploded, and he may lose two fingers. "First aid" treatment was given at Pennock's drug store, and he later went to Dr. Platt's office where the powder grains were removed and the members bandaged. There are as yet no signs of tetanic poisoning.

Mrs. William Kingslow, of this city, was shooting blank cartridges in a revolver, when the sudden explosion of one sent the contents into her hand. She was treated in the clinic at the hospital and later returned home.

Ernest Tellegrin, aged eight years, of South avenue, suffered a slight abrasion of the fingers of the right hand while shooting blank cartridges. The injury was not serious and after being treated at the hospital, was able to return home.

Igniting a spiral train of powder in an effort to make a new kind of pyrotechnic display Saturday, Fred Brewer, of Stone street, was disappointed when the powder blazed up with a puff, badly burning him about the face and hands. He was rushed to Dr. Pittis' office in a carriage, where sundry grains of powder were removed and his burns attended to. His eyesight is in no danger, but he

DUNELLEN AND VICINTIY.

With many boroughites on holiday trips out of town, the Fourth passed quietly at Dunellen. Several parties took advantage of the railroad excursions and many attended the celebration at Bound Brook. The day's big event was the celebration at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, where the members of William G. Holton Council kept "open house" all day long. An Independence Day fair was the attraction and a merry-go-round and swings were on the grounds, where booths had been set up for games and refreshments. There was dancing in the hall in the evening, when Bambach's orchestra furnished music. There were about fifty couples. The officers of the lodge formed the committee in charge of the affair.

Independence Day was marked by special Fourth of July sermons in the Presbyterian and New Market Baptist churches. In connection with Rev. W. W. Casselberry's sermon at the Presbyterian church came the graduation exercises of sixteen pupils from the primary to the newly organized junior department of the Sunday school. Music was a feature. Rev. George H. Gardner spoke on "The New Delcaration of Independence" at the evening service in the New Market Baptist church last night. Patriotic music was rendered by the choir.

The local friends of Charles Tilton learned with much surprise and regret of his death at Plainfield Friday. He was a resident of Dunellen for many years and was employed by the Central, for a long time being in charge of the switches at the roundhouse yards previous to the installation of the tower. He was a member of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of the borough, and Lakeside Council, D. of L., of New Market.

A six hundred dollar opera piano was installed in the club rooms of the Dunellen A. C. Friday night, where there was "open house" all day on the Fourth. The instrument produces either "canned music" from music rolls or may be played as a piano. It is of superior workmanship and finish. The club members have but recently installed a pool table and purchased mission furniture for the "den."

President Lewis Churchill, Grover Kratzel Fisher, Stephen Kennedy, Percy Abbott and Ruliff Fisher toured to Asbury Park in one of Gus Barfus' automobiles on the Fourth. The machine bore the flags and colors of the Dunellen A. C.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Mrs. H. H. Shepherd and daughter, Miss Mary Shepherd, of Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook, are spending several days at the home of Mrs. Shepherd's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Beams, in Maple avenue, Chester.

Louis C. Rugen, Jr., of Montreal, Canada, is being entertained at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Rugen, Sr., at their home in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. C. Garretson, of Millstone, has been visiting at the home of her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Voorhees, in Grant avenue, Beachwood Heights.

Frederick A. Smith, of Plainfield, has been spending a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Augustus Smith on the Raritan river, near Bound Brook.

Mrs. William F. Briant and children, of Cedar street, South Bound Brook, have returned from an extended visit to relatives in Dover and vicinity.

Miss Ethel Sheals, of New York, is being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wilkinson in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook.

Mrs. B. C. Davey and daughter, Miss Amy Davey, of Elizabeth, have rented the J. E. Rutt house in High street, Bound Brook, for the summer.

J. W. Spraight, of Somerset street, Bound Brook, is visiting relatives at Amityville, N. Y.

WESTFIELD.

The terms of the Mayor and four members of the Westfield Council will expire on January 1, and their successors are to be elected at the fall election. It is generally understood that Mayor Alpers will be a candidate for re-election, as will Councilmen Fink, Wilcox, Wilson and Hohenstein, though the last named is being urged to run for Mayor by the Democrats.

Two automobiles came to grief on North avenue, Westfield, Friday night, where the road is being repaired. Both machines were run at speed on the rough stone and cut tires resulted.

Westfield Board of Health held a meeting Friday at the town rooms.

RARITAN.

Miss Mary Smith has returned from a week's visit, spent with her sister, Mrs. Joseph R. Weaver, in Plainfield.

Mrs. John White, of Elizabeth, has been spending a week with Mrs. H. H. White, on Gaston avenue.

Thomas Brown, who had been spending several months in Raritan, has returned to Boston.

James Martin, of New York, is spending this week with his sister, Mrs. Oscar Smith.

Miss Helen M. Higgens and sister Ruth are at Sagamore Beach, Mass., for the summer.

Mrs. John H. Stevens, of Plainfield, has been visiting the Misses Gallagher this week.

Miss Katherine Flemington, of Three Bridges, is a guest of Mrs. C. F. Pfeifer.

Mrs. Michael J. Hickey is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Frank Smith, at Bayonne.

Miss Margaret Foley, of Princeton, is visiting Miss Ethel Chamberlain.

Miss Elizabeth Hendershot is visiting her sister in Plainfield.

Mrs. William O. Davis is a guest of relatives in Westfield.

BASKING RIDGE.

A reception and dance were given by Mr. and Mrs. William Childs, Jr., at their home, "Wilmere Court," Friday, to which over 150 invitations were issued.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Childs invited about 100 of their friends and relatives to a lawn party at their home, "Bairns Brae," Saturday afternoon.

The local fire company participated in the carnival and parade in Bernardsville Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis and daughter Laura, of Roselle, spent Saturday with friends here.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brush died Friday at their home on Church street.

MADMEN AS INVENTORS.

Some of the inventions of the insane are of scientific value. A patient at Villejuif invented a "panification machine" by combining a bottle, a plank and small metallic tubes, to which he had fitted faucets. Having set up his machine, he produced loaves of bread the size of a man's head. The bread was good—so good that it was decided to make the machine known. One day when it was in action the doctor suggested taking a photograph of it. The inventor watched him as if petrified for a moment; then he fell upon the machine, wrenched it apart and trampled it underfoot. The invention—an exceedingly useful one—was lost, because no one had seen him make it, and no one dares to speak of it to him. To allude to it is to bring on a furious attack. Most lunatics, says a writer in Harper's Weekly, no matter how contented they may be, generally cherish a furtive longing to escape. They collect wax from the polished floors, take the impressions of locks, and make keys from empty sardine boxes, spoon handles, or anything to be found. Dr. Marie's museum includes a collection of knives of strange and unheard-of shapes. Some of them have blades made from pieces of glass or slate and set in handles of corset steels. Objects harmless in themselves become dangerous weapons through the ingenuity of madmen. Insane sculptors are as common as insane painters. The insane sculptor hews out coarse statues, fantastic animals, ferocious little-horned and grimacing devils. An ex-mechanic carves all his soup bones. That his old trade is still in his memory is shown by the little screws that he makes out of the smaller pieces of bone. He works all day at his senseless and ridiculous task. Another lunatic, who believes he is the incarnation of the soul of Beelzebub, passes his time carving toy men out of wood. Each pair of his creations are joined together, now at the necks, now at the shoulders.

Stuffing the Box.

"Of course," the British tourist was saying, "I understand that the winning party at your elections is the one that gets out the most voters."

"Not at all," replied the native; "it's the party that puts in the most votes."—The Catholic Standard of Times.

Six Months to Make a Carpet.

There has been placed in the sanctuary of the high altar at Westminister (Eng.) Roman Catholic cathedral a large carpet from Smyrna which, on account of its size—32 feet long by 12 feet wide—had to be specially made in Turkey, the work taking six months to complete.

BILLIONS OF GOLD COMING.

If the great production of gold during the last few years were only a brief upward spurt in the mining industry it would lose much of its significance and importance. Then there would be no assurance that the lifting effect of more gold upon the general level of prices would go on more than a brief period. But the greatest gold fields of the world today are of such a character that they can be counted upon to continue their heavy yield indefinitely. In the foremost of them all—the Witwatersrand region of the Transvaal—the experts believe that five billions of gold is now practically in sight. That is thought to be a very low estimate of the probable total yield of the great South African field. At present the output of the "Rand" is about $150,000,000 a year, and therefore it appears probable that the highest rate of yield ever reached may go on for thirty-fie years. Of course, there is no limit to the possibilities of new discoveries. Alaska is another gold mining region which can hardly be worked out for generations to come. The area of the Alaskan lelds already figuring in the world's gold produce is so great that the $25,000,000 yield which is expected in 1908 may be doubled or trebled and then maintained for half a century. The entire region is enormous and its mineral wealth has been very scantily tested. In greater or less degree similar conditions exist in the Nevada-California deserts, in Siberia in the barren interior of Australia and in other parts of Africa than the Transvaal. Mexico and South America wil yet add enormously to their yield of gold. The one great certainity is that the world's supply of the basic money metal of civilization wil increase steadily and at a rate which means a powerful lifting force in the market for commodities. This process will continue for decades to promote industrial and commercial expansion and better the lot of the world's workers.

Needed Two.

"Sometimes," said the love-lorn youth as he gazed at the moon, "I feel as though I could live on kisses alone."

"How funny!" laughed the witty girl.

"What's funny?"

"Why, if you lived alone, where would you get the kisses?"

Doms and Dreadnoughts.

The church having raised 2,000,000 sterling in bygone centuries, built therewith the magnificent Dom of Cologne, which has been a source of inspiration, writes William Stead, in Review of Reviews. The state now spends its 2,000,000 on a Dreadnought, which becomes obsolete in 20 years.

TWENTY-SIX BOOKS A DAY.

Somebody has just figured it out that a man will have to read at the rate of twenty-six books a day to keep up with American literature alone. Last year, according to the Independent, we broke the record; 2,481 more books published in the United States than in 1906, far ahead of any previous year. The total number for 1907 was 9,620, from which may be subtracted 695 new editions, leaving 8,925 really new books appearing in the United States. Of these 6,517 were by American authors or were new editions manufactured in the United States, the others being by English or other foreign authors or consisting of imported editions, bound or in sheets. We are gradually making good our literary declaration of independence, every year producing a larger proportion of the books we read, especially fiction. In quantity if not in quality we are catching up with England, where last year 9,914 books appeared, only 294 ahead of us, whereas in 1906 the English publications out numbered the American by 1,464. The French in 1907 produced 10,785, of which, however, 2,000 or 3,000 were mere pamphlets. The Italian book production for the same year was 7,040. In the American list fiction, of course, stands at the head, with 1,171 titles. Next to it and rapidly gaining on it is theology and religion, with 876. The classes following are law, physical and mathematical sicence, poetry and the drama. Why is it that people will continue to say that religion is a dead issue and that nobody reads poetry in face of the fact that last year in this country that number of new publications in religion was more than 40 per cent. greater than the year before, and the volumes of poetry more than double?

PRESIDENT PROMOTES COLONEL MARSHALL.

By direction of the President, Colonel William Louis Marshall, United States Army, was yesterday appointed chief of engineers of the army, succeeding Brigadier General Alexander Mackenzie.

Colonel Marshall is known to New Yorkers through the work done under his supervision in improving channels of New York Harbor, his latest work being the dredging of Ambrose Channel. He was born at Washington, Ky., on June 11, 1846, and served as a private during the civil war. He graduated from West Point in 1868. In 1873 he discovered Marshall Pass across the Rocky Mountains, and two years later gold placers in Marshall Basin, San Miguel River, Col. He is the inventor of many devices connected with levee and dredging work.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

George Washington, pitcher of the Philadelphia Giants, the famous colored team, which has appeared here several times, dropped dead at Winsted, Conn., last week, while putting on his uniform for a game. He pitched his last game at Hoboken a week ago yesterday.

The Jersey City fans are enthusiastic over the change in management. They think that the club should get a man more experienced in the managerial line.

Foxen, formerly of the Jersey City Eastern League team, but now with the Philadelphia Nationals, twirled against Mathewson in the recent series with the Giants, and he held McGraw's men to seven hits, while the same number of bingles were made off of "Christy."

Bender, the star Indian twirler of the Philadelphia Athletics, is gradually getting in his old-time form. The other day he defeated Boston, 4 to 1, allowing but six hits.

In a recent game between Cleveland and Detroit, Lajoie used sixteen men and then lost the game by a score of 11 to 1.

Mr. and Mrs. John Peacock, of Westervelt avenue, have gone to Bradley Beach, where they expect to stay for the summer months, prior to moving to Orange, where they will reside in the future.

Mrs. Charles R. Goldsmith and son, Valentine, and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Schwed, of North Plainfield, are spending a few days at Aubuhn, L. I. Some of the party made the trip in Mr. Schwed's automobile.

Mrs. Thomas A. Neely and daughter, Miss Mae Neely, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Pittsburg, have returned to Philadelphia after a short visit with friends in the borough, prior to going to Asbury Park for the summer.

NO HUDSON COUNTY FUSION.

"New Idea" Harmony Committee Rejects All Proposals by "Regulars" and Will Continue Fight.

There will be no fusion between the regular republican and the "New Idea" forces in Hudson county. This decision was reached last night at a meeting in Frank J. Higgins' office in Jersey City of the committees representing the two factions. It was announced at the conclusion of the session that the "New Idea" committee had rejejcted all the proposals made by the "regulars," and would continue the fight in Hudson county, not to get offices for the sake of office holding, but for the well defined principles for which the "New Idea" movement stands.

Signs of the times point to the nomination of Assistant Prosecutor James W. McCarthy for Sheriff. The committee will issue a public statement setting forth that the "New Idea" forces could not enter into any harmony deal because the "regulars" absolutely refused to consent to the election of county committeemen at the September primary, when party candidates are chosen under the protection of the general election laws.

A Hint to Mothers.

Burning accidents would be comparatively rare if mothers would have alum put in the last rinsing water of children's pinafores, nightgowns, etc., when these articles are washed. Two ounces of alum to each gallon of water is the right proportion to make the garment non-inflammable, and its hould always be used for garments made of the common flannelette, for otherwise this is so likely to catch fire that the wearer of it is in danger of being burned to death. Fires are often caused by muslin curtains being blown by the wind against lighted candle or gas, so it is wise also to rinse such draperies in alum water.

Did Business Seven Days a Week.

Herman immer, who is familiarly known as "Buck," was fined $10 in the city court, this morning, for keeping his store in the West End open for business seven days a week. He was arrested by Patrolman McCarthy who stated that Zimmer's place was supposed to be closed on Saturdays but he considered shutting up the front door and opening the side one all that was necessary to keep within the law. In passing sentence, Judge Runyon inforced the defendant that under no circumstances would he allow stores to keep open seven days a week where the sales were other than thos permitted at all times.

Charles E. Tilton.

Charles Tilton, aged forty-six years, died suddenly Friday afternoon at his home on East Fifth street, near Franklin place. Acute gratritis is ascribed as the cause. He lived in Dunellen for many years before removing to this city, having been employed as switchman by the New Jersey Central. His last position was as collector. A wife and several daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Joseph Kitchen, survive him. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon in charge of Rev. J. W. Musson.

Humphrey Fought With Guest.

Charles Humphrey, colored, of Whitewood avenue, got into an argument with James Brown, a guest from Newark, Saturday night. Marshals Pope and Kiernan went to the house and arrested Humphrey, but Brown slipped out of the second story window and made good his escape by way of the grape arbor. At his hearing before Borough Recorder Polliver today, Humphrey was fined $2.

TOLD OF MISS MAIR'S WORK AMONG AFRICANS

Recalling to the minds of Warren chapel parishioners the noble work of Miss Rachel Mair, of the borough, who lost her life in mission service in Africa, Rev. J. M. Perkins, whose wife, nee Miss Arms, was a co-worker with Miss Mair in the African field gave a powerful talk on the needs of mission workers among the blacks at the morning service in Warren chapel yesterday morning. With him was his wife, the two being on a short furlough from their work in the West African mission fields.

Rev. Mr. Perkins, whose talk took the place of the morning's sermon, was introduced by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, who took occasion to recall to the minds of the congregation the fact that it is just six years since Miss Mair left this country after a furlough to return to her work in Africa. Her death came a few months after her resumption of the work.

Referring briefly to the personality of Miss Mair and her influence in the mission field, Rev. Mr. Perkins, [illegible] Ontario, Canada, whose home is in [illegible], spoke of the receptive attitude of the blacks toward the American missionaries. They welcome them cordially, he said, and are eager to learn the Christian faiths while they are less likely to be favorably impressed with English or German missionaries. Alluding briefly to the climatic conditions in his field of work, the same as that to which Miss Mair was assigned, the speaker said that malaria abounded in the humid heat of "The White Man's Grave" as the district was termed. Rev. Mr. Perkins and his wife are the only survivors of a band of ten missionaries sent out recently from this country to the land where five months of rain a year and the humid heat of the equatorial region makes life constantly in danger from disease.

In speaking of the attitude of the Africans towards Christianity, the speaker said that the blacks have a legend that Christ came to earth to wage war on their race, and was victorious, cursing them. The heathen ritual, he said, is much the same as the old Hebrew, and there are traditions about a flood and the journey of the ark. He concluded his remarks by reading from a letter written by a colored mission worker, in which he urged that more American missionaries be sent, making an appeal for Christian teachers, in a land where the people have no written language and where history and religious belief is entirely tradition handed down from father to son in narrative.

Horse Bolts, Dixon Injured.

A livery horse from Metuchen, hired by Howard Bennett, who visited John Dixon, of Duer street, yesterday, bolted from the back yard of Dixson's home, where it was tied yesterday afternoon, while the three small Dixon children were seated in the wagon. In an attempt to stop the animal, Dixon was thrown against the grape arbor by a blow from the shaft. The horse jumped the fence, breaking loose from the wagon, and was captured at Front street. The children were uninjured.

West End Highwaymen.

Three small boys, Jerry and Michael Crowley and George Buss, were arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning for holding up Juan Babcock, eight years old, on Clinton avenue, Saturday, and taking a quart of ice cream from him. They admitted the charge and were let go on suspended sentence after a severe lecture.

Epileptic to Be Committed.

Arrested by Borough Marshal Pope Saturday night for disorderly conduct, Michael Kane, who lives on Harmony street, was given his choice of $20 or twenty days for violation of a borough ordinance while in an intoxicated condition. The man is an epileptic and will probably be committed to the State home.

Independents' Holiday Shooting.

Sweepstakes shooting at trap and range was a holiday feature of Saturday's shooting at the Independent Gun Club range. John Wirth and C. W. Krausse lead with the best scores, and Dr. B. F. Leonard is ahead in the season's contest at the rifle range.

Overheated Stove Starts a Fire.

An overheated stove resulted in a small fire and $25 damage at the home of William Hicks, Hobart avenue, Friday afternoon. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and the chemical engine was used in extinguishing the blaze.

Company M Victorious.

The Company M team, of Somerville, defeated St. Mary's Club, of this city, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 6 to 5. The morning game was 2 to 1 in favor of Co. M, when rain stopped the contest in the second inning.

WOMAN SHOULD NOT VENTURE FROM HER SPHERE.

Why are there not the same helpful, sympathetic women today as there were a decade ago?

Is the instinct of woman no longer as the magnet holding her to the home—to children, to her husband.

They are frank with their opinions that the disposition of women in this country to be veritable helpmates, as they formerly were, is being lost.

Citizens from foreign countries have not brought with them to this free land the same unity of purpose between husband and wife that exists in almost all countries.

I do not pretend to say whether this is true or not, but it seems to be the consensus of opinion of those who have investigated the matter that it is, and that the women of today are not interested in the success of their husbands and the male members of their families.

One frequently hears that when husbands and fathers are over indulgent with their wives and daughters, the women become selfish and unreasonable and are not disposed to share in the efforts to accumulate wealth or practise economies and self-denial which persons of limited means should exercise.

This certainly cannot be said of all our women, as we have many illustrations of the achievements of women in the interest of their husbands,' fathers' and brothers' success.

There is another phase of the question. It has been claimed that American women sometimes do too much for their husbands and occupy industrial positions which they should relinquish on account of the duties that devolve upon them as wives and mothers. That there is something radically wrong there is no disputing.

If our women would cease to occupy positions which take them from their homes and their families and devote their time to their domestic duties, what they would save would probably amount to as much as what they might earn at work, which takes them away from their homes.

As a natural consequence their domestic affairs are wholly neglected and much harm inevitably follow. It is not surprising that earning money creates a spirit of independence in the minds of the best intentioned women and quite frequently dulls the interest which they should have at all times in their home and their lived ones.

Men, as a rule, are naturally selfish and expect women to be attentive to their household duties, even if they are wage-earning women. Man overlooks altogether the fact that they are worn out by the daily grind of filling any position wage-earners occupy, as wel as the fact that the addition to their incomes through the woman's wages must be at the expense of their domestic bliss.

The fact that wives especially are wage-earners also begets a feeling on the part of husbands of freedom from responsibility. Husbands and wives drift apart in their aims and ambitions of life, when, as a matter o fact, the whole responsibility of providing properly for their wives and children should rest absolutely upon the husbands and fathers.

It would be better if the women of the nation would insist upon themselves and their families being supported by their husbands and fathers, which would allow them to turn their attention exclusively to the discharge of their duties in their homes.

Any woman who fulfills the place as wife and mother as it should be filled has little time to devote to other occupations, however agreeable and profitable they may be. This applies particularly to the younger women, whose children are in their infancy and require the constant attention of their mothers.

In addition, the waste that follows personal inattention to domestic affairs far exceeds most liberal compensations that are paid for their services in any capacity.

Women are naturally weaker physically, and it is impossible for them to serve two masters—their homes and their employers—without speedy destruction to their health and breaking down of their nervous organizations, the inevitable result of being overtaxed and overworked.

An inquiry should be made as to whether or not the men of the present time are willing for their wives to undergo the drudgery and labor of adding to their incomes to lighten their own burdens, albeit they may have to sacrifice their domestic happiness.—Mrs. John A. Logan in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Do Not Laugh at It.

"Love?"

Some day you will be sorry that you sneered at that word.

It means the little head cuddled against the mother breast. It means that which bore with us through years of folly and pain and unwisdom. The one who always forgave, even when we hurt her the most. It means the one woman—"like mother"—to be ours, from the whole world, till death do us part.

It means that which lightens toil, sweetens povery, divides our trouble and shares our joy, and makes our life worth the living.

It means that which is still left us when we sit alone with the lights of life all out—the one thing alone of all which is deathless and eternal and changeless.

"If" and "but" are tiny words, but they can change the color of the sky and make the world seem a wilderness.

John Weigel, of California, has been spending a week with Samuel Packer.

is suffering from the burns.

John Borrews, of Elm place, almost blew off his left fore finger with a blank cartridge revolver in celebrating "the Glorious." Dr. Pittis pried out the wads and powder and the young man is now resting comfortably, with little danger of tetanic poisoning.

Pascale Savacini held a six-inch dynamite cracker too long in celebrating Saturday and at the explosion his hand was badly lacerated and filled with grains of powder. His friends rushed him to Dr. Pittis and he is "off the job" now, swashed in bandages.

Frank Green shot himself in the hand with a blank cartridge wad in the course of the celebration of the day at the his home on West Third street. Dr. Pittis dressed the wound, which shows no signs of tetanus today.

Miss Anna Marky, daughter of Peter Marky, of Liberty street, was examining a pin-wheel in front of her home, Saturday night, when the thing went off suddenly and burned her face. Dr. W. C. Boone gave temporary treatment and yesterday morning the young woman was removed to the hospital, where she will be detained a few days. Her sight was not injured.

Tony Sabino, of Cottage place, shot himself in the hand yesterday morning, while playing with a revolver. The bullet made an ugly wound. He was cared for in the clinic at the hospital, after which he returned home.

While Mrs. Bertha Singer was sitting in the store of her brother, Harry Dreier, on West Front street, a blank cartridge shell was projected from beneath a passing trolley car, having been placed on the track to explode, and struck her in the neck. It tore through her collar and made a deep wound that bled freely. The injury was dressed by a physician. The police made an effort to locate who it was placed the cartridge but were unsuccessful.

Jonas L. E. Lie.

Jonas Lauritz Edemil Lie, the famous Nohwegian poet and novelist, and an uncle of Jonas Lie, the well-known artist of this city, died at his home in Christiania, yesterday. He was born November 6, 1833. During the past year he had been in failing health and he was doubly afflicted because of failing eyesight which made him practically blind. The last time Mr. Lie saw his uncle was two years ago on a visit to his home. He was then vigorous and enjoying good health.

Andrew J. Hope.

Andrew J. Hope, formerly a resident of Park avenue, and well-known as a candy manufacturer whose places of business are at 41 Nassau street and 61 Ann street, New York, and who when he lived in New York stopped at Hotel Imperial, fell or jumped out of a window in his apartment on the seventh floor of that hotel just before midnight last night. Mr. Hope was sixty-eight years old and for several days had been confined to his apartment by illness due to the heat.

SELECTED VERSE.

A Dog and a Man.

He was a dog,
But he stayed at home
And guarded the family night and day.
He was a dog
That didn't roam.
He lay on the porch or chased the stray—
The tramp, the burglar, the hen, away.
For a dog's true heart for that household beat
At morning and evening, in cold and heat.
He was a dog.

He was a man
And didn't stay
He was a man
And every day
His heart grew callous, its love-beats rare,
He thought of himself at the close of the day,
And cigar in his fingers, hurried away
To the club, the lodge, the store, the show.
But he had a right to go, you know,
He was a man.

—London S. S. Times.

A Prayer.

When joy and laughter rock the world
And children laugh on every side,
When selfishness has been forgot
And hands and hearts are opened wide,
And shoulders bend to help the weak,
And hands reach out to guide along
The feeble ones, and all are kin,
And all the world is sweet with song—

When jealousies are pushed aside,
And envy finds no dwelling place;
When strong, and erst-aggressive ones,
Lift up the feeble in the race,
When beggars reap a harvest great
That make up for the year's scant dole,
When men are moving heart to heart
And standing smiling soul to soul—

When it is joy to fare abroad,
And it is pleasure just to live,
And life's one bitter drop is that
Alas! we have not more to give!
We ask, oh, God, Thy comfort for
The hearts bereft that grieve and break,
For those no open hands may help!
Dear God! for the Redeemer's sake!

—Judd Mortimer Lewis.

The Poet's Fancy.

The poet sang of daffodils,
With all a poet's rapture.
And of "the spirit of the hills
Which none might hope to capture;"
The poet in his attic, bare
And dark and uninviting,
Sang of the daffodils out there,
Meanwhile with hunger fighting.

The poet sent his song away,
And back the postman brought it,
But finally, one blissful day,
A publication bought it;
The poet for a week or two
Lived in a world of gladness;
The modest little check he drew
Had banished all his sadness.

He'd never seen a daffodil,
And penned up in his attic,
He strayed not over any hill
To learn to be ecstatic;
Few songs would ever serve to lift
Mankind to exultation
If poets never had the gift
Of glad imagination.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Good-By.

Farewell, farewell, is a lonely sound,
And always brings a sigh,
But give to me when loved ones part
That sweet old word "good-by,"
That sweet old word "good-by,"
That sweet old word "good-by,"
But give to me when loved ones part,
That sweet old word "good-by."

Farewell, farewell, may do for the gay,
When pleasure's throng is nigh,
But give to me that better word
That comes from the heart, "good-by."

Adieu, adieu, we hear it oft
With a tear, perhaps with a sigh,
But the heart feels most when the lips move not,
And the eyes speak the gentle "good-by."

Farewell, farewell, is never heard
When the tear's in the mother's eye.
Adieu, adieu; she speaks it not,
But, "My love, good-by, good-by."

—J. C. Engelbrecht.

Know Him?

I wonder if you've ever met
That awful pest—the fellow who
Is so afraid some one will get
More praise than he's entitled to.
You praise a friend for sterling traits,
The pest sits there with jaws close shut:
But when at last he speaks he says:
"Yes, he's a grand, good fellow, but—"

It's so with anything on earth
When you its merits would extol—
The novel that has made a hit,
The play that draws applause from all,
The pest will smile a sickly smile,
And when he speaks he says: "Tut tut,
It is a decent piece of work—
A decent piece of work, but—but—"

—Louis E. Thayer, in New York Sun.

Miss Stated.

To kiss, alas! and then to part,
Brings sadness to the loving heart;
Long years, perhaps, may intervene,
And tempests drop dark folds between,
While imps of darkness ply their art.

At such farewells, salt tears will start,
And naught allays the bitter smart;
We do not know what it may mean,
To kiss, alas!

A maiden said: "You have the cart
Before the horse," in tones quite tart;
Reflecting, she was sweet sixteen,
And most events come unforeseen,
I bent at touch of Cupid's dart,
To kiss a lass!

The dread bacilli?

Far and Near.

When Love sits by the fire and sings
A tender little song,
With the sweet thought of homely things
That must to Love belong,
O, who would dream of sweeping wings
And flight so far and strong?

When poised upon some shining ring,
High in aerial blue,
Can Love forget the hidden spring,
The garden cool with dew—
The lowly joys that flowerlike cling
About the place Love knew?

SOME DELICIOUS SUMMER DISHES.

In few houses are strawberries served correctly. If you have large, sound berries, do not hull them nor cut off any of the stems, but wash them in cold water in a colander, shaking them lightly and draining thoroughly. Then wash any green leaves you may have at hand, strawberry leaves if you live in the country, or grape leaves; or in town any bit of greenery like chicory or parsley. Lay this on a flat plate, heap a single service of strawberries upon it and pass with the berries powdered sugar. Geranium leaves are also tasty with the berries, just to provide the green background.

Mixed Fruits—Every refrigerator has its quota of fresh fruit leftovers. Perhaps you have a bit of pineapple left from last night's dinner, either cut in blocks or shredded. With this mix banana cut in dice, a few strawberries, and over all squeeze a goodly measure of orange juice. Serve cold in glasses or sherbert cups.

Economy Eggs—The foundation of this dish is cold boiled potatoes. Select large potatoes and cut thick slices lengthwise, so you have the largest oval possible. Have ready some boiling hot lard or clarified fat. Drop into this the potato ovals and cook until golden brown. Drain thoroughly. Arrange on a hot platter with a rasher or two of bacon, cut thin and cooked crisp, on each slice of potato. Then poach an egg for each person and lay this on a slice of potato with the rasher of bacon in between. A sprig of parsley on one side and you have a tasty service. Be sure your poached eggs are drained dry, as the rasher of bacon and potato should be crisp.

Eggs and Tomato in Ramekins—Butter your individual ramekin dishes and fit into the bottom of each one-half of a ripe tomato, laid with the skin down. Add just a little water and bake until the tomato is tender. Now scoop out a little of the baked tomato heart, leaving a cup of shell of tomato. For six portions break into a bowl two eggs, a teaspoon of cream, a little onion jjuice, a tablespoon of grated Parmesian or English cheese, a pinch each of salt, sugar and pepper, and heat until creamy. Fill the hollow of the tomatoes with this custard, set in the oven until it bakes firmly, garnish with a tiny sprig of parsley in each portion and serve in the ramekin dishes as cooked.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS FOR ECONOMICAL HOUSEKEEPERS

Meat and potato cakes are a common dish in the home of the small wage-earner, as it has been found that they provide an excellent means of disposing of the left-overs. To prepare them, the meat from the soup pot, or the remains of the stew, arec hopped fine; an onion, also finely minced, is added, a small quantity of mashed potatoes, with pepper and salt and any other seasoning that taste may dictate, or that is within reach of te cook. Tis mixture is then shaped into cakes and fried.

The housekeepers who make a practice of preparing stews or dishes that closely resemble them frequently economize in the matter of seasoning by keeping the carrots, onions, leeks, bay leaves and other soup vegetables and herbs wraped in thin muslin bag. When soups, stews and such dishes are made, the bag, which is attached to a piece of twine, is dropped into the pot with the meat and when it has remained long enough to impart the requisite flavor, it is withdrawn, dried, and set aside to do duty again on the following day. This process is usually continued until the "seasoning bag" has lost the power to flavor. Care must be taken to dry the seasonings immediately after each using.

A meat pie made from the elft overs from two or three dinners is regarded as a great delicacy in many of those households where there are good cooks, and if all these pies are as tasty as that which I was permitted to sample, tere is nor eason why such food should be made a subject for complaint. Al though the pie may be covered with a biscuit crust and baked in the oven, like any ordinary pie, this cook—a Southern woman of considerable taste in cooking—preferred to prepare it in the form of a pot pie, and, accordingly, some extremely light dumplings took the place of the crust.

CHAUFFEUR YOU READ ABOUT.

But His Like You Will Seldom See in Real Life.

Mr. Blank had advertised for a chauffeur and he passed over a dozen applicants until he came to one whose general appearance seemed to fill the bill, and then said to him:

"Sir, I want a man different from the ordinary chauffeur."

"Yes, sir. I thought from the reading of your advertisement that you did. I am different."

"In what respects?"

"If you have a wife, I shall not flirt with her.

"If you have a daughter, I shall not cajole her into eloping with me.

"If your wife tries to find out through me where you go certain nights I shall be mum.

"If any dudes ask me how much money you are going to give your daughter when she marries I shall tell him to go to.

"I shall not come to your house to court the parlor maid.

"Shuuld I be out in the auto alone and a son of a gun should want to race me, I shall decline.

"I am a first class liar regarding speed when arrested by the police.

"I never give things away to the newspapers.

"If divorce proceedings are instituted I go on the stand for you."

He was told to remove his coat and vest and undrego inspection, and when it was found that his angel wings were fully developed he was hired on the spot for $100 per month —Rehoboth Democrat and Chronicle.

TRAVELING WITH A SUITCASE.

She provides herself with a good linen suit, plain skirt and plain jacket with long sleeves, and it will be a costume or dark tan, brown or gray. The dainty hat and gloves match—the shoes, too, for brown shoes can be found in all new styles, or black ones with gray uppers. In her suitcase is a white linen skirt, a few pretty shirtwaists, wash belts, collars and neatly hemmed handkerchiefs. There are few ribbons, but comporatively few articles that cannot be laundered.

The white petticoats are serviceable and made with substantial ruffles of embroidery. Two colored ones match her dark linen suit. The suitcase girl is now ready to go to any place in a globe trotting journey and she can stop for a rest, have her clothes laundered and proceed on her way.

A trunk may follow filled with the finest dresses imaginable, but she wisely takes washable garments with her on the train.

Trimming Children's Hats.

The smallest children look well with hats that are either small with narrow upturned brims or the rather wide leghorn hat that droops with the weigt of flowers or a tuscan that shows a darker braid and more lacy effect. By all means have the little hat trimmed with field daisies, poppies or some small flower that will look most attractive with ribbon trimming. If a color is used, the flowers may be of like color.

His Conception of Art.

"That is my celebrated painting 'The Bullfight,'" said the great artist. "Do you admire it?"

"Well, I should say so," responded the visitor.

"Ah, I am glad that you are such an admirer of art."

"Yes, I was just thinking how many dozen juicy beefsteaks could be carved off that hefty bullock."

DEVOTEES OF THE DERBY.

It is a striking evidence of the fascination of the Derby that it not only attracts thousands of spectators who never see any other horse race, but that many of its devotees make a point of never missing it if they can possibly get to Epsom. Only a short time ago there died an old resident of Epsom who had seen no fewer than eighty Derby finishes. "Pavo," the chief of the sporting department of the Morning Post, saw the first Derby as long ago as 1842, and is said to have seen every subsequent race for the "Blue Ribbon" for more than fifty years. James Weatherby surpassed even this record, and after seeing The Colonel and Cadland run their memorable dead heat in 1828 he was on the spot to cheer every subsequent Derby winner, including Lord Rosebery's Ladas in 1894, sixty-six years later. The notorious Duke of Queensberry —"Old Q."—saw Diomed win the first Derby in 1780, and did not miss a single race until his death, thirty years later, while Lord Palmerston is said to have spent Derby Day at Epsom at least half a hundred times. Both the Derby and the Oaks owe their names to that Earl of Derby who kept a pack of staghounds near Epsom during the last quarter of the hunting box called the Oaks. Fifty years later a spiteful description of the Oaks and its pockeys was recorded in the diary of Charles Greville. In the report of the first Derby run tne names of five starters and of all the riders are missing, and there was no betting quotation. As the earliest known bookmaker, Vauxhall Clarke, was hanged, not for welshing, but for highway robbery, betting on the race course could not at that period have been a particularly profitable profession. Jockeys did not then possess their present princely salaries, but with a fee of a guinea were more richly rewarded than those of King James I., who were regaled by our British Solomon with long speeches delivered half in Latin and half in Caledonian.

Grant and Religion.

Grant's respect for religion was quite consistent with his high moral attributes. It has been most truly said of him that he was never profane or vulgar. His friends and intimates can bear ample testimony to this commendable part of his private character. He had promised his mother never to utter an oath and had faithfully kept his word. He could be emphatic enough in his conversation, his orders and his writing to make oaths of any kind entirely unnecessary. No one who knew the man would venture a questionable story in his presence. On one occasion after a dinner a guest in venturing an anesdote asked in a furtive way if any ladies were within hearing. The general, then president of the United States, simply replied, "No, but there are some gentlemen present," and showed his readiness to leave the room.—Dr. Shrady in Century.

Saved by Premonition of Danger.

Feeling a premonition that danger was threatening his parents, Jacob Fellman left Providence Square, Montgomery county, Pa., where he had been working. He walked six miles to Norristown, boarded a train and reached his parents' home, at 1533 Germantown avenue, just in time to save them from being burned to death. As he entered the house he heard an explosion, and, running upstairs, found his mother's room ablaze.

A lamp had exploded, and the burning oil spread the flames rapidly. Fellman carried his two sisters, Yetta and Molly, down stairs, while his mother took her five-months-old baby. Then Fellman turned in an alarm.

Pitts Old College.

Pembroke college, Cambridge, was founded in the fourteenth century by the widow of 9ymer de Valence, earl of Pembroke. Few foundations in England have been so closely connected with the revival of learning and the reformation or have produced so many distinguished alumni from a small society. Edmund Spenser published promising poems when an undergraduate here, and Gray migrated to Pembroke from rowdy Peterhouse. William Pitt when at Pembroke associated chiffy with the dons, from whom he is alleged to have learned that partiality for port wine which enabled him to "see two speakers," but shortened his existence.—Westminster Gazette.

"Pa" Gets His.

A school teacher in an adjoining town received the following epistle from the mother of one of her pupils: "Dear Miss: You write me about whipping Johnnie. I hereby give you permission to beet him up at any time it is necessary to learn him his lessons. He is just like his father—you have to learn him with a club. Pound nolege into him. I wante him to get it, and don't pay any attention to what his father says. I'll handle him."—Buck's Co. Gazette.

Toward the Simple Life.

I am strongly of opinion that the next great movement in the world of spiritual and moral reform will be the gospel of the simple life. We seem in some respects to have reached the stage in our habits and morals which was rached by Rome before the final decadence that led to the destruction of the mighty empire which she had created al lover the then known world.—T. P. O'Connor, in T. P.'s Weekly.

CHAPTER VIII.

Shortly before six o'clock—dinner in the palace was rarely served until half after eight—the Honorable Betty sat down to her writing desk in her boudoir, which opened directly into that belonging to the princess, to write a few letters home. A dinner was to be given to the state officials that night, and she knew from experience that after that solemn event was concluded it would be too late for the departing mails. She seemed to have no difficulty in composing her thoughts and transferring them to paper. There were times when she would lean back, nibble the end of her pen and smile in a dreamy, retrospective fashion. No doubt her thoughts were pleasant and agreeable.

She had completed addressing three envelopes, when she heard the door leading into the princess' boudoir open and close. She turned to behold the princess herself.

"Why, Gretchen, where are you going?"—noting the gray walking-dress, the gray hat, the sensible square-toed shoes.

"I am going to visit a sick nurse," replied her highness, avoiding the other's eye.

"But shall you have time to dress for dinner?"

"That depends. Besides, the official dinners are a great bore." Her highness came forward, caught the dark head of the English girl between her gloved hands, pressed it against her heart, bent and kissed it. "What a lovely girl you are, Betty! always unruffled, always even-tempered. You will grow old very gracefully."

"I hope so; but I do not want to grow old at all. Can't I go with you?"—eagerly.

"Impossible; etiquette demands your presence here to-night. If I am late my rank and my errand will be my excuse. What jolly times we used to have in that quaint old boarding school in St. John's Wood! Do you remember how we went to your noble father's country place one Christmas? I went incognita. There was a children's party, and two boys had a fisticuff over you. Nobody noticed me those days. I was happy then." The princess frowned. It might have been the sign of repression of tears. Betty, with her head against the other's bosom, could not see. "I shall be lonely without you; for you can not stay on here forever. If you could, it would be different. I shall miss you. Somehow you possess the faculty of calming me. I am so easily stirred into a passion; my temper is so surface-wise. Some day, however, I shall come to England and spend a whole month with you. Will not that be fine?"

"How melancholy your voice is!" cried Betty, trying without avail to remove her highness' hands.

"No, no; I want to hold you just so. Perhaps I am sentimental to-night. I have all the moods, agreeable and disagreeable. . . . Do you love anybody?"

"Love anybody? What do you mean?"—rising in spite of the protesting hands. "Do I look as if I were in love with anybody?"

They searched each other's eyes.

"Oh, you islanders! Nobody can fathom what is going on in your hearts. You never make any mistakes; you always seem to know which paths to pursue; you are always right, always, always. I'd like to see you commit a folly, Betty; it's a wicked wish, I know, but I honestly wish it. There is certainly more Spanish blood in my veins than German. I am always making mistakes; I never know which path is the right one; I am always wrong. Do you believe it possible for a woman of birth and breeding to fall in love with a man whom she has known only three days?"

"Three days! Are you crazy, Hildegarde?"

"Call me Gretchen!" imperiously.

"Gretchen, what has come over you?"

"I asked you a question."

"Well,"—a bit of color stealing into her cheeks,—"it is possible, but very foolish. One ought to know something of a man's character," went on Betty, "before permitting sentiment to enter into one's thoughts."

"That is my opinion, wise little white owl." Her highness took her friend in her arms and kissed her, held her at arm's length, drew her to her heart and again kissed her. It was like a farewell. Then she let her go. "If there is anything you need, make yourself at home with my cases." And her highness was gone.

Betty gazed at the door through which dear Gretchen had passed, gazed thoughtfully and anxiously.

"How oddly she acted! I wonder—" She made as though to run to the door, but stopped, as if ashamed of the doubt which flashed into her mind and out again.

The little clock on the mantel chimed, forth the seventh hour, and she rang for her maid. It was time that she began dressing.

(Thus, for the present, I shall leave her. There are several reasons why my imagination should take this step; for, what should I know of a woman's toilet, save in the general mysterious results? However, I feel at liberty to steal into the duke's dressing-room. Here, while I am not positive what happened, at least I can easily bring my imagination to bear upon the picture.)

The duke was rather pleased with himself. He liked to put on his state uniform, with its blue-gray frock, the white doeskin trousers which strapped under the patent-leather boots, the gold braid, the silver saber and the little rope of medals strung across his full, broad breast. It was thus he created awe; it was thus he became truly the sovereign, urbane and majestic.

His valet was buckling on the saber belt, when there came a respectful tap on the door.

"Enter," said the duke, frowning. One can not assert any particular degree of dignity with a valet at one's side.

But it was only a corridor attendant who entered. He approached the duke's valet and presented a letter.

"For his serene highness." He bowed and backed out, closing the door gently.

At once the valet bowed also and extended the letter to his master. Formality is a fine thing in a palace.

"Ah, a letter," mused the duke, profoundly innocent of the viper which was about to sting him. "My glasses, Gustav; my eye-glasses!"

The valet hurried to the dresser and returned with the duke's state eye-glasses. These the duke perched deliberately upon the end of his noble nose. He opened the letter and read its contents. The valet, watching him slyly, saw him grow pale, then red, and finally purple,—wrath has its rainbow. His hands shook, the glasses slipped from his palpitating nose. And I grieve to relate that his serene highness swore something marvelous to hear.

"Damnation!" he said, or some such word. "The little fool!" Then, suddenly remembering his dignity and the phrase that no man is a hero to his valet, he pointed to his glasses, at the same time returning the letter to its envelope, this letter which had caused this momentary perturbation. "Call the minister of police. You will find him in the smoking-room off the conservatory. Make all haste!"

The valet flew out of the door, while the duke began pacing up and down the room, muttering and growling, and balling his fists, and jingling his shining medals. He kicked over an inoffensive hassock and his favorite hound, and I don't know how many long-winded German oaths he let go. (It's a mighty hard language to swear in, especially when a man's under high pressure.)

"The silly little fool! And on a night like this! Curse it! This is what comes of mixing Spanish blood with German, of letting her aunt's wishes overrule mine in the matter of education. But she shall be brought back, even if I have to ask the assistance of every sovereign in Europe. This is the end. And I had planned such a pleasant evening at cards!" The duke was not wholly unselfish.

In less than ten minutes' time the valet returned with the minister of police. The duke immediately dismissed the valet.

"Your serene highness sent for me?" asked the minister, shaking in his boots. There had been four ministers of police in three years.

"Yes. Read this."

The minister took the letter. He read it with bulging eyes. "Good heavens, it must be one of her highness' jokes!"

"It will be a sorry joke for you if she crosses any of the frontiers."

"But—"

"But!" roared the duke. "Don't you dare bring up that word scandal! Seek her. Turn everybody out,—the army, the police, everybody. When you locate her, telegraph, and have a special engine awaiting me at the station. And if you play a poor game of cards to-night I'll take away your portfolio. Remember, if she passes the frontier, off goes your official head!"

"And the fellow, who is he?"

"The good Lord only knows! That girl! . . . Witness these gray hairs. Put the rascal in irons; I'll attend to his case when I arrive. . . . Where is Steinbock?"

"He was arrested this morning in Berlin; I have already applied for his extradition."

"Good! Now, be off with you! Leave no stone unturned. The expense is nothing; I will gladly pay it out of my private purse."

"I'll find her," said the minister grimly. His portfolio hung in the balance.

All at once the duke struck his hands together jubilantly.

"What is it?" asked the minister. "A clew?"

"Nothing, nothing! Be gone; you are wasting time."

The minister of police dashed out of the room as if pursued by a thousand devils. He knew the duke's mood; it was not one to cross or irritate. No sooner was he gone than the duke left his apartments and sought those of his niece. It might be a joke; it would do no harm to find out positively. But the beautiful suite was empty; even her highness' maid was gone. He then knocked on the door which led into Betty's boudoir, not very gently either.

"Open!" he bellowed.

"Who is it?" demanded a maid's frightened voice.

"The duke! Open instantly!"

"It is quite impossible," said another voice from within. It was calm and firm. "I am dressing."

"I must see you this instant. Open or I shall force the door!"

"Is your serene highness mad?"

"Will you open this door?"

"You command it?"

"A hundred times, yes!"

"Since you command it." The voice was no longer calm; it was sharp and angry.

The wait seemed an hour to his serene highness, serene no longer. At length the bolt slipped, and the irate duke shouldered his way in. The tableau which met his gaze embarrassed him for a space. He was even ashamed! The Honorable Betty stood behind a tall-backed chair, an opera cloak thrown hastily over her bare shoulders. Her hair was partly down. A beautiful woman in a rage is a fascinating sight. The duke stared at her irresolutely.

"Will your highness explain this extraordinary intrusion?" she demanded. "You have literally forced your way into my room while I am dressing. It is utterly outside my understanding."

"I am old enough to be your father."

"That is the weakest excuse you could give me. At your age one's blood ought to be cooled to a certain discretion. My father, if he had had anything important to say, would have remained on the other side of the door. I am not deaf. Your explanation is in order."

CLINTON AVENUE TRIUMPHS

In the Morning They Defeat Newark Stars and in Afternoon Y. M. C. A.

RANDOLPH'S GREAT PITCHING.

Only Four Hits Made Off Clinton Avenue's Man—Some Splendid Team Work.

The Clinton Avenues added two more scalps to their string on Saturday, when they defeated the Newark Stars in the morning on Crescent Oval by a score of 5 to 0, and in the afternoon at the same place defeated the Y. M. C. A. by a score of 7 to 1. Errors by Barnes prevented Manager Dorflinger's aggregation from scoring two shutouts. The remarkable feature was that Clifford Randolph pitched both games and allowed but four hits, one in the morning and three in the afternoon.

In the morning Randolph was not compelled to extend himself although he twirled a fine game. In the afternoon he held his opponents safe at all times and was supported in great style by O'Loughlin behind the bat, as well as every other member of the team. The Clinton Avenues gave a great exhibition of team work in both contests, the infield being especially good. They played with snap and energy and it was like a stonewall, seldom did a ball get out of reach. Burgess oppposed the home team in the morning and held the club to three hits. But for two costly errors, the score would have been closer.

The afternoon contest was witnessed by a large crowd. Inability to hit Randolph was responsible for the defeat of the association nine. Three singles were all that they could get and it was not until the ninth inning that they scored their single tally. Scott, who had been held in reserve for this game, was touched for ten hits, but the fact that the team did not play well together resulted in poor support. Some of the men were out of position and played to a advantage. Charles Loizeaux caught well in place of Ralph Schoonmaker, who because of an injured hand had to go in the outfield. Another change was necessary at short, Dodge filling that position, in the absence of the regular man. The scores of the two games follow:

MONO F. C. DEFEATS EAST MILLSTONE IN CLOSE GAME.

The Mono Field Club defeated East Millstone in a well-played game at the latter place, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 6 to 5. The Plainfielders scored three runs in the fourth inning through a combination of hits and a wild throw, and in the sixth inning the home team tied the score. In the next inning they added two more tallies, giving them the lead 5 to 3, but after that George Conover, pitching for the Monos tightened up and prevented further scoring, while the Monos got one run in the eighth and two more in the ninth. Each team had one bad inning, but outside of that the contest was close and exciting. The lineup and score by innings:

GODDARD AND WILDEY WIN HUNT CLUB TITLE

F. W. Goddard and W. H. Wildey won the Watchung Hunt Club tennis tournament Saturday afternoon at the new Hunt Club courts, defeating Wylie Brown and J. R. Greason after four sets. The scores were 6-0, 4-6 and 6-2. Eight pairs were entered in the match play, and the winners received copper cups as title holders, awarded by the Hunt Club. A good sized gallery witnessed the matches, which were but slightly marred by the showers and heavy courts. The tournament is the first to be played at the new club courts, which were in excellent condition for the matches.

In the first round Wylie Brown and J. R. Greason defeated W. De L. R. Anderson and R. H. Cox; M. J. Dumont and G. S. Ring defeated W. L. Righter and H. E. Butler; F. W. Goddard and W. H. Wiley defeated B. S. Lachlan and Arthur Otterson; and H. B. Lovell and D. Runkle won from G. B. Fletcher and J. H. Mellick by default. In the second round Brown and Greason disposed of Lovell and Runkle in straight sets, and Goddard and Wildey won handily from Dumont and Ring. The finals between Goddard and Wildey and Brown and Greason were the best tennis of the day.

Scores of society people spent the afternoon at the clubhouse, where luncheon and dinner were served. In the evening there was a informal danc, with about about seventy-five couples on the floor.

2,000 WITNESS THE RACES

"Baron Whips" Twice Lowers the Records at the Plainfield Driving Park.

PURSES AND CUPS AS PRIZES.

Six Events and All Are Exciting—Three Cups and $450 for the Winners.

The matinee race meet held at the Plainfield Driving Park, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club, was the most successful in the history of the organization. About two thousand people were present to witness the fine sport, and the six events on the card proved strong attractions.

The big feature of the afternoon was the performance of A. S. Case's "Baron Whips," who twice lowered the best record of the track, 2:18¼, by going the first heat in 2:17 and the third in 2:16½, in the free-for-all race. It is believed that the horse could have done still better. Mr. Case handled the reins over his entry in faultless style and it was a pretty race throughout.

Another feature was the steeplechase for the "Fair Acres Cup." This was won by "Maid-of-All-Work," owned by Chris. Comins, who covered the three miles in seven minutes and twenty-four seconds. There was a large entry list in the race, including Singleton Van Schoick's "Adjutor," C. E. S. Bellows' "Mechanic," Leonce Fuller's "Golden Arms" and Louis Batjer's "Mysterous." They comprised some of the entries from the Watchung Hunt Club.

The two running races, for the "Iroquois cup," and the "Independence Day cup," were also full of interest. In the first running race the half-mile course was covered in 53¼ seconds by H. A. Bourne's "Bessie Fullem," the winner, and in the second running race, one mile, the time was 1.50¾, won by William Cross' "Ida G."

An added attraction was the concert by the Liberty Band, of this city. Popular selections were rendered throughout the afternoon, enlivening the occasion.

The judges of the races were L. A. Bellis, of Somerville; W. H. Grierson, of Cranford, and Dr. Fred Egel, of Westfield. E. B. Allen, of Flemington, was starter, and the timers were Dr. Butler, of Westfield, and D. C. Smalley, of this city. The summaries:

HARD-FOUGHT MATCHES IN PARK CLUB TENNIS.

Monroe H. Long and Edwin Daniel, Second, and Vaughn McGee and Will Barlow won their way to the final round in the Independence Day tennis tournament at the Park Club Saturday. The matches were played at the club courts, which were in fair condition, despite the showers. A good sized gallery witnessed the tennis, and several of the matches were closely contested. The finals will be played Saturday, when the winning pair will receive cups awarded by the tennis committee of the club. Fourteen teams were entered.

Many club members dined at the club in the evening, and there was an elaborate display of fireworks in connection with an informal dance in the evening.

INDEPENDENCE DAY AT PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB

Iudependence Day was a busy one at the Plainfield Country Club, where numerous events on the golf course and social functions at the clubhouse attracted a large number of members and friends. The clubhouse was attractivly decorated for the occasion and during the afternoon there was a tea, while in the evening a dinner-dance brought together a large assemblage of people.

The chief attraction on the course was the concluding rounds of play for the club championship, first and second eights. In the first eight, W. Lester Glenney won the high honor by defeating Frank O. Reinhart in the finals after a hard match, by 1 up in 20 holes. The players were evenly matched and the competition was exceedingly close and interesting from start to finish. In the second eight, Percy H. Stewart won out, defeating W. D. Riggs, by 5 up and 4 to play.

The result of the championshrip play follows:

Semi-final round; first eight—Frank O. Reinhart defeated H. D. Hibbard, by 3 up and 2 to play; W. Lester Glenney defeated W. T. Glenney, by 2 up and 1 to play. Finals—W. Lester Glenney defeated Frank O. Reinhart, by 1 up in 20 holes.

Semi-final round; second eight—Percy H. Stewart beat L. A. Chase, by 5 up and 4 to play; W. D. Riggs defeated J. E. Erickson, by 6 up and 5 to play. Finals—Percy H. Stewart defeated W. D. Riggs, by 5 up and 4 to play.

Another attraction was the competition for the Independence Day cup, with prizes for the best net and best gross scores in Classes A and B. There was a large entry list and the scores were generally low. The best cards returned follow:

Class A—W. T. Glenney, 73, 9-64; S. H. Patterson, 90, 17-73; R. S. Rowland, 81, 7-74; Frank O. Reinhart, 79, 4-75; E. T. Willson, 90, 14-76; Arthur Murphy, 87, 10-77; C. B. Morgan, 84, 7-77; H. D. Hibbard, 84, 7-77; A. L. Wills, 93, 9-84.

Mrs. R. G. Morse won the clock golf competition for women with a score of 25. The scores:

Mrs. R. G. Morse, 25; Mrs. A. W. Opp, 26; Miss Maud Van Boskerck, 30; Miss L. E. Moore, 33.

HOLIDAY GOLF EVENTS ON PARK GOLF COURSE

Numerous golfing events attracted a large holiday crowd to the Park Golf Club on Saturday and the occasion was one of the most successful in the history of the club. During the afternoon the women members and their friends enjoyed a delightful tea and reception at the clubhouse.

The events on the course included competition for the President's Golf Club, Holiday cups, a bogey handicap and an approaching and putting contest. In the competition for the several cups, Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux won first honors with a net score of 81, W. V. Byard was second and W. C. McNaughton third. These scores were returned:

Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 104, 23-81; W. V. Byard, 97, 14-83; W. C. McNaughton, 95, 7-88; C. F. Corning, 94, 5-89; Charles B. Morse, 101, 12-89; J. B. Betts, 113, 23-90; A. W. Kenworthy, 103, 11-92; W. R. Faber, 100, 6-94; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 100, 6-94.

In the bogey handicap competition there was a tie between Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, both being two down to bogey. The tie will be played off next Saturday.

Still another event of interest was the approaching and putting contest, which was won by Miss Harriet Shreve and W. R. Faber with a score of 8. Other leading scores follow:

Miss E. Runyon and C. B. Morse, 10; Mrs. F. W. Jones and C. F. Corning, 10; Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux and W. V. Byard, 10; Miss B. Ten Eyck and W. C. McNaughton, 10; Miss G. Ten Eyck and J. B. Betts, 11.

Each Team Wins a Game.

The Harrison A. C. and the Plainfield A. C., played two games on Saturday. In the morning the Plainfield A. C. defeated its opponents by a score of 6 to 0 and in the afternoon Harrison A. C. won by a score of 16 to 6.

South Plainfield Wins.

The South Plainfield Baseball Club defeated the Highland A. C., seconds, Saturday, by a score of 17 to 7, giving South Plainfield a total of four victories and five defeats for the season.

Somerville Defeats Cranford.

The West Ends, of Somerville, took revenge on Cranford, Saturday, by defeating their rivals by a score of 7 to 6 in a well-played contest at Somerville.

Miss Reugnette Marsh and Master Harold Marsh, of "The Maples," the borough, and their cousin, Miss Garlinghouse, are spending the month of July at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Before they return they will visit many interesting and historical points, including Glens Falls, Lake George and Lake Champlain.

EXCISE COMMISSION BUSY

Chairman Fisk Shows His Familiarity with Conditions in Hudson County.

MANY WITNESSES EXAMINED.

Probe Started Yesterday and Was Continued Today—Making Much Headway Already.

The committee appointed by Governor Fort to inquire into the excise question in New Jersey got down to business in Jersey City yesterday. The commissioners present were Charles J. Fisk, Mayor of this city, who is chairman; Peter Backes, T. Frank Appleby, George G. Smith, Caleb Van H. Whitbeck and John Howe, and John P. Dengler, secretary of the commission. Mr. Backes and Mayor Fisk did most of the questioning, and when adjournment was had, at 6 o'clock, a mass of interesting testimony had been unearthed, the greater part of which tended to show that the enforcement of the Bishops' law was more or less of a joke.

It was also discovered that the Mayor and Council of the Borough of East Newark granted all excise licenses, when the power to grant these licenses was vested in a judge of the Common Pleas only; that of the two inspectors employed by the Jersey City Excise Board one was a brewery collector and the other a former saloonkeeper, and that it required 1,048 salons to assuage the thirst of the 232,000 inhabitants of the county—an average of one to every 222 persons, men, women and children included.

The weather was warm, and the commissioners sat in their shirtsleeves and invited every one else to do the same. In the course of the day Mayor Fisk let it be known that he had been doing a little investigating himself the last two Sundays, and never had the least difficulty in entering saloons and getting anything that he ordered. Another important fact brought out was that nearly two-thirds of the saloons in Jersey City were owned by brewers.

When Mortimer J. Gleason, president of the Jersey City Police Board, took the stand, he admitted that the Bishops' law was enforced in the city, but afterward said he believed saloons were open on Sunday. When Mayor Fisk asked him if saloons were not closed up tight from January 1 to April 1, after which time they began to loosen up, he said he didn't know that there was any loosening up. Mr. Fisk then picked out June 29 as an instance, and gave the addresses of some fifty saloons, which he had no trouble in entering, and in which were from two to fifteen men, drinking and playing cards. Mr. Gleason said it puzzled him, as the police had orders to enforce the law.

Mr. Fisk then quoted a conversation with Mayor Wittpenn, in which the latter told Mr. Fisk that he had ordered the law enforced, but that some one higher up seemed to have more influence with the Police Board. This Mr. Gleason vigorously denied.

"Isn't it true," asked Mr. Fisk, "that when the chief of police spoke of closing saloons in Sunday he was told to mind his own business"

Mr. Gleason denied this. Mayor Fisk said that Chief Monahan had told him that with the Mayor and Police Board back of him he could close every place in the city. Only one conviction out of a hundred and fifty arrests had been secured.

Thomas J. Carey, borough clerk of East Newark, said the Mayor and Common Council grant licenses. There are twenty-four hundred persons in this borough and sixteen saloons, most of which are owned by one brewery. Thomas J. Neville, chief of police of East Newark, was positive no one could get a drink in his town on Sunday.

Mayor Cornelius A. McGlennon, of East Newark, denied any knowledge of a saloonkeeper who, when he couldn't get a license from him, applied to Judge Blair, but was afterward induced to withdraw this application, and had his license granted by the local authorities.

When Mr. Backes asked him if he knew the mayor and council had no power to grant licenses he would not answer, and Mr. Backes told him that every license in his borough was void, as only a Common Pleas judge had power to grant licenses in East Newark. Philip McGlennon also said that the saloons in the neighboring town of Harrison were also closed on Sunday, and Mayor Fisk remarked that he was glad to find a place in New Jersey that was so good. "If you hear of anything suspicious just let me know," said Mr. Fisk."

William Collier, chairman of the license committee of the Bayonne Common Council, said there were 167 saloons in this city, one to every two hundred and fifty inhabitants.

POLICE AGAIN ARREST WHEEL THIEF SUSPECTS

Following what seemed to be an epidemic of bicycle stealing and the arrest of several offenders, the local police are again after the purloiners of a number of machines and have two men in custody. On Sunday they picked up Lewis Taplor, colored, who it is believed has been making a practice of stealing wheels and selling them in the West End. He has admitted the theft of one machine but has steadfastly refused to say anything further despite circumstantial evidence that has been produced. He was arraigned in the city court yesterday and remanded until today in the belief that he would make a confession but he continued to remain silent. This morning he was again remanded and he will be held for an indefinite period.

The other suspect is Marcus Caravante, an Italian, who was arrested for having in his possession a high-grade wheel belonging to Jasper Cadmus, the Watchung avenue druggist, stolen from in front of his place of business a few nights ago. Caravante denied taking the machine and asserted that he had bought it from a man whose name he did not know. He was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning and held in $200 bail for trial next Tuesday. The amount was furnished.

LOCAL CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE CLEVELAND MEMORIAL

In conjunction with twenty other dailies in New Jersey, The Daily Press is raising funds for the proposed monument to be erected in this State to the memory of Grover Cleveland, the only man from New Jersey who ever became President of the United States. There is absolutely no political significance to the undertaking; the idea being to appropriately honor a man who twice served as Chief Magistrate of this Nation and who was a native of the State.

Already $92 has been raised in this city. And the mite boxes scattered about the business section contain much that will be recorded in the near future. Today, Councilman Herbert Buxton sent a dollar bill for what he declared to be "a most worthy cause." Other city officials, no doubt, will make donations. Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., which contributed five dollars yesterday, will no doubt be followed by other fraternal organizations.

PLAINFIELDERS GUESTS AT GRANDIN MERE ON FOURTH.

After having spent a perfectly enjoyable time at Grandin Mere, Hamden, Hunterdon county, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter Lillian returned home last night. Following an annual custom they were the guests of that delightful hostess, Mrs. J. F. Grandin. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., who also take part in this yearly outing were unable to attend the festivities this year because of the fact that they were celebrating the thirty-sixth anniversary of their wedding.

The weather was delightful and the charming scenery and the splendid hospitality of Mrs. Grandin were thoroughly enjoyed. After a drive through the picturesque country on the Fourth, a bounteous dinner, which included some fine cherry pie and pudding, was served in old Hunterdon's famous way. The dining room was largely decorated with the national colors. Over the doorway was the word "Welcome." In the evening there was a big display of fireworks, the whole village enjoying the patriotic demonstration.

The other guests included Mrs. F. J. Dalrymple and daughter, Miss Laura Dalrymple, of Morristown, and Edward Hoffman, of Annandale, and the latter's son, Harry Hoffman, of New York.

Matinee Races July 18.

Plans for matinee races to be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park under the auspices of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Association Saturday, July 18, were discussed at the meeting of the association held at the Hotel Iroquois last night. There will be several class events and a running race.

SEWER EXTENSION BIDS

Belleville Man Offers Best Terms for Construction of a Sanitary Improvement.

REFERRED TO A COMMITTEE.

Ordinance For Macadamizing Certain Streets Passed On Third Reading—Only One Coal Bid.

Six bids were received at the July meeting of the Common Council, last night, for the proposed sanitary sewer extensions on Watchung avenue, near the raceway and on Lake street, and J. H. Sammiss, of Belleville, figures, $692.90, were the lowest for the work. No action was taken in awarding the contract at the time, the street committee deciding to lay it over for a week. The specifications call for 710 feet of eight inch vitrified pipe and three lengths of cast iron pipe over the raceway on Watchung avenue. The bids were as follows:

J. H. Sammiss, Belleville, $692.-90; Michael Garafano, Summit, $847.40; Warren B. Travell, Plainfield, $894.40; Atlas Construction and Engineering Company, Reading, Pa., $948.56; Petro Luciano, White Plains, N. Y., $1,027; Mapleton Engineering and Construction Company, Brooklyn-Ridgewood, $1,312.-30.

All bids were referred to the street and sewer committee and with the assistance of City Engineer A. J. Gavett the totals were determined. No report was presented at the meeting of the Council.

A public hearing was granted on the proposed ordinance which authorizes the macadamizing of certain streets, but no one appeared to speak for or against the ordinance and the Council adopted it on third reading.

Only one bid was received for furnishing the city with one hundred tons of coal for the fire department, that one being from the Consumers' Coal Company, which offered to supply the required number of tons of chestnut and stove size at $5.68 per ton. It was referred to the fire and building committee with power. Mr. Buxton asked the city clerk if he did not have another bid, adding that he had been informed by a dealer early in the evening that he had sent one to the office. Mr. MacMurray explained that he had not received the bid.

COUNCILMEN QUIBBLE OVER NETHERWOOD FIRE HOUSE

The proposition to build a firehouse in the Netherwood district of the city, was revived at the July meeting of the Common Council, last night, by Mr. Taylor, who said that if anything is to be done this year, prompt action is necessary. He believed that the question should be decided one way or the other at the earliest possible moment. This brought forth a statement from Mr. Hibbard that it is now in order to take up the matter and dispose of it. Mr. Buxton being desirous of hastening the improvement, offered a motion to the effect that it is the sense of the Common Council that the firehouse be built this year.

This motion brought a prompt reply from Mr. Hibbard, who protested against the Council putting itself on record at this time. He asked that the motion be withdrawn.

"We have been working for this fire-house for the past ten years," said Mr. Gloak, "and I think it is time something was done. We are going to have that improvement in the East End of the city." Mr. Buxton finally agreed to withdraw his motion upon the understanding that the Council take the question up soon and dispose of it one way or the other.

Who Has a Horse to Give Away?

Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayres is anxious to obtain a horse for use on the city poor farm and anyone having an animal which they would like to give to the poor department for this purpose can communicate with him. No doubt there is some one in Plainfield or vicinity who has a horse suitable for light farming and would rather give it to the city than to some one who might not take as good care of him.

Borough Health Board's Meeting.

Routine business was disposed of in short order at the monthly meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health held last night. Several complaints, arising from the recent heat wave, were made about the handling of garbage and the condition of dumps, but no action was taken, because the Board is already on a campaign against just such conditions and it is believed that they will soon be remedied.

DEMOCRATS' CONVENTION

Resolutions on Grover Cleveland's Death Mark Opening Day at Denver.

"BOB" DAVIS IS TAKEN ILL.

Everything Is Bryan—Martine On the Spot—Little Is Doing On the First Day.

Denver, Col., July 7.—As chairman of the National Committee, Thomas Taggart, called the Bryan Democracy to order at noon today. It was the Presidential convention of the party of Thomas Jefferson that convened but a survey of the vast hall showed that the radical, socialistic party had usurped the time honored name of Democracy.

After a prayer offered by Archbishop J. J. Keene, of Denver, announcement of temporary officers was made. Theodore N. Bell, of California, as temporary chairman, made an address.

Following the call of the roll by States, and the naming of members of the committees, resolutions deploring the death of that distinguished statesman, Grover Cleveland, were presented. They were read by former Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, the party's standard bearer in the last Presidential campaign. Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey, was among the able champions of the resolutions.

Everywhere Radicalism and Bryanism, synonymous terms for the spirit pervading the Democracy, are found rampant. All night long the corridors of the hotels and the streets rang with cheers for the man from Nebraska. This morning it is clear that little is needed to make the candidacies of Gray and Johnson so ridiculous that the supporters of these two sterling Democrats will not dare present their names.

Through it all runs the irresistible drift of the entire party toward the things for which Bryan stands.

Robert Davis, the boss of Hudson county, New Jersey, was taken ill yesterday and was removed to a local hospital. His condition is not serious. James E. Martine, who delivered fifty-three speeches en route, is making more noise individually than many a State delegation collectively for the "Peerless Leader."

The New Jersey delegation to the National Democratic convention has voted to enforce the unit rule, and to cast the solid vote for Judge Geo. Gray, of Delaware, for President. This is in line with the bitter fight that former Senator James Smith, Jr., has engaged in, with the object of lining up the anti-Bryan forces in a desperate effort to defeat the Nebraskan. The caucus had a little squabble at its opening, for the Bryan men questioned its regularity without formal notice. They were overruled, and the caucus open with Judge Howard Carrow in the chair. Its first action was to elect former Mayor Katzenbach, of Trenton, chairman of the delegation. Mr. Katzenbach wished this honor to go to Mr. Smith, but he was forced into the position.

Congressman J. A. Hamill, of Hudson, was elected vice-chairman, and Charles F. Herr, secretary.

Committee elections were made as follows: Resolutions, former Senator Smith; permanent organization, John R. Hardin; rules, John Hinchliffe; to notify nominee for president, Robert Davis; to notify nominee for vice-president, Clarence W. Cole.

Former Judge Howard Carrow, of Camden, was chosen national committeeman by acclamation, but refused the honor. Senator Smith urged him to accept, but he was firm. James R. Nugent was next proposed, bue he also refused. State Chairman Robert Hudspeth, of Hudson, was then proposed and elected.

On motion of James R. Nugent the delegation voted to adopt the unit rule, and that the chairman should cast the whole New Jersey vote for Judge Gray for President. The Bryan men fought hard, but unavailingly against this.

A dispatch from Mr. Martine to The Daily Press today stated that "William Jennings Bryan is sure to win." The "farmer-orator" forgot to qualify his assertion by stating that he meant the nomination only.

Bicyclist Run Down by Auto.

Harold Dunham, an errand boy employed at the Women's Exchange, was run down by an automobile as he was riding a bicycle on East Front street, opposite Fairchild's alley, yesterday afternoon. His wheel was partially wrecked but he escaped serious injury. The autoist kept on after running him down but the boy secured the number of the machine, 4,118. According to the record at Police Headquarters, License No. 4,118 was issued to George W. Holman, of Bayville, N. J.

MAKE SERIOUS CHARGE

Neighbors of Mrs. John Crowley Accuse Her of Cruelty to a Relative's Child.

SUMMONED TO POLICE COURT.

Refuses to Obey a Verbal Notice and Warrant Is to Be Issued Today.

A delegation of indignant women living in the recently opened up section just below the Manganese Safe Works, called at police headquarters, yesterday, and informed Chief Kiely they wished to make complaint against Mrs. John Crowley, of Willever street, for abusing a little girl she has in keeping. The child is the daughter of a deceased relative and according to the indignation committee she is continually subjected to terrible whippings and beatings. Her cries disturb the neighborhood and remonstrances against the practice and appeals for a more humane method of punishment have been met with retorts of "mind your own business."

Chief Kiely took cognizance of the women's charges as some of his officers had previously spoken of the goings-on at the home and a patrolman was sent to order Mrs. Crowley to court. But the summons had no more effect on Mrs. Crowley than the threats and pleadings of the neighbors. The officer returned to headquarters to state that she had announced emphatically that she wouldn't appear before Judge Runyon and that nobody could make her. She also remarked, so the officer said, that the child she is accused of beating belongs to her while at her home and she has a right to punish her if she sees fit.

The powers that be at the Sycamore street station said "H'm," and "Whadda ye think of that?" and "Well, we'll see about that." A formal warrant will be made out for Mrs. Crowley today and the police will see if it is possible for them to have her respond to their summons. The women who made the complaint will also appear and as two of them assert that they saw Mrs. Crowley abuse the child on several occasions it is probable that she will be made to understand why she is wanted.

CONTRACTOR MUST PAY FOR USE OF MACHINERY

Decision in the contract case of the Ransome Concrete Company against C. M. Meeker was given today by Judge Newcorn, of the district court. He decided in favor of the conceern, allowing it $186 and costs. This suit has attracted considerable attention among contractors. The company leased a concrete mixer to Mr. Meeker to be used in connection with the brick pavement contract, and it was Mr. Meeker's contention that the machine was not as represented; that instead of it being a labor-saving device, it was of no practical use. On the other hand the company claimed that the machine was in first-class condition when delivered to Mr. Meeker and capable of doing all that was required of it.

After the case was tried in the district court, Judge Newcorn requested counsel to submit briefs. This was done recently, and the decision followed. W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, represented the complainant company, and Walter L. Hetfield was counsel for Mr. Meeker.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' CAMP WILL BE OPENED THIS WEEK.

Several physicians of the city having appealed to the officers of the City Union of The King's Daughters to open the baby camp on the mountains, the women are getting things in readiness to receive sick babies by the last of the week. This week seven sick infants were reported by physicians and there being no other place to send them efforts are being made to put the camp in shape at the earliest possible moment. The camp will be kept open until September, at least.

This work, as in the past, requires the support of Plainfield people and contributions of money or foodstuffs will be gratefully received at the camp or persons desiring to make such contributions can communicate with the officers of the Union and they will be sent for. The city nurse has been particularly busy this summer, being obliged to make as many as seventeen calls in one day.

—Specials in fruits at Neuman Brothers': Fancy plums, Georgia eaches and California mellons, received fresh every day. Low prices prevail.

DISREGARDED SPEED LAW TO SAVE BROTHER'S LIFE

Disregarding all speed regulations, John McDonough, son of Peter McDonough, of South Plainfield, drove his father's auto to this city yesterday afternoon at a forty-mile-an-hour rate in order to save the life of his two-year-old brother, Augustus.

The little fellow was toddling about the floor at his parents' home when he picked up a pin and placed it in his mouth. It slipped into his throat and struck endways just at the base of the tongue. The child was seized with a violent fit of coughing that brought members of the family to his side and the cause of the trouble was located. Efforts to dislodge the pin proved futile and as the baby was in danger of choking to death, John McDonough thought of the automobile as the quickest means of getting him to a physician. The machine was quickly started up and the run of three miles to the office of Dr. Hughes was made in four minutes. He counted upon his life and death mission as a sufficient warrant to overcome any legal obstacle but fortunately was not molested.

Dr. Hughes immediately set to work with instruments and brought the pin from its position. The child soon recovered from the ordeal and no ill effects are anticipated.

GIANT SLAV LOCKED UP; A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER

The borough police are holding Frank Ryckowski, a 43-year-old Slav, a prisoner as a suspicious character, pending his identification and record from the New York police. The man, who is a "strapping six-footer," was arrested by Borough Marshal Keller early yesterday afternoon upon complaint of Mrs. Max Weinberger, of Prospect place.

Ryckowski went to the Weinberger house and asked for the servant girl employed there. The woman was visibly agitated and badly frightened when she saw the man, but Mrs. Weinberger could not understand the conversation which passed between the two. The man left the house shortly afterwards, but continued to loiter in the vicinity until Mrs. Weinberger informed the police by telephone and had him arrested.

Questioned by Mrs. Weinberger, the servant appeared to have been badly frightened by the appearance of the man. She acknowledged that she knew him, and had "gone with him" in New York city before coming to town. She said he was married and had several children. His entire manner seemed to hint that he might attempt to rob the Weinberger house, it is said.

When Ryckowski was searched previous to his commitment at borough police headquarters, a ten inch file, with a flat blade and sharply pointed end was found carefully wrapped in paper in his pocket. He had a large pen knife, which was also wrapped in paper. Questioned by Chief Marshal Weiss, the prisoner said he lived at 162 East Third street, New York, and was married. He said that he was at present out of a job, his last work being as a stevedore on the Clyde Line. He said he was compelled to give up this work because of rheumatism to the arm and leg.

PAPLILLO WAS "WISE."

He Worked For An Irish Family and Knew What "Swear" Meant.

During a trial in the city court, this morning, in which the participants were Italians, Mateo Paplillo, a sunny son of the Land of Olives and embryonic canned music distributors, was brought forward to testify. As his knowledge of English is limited, Salve Velarde was pressed into service as interpreter and Judge Runyon handed the Bible over to him in preparation for the usual administration of the oath.

"The witness understands that we are swearing him, does he not?" the magistrate asked of the interpreter.

"Oh yes, Mister Judge," Velarde quickly responded as a two by four grin spread over his face. "He knows all about the swear—he used to work for an Irish family."

"Yes, dat's a right," Paplillo chimed in, and then he stepped back three paces in anticipation of receiving the cuss words that he supposed were to be hurled at him.

Vesper Service at Grace M. E.

The half-hour vesper service of the Epworth League for July and August was inaugurated Sunday night at Grace M. E. church. The subject was "Jesus Saviour." These services promise to be popular during the summer.

ICE AND WEATHER SOAR

No Change Likely Here, But Rate Will Rise in Other Parts of Jersey.

NEW YORK HAS A FAMINE.

Million of Tons Less In New York Owing to Action of Gotham's Board of Health.

Fortunately, the ice condition in Plainfield and North Plainfield is such that there is likely to be no change in the retail price this summer. Reports were received today of the intended action of dealers in other New Jersey cities and towns to jump the retail price, in fact, those in Newark did increase the price yesterday from forty to fifty cents a hundred.

The retail price here is fifty cents a hundred, and from inquiry made today at the office of McDonough Brothers, it was learned that no change is anticipated. One of the firm stated that the supply for Plainfield and North Plainfield is harvested entirely from ponds of the Natural Ice and Cold Storage Company at Watchung, and last winter a sufficient crop was gathered to last all summer. The company does not seek any outside market and anyway to not in a position with its supply to make a bid for other territory.

The ice condition in other parts of the State, however, is likely to be seriously affected within the next few weeks, because of the action of the State Board of Health of New York in condemning for table use the ice harvested on the Hudson river. It can be used for storage purposes, but not in the case of liquid refreshment. In consequence the New York dealers are looking outside for another supply. It is said that the action of the New York State authorities has reduced the quantity of available ice by a million tons, and that efforts are now being male to get a supply from Lake Hopatcong and Bear Creek, Pa. This is sure to affect the ice market to a considerable extent.

It was said today that the dealers in Elizabeth contemplate raising the retail price of ice in that city at least ten cents a hundred, and other cities are reported to be contemplating similar action.

COMPLAINANT ACCUSED OF CONDUCTING A "SPEAK EASY."

Charged with assault by Frank Pape, principal tenant in the "bee hive," the old Durlach apartment on Watchung avenue, Mateo Paplillo was arraigned in the city court this morning. The complaint was the outcome of a quarrel which the two men had on the front porch of Pape's home Sunday and during which Pape got a good-sized poke on the nose.

When Papillo was brought forward to testify he made a cross complaint against Pape to the effect that he has been conducting a "speak easy" at the "bee hive" and that the sale of beer there is back of all the fights that have taken place within it during the past six months. Papillo was backed up in his statement by Salve Valarde and several other Italians who were in court. Pape denied the charges and asserted that they were the outcome of ill-feeling that has existed between himself and Velarde.

Judge Runyon dismissed the charge against Paplillo and announced that he would remand Pape in the custody of the police while they investigate the "speak easy" matter.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD PAYS BIG BUDGET OF BILLS.

Bills amounting to about $10,000 were ordered paid at the July meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education, held at the city High School last night, and routine business was disposed of with great despatch. The bills included the contract for school coal, amounting to $3,200, and the usual lot of supplies and stationary for next year.

The custodian's report showed a balance of $7,594.17 from the month of June and the tax collector reported $1,149.64 received from taxes. The absentees were Messrs. Tyler and Abbott.

Valedictorian Received.

The communion service at Grace M. E. church, Sunday morning, was largely attended, and the offering, which is to go to the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Brooklyn, was gratifying. Miss Edna Doughty, the valedictorian at the commencement exercises of the Borough High School, and her sister, Miss Ellen Doughty, and Miss Cora Houssel were received into membership on probation.

COMSTOCK DRIVES OFF CANNONEERS WITH GUN.

Summit, July 7.—Without the discharge of a single shot, Anthony Comstock, the vice crusader, with a twenty-six-shot repeating rifle, shortly after "The Fourth" had been ushered in Saturday morning, forced a dozen men, who had drawn a heavy cannon within twenty-five feet of his residence, at 35 Beekman road, to beat a hasty retreat, leaving the weapon of war, with which, it is believed, the Comstock residence would have been at least partially wrecked, in the rear.

About 1 o'clock Saturday morning Mr. Comstock was aroused by the sound of voices on the ground surrounding his home, and peering through a window, he saw a group of men drawing a two-wheel carriage near the front of his home. Mr. Comstock called up Police Sergeant Murphy, and then seizing the repeating rifle made his way downstairs to the front of his home. At the click of the door latch the supposed attacking party ran across the lawn and disappeared in the darkness. Policeman Sullivan and Special Officer Gannon were sent to the green.

An examinatiin was made of the cannon, which was found to be the property of Colonel Benjamin P. Holmes, from whose place, in Pine Grove avenue, which is two miles from Beekman road, it had been stolen. The cannon, which has seen service in warfare, Colonel Holmes having been with the Eighth Regiment of New Jersey in the Civil War and the Third Regiment of New Jersey in the Spanish War, had been shot off, as it contained burnt powder, and, it is believed, it had been fired for the purpose of testing it before it had been drawn to the Comstock residence.

Mr. Comstock said he at first believed that enemies had intended serious damage, but it might have been intended only as a frolic.

Bill Dineen is winning right along for the St. Louis Browns and has done his share to put them in the pennant hunt.

This thing of a pitcher making a quick return to the batter when the latter isn't looking is risky and could be well cut out.

Johnny King makes a good point. He wonders why outfielders in the preliminary work don't practise throwing to the plate.

Grant of the Phillies is a rapid mover when running to first base and has a final long stride that gets him there all the quicker.

Griffith didn't look like the "physical wreck" he is said to have been when he left the New Yorks. In fact, Griff says his health has been pretty good this season.

Baseball has some curious twists. The Chicago Cubs were weakened for a while by the absence of Sheckard, but soon after he got back in the game they lost first place.

The mills of Ban grind slowly. Elberfield's last alleged offence against the umpire was committed on a Saturday and his suspension was not meted out until the following Friday.

One lone picker of a college "All America" team chose Currier of Harvard, which shows there's no accounting for opinions. Jones of Yale was head and shoulders above any other college backstop.

Though the New York Americans may be out of the pennant chase, which we and they do not concede, they can provide a lot of fun by taking falls out of the teams which think they are going to win.

It is somewhat exasperating to fair minded spectators to hear some bone headed player call down the umpire, especially when the player is one who makes more errors in his work than the umpire does.

The way commercialism is creeping into college sports is awful. The Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania teams, not to mention a few dozen others, actually refused to close their gates against people who wanted to pay their way in.

Wagner of the Boston Americans hath a dry wit. In the sixth inning of the no hit game which Cy Young, pitched against the New Yorks last week he asked: "How many hits have they made off you, Cy?" "I don't think they've got any yet," responded Cy. "Well," said Wagner, "I'm as good as the whole New York team. I haven't got any yet, either."

GOLF.

That the present golf season is destined to become memorable for low scoring in open competitions is already an assured fact. It is only necessary to glance at the records of the three open championships to date to convince one of this fact, as all have been won with figures below 300. First was the British open in 291, then the Western open in 299, and, last, the Massachusetts championship in 290.

To talk of such low scoring feats ten years ago would have been like indulging in fairy tales. There are various excellent reasons, however, for this evolution of the game. For a time after the rubber covered ball displaced the solid gutty the experts failed to derive full advantage from use of the improved article, for the reason that it seemed impossible to keep the ball under the same control near the green.

With time this handicap has vanished, until now the leading professionals can pitch up boldly to the hole side, lay the delicate chip shot dead and run down the tricky puts with a frequency calculated to banish all thoughts of luck. So now, instead of the advantage being merely off the tee, it may be said that it is easier to play every stroke.

At Prestwick, in Scotland, where James Braid made the 291, five strokes better than Jack White's record at Sandwich in 1907, the weather conditions were ideal. On the first day there was no wind, and on the next there was not enough air stirring to affect the scoring. Besides this, the rain immediately prior to the tournament had placed the turf at its best.

Conditions were not so favorable at St. Louis where Willie Anderson reeled off 299, but then Anderson had demonstrated ability to do such things years before. It was in 1902, at Cleveland, that he won the Western open with a similar score, and then he had only been using the lively ball a short time.

Both weather and course conditions aided the Massachusetts experts in their recent efforts at the Country Club of Brookline. The turf was so dry and hard that the balls simply "ate up" the distances at the long holes. The greens were never so true, and as might be expected some extraordinary putting resulted, the veteran David Brown carrying off the honors in this respect. Alec Ross, the winner, began with a 74, and then scored three 72s.

Nothing approaching 300, however, has ever been recorded at Myopia, where the national open is to be held, on August 27 and 28. In 1898 Fred Herd won there with 328, while Anderson secured the money over the same course in 1901, with 321, and again in 1905 with 314.

PISTOL AND KNIFE IN ROW.

One Man In Critical Condition, Other Will Recover.

Flemington, July 7.—Charles Kowach, who was shot in the head at the fair grounds Saturday, is still in a critical condition. The bullet entered his face near the cheekbone and lodged somewhere in his neck. His condition has been such that the physicians have been unable to probe for it. Albert Simon, his alleged assailant, is in jail here.

Antonia Polo, who was stabbed, is also in a serious condition, but it is thought he will recover. The shooting and stabbing took place outside the dance pavilion while the festivities were at their height. In the hurry to get the wounded men off to the hospital it was not learned what started the trouble.

The reported murder of two men in the upper part of the county proved to be only a fight at Glen Gardner, in which one man was so badly hurt he was taken to a hospital, and three men were held to await the result of his injuries.

FOR TRUER MEMORIAL DAY.

Sons of Veterans Ask Congress to Check the Thoughtless.

Trenton, July 7.—The three Trenton camps of Sons of Veterans have sent to Congressman Ira W. Wood a petition asking Congress to take action that will result in the observance of Memorial Day each year in accordance with the purpose for which the day was instituted. The Sons of Veterans assert that the present way of observing the day is almost sacriligious, being devoted almost exclusively to sports and general outdoor amusements.

In their petition they call attention to the fact that the day was set apart for the purpose of honoring the memories of the soldiers who gave their lives in the Civil War and those who have died since. As the Grand Army ranks are becoming thinner each year the Sons claim that it is their duty to see that honor shall be done to the old soldiers.

BAN ON JERSEY PRISONS.

Federal Judges to Send No More Prisoners to State Institution.

United States Judges William M. Lanning, of Trenton, and Joseph Cross, of Elizabeth, have decided not to send any more Federal prisoners to the New Jersey State Prison. This decision follows the declaration of Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth a week ago that the New Jersey State Prison was the worst breeding place for consumption she knew of. The Judges say, however, that the ruling is only in conformity with a request from the Attorney General at Washington that long-term prisoners should be sent to the new Government prison at Atlanta, Ga.

An order of Judge Cross that Commissioners must not commit Federal prisoners to the Hudson County Jail because "it was unfit for use" has caused much comment here. All prisoners caught in Hudson county must be taken to Essex jails.

This action was ocassioned by a prisoner saying, when about to be sentenced: "Your Honor, please do not sen me to ——— County Jail. It is the worst jail in the United States, and as I have tried them nearly all I should know." The court made some private inquiries, following which came the order of Judge Cross in regard to the Hudson County Jail.

PRIMARY FRAUDS.

Grand Jury to Ask Advice as to Power to Indict.

The Grand Jury at Jersey City today will ask advice from Judges Blair and Carey and possibly Justice Swayze as to its right to return indictments against the men who, it is alleged, stuffed the ballot boxes at the primary held in April for the election of delegates to the Republican State and Congressional conventions.

It is reported that if the judges in the absence of Justice Swayze give the same advice to the jury as it is said Justice Swayze did some weeks ago, to the effect that the men may be indicted under the common law, true bills will be handed up to the court this week.

NO ACTION ON P.S.C. TANK

City Fathers Reluctant to Disfigure City by Permitting Erection of Gas Holder.

BLOT ON THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

In Lively Debate It Is Hinted That No Permit Is Required—Action Deferred.

Whether the Common Council should grant permission to the Public Service Corporation to erect an enlarged gas-holder on its property, which extends from Watchung avenue to Church street, connecting another tract extending to Washington street, was debated in lively fashion at the July meeting, last night. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed pro and con, it was decided to defer action until next Monday night, there being no apparent necessity for granting the petition at once.

Although the temperature in the Council chamber was close to 100 degrees, the heat did not seem to affect the members and they were loath to dispose of the petition too hastily. The company made its request about two weeks ago, but it was learned that it had not been before the city fathers before. Building Inspector Doane, who was originally asked for a permit, did not care to take the responsibility alone and referred the matter to the fire and building committee, it being understood that the question should be discussed in the committee of the whole. Before this was done, President McCarter, of the P. S. C., informed the members through a communication that the company desired to erect a gas-holder to supply Plainfield and vicinity, and that it was considered a necessity. He also said that the company would indemnify the city against any damage that might result. This communication was referred to the fire and building committee.

It was on the motion of Mr. Buxton that the Council went into the committee of the whole, after which Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, explained that at a recent meeting of the members with Messrs. Gilmour and Mellick, of the P. S. C., it was stated that the gas-holder was intended to supply only Plainfield and vicinity; that the gas-holder was to be 117 feet high, with a capacity of 600,000 cubic feet of gas. He further explained that it seemed to be the sense of the committee that the location for the holder was a good one and if needed permission should be given for its erection. He then moved that the petition be granted.

This started the discussion. Mr. Suydam said that when the P. S. C. want anything they go ahead on the presumption that they will get it and in this case they had already built the foundation for the proposed gas-holder. He opposed granting the petition because the proposed holder would be thirty-seven feet higher than the present ones in use and would spoil the sky-line of the city. He did not believe that the Council had any right to grant such a permission when adjoining property would be injured.

More on account of the indefinite statement of President McCarter, Charles C. Randolph opposed the improvement. He believed that it should specify the towns to be supplied with gas from the holder.

In support of the proposition, Mr. Montgomery said that people move to Plainfield for the purpose of getting the benefit of improvements and he could see no objection to the gas-holder. One thing was settled in his mind, that the company need the enlarged holder and it will be only a matter of time when it will have to increase its electric plant. If permission is not granted now to build the holder the time will come when the Council will be obliged to ask for it. He expressed the opinion that there would be absolutely no danger and no one need have any fear of the sky-line being obliterated.

"We are doing all we can to knock out the idea of the 'City Beautiful,'" said Mr. Hall. "Let the company make the gas-holder smaller and it will not be so unsightly. I am of the opinion that it is the company's idea to supply other towns from the proposed holder."

Mr. Buxton being chairman of the committee of the whole, President Tolles took occasion to speak in support of the improvement. He could see no objection to the holder. Mr. Buxton concurred with him, adding that the company owns the property upon which it proposes to build the tank, it will be entirely on this property and in his opinion nothing better could be done. If it wasn't necessary the company would not want to build it and furthermore such a holder is not considered especially hazardous by the Board of Fire Underwriters.

All this time Mr. Mygatt had been listening attentively to the arguments and finally he ventured to speak in an inquiring manner. He said that although the fire and building committee was reported to have thoroughly investigated the matter its explanations had not satisfied him. He could see no reason why the petition should be rushed through at this time. The Public Service Corporation, according to his opinion, is always seeking rights and privileges and he thought it would be a mistake to act too hastily. He said that it would be like the proposition to build a fire house in the East End. The city had purchased a lot in a hurry and nothing has been done with it since.

During the discussion, the question was raised as to whether an opinion had been received from Corporation Counsel Marsh as to the rights of the Council, and it was stated that Mr. Marsh had verbally intimated to members of the Council that the company could erect the gas-holder on its property without the consent of the governing body, but he had not given a written opinion to that effect. It was thought unwise to stir up too much agitation along this line.

It was suggested that the whole matter be returned to Mr. Marsh for a written opinion, but Mr. Buxton explained that the corporation counsel intends to sail for Europe July 9 and it would only mean a long delay.

"If Mr. Marsh cannot give us the opinion," said Mr. Suydam, "he should appoint someone who can. We should not be compelled to delay this matter on that account."

At the conclusion of the discussion, Mr. Hibbard again moved that the petition be granted. This was amended to refer it back to the committee for the purpose of getting an opinion from the corporation counsel and amended again by Mr. Taylor to lay it over until Monday night, July 13. Mr. Taylor's amendment was carried, Councilmen Gloak, Hall, Mygatt, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph, Suydam and Taylor voting in favor and Councilmen Buxton, Hibbard, Montgomery and Tolles voting in the negative. The amendment to refer back for an opinion from Mr. Marsh was lost by a vote of seven to four.

HUTCHINSON TO INSPECT.

State Roads Commissioner Invited to View Essex Highways.

The roads committee of the Board of Freeholders at its monthly meeting yesterday instructed Secretary Baldwin to send an invitation to State Roads Commissioner Elijah C. Hutchinson to visit Essex county for the purpose of going over five or six miles of new roads contemplated by the committee for 1909.

As the proposed roads will be built under the State road law, whereby the State pays one-third, it will be necessary to obtain the approval of the State Commissioner before the work can be started. It was to secure this permission that the committee requested Mr. Hutchinson to visit Essex county.

cise Board, was mostly on the procedure in granting licenses. He said his board depended on the police to enforce the law, but would not say there was no Sunday selling.

E. A. Ransom, Jr., a member of the Jersey City Children's Society, said that in fifteen minutes he had found twelve children carrying cans of beer in the lower section of the city. He had reported it to the police, but no arrests were made.

James F. Clarke, clerk to the grand jury, testified that in the last two years about two hundred and fifty complaints of excise violations had been made to the grand jury, but only twenty indictments had been found.

Assistant Prosecutor George T. Vickers, who followed Mr. Clarke, provoked considerable mirth when he said, in answer to a question, that if a saloonkeeper who evaded or broke the excise law was "against the powers that be he would get soaked." He said that some testimony against saloonkeepers which was submitted to the grand juries was was thrown out by them and no indictments found, while similar evidence against others resulted in an indictment. He said in some cases "strong evidence" was thrown out by the grand juries.

Patrick J. McArdle, vice-president of a New York brewing company and a former president of the Hudson County Liquor Dealers' Association, testified that he thought there were too many saloons in Jersey City, and that he he had told Sam Dickinson that the number should be reduced to 700. He blamed the breweries for the large number of saloons, because, he said, if a man could not make a place pay, the brewery, instead of closing it, had the license transferred to some one else.

Ernest Eletas, one of the Jersey City excise inspectors, said he was a collector for a brewery, but did not think that this interfered with his duties for the city. Asked if he had ever discovered any excise violations on Sunday, the witness said he had never seen a saloon open on that day.

The commissioners resumed their session at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the City Hall, Jersey City.

Dr. Morgan Declines.

"BUNGALOW MAN" HOST OF UNION COUNTY MEN

About ones hundred Union county notables from Plainfield, Westfield, Cranford, Elizabeth and nearly every other town of importance gathered at Berkeley Heights yesterday afternoon as guests of William Jeffery. Despite the heat, nothing was left undone by "The Bungalow Man" to make the visit one of great pleasure. He invited all to Berkeley Lyceum, where he extended a cordial welcome. A visit was then made to his home and that of his boys, where genuine bungalow life was seen. Mrs. Jeffery assisted in entertaining the guests.

An adjournment was then taken to the public dining room, where a feast was served in fine style. The menu included all the good things from a Manhattan cocktail to ice cream, coffee and cigars, not omitting the famous "bungalow cup."

While the dinner was being enjoyed, the guests were favored with soprano solos by Miss Eleanor Benedict, of Berkeley, accompanied on the piano by her brother, Harold Benedict. H. C. Dillon, of New York, also assisted in the entertainment by giving several clever recitations in Irish dialect. During the afternoon, Hamilton F. Kean, accompanied by County Chairman F. H. Smith, "dropped in," and they were given a hearty welcome. As the guests were leaving the dining hall a telegram was received from former Mayor W. L. Saunders, who expressed his regrets. Others who sent regrets were Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Craig A. Marsh, F. H. Andrews, Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth; Assemblyman Carlton Pierce, Judge Swayze, Judge J. J. Bergen, Surrogate George T. Parrot, R. Henry Depew, Dr. Albert Pittis and Randolph Perkins. A majority of the guests made the trip to and from Berkeley in automobiles.

Among those present were: Judge Edward S. Atwater, Charles W. Dodd, Jr., J. Addison Swift, John A. Galatian, Mayor Sam Townsend, North Plainfield; George W. Bauer, W. J. Carey, John Scott, William G. De-Meza, ex-Sheriff Frank Coriell, B. J. Schreine, F. J. Hubbard, Harold D. Corbusuer, M. D., Col. Wm. H. Corbusier, Dr. Frank C. Ard, F. H. Pierson, M. D., A. D. Ayers, acting mayor of the city of Plainfield; Prof. A. G. Kapfman, F. C. Cannon, N. W. Currie, M. D., Dr. Dundon, Walter C. Dobbins, County Clerk James C. Calvert, William Woodruff, Jacob Gordon, John Repter, Stanley L. Reed, E. K. Adams, ex-Judge W. R. Coddington, W. T. Kirk, Ralph I. Tolles, County Chairman Frank H. Smith, Henry S. Fullerton, George Wahl, John Robison, Wm. F. Lutz, John Laurino, Joseph Kuntz, Robert G. Rogers, A. M. Delducco, Nicholas Krayer, W. S. Angleman, J. Seek Nastis' Assailant.

The Elizabeth police are still seeking a suspect in the Nastis drowning case, and it is probable that an arrest may be made tonight and a charge of manslaughter preferred. Nastis was pushed off the Central Railroad dock Sunday while fishing, and the police at once located a gang of toughs supposed to have been in the vicinity. The miscreant who, it is believed, caused Nastis' death is out of town.

HIS ASSESSMENT STANDS

Van Deventer Petition on Two Payments for Benefit to Property Refused.

BECAUSE OF THE PRECEDENT.

Minor Petitions Acted Upon By City Fathers At Regular Monthly Meeting Last Night.

The question as to whether J. H. Van Deventer, of Woodland avenue, should be assessed for the benefits of a sanitary sewer on Park Lane, as well as the one on Woodland avenue, caused an inimated discussion at the July meeting of the Common Council, last night. At a previous meeting Mr. Van Deventer petitioned the Council to cancel the assessment for Park Lane and it was referred to Corporation Counsel Marsh for an opinion. Last night, Mr. Marsh advised the members that they had no jurisdiction in the matter, that the petitioner had lost his last right of appeal.

The cause of the petitioner was championed by Mr. Hall, who is acquainted with the facts. In his opinion Mr. Van Deventer should not be required to pay a double assessment, especially when he derives no direct benefits on Park Lane, to which thoroughfares his land extends. He favored further consideration of the matter.

Following up his motion that the petition be denied, Mr. Buxton emphasized the fact that the Council should not establish a precedent of ignoring the opinion of the corporation counsel. Mr. Mygatt was of the same opinion, adding that the whole matter was one of court procedure and had been legal in every way. Mr. Suydam concurred, explaining that it might be Mr. Van Deventer's intention of building on the Park Lane end of the property and the commissioners had no doubt taken that fact into consideration. The motion offered by Mr. Buxton was finally adopted.

The annual report of the Fire Department Pension Fund Association was received from A. D. Jennings, treasurer. It showed the receipts to be $3,453.31; disbursements, $69.50, leaving a balance of $3,384.31.2 The report was filed.

Corporation Counsel Marsh informed the members of the importance and necessity of certifying the amount to be raised by taxation the coming year on or before the third Tuesday in August, adding that they would be allowed to add ten per cent. for contingencies, but he expressed the hope that this would not be necessary. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

In reply to a communication from Alexander Milne, who requested that the city provide the proper insurance on the new police headquarters' building, Mr. Buxton stated that he had placed $4,000 insurance on the property.

A petition from W. C. Chamberlain and others protested against the high speed of trolley cars at East Third and Richmond street, where Mr. Chamberlain and several workmen figured in a collision with a car recently and injuries resulted. They said that it was impossible for a person to see the car at that point in time to prevent an accident at the present rate of speed of the cars. The matter was referred to the committee on public affairs.

The petition of J. H. Guttridge asking for permission to remove a small building, formerly Johnson's coal office, from its present location on South avenue to another nearby, was granted upon motion of Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, and also on his motion the petition of McDonough Brothers for permission to build an office at 222 Madison avenue, of hollow cement blocks, was referred to the committee with power.

The Public Service Corporation informed the Council that one electric light had been placed on Manson place, as directed.

The resignation of R. B. Rogers as a call-man in the fire department was received and accepted and Mayor C. J. Fisk appointed John W. Ludgate and James H. Brown as callmen in the department. The appointments were confirmed.

City Engineer Gavett reported the granting of thirty-five sewer permits since June 1, and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that he had granted thirty-four permits during the past month.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the district court, reported the receipts for the past month to be $79.73 and the disbursements $36.53.

As to the petition of Ernest Sharp, of the Netherwood district, regarding an assessment, Mr. Buxton stated that he had consulted with Corporation Counsel Marsh and in view of the fact that the sale of the property is advertised for today, he suggested that the matter be held in abeyance for the present. He said that the tax collector had informed him that he could postpone the sale for a few weeks and upon Mr. Buxton's motion the collector will be advised of the action taken.

At the request of Mr. Mygatt, the letter received from Warren B. Travell regarding the right of the city to macadamize streets without awarding bids for the work, and an opinion from Corporation Counsel Marsh, on the subject were read. Mr. Marsh quoted the law in his contention that Mr. Travell was in the wrong, and he showed that the city is not operating under the laws quoted by Mr. Travell in his communication, in fact some of them were repealed as far back as eleven years ago. The opinion and Mr. Travell's letter were filed.

On motion of Mr. Buxton, the suppliment to the tax ordinance was adopted on third reading. Mr. Gloak moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night, July 13. The motion was adopted.

LAW GREATLY MUDDLED ON ELECTION BOARDS

A muddle created by an act of the last Legislature is causing the attorney-general some uneasiness as what is best to be done in the case where the law now requires district election boards to organize seven days before they are legally in existence. The law statute applies to municipalities having less than 30,000 inhabitants.

Under the general election law the first day for registration outside of cities having 30,000 inhabitants is the first Tuesday in September, and this year that will be September 1. Thus by the provisions of the new law the boards referred to must organize August 25. The tangle is apparent when this in interpreted with Section 17 of the general election law. The latter section provides that the terms of office of the district boards of registry and election shall begin on September 1 and expire August 31 of the following year, when their successors are appointed and qualified. Thus the situation now is that while the terms of office of all the boards begins September 1, the new law provides that those in all election districts outside of cities having 30,000 inhabitants must meet and organize August 25. The organization consists of electing one member as judge and another as inspector, the two to be from opposite parties.

The situation does not apply to cities having more than 30,000 inhabitants, because in those election districts the first registration day is the second Tuesday in September, or this year September 8.

Members of the district boards of election and registration are nominated by the respective county chairmen and then appointed by the county election board. The new law hits this situation, also, and the county chairmen will have to be spryer than usual this year in filling nominations.

The election law requires that the district election boards shall be appointed on or before August 25 each year. That is the same date on which the boards must organize, under the new law, in districts outside of cities having 30,000 population. Nominations for the appointments must be filed with the county Election Board by the respective county chairmen between August 10 and 15. It is provided in the election law that in the event of failure to make the nominations by August 15 the county board shall immediately notify the district chairman, and the deficiency must be met by August 22.

The usual custom has been for the county chairman to wait and file their nominations about the last day. After the nominations are filed it takes several days for the county board to look into the qualifications of those named. In order, therefore, to have the district boards ready for organization August 25 the county chairman should make their nominations early.

JERSEYMEN ACTIVE IN TUBERCULOSIS CONGRESS

Governor Fort has agreed to serve as one of the vice-presidents of the International Congress on Tuberculosis to be held in Washington from September 21 to October 12, under the auspices of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. F. L. Hoffman, of Trenton, is chairman of the committee that is making preparations for the participation of the State in the congress and in the exhibition to be held in connection with it.

Bleecker Van Wagenen, of Orange; Dr. T. W. Corwin, of Newark; Dr. Richard G. Newton, of Montclair, are chairmen of the sub-committees appointed to secure the co-operation of public and private associations of local health boards, and of private medical societies and women's clubs. W. C. Smallwood, of Newark, is chairman of the sub-committee on publicity, and other members of the general committee include Mrs. C. B. Alexander, of Hoboken; Rev. W. Fitzgerald, of Millville; Hugh F. Fox, of Plainfield; Dr. L. M. Halsey, of Williamstown; Dr. V. Van D. Hedges, of Plainfield; Dr. Edgar Holden, of Newark; W. K. Hurff, of Moorestown, and Dr. Philip Marvel, of Atlantic City.

GLEN GARDNER YOUTH BADLY BEATEN BY FRIENDS.

Glen Gardner, July 7.—Raymond Beam, about twenty years old, of this vicinity, is in the Easton, Pa., Hospital, in a precarious condition from injuries received at the Central Railroad station here July 4, in a fight with Edward 'Lisk, John Lisk and Edward Ingle, all of this vicinity. All of the men had spent a part of the forenoon at the hotel. An altercation arose while they were at the hotel, but friends interfered and the matter was dropped.

When they arrived at the station to take the 1:30 train to High Bridge the quarrel was renewed and before friends could interfere, it is said, that Edward Lisk and Edward Ingle had young Beam down on the ground and, it is also alleged, John Lisk kicked him several times in the abdomen, face and head.

Upon the arrival of the train Beam was left lying unconscious on the ground, where he was found later by Station Agent Banghart, who had him carried into the station. Dr. Hunt found that Beam had concussion of the brain and internal injuries and on his advice Beam was taken to the hospital.

Word was at once sent to High Bridge for the arrest of the assailants. Constable Naughwright succeeded in arresting Edward Lisk and Edward Ingle, but John Lisk was not taken into custody until yesterday. All of the prisoners will be held to await the result of Beam's injuries.

Beam is a brother-in-law of Edward Lisk, and a brother of Julia Beam, who created such a sensation to this place several years ago, and for whom several persons were sentenced to prison for an alleged tar and feather mixup.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FORMALLY DEDICATED.

About 500 people from Bernardsville, Liberty Corner, Millington and New Vernon, and many of the summer residents and visitors, attended the dedicatory services in the Presbyterian church at Basking Ridge Sunday. Among the visiting clergymen were Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this city; Rev. Peter Gibb, of the Baptist church, Millington; Rev. Frank Werner, of the Presbyterian church, Liberty Corner; Rev. E. R. Murgatroyd, of New Vernon; Rev. J. E. Hancock and Rev. W. I. Dice.

The music was under the direction of Miss S. Lillian Jones, of Brooklyn. At the morning service the pastor, Rev. John T. Reeve, formally dedicated the newly completed edifice by reading appropriate passages of Scripture, followed by a prayer of consecration. The subject of the pastor's sermon was "The World's Need of a Church Today."

At the service at night Rev. Dr. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this city, preached upon the theme, "Jacob the Deceiver." Last night was Presbyterian night. There was a brief organ recital by the organist, Miss S. Lillian Jones, and Rev. Dr. William Force Whitaker, moderator of the presbytery and pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Elizabeth, gave an address upon "The Church and Men," and Rev. Dr. George Francis Greene, of the Presbyterian church in Cranford, spoke upon "The Basking Ridge Church in History."

For the Picnic Basket.

Those who find the putting up of lunches a part of the daily routine may take comfort in the suggestion of one resourceful woman. When using eggs she sees to it that only a small piece of the shell is broken off from the end of one egg. The egg shell from which the piece has been taken is then washed and kept as a receptacle for jelly or jam for the noon lunch basket, the open end being protected by a piece of paraffin paper.

—Use Press want ads. They pay.

VARIOUS SUGGESTIONS.

Nothing keeps out moths so well as paper. If every one, when they put away furs, pasted up all the crevices and round the lid of the box with paper they would find them all intact when unpacked.

The quickest way to take wrinkles out of a suit of clothes which has been put away for a long time, and must be worn in an hour or two, is this: Take a thin wet cloth and a hot flatiron, and, placing the cloth over the wrinkled clothes, iron and press them, keeping the cloth wet and not allowing the iron to stay in one place, or it is liable to give the clothes a glossy appearance. If the cloth is wet as it dries this is prevented, and the wrinkles are taken out, leaving the clothes with a nice fresh and new look.

To wash a silk blouse like new, slightly blue some milkwarm water, add also a little soap powder. Wash and rinse thoroughly, but do not wring it; simply squeeze with the palms of the hands. Take two clean cloths and place the blouse on one, with the other on top, fold, and then roll tightly. Leave it over night; then in the morning, when it is ironed, it will look like new. If people would do this instead of sending it to the cleaners they would get far more wear out of the blouse and it would never crack.

Save the Pictures.

Hundreds of magazines are thrown away that contain almost perfect duplicates of the best pictures ever painted or drawn. Save these pictures when discovered, and some day in a 10-cent store you will be able to find a framed picture, the frame of which will look beautiful with one of your good subjects.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the majority of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

Headache and neuralgia quickly relieved.

Proposals for Macadamizing.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Common Council at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, at 8 o'clock p. m., on Monday, the thirteenth day of July, 1908, for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the macadamizing contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council, May 4, 1908, and re-adopted June 8, 1908, notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor, and as provided for in the specifications on file in the office of the Street Commissioner.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents thereof in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of said prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

A separate price must be named for each street, and proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Macadamizing."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A bolt of lightning fired the big stables of the Trenton Country Club, doing about $5,000 worth of damage.

Diving from a boat, fourteen-year-old Ralph Mote, of Clayton, struck an old hook, sustaining a wound that required forty-four stitches to close.

Richard Shields, of Little Creek, Del., who, the Bivalve police say, shot a man in Wilmington, Del., a few days ago and escaped by borrowing a launch, was captured at Bivalve Saturday.

Accused of fleecing Englishmen out of money by claiming to be a native of England, stranded in America, George Pierson was locked up in the Camden City Jail yesterday for a hearing.

On a charge of recklessly shooting a revolver, John Foneral was arrested in Camden yesterday. Bergner Sabtusso, 317 Division street, told the police his wife narrowly escaped a bullet from the weapon.

Rev. William Pickersgill, of the Helping Hand church, assisted by Rev. August Diehl, Sunday baptized three women and one man in the river at the foot of Sixth street, Gloucester City, in the presence of a large crowd.

Catharine Pearson, seven years old, of Atlantic City, will be disfigured for life as the result of a sudden impulse of kindness toward a strange dog she stooped to caress on the beach. She was bitten on her face, and her features were torn beyond recognition.

Kind-hearted John McGinnis, of Glassboro, gave a stray cat welcome to his home, fed it and petted it. Two hours later the cat went mad and there was pandemonium in the McGinnis household. When the cat was killed the house looked as if a tornado had entered it.

Alonzo Corson, a well-known resident of Cape May, who committed suicide Friday by hanging himself by a rope to a rafter in the kitchen of his home in Hand avenue, was despondent. He was supposed to be worth about $20,000. Mr. Corson was a widower, his wife having died about two years ago.

For fully thirty minutes Saturday night great excitement prevailed at the Gloucester ferryhouse, when a fight started between several men, and in the rush to get out of the way a woman fainted and a little boy fell overboard and only the quick action of Arthur Swain saved him from being drowned.

James Sharp, of 609 North Third street, was taken to the Cooper Hospital, Camden, yesterday, with both jaws broken and his right arm fractured. Complaint was made against William Weber before Justice McClong, and the defendant was locked up in the city hall on a charge of assault and battery.

Camden's police raided three alleged disorderly houses yesterday in compliance with the orders of Mayor Ellis, to clean out all such places. The defendants included Jeremiah James, Locust and Division streets; Richard Miller, Eighth and Chestnut streets, and Edward Quinn, 214 Pine street. Several cases of beer were confiscated.

Hospital treatment, yesterday, was required to revive Miss Laura Chamberlain, seventeen years old, from an overdose of paregoric, which she took to relieve a toothache. Miss Chamberlain's mother noticed the girl's condition and inquired the cause. The girl was unable to make reply, and was hurried to a hospital, where antidotes were applied.

Announcement was made in Trenton yesterday that James Tams, one of the country's oldest and best known pottery manufacturers, was married last Tuesday to Miss Mary Emma Akers, of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Weber in the Church of the Gesu, Philadelphia. The next day Mr. Tams and his bride sailed from New York for a honeymoon trip to Europe. They will spend most of the summer in France and Germany.

GOVERNOR FORT WINS HIS POINT.

Trenton, July 7.—Despite the opposition of guardsmen to Governor Fort's desire to create several new officers in the National Guard, the Executive has succeeded in having his wishes carried out. Orders were issued from the Adjutant-General's Department yesterday providing that the "Department of Small Arms Practise" shall consist of one inspector of the rank of lieutenant-colonel, two inspectors, with rank of major, and five assistant inspectors with the rank of captain. The order formally launching the new department will be issued today.

Wilbur F. Sadler, a society man of this city, is likely to land the principal of the new position, although he is a civilian and in face of the opposition among guardsmen to civilians becoming commissioned officers. Mr. Sadler is a personal friend of the Governor, who has an ambition to belong to the States military organization. Newark is also likely to have one of her military men appointed as an inspector.

Miss Jessie Patterson, of Mariners place, has resigned her position with E. A. Laing, of West Front street.

THE PRINCESS ELOPES

(COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY ROBERT C.)

By HAROLD MacGRATH

AUTHOR OF "THE MAN ON THE BOX," "HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

The duke had never been talked to so plainly in all his life. For a while he was without voice, but had plenty of color. "It is easily explained," he finally bawled out to her. "Her highness has eloped!"

The girl stared at him with wide eyes. "Eloped?" she breathed faintly.

"Yes, eloped."

Betty wondered if she heard aright, or if the duke were out of his mind; and then she recollected her conversation with the princess. Her mouth opened as if to speak, but instead she closed her lips tightly. That wilful girl; whatever would become of her!

"Give this letter to your mistress," said the duke to the maid. "I will station myself in the window while she reads it."

He strode over to the window and drew the curtains about him. Below, the night crowds were wandering about the streets; the band was playing in the Volksgarten; carriages were rolling to and from the opera; the fountain in the center of the square sparkled merrily in the glare of the arc lights. But the duke saw none of these things. Rather he saw the telegraphic dispatches flying to the four ends of the globe, telling the peoples that he, the Grand Duke of Barscheit, had been outwitted by a girl; that the Princess Hildegarde had eloped with a man who was not the chosen one. In other words, he saw himself laughed at from one end of the continent to the other. (There is something very funny in domestic troubles when they occur in another man's family!) No, the duke saw not the beauty of the night; instead of stars he saw asterisks, that abominable astronomy of the lampoonists. He had never doubted the girl's courage; but to elope! . . . And who the devil had eloped with her? He knew the girl's natural pride; whoever the fellow might be, he could be no less than a gentleman. But who, who?

"Your highness?" called a quiet (I might say deceptive) voice.

The duke came forth.

"Your highness will do me the honor to make out my passports to-night. I desire to leave the palace immediately. The affront you have put upon me, even under the circumstances, is wholly unpardonable. You imply that I have had something to do with her highness' act. You will excuse me to her serene highness, whom I love and respect. My dignity demands that I leave at once."

A flicker—but only a flicker—of admiration lighted the duke's eyes. It was a plucky little baggage.

"I will issue your passports upon one condition," he said.

"And that condition?"—proudly.

"Tell me everything: Where has she gone, and with whom?"

"I know absolutely nothing."

Silence. The duke gnawed his mustache, while his eyes strove in vain to beat down hers.

"Thank you, I believe you." Then, giving way to his wrath: "You English people, you are all the same! You never understand. I have brought up this girl and surrounded her with every luxury; against my will and reason I have let her become educated in foreign lands; I have given her the utmost freedom; this is how I am repaid."

"You forgot one important thing, your highness."

"What?"—haughtily.

"Affection. You have never given her that."

The duke felt himself beaten into silence, and this did not add to his amiability.

"Your passports shall be made out immediately; but I beg of you to reconsider your determination, and to remain here as long as you please. For the sake of appearances, I desire your presence at the dinner table."

"I shall leave as soon as the dinner is over." This girl's mind seemed immovable.

The duke shrugged. There was no use in beating against this wall. "I wish you knew whither she has gone."

"Frankly, if I knew I should not tell your highness. My father taught me never to betray a confidence."

"As you will. I beg your pardon for the abruptness of my entrance," he said, choking down his wrath. He could not allow himself to be outdone in the matter of coolness by this chit of an English girl.

"I grant it you."

The duke then retired, or, I should say, retreated. He wandered aimlessly about the palace, waiting for news and making wretched all those with whom he came in contact. The duchess was not feeling well; a wrangle with her was out of question; besides, he would make himself hoarse. So he waited and waited, and re-read the princess' letter. At dinner he ate nothing; his replies were curt and surly. The Honorable Betty also ate nothing. She sat, wondering if her maid could pack five trunks in two hours.

I had quite a time of it myself that night. As I predicted, I received a visit from the police in regard to Mr. Scharfenstein. I explained the matter the best I knew how, and confessed that he had hurriedly left the city for parts unknown. I did not consider it absolutely essential that I should declare that I had seen him enter a railway carriage for Dresden. Besides this, I had to stand sponsor for the other boys and explain at length that they were in no wise concerned with Mr. Scharfenstein's great offense. The police were courteous and deferential, admitting that Max was the culprit. He had drawn a revolver in a public restaurant; he had broken a grave law. The inspector wrote a dozen telegrams and dispatched them from the consulate. I had, at his request, offered him the blanks.

"He Was Not Alone."

At 11 I received a telephone call from the Continental hotel. It was a woman's voice, and my heart beat violently as I recognized it. I was requested to come at once to the hotel. I should find her in the ladies' salon. I walked the distance in ten minutes. She told me all that had happened.

"By this time it is all over the city. But it is all nonsense about her highness' eloping with any one. She is too nobly born to commit such a folly. She has simply run away; and I very much fear that she will be caught. The duke is in a terrible temper. I could not remain in the palace, for the duke suspects that I know where she has gone. I have my passports. The British consul is away hunting. You were the only English-speaking person to whom I could come for aid."

"I am very glad."

"Will it be asking too much of you to aid me in leaving Barscheit to-night? There is a train at one o'clock for Dresden."

"Leave Barscheit?" My heart sank dismally.

"Oh,"—with a smile,—"the world is small and England is even smaller."

"I shall have to give up the consulate,"—gravely.

She laughed. "I shall be in England for something more than a year. Truthfully, I hunger for mine own people. You know what that hunger is."

"Yes. I shall go home as often as possible now. I always stop a few days in London."

"Then I shall expect to see you; perhaps during the holidays. I am determined to leave Barscheit before the duke changes his mind. Heavens, he may put me in prison!"

"I doubt that."

I saw to it that she secured a sleeping compartment all to herself, took charge of her luggage and carefully examined her papers. Then we had a small supper. I wanted to ask a thousand questions, but my courage lacked the proper key.

"May I have the pleasure of writing to you occasionally?" I finally ventured. "I am sure that you would like a bit of Barscheit gossip from time to time."

"Write to me, by all means. I shall await these letters with great pleasure."

"And answer them?"—growing bolder.

"It is easily seen that you are a diplomat. Yes, I shall answer them. Heigh-ho! I shall miss my rides." What a brave little woman she was!

Finally we started for the station, and I saw her to the gates. We shook hands, and I was sure I felt a very friendly pressure; and then she disappeared. There was altogether a different feeling in my heart as I watched her train draw out. Eh, well, the world is small and England is smaller, even as she had said. It's a mighty fine world, when you get the proper angle of vision.

CHAPTER IX.

There was very little light in the compartment into which Max had so successfully dived. Some one had turned down the wicks of the oil lamps which hung suspended between the luggage racks above, and the gloom was notable rather than subdued. So far as he was concerned he was perfectly contented; his security was all the greater. He pressed his face against the window and peered out. The lights of the city flashed by, and finally grew few and far between, and then came the blackness of the country. It would take an hour and a half to cross the frontier, and there would be no stop this side, for which he was grateful. He swore, mumbling. To have come all this way to study, and then to leg it in this ignominious fashion! It was downright scandalous! Whoever heard of such laws? Of course he had been rather silly in pulling his gun, for even in the United States—where he devoutly wished himself at that moment—it was a misdemeanor to carry concealed weapons. He felt of his cheek. He would return some day, and if it was the last thing he ever did, he would slash that lieutenant's cheeks. The insolent beggar! To be struck and not to strike back! He choked.

Gradually his eyes became accustomed to the dim light, and he cast about.

"The deuce!" he muttered.

He was not alone. Huddled in the far corner was a woman heavily veiled. Young or old, he could not tell. She sat motionless, and appeared to be looking out of the opposite window. Well, so long as she did not bother him he would not bother her. But he would much rather have been alone.

He took out his passport and tried to read it. It was impossible. So he rose, steadied himself, and turned up the wick of one of the lamps.

He did not hear the muffled exclamation which came from the other end.

He dropped back upon the cushion and began to read. So he was George Ellis, an American student in good standing; he was aged 29, had blue eyes, light hair, was six feet tall, and weighed 154 pounds. Ha! he had, then, lost 30 pounds in as many minutes? At this rate he wouldn't cast a shadow when he struck Dresden. He had studied three years at the college; but what the deuce had he studied? If they were only asleep at the frontier! He returned the document to his pocket, and as he did so his fingers came into contact with the purse he had picked up in the road that morning—Hildegarde von Heideloff. What meant Fate in crossing her path with his? He had been perfectly contented in mind and heart before that first morning ride; and here he was, sighing like a furnace. She had been merely pretty on Monday, on Tuesday she had been handsome, on Wednesday she had been adorable; now she was the most beautiful woman that ever lived. (Ah, the progressive adjective, that litany of love!) Alas! it was quite evident that she had passed out of his life as suddenly and mysteriously as she had entered it. He would keep the purse as a souvenir, and some day, when he was an old man, he would open it.

There is something compelling in the human eye, a magnetism upon which Science has yet to put her cold and unromantic finger. Have you never experienced the sensation that some one was looking at you? Doubtless you have. Well, Max presently turned his glance toward his silent fellow traveler. She had lifted her veil and was staring at him with wondering, fearing eyes. These eyes were somewhat red, as if the little bees of grief had stung them.

"You!" he cried, the blood thumping into his throat. He tossed his hat to the floor and started for her end of the compartment.

She held up a hand as if to ward off his approach. "I can hear perfectly," she said; "it is not needful that you should come any nearer."

He sat down confused. He could not remember when his heart had beaten so irregularly.

"May I ask how you came to enter this compartment?" she asked coldly.

"I jumped in,"—simply. What was to account for this strange attitude?

"So I observe. What I meant was, by what right?"

"It happened to be the only door at hand, and I was in a great hurry." Where was his usual collectedness of thought? He was embarrassed and angry at the knowledge.

"Did you follow me?" Her nostrils were palpitating and the corners of her mouth were drawn aggressively.

"Follow you?" amazed that such an idea should enter into her head. "Why, you are the last person I ever expected to see again. Indeed, you are only a fairy-story; there is, I find, no such person as Hildegarde von Heideloff." Clearly he was recovering.

"I know it," candidly. "It was my mother's name, and I saw fit to use it." She really hoped he hadn't followed her.

"You had no need to use it, or any name, for that matter. When I gave you my name it was given in good faith. The act did not imply that I desired to know yours."

"But you did!"—imperiously.

"Yes. Curiosity is the brain of our mental anatomy." When Max began to utter tall phrases it was a sign of even-balanced mentality.

"And if I hadn't told you my name, you would have asked for it."

"Not the first day."

"Well, you would have on Tuesday."

"Not a bit of a doubt." He certainly wouldn't show her how much he cared. (What was she doing in this carriage? She had said nothing that morning about traveling.)

"Well, you admit that under the circumstances I had the right to give any name it pleased me to give."

He came over to her end and sat down. Her protests (half-hearted) he ignored.

"I can not see very well from over there," he explained.

"It is not necessary that you should see; you can hear what I have to say."

"Very well; I'll go back." And he did. He made a fine pretense of looking out of the window. Why should this girl cross his path at this unhappy moment?

There was a pause.

"You are not near so nice as you were this morning," she said presently.

"I can't be nice and sit away over here."

"What made you jump into this compartment, of all others?"

"I wasn't particular what compartment I got into so long as I got into one. As I said, I was in a hurry."

"You said nothing this morning about going away from Barscheit."

"Neither did you."

Another pause. (I take it, from the character of this dialogue, that their morning rides must have been rather interesting.)

"You told me that you were in Barscheit to study nerves,"—wickedly.

"So thought I, up to half-past nine to-night; but it appears that I am not,"—gloomily.

"You are running away, too?"—with suppressed eagerness.

"Running away, too!" he repeated. "Are you running away?"

"As fast as ever the train can carry me. I am on the way to Dresden."

"Dresden? It seems that Fate is determined that we shall travel together this day. Dresden is my destination also."

"Let me see your passports,"—extending a firm white hand.

He obeyed docilely, as docilely as though he were married. She gave the paper one angry glance and tossed it back.

"George Ellis; so that is your name?"—scornfully. "You told me that it was Scharfenstein. I did not ask you to tell me your name; you took that service upon yourself." She recalled the duke's declaration that he should have her every movement watched. If this American was watching her, the duke was vastly more astute than she had given him the credit for being. "Are you in the pay of the duke? Come, confess that you have followed me, that you have been watching me for these four days." How bitter the cup of romance tasted to her now! She had been deceived. "Well, you shall never take me from this train save by force. I will not go back!"

"I haven't the slightest idea of what you are talking about," he said, mightily discouraged. "I never saw this country till Monday, and never want to see it again."

"From what are you running away then?"—skeptically.

"I am running away from a man who slapped me in the face,"—bitterly; and all his wrongs returned to him.

"Indeed!"—derisively.

"Yes, I!" He thrust out both his great arms miserably. "I'm a healthy looking individual, am I not, to be running away from anything?"

"Especially after having been a soldier in the Spanish war. Why did you tell me that your name was Scharfenstein?"

"Heaven on earth, it is Scharfenstein! I'm simply taking my chance on another man's passports."

"I am unconvinced,"—ungraciously. She was, however, inordinately happy; at the sight of the picture of woe on his face all her trust in him returned. She believed every word he said, but she wanted to know everything.

"Very well; I see that I must tell you everything to get back into your good graces—Fraulein von Heideloff."

"If you ever were in my good graces!"

Graphically he recounted the adventure at Muller's. He was a capital story teller, and he made a very good impression.

"If it hadn't been for the princess' eloping I should not have been here," he concluded, "for my friend would have had a waiter bring me that chair."

"The princess' eloping!"—aghast.

"Why, yes. It seems that she eloped to-night; so the report came from the palace."

The girl sat tight, as they say; then suddenly she burst into uncontrollable laughter. It was the drollest thing she had ever heard. She saw the duke tearing around the palace, ordering the police hither and thither, sending telegrams, waking his advisers and dragging them from their beds. My! what a hubbub! Suddenly she grew serious.

"Have you the revolver still?"

"Yes."

"Toss it out of the window; quick!"

"But—"

"Do as I say. They will naturally search you at the frontier."

He took out the revolver and gazed regretfully at it, while the girl could not repress a shudder.

"What a horrid-looking thing!"

"I carried it all through the war."

"Throw it away and buy a new one."

"But the associations!"

"They will lock you up as a dangerous person." She let down the window and the cold night air rushed in. "Give it to me." He did so. She flung it far into the night.

"There, that is better. Some day you will understand."

"I shall never understand anything in this country— What are you running away from?"

"A man with a red nose."

"A red nose? Are they so frightful here as that?"

"This one is. He wants—to marry me."

"Marry you!"

"Yes; rather remarkable that any man should desire me as a wife, isn't it?"

He saw that she was ironical. Having nothing to say, he said nothing, but looked longingly at the vacant space beside her.

SOME NEW SLEEVES.

The wing coat sleeves are a necessity with the ruffled waists now so much worn, and particularly with the sleeves that are ruffled from the shoulder to the elbow. From two to five hand-embroidered ruffles are worn and each ruffle is finished with a hem of taffeta, as well as with a design in silk embroidery. This makes a great deal of work for the woman who makes her own waists, but it is well worth while, for the full sleeves add a wonderfully dressy note to the waist.

The new waists shhow the elaborate yoke, the ruffled sleeve caps and, finally, the long, tight lace cuff extending to the wrist and over the knuckles.

ELIZABETH WINS POINTS IN STATE TENNIS TOURNEY.

The Elizabeth Town and Country Club won seven points for the East Jersey Lawn Tennis title cup Saturday, when H. McK. Glazebrook, of that club, defeated Reginald West, of the same club, in the final round of the men's singles in the East Jersey tourney. As winner he receives five points toward the trophy, and his opponent secured two points as runner-up. Albert D. Beers, the only Plainfield Country Club player to survive in the third round, was defeated by L. Dunham, of the Ideran Outing Club, Rahway. He lost his match in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

The Elizabeth club now stands as the most formidable opponent of the Plainfield Country Club in the contest for the trophy. Matches in the men's doubles and mixed doubles are held up at the semi-final and final rounds, but the Plainfielders have three out of the four surviving teams in each of these matches. This is a possibility of fourteen points, and a certainty of four points in the two matches. No date has yet been set for finishing the play in either of the matches.

Results at Park Golf Club.

In the play for the challenge trophies at the Park Golf Club, Fourth of July, W. R. Faber, holder, defeated Leon R. Thurlow, challenger, by default, for challenge trophy No. 2, and Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, challenger, defeated Dr. A. W. Anderson, holder, by 3 up and 1 to play, for challenger trophy No. 4. The matches for Saturday will be as follows: For challenge trophy No. 1, W. C. McNaughton, holder, challenged by W. R. Faber; for trophy No. 3, L. R. Thurlow, holder, challenged by Miss Loizeaux; for trophy No. 5, Dr. A. W. Anderson, holder, challenged by E. E. Gano.

Union Service Largely Attended.

The first union service under the auspices of the First M. E. church, First Baptist, Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian churches, was held at the last named church, Sunday night, and was largely attended by members of all four churches. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, preached an eloquent sermon. Others who assisted in the service by reading Scripture and offering prayer, were Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church; Rev. Dr. John H. Raven, of New Brunswick, who occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church in the morning, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, who extended a welcome to those present. The quartet choir rendered special music, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, including anthems and solo parts. Next Sunday night the service will be at the First M. E. church and Rev. Dr. John H. Raven will preach.

In the City Court.

Morris Cemel, arrested yesterday for collecting junk without a license, had sentence suspended in the city court this morning. He was represented by Counsellor Francis J. I.O.O.F. INSTALLS OFFICERS AND BIG FEAST FOLLOWS

District Deputy Grand Master Henry Tetrault and staff, of Memorial Lodge, No. 165, I. O. O. F., of Elizabeth, were in charge of ceremonies at the installation of officers at Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, last night, and the Elizabethans were royally entertained by the local Odd Fellows at a banquet and speech-fest after the ceremonials. By cutting down the time limit for "remarks," after the visitors had been heard from, it was possible for the lodgemen to hear from practically all of the newly installed officers. These officers were installed with formal ritual by the visiting deputy and staff:

Simon Mantz, noble grand; Edward Schmeyer, vice grand; warden, E. L. Boice; conductor, J. F. Kettenring; right supporter of the noble grand, John Becker; left supporter of the noble grand, Charles Schlief, right supporter of the vice grand, John Bender; left supporter of the vice grand, John Wade; rigt scene supporter, Harry Wade; left scene supporter, Martin Christianson; chaplain, P. Doeringer; inside guard, John Retsnitzer; outside guard, Michael Koller.

A twenty-five year veteran's jewel was presented to Noble Grand Mantz by S. H. Schlief, and Mr. Mantz responded with an address of appreciation for the honor bestowed. After the meeting, the lodgemen escorted their visitors to the banquet hall, where the speech-making followed a bounteous repast. The banquet committee consisted of John Kriney, Simon Mantz and Edward Schmeyer.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Robert Lowrie.

Mrs. Susan Louise Lowrie, wife of Robert Lowrie, and mother of G. Elston Lowrie, died at her home in Dunellen, last night, aged 76 years. She was one of the best known residents of that place and one of the oldest members of the New Market Baptist church, where she was a regular attendant for a great many years. She was born in Dunellen, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Harris. Besides a husband and one son, G. Elston Lowrie, she is survived by three step-daughters, Mrs. Isaac Giddis, mother of Elmer Giddis, of Dunellen; Mrs. George F. Giles, of this city, and one residing at Lambertville; also one step-son, Abram Lowrie. The funeral service will be held from the late home Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Miss Carrie Allen.

Miss Carrie Allen, daughter of the late Israel and Ann Titus Allen, well-known residents of Watchung many years ago, died yesterday at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Alonzo Somerville, of Newark. She was sixty-four years old and had resided in Newark the greater part of her life. She is survived by one brother, Daniel Allen, of Jersey City, and also several cousins in North Plainfield. The funeral will be held at Mrs. Somerville's home, 24 Lombardy street, Thursday morning at 10:30, after which the body will be brought to this city for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McNabb and family, of Jackson avenue, the borough, have returned home after a pleasant week on their houseboat on the Shrewsbury river, near Atlantic Highlands.

CLUB WITHHOLDS PURSE

Adam Blair's "Aron B." Causes Lively Scrap at Fair Acres Association Meeting.

THE WINNER IS PROTESTED.

Judges of Fourth of July Races Will Look Up Records Before Awarding the $150 Purse—Want Animal Identified.

Pending the identification of Adam Blair's trotter, "Aron B.," which won first money in the 2:30 class at the Independence Day matinee races at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Saturday, the purse of $150 for winner of the event is being withheld by the judges. At the meeting of the Fair Acres Driving and Riding Club, held last night at the Hotel Iroquois, the question of the horse's records, raised by former Mayor N. B. Smalley at the track Saturday, was again brought up and discussed at length.

Such identification as is sought by owners of horses competing in the race carries with it no suggestion that the horse owner was entering a "ringer," but is merely a means of finding out whether the horse was properly classed. The judges, L. A. Bellis, of Somerville; W. H. Grierson, of Cranford, and Dr. Fred Egel, of Westfield, are investigating the horse's record previous to the time Blair bought it. This is in accordance with the rules of the National Association.

It is alleged that a request was made to post the wrong time for the 2:30 race, in order that "Aron B" might be allowed to enter another event on the card.

Blair bought the horse several months ago from a Philadelphia horse dealer. At that time the animal's name was "Leon" and it was said that he had never started in a race. The horse's former owner was a Western man. The process of "searching the title" of the newly christened "Aron B" will take several days, so that it will be next week before the purse will be awarded.

LIGHTNING STUNS TWO IN MID-DAY SHOWER

Lightning stunned two women in the borough during the mid-day shower today, striking the homes of John Schaefer, of Summit avenue, and George Hummer, of Coddington avenue. The bolt in the first case crashed down the chimney from roof to cellar, scattering plaster and bricks. It stunned Mrs. Schaefer, who was thrown to the floor. Dr. N. W. Currie was summoned and an examination showed that she was not burned.

Mrs. George Hummer was knocked unconscious by a vivid bolt of lightning during the latter part of the storm. She was in the kitchen shed of her home on Coddington avenue, when the bolt sizzled through an open window and out at the door. In passing through the door, the latch, knob and lock were torn out. There was no fire. A physician was summoned and Mrs. Hummer was found to be suffering entirely from shock.

The fact that the rain water was cool sent the thermometer down from 96 to 90 during the storm, but as soon as the sun came out, the mercury rose again and at 3 o'clock was hovering near the hundred mark.

PERSONAL.

Miss Edith Giddes, of Watchung avenue, spent Independence Day and Sunday at Newburg on the Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Richards and William King, of Belvidere, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Graves, of East Fifth street.

Among the passengers who arrived on the White Star Liner "Baltic," Friday, were the Misses Burnet, of Madison avenue, who have been sojourning in Europe and Great Britain.

G. W. VanCleef Wins Scholarship.

In the postal card contest conducted by the Drake Business College, and which closed July 4, G. W. Van Cleef, of Somerville, won the three months' scholarship. Miss May Madison, of 182 Duer street, was a close second. The cards will be on exhibition in the office of the college on East Front street. Mr. Van Cleef will receive his certificate this week which entitles him to pursue one or all subjects taught in the school; also an absolute guarantee of a position which is given to all students of Drake College.

Stole a Horse From Pasture.

Rufus Delafield, of South Plainfield, reported to the local police last night that someone had stolen a horse belonging to him from a pasture in which it was placed yesterday afternoon. The animal is described as a buckskin with black points.

Owing to the intense heat it has been decided to omit the mid-week prayer-meeting at the Congregational church tomorrow night.

PETIT MISS WAID RIDES A PRIZE WINNING HORSE

Ridden by Miss Lillian Waid, who has trained him to an almost human sagacity, "Burnester," the Texas trick horse which created such a faforable impression at the South Plainfield carnival Independence Day, is now at Willow Lake Ranch with his fair rider. The horse, which created lots of enthusiasm by its clever tricks Saturday, was awarded the first prize at the Fourth of July celebration and his work caused much favorable comment.

"Burnester" is known as "the horse with the diamond necklace," for upon his arrival in New York city from Dallas, Texas, he was presented with a necklace of brilliants by C. Phillips. The animal's training is the result of long and patient work by his winsome rider, Miss Waid, who is now his owner. With Phil King, she spent months in teaching "Burnester" tricks and getting him under such perfect control that he seems almost human as he is guided about the tan bark by Miss Waid.

It was during the animal's instruction in a new "stunt" a short time ago that Miss Waid, who is a clever and daring little rider, broke her right arm, which she carried in a sling as she managed "Burnester" at South Plainfield Saturday. Despite the handicap of managing the horse entirely with her left hand, Miss Waid rode with a grace and ease which won rounds of applause.

Injured By Horse's Kick.

A horse belonging to John Britton, of Orange place, and driven by his son, William Britton, suddenly became fractious while standing on North avenue late this afternoon. The animal kicked back and struck young Britton, badly lacerating one leg and toppling him from his seat. The injury was severe and he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance.

BISHOPS' LAW VIOLATIONS

Fisk Commission Find That Excise Regulations are Disregarded in Hudson Co.

SOME INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

Hoboken's Mayor a Brewery Agent—West Hoboken Chief's Assertions Make Him Ridiculous.

The excise investigating commission had an entertaining and instructive session in Jersey City yesterday, and adjourned for the week. They will meet again in Paterson on next Monday, and later in the summer will return to Jersey City. On July 20 they will hold a conference in Newark with members of the State Brewers' Association.

Among the interesting things discovered by the commission yesterday was that George H. Steil, Mayor of Hoboken, was the agent in his city for a Brooklyn brewery; that there are dance halls attached to many of the saloons in West Hoboken, that the Sheriff of Hudson county did not deem it his duty to enforce the excise law, although this is done by Sheriff Sommer in Essex county, and that the average saloonkeeper in Hudson county keeps his place of business open twenty-four hours a day for seven days in the week.

John McAuley, Chief of Police of West Hoboken, in reply to questions by Mr. Backes, said that nearly all the saloons in West Hoboken had back rooms or dance halls attached to them. He was sure they were closed on Sunday, but in answer to a question by Mayor Appleby said he never investigated to see whether the law was obeyed. He disclosed the fact that the town council had been in the habit of granting licenses to brewery collectors, and that when a man failed to make a saloon pay another man was put in his place, the brewery not even taking the trouble to have the license transferred.

West Hoboken has 165 saloons, an average of one to every 176 inhabitants. Asked if he knew anything about "Little Coney Island," he said he did, and that beer was not sold there on Sunday. This caused a laugh.

"Well, if you don't believe it," said Chief McAuley, "I will take the commission there on next Sunday and prove it."

"You don't have to ," said Mayor Fisk, "because I spent an hour there last Sunday and could get enough beer to swim in." Mayor Fisk with George J. Tobin made an auto tour of the district last Sunday.

Samuel Wilson, superintendent of the Civic Federation, told of the work he had done in connection with the enforcement of the Bishops' law. He said it was the hardest thing in the world to get a grand jury in Hudson county to bring in an indictment for excise violations. Out of sixty-six cases presented only sixteen indictments were found, although the evidence was strong in all of them.

He spoke of a place at the old Guttenberg racetrack, where he said races were run on Sunday and drinking was done publicly. As many as fifty or seventy-five men were at the bar, and three bartenders were kept busy quenching their thirsts. He also cited an instance of standing on the steps of the City Hall in Jersey City with the president of the Police Board one Sunday afternoon, and seeing a number of men going in the side door of a saloon across the street. One of his men tried to enter the place, but was not allowed, as he was told Wilson was around, no fear being expressed of the presence of the president of the Police Board.

Mayor Steil said he had very liberal views on the liquor question, and told the commissioners if saloons were open on Sunday less drunkenness and crime would result. He said the people in his city wanted a liberal excise law. Mr. Steil said his occupation as a brewery agent did not interfere with the enforcement of the law in Hoboken. He had not been in a saloon on Sunday in two years, although he believed there were some places open. Hoboken is a mile square city, and has 403 saloons, one to every 162 inhabitants, and the Mayor thought the number ought to be reduced.

Patrick Hayes, Chief of Police of Hoboken, said the people of his city were satisfied with the way the Bishops' law was enforced, and then asserted that no saloons were open on Sunday.

John J. Irwin, under Sheriff of Hudson county, said that when the Sheriff drew a grand jury he just picked out some of his friends. He said it was not true that it was impossible to get a grand jury in Hudson to find an indictment in an excise case, except some man who did

POLICE STOP BOROUGHITE; BUILDING WITHOUT PERMIT

Believing that the North Plainfield Council would readily grant him a building permit after the building was completed, Aaron Bender, of Somerset street, rose early today and started to build a chicken coop in the rear of his store. Chief Marshal Weiss heard him hammering and sawing away and saw the fundamental beams in position, so he ordered him to stop work and tear down what he had already built. The Chief explained that it was necessary to have a permit before a building could be constructed. Bender rebelled, stating that he thought the Council would let him build the coop and adding that he needed a place for his chickens "right away." The Chief remained firm and further added that unless the building was demolished by nightfall, the owner would be arrested. At this threat the building was rapidly demolished.

Bender's chicken coop measured about 7 by 5 feet and was to have been 5 feet in height. Despite the cock-sure attitude of the builder as to the granting of a permit, it is probable that the necessary permission will not be granted. The back yard of the Bender property is already pretty well filled with small buildings, including a wagon shed, another chicken coop and a dog house or two. If any action at all is taken by the borough fathers it will be an action to thin out these numerous out-buildings rather than increase their number.

Children Interested in Camp Work.

Many children in the Netherwood district of the city have become interested in the work of the King's Daughters baby camp on the mountains, and are doing what they can to swell the funds. On Monday several children sold lemonade and grape juice near their homes and realized fifty cents for the charity. Today Charles Ivins, Hayward Erickson, Wesley Johnson and Catherine Boardman are selling lemonade and grape juice at Watchung and Kensington avenues and judging by the patronage they will more than double the receipts of Monday. The efforts of the children have encouraged others and the scheme promises to be a popular one.

Fire at Brass Company's Plant.

A quantity of phosphorous, stored in a small building at the Manufacturers' Brass Works plant on Berckman street, became exposed to the air this afternoon and started a fire. Two barrels of crude oil were nearby and a serious blaze was threatened in the event of the flames reaching them. An alarm was turned in from box 63 and the fire department quickly put an end to the danger. The loss is placed at $25.

DEMOCRATS BRYAN MAD

"Peerless Leader" to be Nominated Tomorrow and Vice President on Friday.

MARTINE AS A CORRESPONDENT

"Farmer-Orator Really Makes a Speech—Committees Will Report Tomorrow—Wires from Denver.

(By James E. Martine.)

Denver, Colo., July 8.—Everything and everywhere is Bryan. Thank heavens. Tammany has marched itself into line for the grandest statesman. New Jersey is for Bryan completely despite the fact that it has previously endorsed Judge Gray, of Delaware. The Vice-Presidency has not been decided. But the man that Bryan wants will be named.

Tomorrow afternoon the nominations of President will be made. The nominations for Vice-President will not take place until Friday. I am having the time of my life The Committee on Resolutions will not be ready to report until tomorrow morning. The sub-committee on resolutions is having a hard time of it. The platform will be radical thank heavens. Bird Coler, of Brooklyn, has accused Pat McCarren and Jim Guffey of treachery.

Yesterday, James E. Martine made a speech at the Palace Royal Hotel before a big crowd. He told the West to stand fast for the Great Commoner; that the East would fall in line and that victory is in sight.

New Jersey, which has all along been numbered with the State opposing Bryan, made this opposition definite last night in caucus. By employing the unit rule the three Bryan delegates were deprived of recording their preference for the Nebraskan and the solid vote of 24 will be cast for Judge Gray for President thus defeating Robert Davis, the Hudson county boss.

Ex-Senator Smith has attended several informal conferences of Gray leaders and those opposing Bryan but he declared today that the conferences had failed to show enough votes to defeat Bryan for the nomination. Ex-Judge Carroll, of Camden county, who has been National Committeeman through Bryan's two previous campaigns, declined to return to the committee, even after he had been unanimously elected. He gave as his reasons increasing professional duties, although it is believed that his real reason was the fact that he did not wish to participate in the work of a committee which was to manage Bryan's campaign.

He was succeeded by Robert S. Hudspeth, of Salem county. The three Bryan delegates whose voice in the Presidential nomination will be nullified by the enforcement of the unit rule are Congressman James Hamill, ex-Congressman Allen Benney, and Eugene Kincaid, all of Jersey City.

Frank S. Katzenbach, who was the recent candidate for Governor, was made chairman of the delegation. Senator Smith was sent to the Resolutions Committee with instructions from the caucus to fight against the insertion of any anti-injunction plank in the platform. John Harding was named for the Organization Committee, William C. Rice for Credentials, Robert Davis is on the Presidential Notification Committee and C. L. Cole on the Vice-Presidential Notification Committee.

Virtually all the leading New Jersey Democratic leaders are here, having come to the convention more on an excursion than to participate in the nominations. After the convention the delegates and visitors accompanying them, about forty-five in all, will go on a trip through the Yellowstone Park in a special train, and the party will not reach home until July 23.

Wm. Britton Leaves the Hospital.

William Britton, of Orange place, who was kicked in the leg by his father's horse on North avenue, yesterday afternoon, was discharged from the hospital this morning, the injury not proving as serious as was at first supposed. The leg was badly lacerated, requiring a number of stitches, but Britton will be able to get around again within a few days.

Cycle Club Smoker.

A smoker and reception will be given in connection with the regular meeting of the Plainfield Cycle Club at the club rooms tonight, and a program of recitations, songs and phonograph selections has been arranged to while away the time after the business has been despatched.

A. F. Keeler.

A. F. Keeler, local agent for the Colonial Life Insurance Company, whose home was in Roselle, died last week in the Elizabeth General Hospital where he had been undergoing medical treatment. He was well known in this locality through his business relations.

SOMERSET'S FREEHOLDERS HAVE A BUSY SESSION

A special meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held yesterday at South Bound Brook, when the county road at that place was gone over and the culverts viewed. After this organization was effected at the Berkeley Hotel in Bound Brook. All the members were present, excepting Walter M. Vreeland.

Member Demler moved that the bridge known as the Reed bridge, be raised to the road grade, made three feet wider and the floor concreted. Carried.

The Township Committee of Bernards township asked that the board place a guard railing along a dangerous place on the road from Van Doren's mills to Somerset Inn. Members Joel Codington, John V. Bunnand William C. Paulson were appointed as a committee to look into the matter and report.

William J. Logan, as chairman of the committee on the new courthouse, reported that the contractor under the contract is allowed $,000 for the hardware and if the same costs more the board will be responsible for the difference; if less, the board will have the difference allowed, and that the bids for such hardware exceed the amount by about $350.

On motion the committee was authorized to contract for such hardware as in its judgment is right and proper, and the board will approve the action of the committee in expending the excess. Carried.

The board will meet on the Watchung road Monday, July 13, at 11 a. m.

GOLDEN EAGLES' OFFICERS INSTALLED BY DEPUTY MOORE

Deputy Grand Chief Moore and staff, of New Brunswick, had charge of the installation of officers at Freedom Castle, No. 42, K. G. E., and a large turn-out of members witnessed the ceremonies, which were followed by an informal social hour. The intense heat made the lodgemen get through with the installation as quickly as possible and the meeting was a short one. There was a brief address by the Deputy Grand Chief and short speeches by several of the local Golden Eagles. These officers were installed:

Clarence Van Doren, past noble chief; Arthur Caleen, noble chief; Clark Mundy, vice-chief; Frank Runyon, high priest; Walter Butts, venerable hermit; Frank Neidig, sir herald. Aside from these officers, there were several appointive officers who were formally installed.

POLLS ANNOUNCED FOR VOTING MACHINE BALLOTING.

Boroughites will decide the fate of the voting machine in North Plainfield elections at a special election Tuesday, July 2, when they will vote by ballot on the retention or abolishment of the mechanical form of ballot casting. This is in accordance with a ruling by the borough Council following a petition presented by Walter L. Linbarger signed by more than the legally required number of voters, and calling for a special election to decide the matter.

The polling places in the first district will be at police headquarters and the ballots of the second district voters will be received at the store at 90 Somerset street. The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 in the evening. The question will be put to vote in each district independent of the other.

Celebrated His Return.

William Coughlin, who formerly was a resident of North Plainfield, came to the borough from Perth Amboy, celebrated his return to town yesterday by developing a delightful "edge" in Somerset street. Borough Marshal Pope gathered him in late last night and put him in a cell. His assertion that he had to show up in Perth Amboy this morning for work won his release on bail from Chief Weiss. He will be given a hearing before Recorder Dolliver.

Belated Celebration of the Fourth.

A number of children living in the neighborhood of Grove street and Craig place enjoyed a belated Fourth of July celebration last night on the lawn back of the brick row on Grove street. They obtained some of the Japanese lanterns used at the Park Club, Saturday night, and illuminated the grounds and during the evening there was a display of pin-wheels, Roman candles and other fireworks.

Vote of Thanks for Magazines.

Following the presentation of the monthly reports and routine business at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library, last night, the thanks of the board were extended to J. Evarts Tracy for his gift of miscellaneous magazines.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk's family left yesterday for Saranac Lake where they will spend the summer.

BIKE THIEF CONFESSES

Judge Runyon Applies the "Salve" and Mute Prisoner Breaks His Silence.

ADMITS STEALING 5 WHEELS.

Police Believe He Is Still Holding Back On Others and Have Him Remanded Pending Investigation.

A liberal application of what the slang users call "salve" had a remarkable effect in the city court, this morning, in moving Lucius Taylor, a colored man, young in years but big in stature, to making a confession of numerous bicycle thefts. He has been locked up at headquarters since Sunday morning but had not been arraigned owing to the fact that he refused to acknowledge stealing more than one wheel while the police were practically certain that he had gotten away with six or seven. Efforts to get him to "open up" under the usual pressure met with failure and it remained for a soft soaping process by Judge Runyon to loosen his tongue.

The specific charge against Taylor was made by Joseph McIntyre, in behalf of his son, whose wheel had been stolen from the porch of his home. The young man recognized it as a colored boy rode by on the machine, although it had been painted over and so greatly changed that the maker wouldn't know it. The police were notified and the trail led back to Taylor, his arrest following. He indignantly denied taking the MacIntyre boy's wheel or one belonging to his father that had disappeared from the porch at the same time but acknowledged stealing one in Westfield. Beyond that he would say nothing.

When Taylor was brought into court today, Judge Runyon read the charges to him and explained his rights in the case. He announced that he would plead guilty to taking the bicycle in Westfield but nothing more.

"Now look here, Lucius," said the magistrate as he smiled a broad smile that would have melted a heart of stone, "just let's be friendly about this affair. You own up to taking one wheel and the chances are that you'll be punished for it. If you have stolen some more—and the police are pretty sure that you have—the effect will be about the same. I don't promise you any immunity but if you tell us everything we'll be your friends instead of devoting our energies to giving you the limit prescribed by law. You look like a fellow capable of using common sense so why don't you be decent and save the police a lot of work that will do you no good and only make them feel bitter toward you?"

Taylor had been shifting about uneasily while the judge was speaking and as he concluded, he exclaimed in an undertone:

"Well, I will tell the truth. I stole this wheel and that one and that one," and he pointed to the MacIntyre boy's machine and two others that Chief Kiely had stacked up at the desk.

"Tat's fine; now did you take any more?"

"Yes, I stole a man's wheel from the MacIntyre porch. A shoemaker on Watchung avenue gave me the loan of a dollar on it. I pinched one in Westfield that I sold to a barber on Grant avenue and that one there (indicating a machine in front of him) I took from a house at Greenbrook, just where the trolley swings off. That's all I stole, honestly."

Chief Kiely asked him if he remembered stealing Dr. Davis' wheel from the porch at his home several months ago but he replied that he had nothing to do with that one. The police head asserted that he knew Taylor was the thief as he had sold the machine to a Westfield man and could produce the buyer. The prisoner insisted, however, that he was innocent of this charge and the chief asked that he be remanded until the Westfielder could be brought to court. The request was granted.

Taylor is about twenty-four years old and has a physique that would make an athlete turn green with envy. He is six feet in height and has a magnificent chest and shoulder development set off by powerful arms that are a bunch of muscles. He has been living in New York since his release from the Union county jail two years ago when he served a term for chicken stealing on a complaint made against him by Mulford Cole, for whom he worked. He made occasional trips to Plainfield to visit relatives and the wheels were taken while he was on these junkets. His arrest was the result of clever work on the part of Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, who followed up slight clues and recovered the wheels in addition to capturing Taylor.

Miss Meeker Arrives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden E. Meeker are the parents of an eight-pound baby girl, born Sunday night.

RYCKOWSKI STILL HELD; POLICE INVESTIGATING

Frank Ryckowski, the big Slav who was arrested Monday at the complaint of Mrs. Max Weinberger, of Prospect place, as a suspicious character, was put through a rigid examination at borough police headquarters last night. He could give no complete story and was led back to his cell a prisoner until Chief Marshal Weiss can find out more about him.

The servant girl, employed by Mrs. Weinberger, whom he visited and who seemed so overcome by fright when she saw the man, testified all sorts of character-blackening things about him through Miss Anna Williams, who acted as interpreter in the hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver. She said that the address in New York he had given was a "fake" address, and that he never lived there. Ryckowski's statements last night were at best an unsatisfactory explanation of his record. He would not give the name of any friend who could vouch for him, and seemed alarmed when it was suggested that his wife in New York city be notified of his detention.

Two members of the Weinberger family are in New York today and will go to the address the man gave to see if he is known there. Chief Marshal Weiss is in communication with the metropolitan police.

PLAINFIELD'S HEALTH DURING MONTH OF JUNE

According to the reports of the Plainfield Board of Health at the July meeting, yesterday, the sanitary condition of the city has continued to be good. There was no increase in the number of communicable diseases reported during June over the previous month. The following shows the different diseases reported:

Scarlet fever, 4; no deaths; diphtheria, 1; one death; measles, 6; no deaths; tuberculosis, 7; one death; typhoid fever, 1; no deaths; chicken pox, 2; no deaths.

Four cases of communicable disease were reported on July 1 under quarantine. One case of scarlet fever was removed to the isolation ward of the hospital.

During the month the usual work on dairy inspection and milk analysis was followed. Forty-nine dairies were inspected, all of which were in fairly good condition and forty-two samples of milk were collected and analyzed. The average analysis follows:

Fats, 4.18; solids, 13.27; solids, not fats, 9.09; lactimeter, 113; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 56,426. But four samples were over 100,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter, the highest being 240,000. During the month considerable work was done in investigating the ice cream supply. This will be completed during the coming month.

The following permits were granted: To conduct a barber shop: Raffey Tozze, Harry Porsollo, James H. Bolling, Caruso & Co., George Kesselring, N. C. Sanphillippo; to sell milk: George H. Fredericks, Clarence O. VanOrden, John Findlay, Edward Coughlan to collect garbage: Freeman Starit, George Christiansen, W. L. Schenck. The following plumber's bonds were ordered filed: H. C. McVoy, Charles M. Raybert, C. W. Krausse, Christian Smith. The application of John McCarthy to sell milk was refused. The following returns were received at the office during June: Marriages, 14; births, 39; still-births, 1; deaths, 20; total, seventy-four.

Many Children at Netherwood Camp.

One hundred and fifty children from the tenement house district on the lower East Side of New York are now at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, which opened for the season Monday. Miss Sara Curry, matron of the camp, will bring about thirty more out from New York tonight. The summer vacation at the camp this season is especially beneficial to the little New Yorkers, for the weather has been particularly trying in the congested districts where their homes are.

Michael Kane Committed.

Michael Kane, the borough epileptic who was arrested last Friday night for disorderly conduct on Somerset street, was taken to the State Home for epileptics at Skillman. He was examined by Borough Physician A. H. Dundon and committed for an indefinite term. Borough Marshal Keller took him to Skillman this morning.

Elks Summer Schedule.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., will have an important meeting tonight to dispose of all matters previous to commencing the summer schedule. The next regular session will not be held until August 12.

MR. HOOLEY CABLES $100

WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS, $25.

Wm. J. Whelan, $10; H. F. Fox, $5; J. J. Stahl, $1—L. V. F. Randolph Gives His Views.

"Daily Press,
"Plainfield, N. J.
"Glad to contribute One Hundred Dollars. HOOLEY."

In such fashion has Edwin S. Hooley responded from Pitlochry, Scotland, to The Daily Press appeal for contributions for the proposed Cleveland monument fund. When Mr. Hooley, whose home paper is following him in his travels abroad, learned that a fund is being raised by twenty newspapers of the State, co-operating with a distinguished committing, including Governor Fort and Senators Kean and Briggs, he lost no time in helping along the worthy cause. Early this morning, the cablegram was received from him pledging the neat sum of one hundred dollars.

The Daily Press is not at all surprised at Mr. Hooley's good deed for it is characteristic of the man. When San Francisco was devastated by an earthquake, he telephoned from his New York office to this paper pledging $300 for a fund being raised by The Daily Press. He did this although he had already contributed $1,000 to the New York Stock Exchange fund for the same cause.

William L. Saunders, former mayor of North Plainfield, father of the city-borough annexation scheme and one of the most public spirited citizens in the community, has sent in a fine contribution. His check for twenty-five dollars was received at this office today. Mr. Saunders has just returned from the West and he expresses his pleasure in contributing to the fund. Like Mr. Gilbert, Mr. Saunders is a member of the State committee for the memorial, having accepted membership when requested to do so by former United States Senator James Smith, Jr.

William J. Whelan, manager of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, has sent in today his check for $10, with the statement that he is "proud to be able to contribute to a memorial for Mr. Cleveland." He adds that he is glad to know that there is no political significance in the movement "to perpetuate fittingly the memory of such a great statesman."

Hugh F. Fox, who is ever interested in philanthropic, charitable, religious and civic matters, has come to the front promptly. This morning The Daily Press received his check for Five Dollars.

Enclosed with his check, Mr. Fox writes: "I thoroughly endorse the movement. I am not very much given to hero worship, but Grover Cleveland has for many years been one of my heroes both in his political and private life."

This solicited expression has been received from Alexander Millar: "Replying to yours, my candid response is that I have never been able to get up any enthusiasm over Mr. Cleveland. The movement for a monument appears premature."

J. J. Stahl, one of North Plainfield's most prominent citizens, today contributed one dollar to the cause.

These contributions have been received at this office:

Edwin S. Hooley	$100
Ernest R. Ackerman	20
The Daily Press	10
David J. Carney	10
Prof. A. S. Herr	10
William J. Counihan	10
William J. Whelan	10

J. J. Stahl	1

Another reply to our personal appeal for aid has been received from former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph. Mr. Randolph's views are gladly published although he takes a firm stand against the movement, but he is in error when he believes that the movement is local. It is a State affair and liberal donations have been received already by many enterprising papers elsewhere. The list of distinguished Jerseymen who have accepted membership on the State Committee is most flattering, and shows that the proposition is devoid of political aspect. Here in Plainfield it includes such prominent men as former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House.

Here is Mr. Randolph's solicited letter:

William Peebles, daughter and son have been visiting in Plainfield.

WESTFIELD.

Monday was the hottest day so far this year in Westfield. At noon the official thermometer at Elm street and North avenue registered 104 in the shade. A horse attached to a loaded stone wagon dropped on Central avenue about noon and died in about an hour.

The annual excursion of the Westfield Methodist Episcopal and Congregational Sunday-schools will go to Asbury Park on Thursday, on a special train, leaving at 8:15 o'clock. The train will stop at Roselle for the Sunday-schools of Roselle and Roselle Park.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Knickerbocker A. C. team, which is scheduled to play the local team Saturday afternoon, is one of Newark's fast teams and will keep the home team busy to win out.

The electric light service on Front street has been poor for several nights past. The Public Service Corporation probably think the weather is too warm for light.

The heavy shower of yesterday was only a temporary relief from the heat, as the thermometer began to soar up in the nineties again as soon as it was over.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir, of Newark, have been spending several days with Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Myer, of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, of Front street, returned yesterday from a visit with elatives at Southhold, L. I.

Ernest Clark, who broke his leg by falling from his bicycle Thursday night, is improving nicely.

George H. Lyons, a former resident here but now of New York, is visiting friends in town.

Andrew Bozack has returned from a visit over the Fourth at his home at Bernardsville, N. J.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The merry-go-rounds and swings brought to town by an amusement company for the Jr. O. U. A. M. Independence Day carnival are still doing a good business back of the hall, and will remain in the borough for the rest of the week.

The borough Board of Education held its regular meeting at the Whittier School last night. Routine business, and the payment of a large budget of bills, occupied the school fathers' time during the session, which was a short one.

The Cheerful Workers of the First Baptist church are completing arrangements for a lawn party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abram G. Nelson Thursday evening, July 16.

During the past few days, boroughites have sought cool breezes on New Market pond and C. T. Rogers' boats have been in great demand for evening pleasure parties.

Mrs. Josephine Vance is spending a two weeks' vacation at Westerly, Rhode Island.

Will Not Lose Eyesight.

Gibson Fairman, of Dunellen, one of the Fourth of July victims at the hospital, will not lose his sight as at first supposed, although it will be some time before his face, which was badly burned, heals.

—Employes of the Public Service Corporation are making repairs to the tracks on West Front street in the vicinity of Grant avenue, where there were several bad spots in the roadbed.

GAITIES AT HOPATCONG.

Lake Is Now in the Full Tide of Busy and Delightful Season.

Lake Hopatcong, July 8—The lake is now the centre of midseason gaities and every one is making the most of the opportunity for sport and pleasure.

Stopping at the Sunnyside are Rev. R. T. Hodgran, Paterson; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Mills, H. W. Havens, Miss Florence Brown, of East Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cooley, of Plainfield.

Among the patrons at Bryant's Villa are: Mrs. L. Noll, Miss Alice LeBoeuf, Miss Mary L. Scanlon, East Orange; G. L. Bedell, Arthur F. Pierson, Newark; A. H. Winter, Montclair; Miss Mae Snedeker, Bloomfield.

A squad of eighteen members of Battery B, Independent Light Artillery, of Elizabeth, are encamped at Nolan's Point for ten days. They have a three-inch gun with them and are commanded by Lieutenant W. Carter and Second Lieutenant C. Finch.

Mr. and Mrs. James J. Turner and family, of Belleville, are at Komava Cottage, Castle Rock Park, for the season, and M. Steinfeldt, of Newark, and Ferdmand Bouvet, of Plainfield, are at Wawayanda Cottage.

At Undercliff Cottage, Castle Rock Park, are Charles C. Oliver and children, Misses Catherine, Grace, Edith and Edna, of Morristown. They recently entertained Freeland Green, Miss Ina Weiss, Walter Melick and William Messler, of Morristown.

Mrs. Elias Van Fleet's guests at "The Rocks" are Misses Cora and Carrie Wilcox, Gilbert Brokaw, Somerville; J. W. Monahan, Dunellen; Miss Eva Voorhees, Somerville.

At Camp Six are Former Assemblyman Abram Klenert, J. E. Stewart, Albert Villa, John W. Hogan, Dr. J. F. Hulley, Charles W. Atkinson, William McHood, Lewis Keppler, Herman Hohbliss, Daniel Fitzgibbons, Rudolph Mattheus, Detective-Sergeant Adolph Keppler, John Stewart, John H. Hurd and Edward Jarvis, all of Paterson.

113,589 MEN EMPLOYED BY PENNSYLVANIA R. R.

Statements from the relief department of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company show the membership of this department and the number of men employed by the company up until May 30, 1908.

This report shows that the company now employs 113,589 men, just 21,253 men less than they employed up until October of last year, which was several weeks before the company began paring down its expenses. The relief department has likewise suffered and against a membership of 103,348 last October, it now has 89,366.

The relief department has lost in membership because it is the policy of the company to require the employes to give up their relief books when they are laid off. When they are rehired they will have to take out a new book and the money paid into the relief department is lost.

The statement shows that in the neighborhood of 2,000 men have been laid off on each of the larger divisions, 2,005 men have been laid off with 1,550 men less in the relief department; on the Middle division 1,494 men have been laid off with 937 less in the relief department, and on the New York division 2,133 men have been laid off and 1,421 men less in the relief department.

On the grand division the forces have been reduced as follows: On the Eastern Pennsylvania division 8,480 men have been laid off and 4,891 men less in the relief; on the Western Pennsylvania division, 5,982 men have been laid off and 3,708 less in the relief; on the Northern Central Railroad, 1,580 men have been laid off and 1,251 less in the relief; Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, 1,172 men have been laid off and 1,432 less in relief; West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, 221 men have been laid off and 34 less in the relief. Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad, 538 men have been laid off and 271 less in the relief department.

DRUG STORE IS ONE-SIDED.

Asbury Park Proprietor Moves His Stock to Avoid Clause in Lease.

Asbury Park, July 8.—The following sign greets persons who enter the drug store of George E. Williams, on Kingsley street and Sixth avenue:

"Notice, the sale of drugs, toilet articles, perfumery, soaps, etc., must be confined to this side of this store."

When the store was leased it was supposed to be on restricted property, with a clause in the contract saying that no drug store should be placed upon the property within a certain length of time. When Dr. F. F. Coleman, who at one time owned the property, saw the place open as a drug store he had the property surveyed, and found that one-half of the store was on restricted land. When Williams learned this he moved his drug business over to the unrestricted side, and will continue to do business here until the case, which is to be taken to court is settled. The doctor will be represented by Aaron E. Johnston and the druggist by Samuel A. Patterson, as counsel.

Changes at Peddie Institute.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Corporators of Peddie Institute, Hightstown, plans were perfected for the change in the policy of the school, which hereafter will be for young men only, and $17,000 was appropriated for improvements during the summer, the most important of which will be the installation of a new central heating and lighting plant. The faculty list for next year shows that all the academic work will be done by men. Principal Swetland remains at the head of the institution.

Francis Foster, of East Seventh street, is spending a week with friends at Palmer, Mass. Later he will join his mother at Tolland, Mass., where he will spend the summer at the Tuxis Club.

15 Carloads of Enameled Ware

$6,684.00 Worth in a Single Purchase

This our way of making good times for the working people.

Another great order, surpassing the one we placed four weeks ago—stirring other merchants to activity, as we expected it would—and keeping enameled ware makers busy, for $6,684.00 worth of the famed Sterling Aluminum Double Coated Gray Enameled Ware has just been filled by the Central Stamping Co., of Newark. This order, if packed in cars, would fill fifteen ordinary freight cars or twelve large furniture cars. It is more enameled ware than will be found in all other Newark stores combined.

It is warranted strictly first quality—every piece of it.

We guarantee the ware; so does the Central Stamping Co.

These utensils are equal to any double coated gray enameled ware—made with a harder surface than any other because of its second coat of croyolite enamel.

There is not a piece in this lot worth less than 39c., and from that the values run to $2.19. This is an astonishing fact, but a fact nevertheless.

This lot embraces a greater variety of pieces than the previous purchase, and there are many more large-sized pieces, so that we expect to have enough for everybody. Besides, the sale will be on for three days:—

Encouraged by a couple of victories, the West Ends, of Somerville, will come to Plainfield Saturday and try conclusions with the Clinton Avenues on Crescent Oval, and they expect to win. It was rumored yesterday that "Lou" Wiltse will pitch for the Somervillians, and if this is true, there will be something doing. Clifford Randolph is not one bit afraid of the result, feeling confident that he can again turn the trick.

Manager Bogert Conklin has gotten together a strong aggregation of players and they are much stronger than when these teams first met a few weeks ago. The club will be accompanied by a large band of "rooters," and it is said that they will have plenty of money to back their team.

The Clinton Avenues are certainly entitled to the credit of being city champions. They have lost but a couple of games this season, which is quite remarkable considering the number of contests played. They are making a record to be proud of and promise to continue to play winning ball. It is possible that in the fall Manager Dorflinger will bring the Springfield, Connecticut State League team here for a game, and if possible to have "Warry" MacLaughlin oppose the home team.

A no score game with eight or ten hits on a side is a sight more interesting than any no hit game.

Larry Doyle is clouting the ball with sincerity and frequently for John McGraw, and that makes up for much of his awkwardness.

Outside of the box the Philadelphias appear to have one of the best rounded out teams in the big leagues, at least in mechanical ability.

If Sallee, of the Cardinals, and Falkenburg, of the Washingtons, would kindly stand back to back it would settle a momentous question as to which is the taller.

McGraw's trade with Boston looks better now than it did in the spring. Certainly Tenney fits in better in team play than McGann had been doing, though he isn't as reliable on low throws.

Some folks are bound to have Billy Murray manager of the Highlanders next season whether or no. Murray said last Saturday that the subject had never been discussed between him and Farrell in any way.

Jackson, which stands first in the Cotton State League, and Vicksburg, which stands second, have each won forty-six games. Vicksburg, however, has lost fifteen more games than Jackson. Seems to have been some curious weather twists in that neck of the woods.

President Pulliam last night mailed his opinion on the Pittsburg-Chicago alleged forfeited game in Chicago last Sunday afternoon, sending it to Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburg club, which made the protest. Mr. Pulliam declined to say what decision he had arrived at in the matter, preferring that Dreyfuss give it out if he cares to do so. The Pittsburg club was agitated because the Cubs would not play a double header with them in Chicago last Sunday. It seems that there was a postponed game from last April, and Manager Chance, of the Cubs, at the time fixed on last Sunday as a suitable day to play off the postponement. But he changed his mind and told Fred Clarke in Pittsburg last Saturday that there would be only one game the next day. When the next day arrived and there was no double header the Pittsburg people protested and laid the matter before Pulliam. No official notice was sent to league headquarters here regarding the playing of the postponed game, and it may be that for that reason the protest will not be sustained.

GOLF.

Although several golf tournaments are on the schedule for this week, they cannot be said to come under the head of local. Nearest home is the annual Connecticut championship, to begin today over the links of the New Haven Country Club. Among those eligible are M. K. Shepard, of New Haven, the title holder; Charles H. Seely, Wee Burn, the Metropolitan champion, and S. J. Graham, of Fairfield, runner-up to W. J. Travis at Apawamis on Saturday.

Members of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests have gone in force to Toronto, where their annual championship began yesterday at the Lambton Golf and Country Club. In addition to having an attractive program, lasting the entire week, the golfers are to be especially entertained each evening.

An open tournament began yesterday at the Country Club of Springfield and continues for four days. This club had to forego its tournament last year because of the fire which destroyed its home. There will be the usual medal play qualifying round.

Tom Gourlay, the Forest Hill Field Club professional, one of the first to come to this country, made a new professional record over his home links recently. The veteran reeled off a 73, better than anything yet made for the extended course. His 35 home was exceptionally clever.

Few amateurs, either on this or the other side of the Atlantic, can compare with Robert Abbott, of this city, when it comes to long driving. He gave an illustration of this while playing at Baltusrol recently. The twelfth hole is 262 yards, with a bunker guarding the green, and to clear this a hazard from the tee a carry of fully 250 yards is necessary. Abbott accomplished this unusual feat twice in succession.

Plans are making toward the organization of a new country club in the vicinity of Boston. There is a beautiful stretch of country between Belmont and Lexington, over which it is purposed to lay out an eighteen-hole course. As soon as one hundred members have been secured, the land under consideration will be leased for ten years.

TAFT'S DOUBLE AT SEASHORE.

Besieged by Crowds Who Try to Cut Off His Buttons.

Taft's "double" had a most perspiring time trying to break away from crowds at Atlantic City which tried to cut buttons from his coat and get pieces of his hatband as souvenirs. It required a squad of ten waiters yesterday to get him to a pier.

He was so angry over the crowd's audacity that, unlike the big statesman he resembled, he lost control of himself and punched three or four over-obstrusive men.

Frank Saffer, of Berkeley Heights, who underwent an operation at the hospital recently, continues to improve and he will return home within a few days.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will not take his vacation until August, when he and his family will go to Jeffersonville, Pa.

Rev. J. J. Cook, of West Virginia, a graduate of Crozier Theological Seminary, this year, is now installed as pastor of the Baptist church, Metuchen.

During the past two and a half years the Park Avenue Baptist church has paid $3,500 on its mortgage, thereby reducing the principal amount considerable.

The First Baptist church has a membership at present of 901, there being a loss during the past year of 100, chiefly by erasure. The gain by baptism was twenty-four, fifteen of these through the Faith chapel branch, and many united by letter.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, formerly of Dunellen, is meeting with much success as the temporary pastor of the Central Baptist church, Atlantic Highlands. The congregation would like to have him as permanent pastor, but he has declined to accept such a call.

Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly of Scotch Plains, who recently resigned as pastorate of the Baptist church, Lyons Farms, will sever his connections with the church September 1. The church has given Mr. Shott a vacation during July and August, while the edifice is being completed. On Sunday, August 2, he will preach at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

PERSONAL.

Miss Harriet Halloway, of Watchung avenue, is at Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y.

Miss Minnie Henry, of Jersey City, has returned home after a visit with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howell, of the borough, will spend their vacation at Southampton, L. I.

Mrs. Vail, mother of E. E. Vail, of Elmwood place, who has been seriously ill, is improving slowly.

Mrs. A. C. McCrea, wife of Rev. Dr. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, will spend the summer at Carlisle, Pa.

Taft and Victory!

"Bryan and Defeat" is the Democratic slogan.

We won't envy Robert E. Peary so long as this cool snap lasts.

Monsignor Fox favors the re-establishment of the whipping-post in New Jersey. How about November 3?

A speak-easy in Plainfield? Tush, tush—Mayor Fisk is tellin' 'em in Hudson county all about this model excise town.

If Russel Sage were alive, there's a certain foolish daughter who would be due for a good spanking over the paternal knee.

The steam-roller got to work at Denver with Pat McCarren as its victim, but it would be hardly possible to make "Long Pat" much thinner.

The trolley station has been removed from Watchung and North avenues to Watchung avenue and Fourth street. Such is the improvement in "the service"—for the Public Service.

Admirers of our good, consistent and misguided friend, James E. Martine, are planning to give him a dinner on his return from Denver. Why not buy him a ten acre lot where he can talk himself hoarse about a Bryan victory in November?

"I would like to find a place in New Jersey that is really dry," Mayor Fisk is quoted as having said yesterday at a meeting of the State Excise Commission, of which he is chairman. Well, Mr. Mayor, come right home and we'll show you one.

In recording the fact that the windy Nebraskan is sure of nomination, the Carlisle, Pa., Sentinel claps its wings and crows "This is great news," adding that "Bryan is the man to head the ticket." The Sentinel is right. The "safe and sane" Democracy can see Bryan now heading the ticket—up "salt river."

Plainfield is coming to the front, for the Cleveland monument fund has already attained handsome proportions. The Daily Press acknowledges receipt of $233 to date, including $100 cabled this morning by Edwin S. Hooley, who is abroad. Before the end of the week, we hope to be able to report to the New Jersey Committee the receipt of twice this amount. The local members of that committee comprise Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House; William L. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Company; Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church; Charles W. McCutchen, of Holt & Company; Charles J. Fisk, of the banking firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons, and Mr. Hooley.

ELIZABETH PAIR WINS IN EAST JERSEY TENNIS

Mrs. S. H. Church and Miles Charlock, of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club defeated Miss Mildred Wildey and C. M. Crapo, of the Plainfield Country Club, in the semi-final round of the mixed doubles for the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association trophy at the Park Club courts yesterday afternoon. The scores were 4-6, 6-2 and 6-1, and the match was marked by some brilliant tennis by both pairs. Miss Edna Wildey, paired with W. B. Cragin, a Country Club team, will meet Mrs. Church and Miles Charlock in the finals Saturday afternoon at the Park Club.

By winning their match yesterday, the Elizabeth pair won two more points for their club, making the total for the Elizabeth Town and Country Club nine points. By defeating the Plainfield pair in Saturday's match, the Elizabeth players will add three points to this score, but if the Plainfielders are victorious, the Country Club will get five points added to its present score.

ONE LONELY MACHINE IN ALL HACKENSACK.

A special election for the purpose of determining whether the voting machine should become a permanent fixture or whether it should be ousted altogether was held in the Third Ward in Hackensack last night. The ward is mostly Republican, and as the Democrats were instrumental in securing the election it was thought by many that the vote would be to retain the machine.

The final vote was 90 to 23 against the machine. The machine will now have to "skidoo." This is the fourth machine voted out in Hackensack during the past few months, and there is now only one ward that still retains the machine. The first, second, third and fifth are the wards that have voted the machine out, and the fourth will probably follow suit in a short time.

COLLINS' BRAVE RESCUE.

At Risk of Asphyxiation Pulls Boy from Sewer.

Without a moment's hesitation and at great risk to himself, Timothy Collins, a husky molder, rescued seven-year-old John McDonough from death through suffocation in a sewer manhole yesterday at Elizabeth.

The boy slipped into the hole through a barrel which covered it. He was unable to climb out again because part of the opening was covered with an iron grating. Several persons were nearby, but none of them made a move to aid McDonough until Collins appeared.

The latter threw off his coat, quickly descended to the sewer and brought the boy to the surface, much overcome by the heat. Collins was also slightly overcome.

McDonough's parents, who live on South Fifth street, later called at Collins' home, 514 Franklin street, in that city, and heartily thanked him for his bravery. He refused any pecuniary reward, but is the idol of his friends today.

LIGHTNING'S OLD FREAK.

Six Newarkers Shocked When Bolt Strikes Pole.

In the electrical storm at Atlantic Highlands yesterday afternoon lightning struck a tent at Ocean View, the six occupants of which almost miraculously escaped death. All were severely shocked. Those struck are Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Carlson, of 22 Green street; Mrs. Charles Cline and baby, Mrs. E. Reihmer and H. Ryno, all of 63 Bergen street, Newark.

They were sitting on the back porch of the tent, when a bolt hit the pole in front and shattered it into pieces. Had they been sitting in front all would probably have been instantly killed. Mrs. Reihmer was thrown to the floor unconscious, Mrs. Cline's baby was thrown from her lap and a picture of a tree was photographed on Mr. Ryno's arm. Besides, all were badly burned. Dr. John H. Van Mater, of Atlantic Highlands, was summoned in an automobile, and succeeded in getting them all out of danger.

Boonton May Have Nine Saloons.

The Common Council of Boonton Monday night passed an ordinance repealing the ordinance allowing one saloon for every 500 inhabitants and allowing nine saloons irrespective of population. This was done because of the dispute as to whether the town was entitled to nine or not.

COLLINS FOR MAYOR?

General Likely to Be Choice of Elizabeth Democrats.

While the hot weather has to a great extent dulled the political ardor of the workers here, there is enough "advance information" concerning booms and near booms to make the situation interesting in Elizabeth.

It is a foregone conclusion that Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, head of Breidt's brewery and president of the City Council, will be the Democratic candidate for Mayor. He has resigned the chairmanship of the County Committee, and after returning from Sea Girt will start his campaign.

There is much guessing as to General Collins' Republican opponent, however. Among the names mentioned are those of former Mayor Samuel Berry and Dr. Victor Mravlag. The latter made a stir a couple of years ago as a Council member, and should he be the nominee to oppose Collins the campaign will be a sizzling one.

"Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, of this city, will very likely be the nominee of the Democrats of this district to succeed Charles N. Fowler in Congress; although there is talk of Benjamin H. Campbell, a former member of the State Board of Education and principal of the Columbia School, of New York. If Fowler fails to land the Republican nomination it is likely that the candidate will come from Morris county.

Raritan to Co-operate.

At a meeting of the Board of Commissioners in Raritan yesterday a communication was received from the Common Council of Plainfield, in which it was suggested that Raritan co-operate with other towns in forming a sewage disposal works somewhere near tidewater. The matter was thoroughly discussed and a committee, consisting of members Cornelius Creeden and Thomas Richards, with Counsel John F. Reger, was appointed to confer with committees from other towns.

Rescued Sailor Identified.

The sailor who was pulled out from under a pier at the foot of Newark street Monday and taken apparently unconscious to St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, was identified last night by Fred Brown, of 252 Cambridge avenue, Jersey City, as Harvey Glover, of the United States submarine boat Cuttlefish. The young man's condition has puzled the hospital staff. He swallows food placed in his mouth, but keeps his eyes closed and seems to be in a stupor. He did not recognize Brown.

Out of Hasbrouck Heights.

Hackensack Heights yesterday voted, 92 to 39, to dispense with the use of voting machines.

NO ACTION IN BAYONNE.

Mandamus Suit Must Settle Fate of Voting Machines.

The Common Council of Bayonne last night declined to order an election on the voting machines. Councilman Melniker stated that he had investigated the petitions and found many apparent frauds in them. In one case, he said, a whole page of names was evidently written by one man.

The Republicans declared that nothing will be done until the matter is threshed out before Chief Justice Gummere, in Newark, Saturday, in the mandamus proceedings brought by the Democrats.

Dies from the Heat.

Overcome by the excessive heat, Eli P. Dow, seventy-nine years old, a prosperous farmer of Pluckemin, who had been suffering from heart disease for some time, dropped dead near his home yesterday. He leaves a widow and twons sons, James and William Dow, both residents of Somerset county. The funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin tomorrow. Rev. Thomas D. Wesley, the pastor, will officiate, and burial will be in the cemetery at that place.

Voting Machine Election.

As a result of the petitions circulated among the citizens of the six election districts of Bridgewater township, including the towns of Somerville, Raritan and Martinsville, the Township Committee has designated Thursday, August 13, as the date for holding a special election to determine whether or not the voting machines be retained or rejected.

Agreed to Disagree.

Michael Higgins, of East Second street, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a disorderly conduct charge preferred by his wife. The matter was threshed out and proved to be a family jar. At Mrs. Higgins' suggestion, husband and wife agreed to separate and Judge Runyon suspended sentence with this understanding.

Auto Turned Turtle.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maddock, of Trenton, were going to their summer home at Titusville late Monday night, when a bursting tire caused their automobile to skid and turn turtle down a steep embankment leading to the Delaware River. By a miracle neither was hurt, but the machine was badly wrecked.

"You ask my 'views' about the Cleveland monument. Monuments to men are rarely sudden. The Israelites, upon crossing the Jordan to the promised land, immediately set up twelve stones at Gilgal, but the memorial was to the event and not to honor any one man. Monuments to men should be, and are, considered until the thought it sufficiently mature to be operative and to be commensurate with its purpose. Before being put in motion, such a thought should be submitted to the family of the man to be honored, and who have a right to be consulted, and, probably also, to others, whose opinion, advice and authority are of such a character as to carry weight. Moreover, Grover Cleveland was never a popular hero. He was never an idol of the nation, compelling applause or monuments. This fact in no sense diminishes his merit. But it remains true that in no act of his life—and certainly not in his death—has there been suitable inspiration for a spontaneous movement to erect for him a monument. Still further, the movement to raise a monument to Mr. Cleveland at present must be futile, and can serve no purpose beyond attesting the enterprise of The Daily Press—of which, without this, evidences are sufficiently abundant—and the advertisement of a few names of highly distinguished citizens. Mr. Cleveland's monuments of various sorts are with us. Others may appear in the ripeness of time. Any monument to him now suddenly raised would be cheap and puerile—ill-considered, untimely and undesirable.

WHEN A GIRL WEDS.

If girls would only exercise common sense when discussing the future with prospective partners and dispose of money matters before marriage, they would escape a world of discomfort. It is a mystery why any woman should feel hesitation in finding out on what sum she is expected to dress and pay her little personal expenses. If she has a father it is his place to learn what income his future son-in-law can command; how much he has in savings and the amount of his debts. The lack of a father places this duty upon a mother's shoulders, and when a girl has to decide her own future she should do it in as businesslike a manner as she would discuss wedding details.

A wife who is ignorant of her husband's financial affairs occupies a difficult position. She never knows if she is justified in any expense even for her home. If her husband has not begun his new life by placing her above the humiliation of asking for money for her needs, she is bound to wear herself out in dread of refusal of such requests. Each passing year increases the discomfort of her position, and if hard times descend on them it will find her unequal to the struggle. It is not sordid in the least to discuss money matters before marriage when money is as much a necessity as food, since it is needed for the purchase of that and every other thing we need.

If she is given a definite allowance each week she knows exactly how to plan, and when the rainy day comes it is generally discovered that she has a neat sum laid away.

Betting In the Nursery.

"Mamma," said her boy, "I just made a bet."

"What was it?" she asked.

"I bet Billy my cap against two shoe buttons thaut you'd give me a penny to get some apples with. You don't want me to lose my cap, do you?"

He got the penny.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

not "stand in." He denied that the present Sheriff had promised the saloonkeepers not to enforce the excise law if elected.

He said that Sheriff Kaiser, before being elected, was a collector of internal revenue, and had a personal acquaintance with every saloonkeeper in the county. He said the Sheriff of Hudson county never tried to enforce the Bishops' law, and would not volunteer.

Chief of Police Tolen, of Kearny, said that every effort was made to enforce the law. Kearny has nineteen saloons, one to every 715 inhabitants, which is the high record of the county and is very much different from Guttenberg, where a population of 4,563 support forty-seven saloons, an average of one to every seventy-nine inhabitants.

Patrick Connolly, a Jersey City saloonkeeper, said the Bishops' law was not strictly observed. Popular feeling was against it, he said, and, although the order had gone forth, the saloonkeepers paid no attention to it.

Later Mr. Lippincott said, in answer to more of Mr. Backes' questions, that he thought, perhaps, two-thirds of the 1,048 saloons in Jersey City are owned by brewers. He said he would try and ascertain this fact and bring a list to the commission of all such places. Mr. Lippincott said he could not truthfully say whether there were any Sunday violations, nor did he think there could be any co-operation between his and the police boards.

Mortimer J. Gleason, president of the Jersey City Police Board, said the "town's comparatively tight." Mr. Fisk asked Gleason why it was "there have been so many leaks since January 1," and Gleason said he could not tell. It was true, he admitted, "that since that time Jersey City has commenced to loosen up a bit." He knew of no place where liquor could be bought on Sundays, whereupon Mr. Fisk read a list of twenty-seven saloons in Jersey City where he stopped last Sunday. The president of the commission did not say he drank in each place, but did declare he saw others drinking.

"If I can find these places out, don't you think your police department might?" asked Mr. Fisk, to which Mr. Gleason replied affirmatively. "That's what puzzles me," said Gleason. "Our orders to the chief have been explicit and I have told him personally we want the law enforced. I can hardly believe what you tell me only from the authority it comes from."

Gleason said his board was fully in accord with Mayor Wittpenn, which made that official, who sat in the rear, smile serenely. He denied there was any "higher up" power.

"But isn't it a fact now," asked Mr. Fisk, "that when the Mayor gives orders to the chief and captains to enforce the law the chief and captains get other orders and are told to mind their own business?"

"Not to my knowledge," replied Gleason.

"Well, it's very funny," commented Mr. Fisk, "when the Mayor says he wants the law carried out the president of the Police Board comes here and says he does, also, and the chief of police says he can do it if he's let alone, and I can come into town and get all the liquor I want on Sunday almost anywhere. I tell you what I do up in Plainfield. If a want anything done I send for the man and say so. I tell him 'you obey the laws or get out,' and he obeys. And if I was Mayor of Jersey City I'd come pretty near finding out who's to blame."

Chief of Police Michael Rodgers, of Harrison, said there was not much Sunday selling in his town. "Where there is," he said, "we try to catch them." Rodgers said a lot of "panhandlers" came over from Newark every Sunday afternoon, due to the fact that Sheriff Sommer had closed the saloons there. Clarence Van Deeren, of the Town License Committee, said he had never revoked a license.

The commission took away with it four half-pint flasks of "third rail" whiskey, which will be sent to the state chemist for examination. These were purchased in Jersey City at a cost of 10 cents each, flask included.

GERMANY'S GREAT VITALITY.

In the German empire the records of vital statistics are so accurate and complete that they may be taken as substantially perfect authority upon the movement of the population. These reports showed 2,084,739 births in 1906 and only 1,174,464 deaths. The margin on the side of life was 910,000, in round figures. That is an extraordinary surplus in a country so old and so densely populated as Germany. It is probably the largest excess of births over deaths which is to be found in any country of the world among a white population of practically one race. Russia alone excepted. In the United States the vital statistics are so imperfect and incomplete that it is impossible to determine accurately the normal excess of births over deaths. It is probably less than the German average of 900,000 a year, although the population of this country is fully 25,000,000 greater than that of Germany.—Cleveland Leader.

MACARONI GOOD FOOD FOR SUMMER WEATHER.

As a substitute for meat, not only during Lent but in summer days, macaroni will be found bothh palatable and wholesome. When combined with cheese the very nutritive elements to be derived from meat are obtained—carbohydrates from the macaroni and nitrogen from cheese. When prepared withh meat macaroni can be the chief dish for a meal.

Macaroni is an Italian invention, and until recently its manufacture was almost exclusively maintained in Italy and France. However, not only the finest wheat now grown for its preparation is raised in the United States, but there are several large factories in this country devoted exclusively to its production. The wheat from which it is prepared must be rich in gluten, and after being washed is hulled, then ground in water mills. Five different qualities are obtained from an equal number of siftings, the last giving the finest and most delicate that can be made.

Hot water is added to the flour until it is of the consistency of stiff doughh, which is then put into a cylindrical cast-iron vessel having the bottom perforated with holes or slits. When the vessel is filled with the paste a heavy iron plate is driven in by powerful pressure, and the paste is forced through the holes—workmen cutting off the tubes the desired length. During this process the paste is partially baked by a fire under the cylinder, and after being hung up for a few days it is ready for use. The largest tubes are called macaroni, medium-sized spaghetti, smaller vermicelli, and the tiniest thread-like ones (seldom used in this country, however) fedelini. Vermicelli is often added to soup (after being cooked), and is the basis for some sweet puddings.

Macaroni of all sizes, no matter in what combination used, is generally broken into one to three-inch lengths and first boiled very rapidly in salted boiling water. The water must boil vigorously during the entire time in order to keep the pieces separated. The usual size—half-inch in diameter—requires about forty-five minutes to a half-pound of paste in three quarts of water. After thirty minutes it should be tested every five minutes, and removed when tender. Vermicelli cooks in about ten minutes, while spaghetti requires from twenty-five to thirty-five minutes. When tender turn at once into a colander or sieve and pour cold water through to remove the excess of starch and prevent stickiness, then drain thoroughly.

Very often it will be found more practicable to put cheese through the potato ricer, or if it is too dry for that, through the meat chopper rather than spend time grating it.

Passaic to Vote August 25.

Eight of the twelve election districts of Passaic last night petitioned the City Council to order a special election to decide whether voting machines shall be continued. The election will be held August 25 and will cost the city $1,200. All twelve election districts are equipped with voting machines.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Miss Bertha Cuthbert, of Freehold, was overcome by the heat yesterday, while walking on Second street, Millville.

Jersey's hay crop is reported above the average in returns to the State Board of Agriculture, but the grain yield is short.

In winding up his Fourth of July celebration yesterday Frank Garbrino, of East Vineland, had the sight of the left eye destroyed.

The first buying of Jersey potatoes this season began at Woodstown yesterday, with offers of $2.25 a barrel from New York and Newark commission agents.

Atop of a load of farm products, which he was driving to market, Harry Nestler, forty-three years old, of Pleasantville, was found dead by the police at Arctic and California avenues, Atlantic City, yesterday.

G. William Beck, a Vineland jeweler, ran his boat on the mud bank of the Maurice River last night, and was almost devoured by mosquitoes while waiting five hours for the tide. His friends here gave him a great welcome home.

Several farmers south of Millville appeared before Mayor Smith and asked him to take steps to stop automobilists from speeding rapidly past horses. Jere Johnson, one of the farmers, was thrown from his buggy yesterday while driving and severely injured.

A funeral far out of the usual was that yesterday afternoon, which was also the first double event of that character ever held in the Methodist Episcopal church, Glassboro, when the remains of Mrs. Mary A. Andrews and her son, Samuel C. Chester, were laid to their final rest. The mother was ninety-six years of age, the son sixty-four.

Attempting to cross the trolley subway at Edgewater Park by walking over the overhead Pennsylvania Railroad trestle at 11 o'clock last night, Bell Jackson, a young colored woman of Langhorne, Pa., fell through between the ties 25 feet into a five-foot flood. With possibly some ribs broken, the woman was pulled out and sent on a Camden car to Cooper Hospital.

A young Hollander, with an unpronounceable name, familiarly known as "Mets," has been missing from Edma since June 25. That morning he bade his wife and little child the usual affectionate good-by and started for work. Senator Robert Hand has promised to supply the wife with funds to return to her parents in Holland if her husband does not soon return.

Two colored men broke jail in Woodstown yesterday, and then hunted up Constable Hollsworth, who had arrested them two hours before, and demanded their valuables, including $3 in cash, which the constable, according to custom, had taken from them when arrested. The constable was dumfounded by the nerve of the two men, but he lost no time in hustling them back to jail.

Convinced of the economic value of temperance among its employes, the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, in East Burlington, the city's largest industry, has determined to rigidly enforce the rule against use of intoxicants by men during hours of duty. Notices have been posted to the effect that intoxication on the premises and the bringing of intoxicants into the works will be ground for immediate dismissal.

Armed with a razor, a pistol and a knife, George Graham, of Burlington, who carried his Fourth of July celebration over to yesterday, is charged by the police with trying to make war upon the entire Italian settlement in East Burlington. Graham is alleged to have carved up four of the foreigners. His retreat toward the open country was well ordered until a detail of police, in answer to a riot call, outflanked and ambushed him. He got a hearing last evening, when his much bandaged victims, through interpreters, testified to his warlike crusade.

WANTS SEWAGE PLANT BEGUN.

State Board of Health Urges Asbury Park Council to State Work.

Asbury Park, July 8.—City Council last night received a communication from the State Board of Health, extending the time for installing the septic disposal plant for this city until June 1, 1909. Superintendent John L. Coffin, of the water department, in a letter sent with the communication, urged that Council take the matter up at once.

Since the test of conditions must be made in the summer, when the largest number of persons are here and the sewage is the greatest, it was urged that a sanitary engineer be employed at once so that data may be collected and the work commenced before next summer. The matter was referred to a committee with power to employ an engineer.

ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Plainfield People Have a Weak Part And Too Often It's the Back.

Everyone has a weak spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up, day and night.
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Plainfield people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, of 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder troubles for a long time, and doctored with physicians for same, each time without being cured. In July, 1905, pI saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to get a box at Randolph's drug store and give them a trial. I did so, and with good results, as they regulated the kidneys and got the bladder into a proper condition. If this cure proves to be a permanent one, as I have every reason to believe it will, I will always recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Furnace troubles are very real. A cold, uncomfortable house is a menace. You are risking colds—possibly pneumonia—and your coal bills are higher than they would be with a clean, bright fire. The will keep your house warm in every nook and corner. Never clog, leak gas or dust, and use only three-quarters of the coal with one half the trouble. Have any dealer in Boynton Furnaces explain their many superior points.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

CHAUFFEUR, DRUNK, RUNS DOWN WOMAN.

Atlantic Highlands, July 8.—Struck by an automobile going forty miles an hour at Highlands yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Margaret Dunwoodie, of 155 East 106th street, New York, is in the Long Branch Hospital so seriously injured that it is not thought she will recover. The accident occurred at the steep hill leading to the Highlands station. The hill has always been regarded as a very dangerous place, as the road makes a sharp turn at the beginning of the steep incline.

Mrs. Dunwoodie, with her daughter and grandson, was walking up the hill to take a trolley for Ocean View, near Atlantic Highlands, where she has a cottage. The chauffeur was drunk, and as he sped down the hill the powerful machine swerved and struck Mrs. Dunwoodie, who was dragged fifteen feet, the auto plunging up the embankment at the side of the road. She was picked up and Dr. Reed, of Seabright, was summoned. He found that her left arm was injured internally. She was rushed to the Long Branch Hospital.

The chauffeur and two of the occupants of the machine were arrested; two others escaped. The New Jersey number of the machine is 6543. The owner gave his name as Bedell, but this is believed to be fictitious.

WATCHING CREAMERIES.

Trenton, July 8.—The State Board of Health has commenced this week a new crusade against the creamery owners of New Jersey who are violating the law against uncleanliness. Inspector George W. McGuire is in charge and deputy inspectors are at work in all parts of the State looking for violators.

The new regulations provide that creameries must be kept very clean; must be removed from all filth or sources of contagion; must be screened against flies; must be floored with impervious substances, and no stables, pigsties or living apartments must be connected with places used for the handling of milk or other dairy products.

It is also required by the new laws that every creamery must be equipped with a live steam sterilizing plant for the cleaning of utensils; pure water must be used; attendants must wear white attire and keep their hands clean; cats and dogs must be excluded, and no one suffering with a contagious or infectious disease or suspected of such suffering must be allowed about the plants.

TRAIN HITS BAGGAGE TRUCK.

Trunks and Contents Scattered About but No Person is Injured.

High Bridge, July 8.—While passengers on Central Railroad train No. 5, westbound, were being transferred with baggage to the High Bridge branch train, Monday, an eastbound coal train collided with a heavy truck loaded with baggage.

The truck was wedged tightly underneath a passenger coach of the westbound train. Trunks were badly broken and carried a considerable distance along the tracks and wearing apparel scattered in all directions. Assistant Agents Heller and Wyckoff narrowly escaped injury. Fearing that the passenger trains would be hit passengers crowded out through doors and windows. Several women fainted, but no one was injured. Failure of the brakes to work on the eastbound train caused the accident.

HEAT MADE HIM VIOLENT.

Elizabeth Police Called by Family to Take Dr. Trigg to Hospital.

Elizabeth, July 8.—Dr. Trigg, a physician in this city, became suddenly violent at his residence, Cherry street and Westfield avenue, last evening, owing to the excessive heat.

His condition grew so serious that his family telephoned to police headquarters and a patrolman sent to the house brought him to the station.

Two hours later he became somewhat quieter and Dr. Wagner was called in to examine him. He ordered the patient removed at once to the Elizabeth General Hospital, where today he was said to be resting easier.

A Cleveland Monument.

A part of the Cleveland resolution to be presented by Judge Parker to the Democratic national convention at Denver, requests, in the name of the party, the Democratic members of the Senate and the House of Representatives "to take steps to insure the erection in Washington at the earliest day possible of an adequate national monument to Grover Cleveland." Warmly indorsing the proposition, the Washington Star thinks Congress "might hesitate upon the plan to appropriate Federal funds for such a purpose." Congress has appropriated funds for monuments to public men not more worthy of them than Grover Cleveland, twice chosen President. But whatever the fate of Judge Parker's resolution, the original proposition of The Newark Star that a monument to Cleveland be erected by voluntary popular subscription is more appropriate. The subscribers, and it is designed that pennies shall count as well as dollars, will feel more of a personal interest in such a monument than in one erected by Congress. The people would feel that they were doing it themselves; that it was their own tribute.—Newark Star.

She rested her chin upon the sill of the window and gazed at the stars. A wild rush of the wind beat upon her face, bringing a thousand vague heavy perfumes and a pleasant numbing. How cleverely she had eluded the duke's police! What a brilliant idea it had been to use her private carriage key to steal into the carriage compartment long before the train was made up! It had been some trouble to light the lamps, but in doing so she had avoided the possible dutiful guard. He had peered in, but, seeing that the lamps were lighted, concluded that one of his fellows had been the rounds.

The police would watch all those who entered or left the station, but never would they think to search a carriage into which no one had been seen to enter. But oh, what a frightful predicament she was in! All she possessed in the world was a half-crown, scarce enough for her breakfast. And if she did not find her governess at once she would be lost utterly, and in Dresden! She choked back the sob. Why couldn't they let her be? She didn't want to marry any one—that is, just yet. She didn't want her wings clipped before she had learned what a fine thing it was to fly. She was young.

"Oh!"

"What is it?" she said, turning.

"I have something of yours," answered Max, fumbling in his pocket, grateful for some excuse to break the "'Permit Me to Return It to You.'" silence. "You dropped your purse this morning. Permit me to return it to you. I hadn't the remotest idea how I was going to return it. In truth, I had just made up my mind to keep it as a souvenir."

She literally snatched it from his extended hand.

"My purse! My purse! And I thought it was gone forever!" hugging it hysterically to her heart. She feverishly tried to unlatch the clasps.

"You need not open it," he said quietly, even proudly. "I had no thought of looking into it, even to prove your identity."

"Pardon! I did not think. I was so crazy to see it again." She laid the purse beside her. "You see," with an hysterical catch in her voice, "all the money I had in the world was in that purse, and only heaven knows what misfortunes were about to befall me. There were, and are, a thousand crowns in the purse."

"A thousand crowns?"

"In bank-notes. Thank you, thank you! I am so happy!"—clasping her hands. Then, with a smile as warm as the summer's sun, she added: "You may—come and sit close beside me. You may even smoke."

Max grew light-headed. This was as near heaven as he ever expected to get.

"Open your purse and look into it," he said. "I'm a brute; you are dying to do so."

"May I?"—shyly.

Then it came into Max's mind, with all the brilliancy of a dynamo spark, that this was the one girl in all the world, the ideal he had been searching for; and he wanted to fall at her feet and tell her so.

"Look!" she cried gleefully, holding up the packet of bank-notes.

"I wish," he said boyishly, "that you didn't have any money at all, so I could help you and feel that you depended upon me."

She smiled. How a woman loves this simple kind of flattery! It tells her better what she may wish to know than a thousand hymns sung in praise of her beauty.

But even as he spoke a chill of horror went over Max. He put his hand hurriedly into his vest pocket. Fool! Ass! How like a man! In changing his clothes at the consulate he had left his money, and all he had with him was some pocket change.

The girl saw his action and read the secret in the look of dismay which spread over his face.

"You have no money either?" she cried. She separated the packet of notes into two equal parts. "Here!"

He smiled weakly.

"Take them!"

"No, a thousand times, no! I have a watch, and there's always a pawnbroker handy, even in Europe."

"You offered to help me," she insisted.

"It is not quite the same."

"Take a quarter of it."

"No. Don't you understand? I really couldn't."

"One, just one, then!" she pleaded.

An idea came to him. "Very well; I will take one." And when she gave it to him he folded it reverently and put it away.

"I understand!" she cried. "You are just going to keep it; you don't intend to spend it at all. Don't be foolish!"

"I shall notify my friend, when we reach Doppelkinn, that I am without funds, and he will telegraph to Dresden."

"Your friends were very wise in sending you away as they did. Aren't you always getting into trouble?"

"Yes. But I doubt the wisdom of my friends in sending me away as they did,"—with a frank glance into her eyes. How beautiful they were, now that the sparkle of mischief had left them!

She looked away. If only Doppelkinn were young like this! She sighed.

"Can they force one to marry in this country?" he asked abruptly.

"When one is in my circumstances."

He wanted to ask what those circumstances were, but what he said was: "Is there anything I can do to help you?"

"You are even more helpless than I am,"—softly. "If you are caught you will be imprisoned. I shall only suffer a temporary loss of liberty; my room will be my dungeon-keep." How big and handsome and strong he looked! What a terrible thing it was to be born in purple! "Tell me about yourself."

His hand strayed absently toward his upper vest pocket and then fell to his side. He licked his lips.

"Smoke!" she commanded intuitively. "I said that you might."

"I can talk better when I smoke," he advanced rather lamely. "May I, then?"—gratefully.

"I command it!"

Wasn't it fine to be ordered about in this fashion? If only the train might go on and on and on, thousands of miles! He applied a match to the end of his cigar and leaned back against the cushion.

"Where shall I begin?"

"At the beginning. I'm not one of those novel readers who open a book at random. I do not appreciate effects till I have found out the causes. I want to know everything about you, for you interest me."

He began. He told her that he was a German by birth and blood. He had been born either in Germany or in Austria, he did not know which. He had been found in Tyrol, in a railway station. A guard had first picked him up, then a kind-hearted man named Scharfenstein had taken him in charge, advertised for his parents and, hearing nothing, had taken him to America with him.

"If they catch you," she interrupted, "do not under any consideration let them know that you were not born in the United States. Your friend, the American consul, could do nothing for you then."

"Trust me to keep silent, then." He continued: "I have lived a part of my life on the great plains; have ridden horses for days and days at a time. As a deputy sheriff I have arrested desperados, have shot and been shot at. Then I went east and entered a great college; went in for athletics, and wore my first dress suit. Then my foster parent died, leaving me his fortune. And as I am frugal, possibly because of my German origin, I have more money than I know what to do with." He ceased.

"Go on," she urged.

"When the Spanish war broke out I entered a cavalry regiment as a trooper. I won rank, but surrendered it after the battle of Santiago. And now there are but two things in the world I desire to complete my happiness. I want to know who I am."

"And the other thing?"

"The other thing? I can't tell you that!"—hurriedly.

"Ah, I believe I know. You have left some sweetheart back in America." All her interest in his narrative took a strange and unaccountable slump.

"No; I have often admired women; but I have left no sweetheart back in America. If I had I should now feel very uncomfortable."

Somehow she couldn't meet his eyes. She recognized, with vague anger, that she was glad that he had no sweetheart. Ah, well, nobody could rob her of her right to dream, and this was a very pleasant dream.

"The train is slowing down," he said suddenly.

"We are approaching the frontier." She shaded her eyes and searched the speeding blackness outside.

"How far is it to the capital?" he asked.

"It lies two miles beyond the frontier."

Silence fell upon them, and at length the train stopped with a jerk. In what seemed to them an incredibly short time a guard unlocked the door. He peered in.

"Here they are, sure enough, your excellency!" addressing some one in the dark beyond.

An officer from the military household of the Prince of Doppelkinn was instantly framed in the doorway. The girl tried to lower her veil; too late.

"I am sorry to annoy your highness," he began, "but the grand duke's orders are that you shall follow me to the castle. Lieutenant, bring two men to tie this fellow's hands,"—nodding toward Scharfenstein.

Max stared dumbly at the girl. All the world seemed to have slipped from under his feet.

"Forgive me!" she said, low but impulsively.

"What does it mean?" His heart was very heavy.

"I am the Princess Hildegarde of Barscheit, and your entering this carriage has proved the greatest possible misfortune to you."

He stared helplessly— And everything had been going along so nicely—the dinner he had planned in Dresden, and all that!

"And they believe," the girl went on, "that I have eloped with you to avoid marrying the prince." She turned to the officer in the doorway. "Colonel, on the word of a princess, this gentleman is in no wise concerned. I ran away alone."

Max breathed easier.

"I should be most happy to believe your highness, but you will honor my strict observance of orders." He passed a telegram to her.

"Search train for Doppelkinn. Princess has eloped. Arrest and hold pair till I arrive on special engine.

"BARSCHEIT."

The telegraph is the true arm of the police. The princess sighed pathetically. It was all over.

"Your passports," said the colonel to Max.

Max surrendered his papers. "You need not tie my hands," he said calmly. "I will come peaceably."

The colonel looked inquiringly at the princess.

"He will do as he says."

"Very good. I should regret to shoot him upon so short an acquaintance." The colonel beckoned for them to step forth. "Everything is prepared. There is a carriage for the convenience of your highness; Herr Ellis shall ride horseback with the troop."

Max often wondered why he did not make a dash for it, or a running fight. What he had gone through that night was worth a good fight.

"Good-by," said the princess, holding out her hand.

Scharfenstein gravely bent his head and kissed it.

"Good-by, Prince Charming!" she whispered, so softly that Max scarcely heard her.

Then she entered the closed carriage and was driven up the dark, tree-enshrouded road that led to the Castle of Doppelkinn.

"What are you going to do with me?" Max asked, as he gathered up the reins of his mount.

"That we shall discuss later. Like as not something very unpleasant. For one thing, you are passing under a forged passport. You are not an American, no matter how well you may speak that language. You are a German."

"There are Germans in the United States, born and bred there, who speak German tolerably well," replied Max easily. He was wondering if it would not be a good scheme to tell a straightforward story and ask to be returned to Barscheit. But that would probably appeal to the officer that he was a coward and was trying to lay the blame on the princess.

"I do not say that I can prove it," went on the colonel; "I simply affirm that you are a German, even to the marrow."

"You have the advantage of the discussion." No; he would confess nothing. If he did he might never see the princess again. . . . The princess! As far away as yonder stars! It was truly a very disappointing world to live in.

"Now, then, forward!" cried the colonel to his men, and they set off at a sharp trot.

From time to time, as a sudden twist in the road broke the straight line, Max could see the careening lights of the princess' carriage. A princess! And he was a man without a country or a name!

CHAPTER X.

The castle of the Prince of Doppelkinn rested in the very heart of the celebrated vineyards. Like all German castles I ever saw or heard of, it was a relic of the Middle Ages, with many a crumbling, useless tower and battlement. It stood on the south side of a rugged hill which was gashed by a narrow but turbulent stream, in which lurked the rainbow trout that lured the lazy man from his labors afield. (And who among us shall cast a stone at the lazy man? Not I!) If you are fortunate enough to run about Europe next year, as like as not you will be mailing home the "Doppelkinn" post-card.

More than once I have wandered about the castle's interior, cavernous and musty, strolled through its galleries of ancient armor, searched its dungeon-keep, or loitered to soliloquize in the gloomy judgment chamber. How time wars upon custom! In olden times they created pain; now they strive to subdue it.

I might go into a detailed history of the Doppelkinns, only it would be absurd and unnecessary, since it would be inappreciable under the name of Doppelkinn, which happens to be, as doubtless you have already surmised, a name of mine own invention. I could likewise tell you how the ancient dukes of Barscheit fought off the insidious flattery of Napoleon, only it is a far interest, and Barscheit is simply a characteristic, not a name. Some day I may again seek a diplomatic mission, and what government would have for its representative a teller of tales out of school?

It was, then, to continue the fortunes and misfortunes of Max Scharfenstein, close to midnight when the cavalcade crossed the old moat-bridge, which hadn't moved on its hinges within a hundred years. They were not entering by the formal way, which was a flower-bedded, terraced road. It was the rear entrance. The iron doors swung outward with a plaintive moaning, like that of a man roused out of his sleep, and Max found himself in an ancient guard-room, now used as a kind of secondary stable. The men dismounted.

"This way, Herr Ellis," said the colonel, with a mocking bow. He pointed toward a broad stone staircase.

"All I ask," said Max, "is a fair chance to explain my presence here."

"All in due time. Forward! The prince is waiting and his temper may not be as smooth as usual."

With two troopers in front of him and two behind, Max climbed the steps readily enough. They wouldn't dare kill him, whatever they did. He tried to imagine himself the hero of some Scott or Dumas tale, with a grim cardinal somewhere above, and oubliettes and torture chambers besetting his path. But the absurdity of his imagination, so thoroughly Americanized, evoked a ringing laughter. The troopers eyed him curiously. He might laugh later, but it was scarcely probable. A tramp through a dark corridor and they came to the west wing of the castle. It was here that the old prince lived, comfortably and luxuriously enough, you may take my word for it.

A door opened, flooding the corridor with light. Max felt himself gently pushed over the threshold. He stood in the great living room of the modern Doppelkinns. The first person he saw was the princess. She sat on an oriental divan. Her hands were folded; she sat very erect; her chin was tilted ominously; there was so little expression on her pale face that she might have been an incompleted statue. But Max was almost certain that there was just the faintest flicker of a smile in her eyes as she saw him enter. Glorious eyes! (It is a bad sign when a man begins to use the superlative adjectives!)

The other occupant of the room was an old man, fat and bald, with a nose like a russet pear. He was stalking—if it is possible for a short man to stalk—up and down the length of the room, and, judging from the sonorous, rumbling sound, was communing half-aloud. Between whiles he was rubbing his tender nose carefully and lovingly. When a man's nose resembles a russet pear it generally is tender. Whoever he was, Max saw that he was vastly agitated about something.

This old gentleman was (or supposed he was) the last of his line, the Prince of Doppelkinn, famous for his wines and his love of them. There was, so his subjects said, but one tender spot in the heart of this old man, and that was the memory of the wife of his youth. (How the years, the good and bad, crowd behind us, pressing us on and on!) However, there was always surcease in the cellars—that is, the Doppelkinn cellars.

"Ha!" he roared as he saw the blinking Max. "So this is the fellow!" He made an eloquent gesture. "Your highness must be complimented upon your good taste. The fellow isn't bad-looking."

"When you listen to reason, prince," replied the girl calmly, "you will apologize to the gentleman and give him his liberty."

"Oh, he is a gentleman, is he?"

"You might learn from him many of the common rules of courtesy,"—tranquilly.

"Who the devil are you?" the prince demanded of Max.

"I should be afraid to tell you. I hold that I am Max Scharfenstein, but the colonel here declares that my name is Ellis. Who are you?" Max wasn't the least bit frightened. These were no feudal times.

The prince stared at him. The insolent puppy!

"I am the prince."

"Ah, your serene highness,"—began Max, bowing.

"I am not called 'serene,'"—rudely. "The grand duke is 'serene.'"

"Permit me to doubt that," interposed the girl, smiling.

Max laughed aloud, which didn't improve his difficulties any.

"I have asked you who you are!" bawled the prince, his nose turning purple.

"My name is Max Scharfenstein. I am an American. If you will wire the American consulate at Barscheit, you will learn that I have spoken the truth. All this is a mistake. The princess did not elope with me."

"His papers give the name of Ellis," said the colonel, touching his cap.

JULY BARGAIN SALE FEATURE OUR GREAT
JULY BLANKET SALE

Sustains Right Dealing—It means a great deal when a store sells more of an almost strictly winter article in the height of summer than most stores do in the midst of its season. It means a great deal more when a store does this year after year with constantly increasing patronage.

The basis for our big blanket sale business is in the money-saving opportunity it extends. Back of that is real merchandizing, painstaking preparation, and planning elaborated by the experience of years. No wonder spur-of-the-moment sales do not succeed against organized effort and immense-quantity buying.

We make large contracts direct with the best makers to turn out blankets when least busy. They count on these contracts years ahead and in buying raw materials. We do not buy shelf-lain blankets, a few here, a few there. Every pair made especially for the sale—fresh from the mills.

And women know that to benefit by these prices they must buy during July—that prices prevail only during this sale, and here only, and know it pays to come early—lots once sold out cannot be replenished. But it is not necessary to make large outlay to get the benefit of the sale.

HIGHLAND A. C. RECORD IS A CREDITABLE ONE

The Highland A. C., of this city, has been making a record this season, of which the members and fans are quite proud. John Kyle has compiled the batting averages to date, showing that the team has been hitting the ball some, making a total of seventy-seven hits. Higgins, centre-fielder, leads with fourteen hits, and Kyle, right-fielder, is second with twelve. Higgins also leads with a total of twelve runs. The batting averages follow:

Another Local Ball Team.

H. J. Pasch, of Jersey City, has organized a baseball team here to be known as the Sixth Street Laurels, with the following lineup: H. Pasch, T. Harding and J. Mottley, pitchers; G. Taylor, first base; F. Hanrahan, catcher; M. Lawlor, short-stop; M. Welch, second base; J. Waldron, third base; P. iKely, left-field; G. Fosbre, centre-field; T. Fosbre, right-field. The first game will be played with St. Mary's team Friday night on Hope Common. Mr. Pasch would like to hear from strong teams in this city, especially from the Highland A. C., or the Plainfield A. C. Address 534 West Sixth street.

Band for the Ball Game.

Lawson's Liberty band will be at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon when the Clinton Avenues play the West Ends, of Somerville, and will dispense inspiring music from the stand for the encouragement of the players. Previous to the game, Manager Dorflinger has arranged for a parade of the teams through town, headed by the band. The West Ends represent one of the hardest propositions the local players have tackled this season, and it ought to be nip and tuck every minute during the nine innings. The visitors will be accommodated at the Hotel Iroquois and will go to the Oval for the game in a special trolley.

NOTED SPEAKERS GOING TO MOUNT TABOR CAMP MEETING

Rev. W. L. Watkinson, D. D., of England, Bishop Daniel A. Goodsell, of New York city, and Rev. Hugh Black, of the Union Theological Seminary, will be among the prominent speakers to take part in the annual Mount Tabor assembly and camp meeting, to be held at Mount Tabor, from July 22 until August 2. A feature of the meetings this year will be music by a chorus choir, led by Professor I. H. Meredith. Other speakers at the sessions will be Rev. U. B. McLeod, of Scotland; President George E. Reed, of Dickinson College; Rev. C. Stuntz, George W. Young, of Louisville, Kentucky, and Alexander Irvine, of New York city.

Out-door sports will be a feature at Mount Tabor during the meeting, and tournaments in golf, tennis and croquet, with baseball games and track meets, have been arranged under the auspices of the Tabor Field Club.

SOMERVILLE TICKET AGENT DIES FROM A SUNSTROKE.

Dayton Henry, fifty-one years old, night ticket agent and baggage master for the New Jersey Central Railroad at Somerville and well known to railroaders all along the line, died yesterday at his home in Lebanon, Hunterdon county, from the effects of a sunstroke Saturday. He was helping a friend in a hayfield when he was overcome by the excessive heat and never rallied. He entered the service of the railroad a quarter of a century ago, when he was employed in the freight department at Lebanon.

Mr. Henry was a member of Vesper Lodge, No. 182, I. O. O. F., and took a prominent part in the affairs of his home town. He commuted between Somerville and Lebanon. A widow and two daughters survive him. Mrs. Grover Apgar, of High Bridge, and Miss Elizabeth Henry, of Lebanon. The funeral will be held at his late home in Lebanon tomorrow morning. Rev. Lucas Boeoe, pastor of the Reformed church, will officiate and burial will be in the Reformed cemetery.

MRS. CLEVELAND'S THANKS.

Deeply Touched By the Many Messages of Condolence.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland at Princeton last night gave out the following statement to the press:

"In our great grief there has come to my children and myself from all over our country and from other lands, expressions of condolence in our bereavement and of a participation in our sorrow. My heart is touched by these and by all the tributes paid to Mr. Cleveland in word and act. I am deeply gratified for the comfort that God gives in this way.

"I regret the multitude of these messages renders it impossible for me to send a personal word of thanks for each. The press has kindly offered to bear for me this expression of my own and my children's gratitude and appreciation, and I hope it will reach all who have thoughts of him and of us.

"FRANCES F. CLEVELAND."

Bar Association Resolutions.

A meeting of the Somerset County Bar Association was held in the court room in Somerville yesterday to take action in reference to the death of the late former Judge John D. Bartine. A committee, consisting of Col. Nelson Y. Dungan, former Congressman Alvah A. Clark and Azariah M. Beekman, was appointed to draft suitable resolutions, which are to be presented at the opening day of the September term of courts, with the request that they be spread upon the court records.

Silk Mill Rioters Sentenced.

The Sicilians who were engaged in the riots at the Summit silk mill, in February last, when one of the men was stabbed by a fellow-countryman, were arraigned in the Union County Court this morning for sentence. Carl Skimpaway, one of the rioters, who was found guilty of stabbing Aziz Moabab, was sentenced to one year at hard labor in State Prison. A number of other Sicilians were fined $25 each for having taken part in the riots.

OFFICIAL OF LITTLE FALLS IS A FUGITIVE.

William H. Sherman, township collector of Little Falls and also custodian of the school funds, is said by the local authorities to be a fugutive from justice. A cursory examination of his accounts has shown, they declare, that he is at least $8,000 short. Recently it was learned that Mr. Sherman had taken a great interest in horse racing.

Mr. Sherman's business accounts are also said to be in a bad way, and it is believed that a thorough overhauling of his confectionery business will show large liabilities. The township collector was considered one of the well-to-do men of Little Falls, and news of his downfall comes as a great shock to his friends.

Three months ago it was surmised that Sherman's accounts were not right, and a quiet investigation was started by township officials. Mr. Sherman was called on three times to explain discrepancies, but each time failed to appear on the ground that his wife was ill.

A week ago Sherman was peremptorily ordered to appear before the committee, but he failed to do so, and it was soon learned that he had left the village. He has not been heard from since. A warrant for his arrest will be issued as soon as the investigation into his accounts is concluded.

Mrs. Sherman, who kept the township books for her husband, knew nothing of his defalcations. All the money turned over to her by her husband has been accounted for. Irving Belding, Sherman Francisco and Dr. W. R. Smith are Sherman's sureties to the amount of $10,000. Sherman is middle aged and has several children.

The irregularities in Sherman's accounts were first brought to light by Township Counsel Joseph McDona when looking up some tax matters.

Journeymen Masons Give Up Fight.

The journeymen masons of Elizabeth, to the number of 125, who have been on a strike for some time in an effort to obtain an increase in pay to sixty cents an hour, declared the strike off last night, and today a great many of them returned to work. As a result of their action the "open shop" now prevails in Elizabeth, so far as this trade is concerned. During the past few weeks the journeymen were convinced that they were fighting a hopeless battle, owing to business conditions, and the officers finally decided to return to work at the old scale.

THAT COMMON HOUSE FLY IS A DANGEROUS CREATURE

In common with the action of the health authorities throughout New Jersey and adjoining States, the Plainfield Board of Health, at is regular meeting yesterday, decided to start a campaign of education among householders regarding the common house fly as a carrier of disease. It is now an established fact that typhoid fever, dysentery and tuberculosis are spread by these common house flies and it is believed that the dissemination of knowledge along this line will prove beneficial. Circular letters have been printed and they will be sent to all householders in Plainfield. The following information is printed on the circular:

"Formerly, flies were considered merely annoying, but today, it is positively known that they are foul and dangerous pests. They live and breed in decomposing animal and vegetable matter, the most common places being in manure, unclean stables and in and about cans or receptacles used for the storage of garbage.

"While the house kies cannot bite like mosquitoes, they spread disease by carrying the disease germs and filth on their feet and mouths directly from the infected places to the very food on our tables. Every householder in self defense, should destroy the breeding places of these pests.

"Store garbage in tightly covered cans kept in screened enclosures, so that the flies cannot get to it.

"Store manure in small pits or cans screened against flies to prevent them from breeding in it.

"Screen the doors and windows of your house to keep the flies from entering and getting to the food.

"If everyone complied with these and the following suggestions, there would be fewer flies.

"oD not allow decaying matter of any kind to accumulate on your premises.

"Abolish vaults and cesspools. Where this is not possible, see that privy vaults and cesspools are screened.

"If your cellar is damp, clean out dark corners frequently and use plenty of lime.

"Have kitchen garbage removed at least twice a week during the summer months.

"Have manure removed at least once a week.

"Remember, that cleanliness about your house and premises gives no opportunity for the flies to breed."

WHEN THE GIRL GOES TO COLLEGE.

If a college girl lives up to the rules and regulations of college life, eating regularly, taking frequent baths and plenty of exercise, there is no doubt that each and every one would be strong and healthy and a better student, more capable of grasping the difficult problems of school life. To view a bevy of healthy, happy college girls on the campus, their white dresses fluttering among the green trees, is a pretty sight to behold, but more so when one gets at closer range and sees the actual health that is a mark of beauty, even when regular features are missing. Many puny girls of delicate health who have developed strong muscles, healthy flesh and rosy cheeks owe their new found beauty and health to the change brought about by college life. You can tell a college girl ten miles away, is an exaggerated remark, perhaps, but there is something so wholesomely good about girls of college training and breeding that once they have been dipped and dyed in college life the mark remains and that indefinable air of dainty, well bred smartness that is associated with the delightful college girl is charming, to say the least. The college girl who improves by her teaching and training—and few there are who do not— is graceful, independent, brainy and often beautiful. One might puzzle the brain a long time trying to define the actual charm, finally arriving at the result that all do—that the college girl is admired because she has the stamina to go ahead and succed in more ways than one.

A little country girl whom I know entered a very fashionable college and among her studies was French. She was told that each girl must ask for food at the table, speaking in French. Before she even knew one word of French she sat down, smiled rather graciously and said to one of the strange girls opposite her:

"I would thank you kindly if you would pass the aurevoirs with gravy around them."

She was plucky, full of life and her "push" took her ahead. Today she is a fluent French pupil, speaking the language beautifully, though she called potatoes aurevoirs at the start. That little pluckiness is something that every girl has to possess or absolutely get knocked down. College girls are not rude—they are genuinely polite, but they go into college free, independent creatures and the self-assertive ones come out first. It is a dlightful time in a girl's life and it is the part of wisdom for parents to send daughters to college, for they learn girl life, and the care and protection they receive is often better than the life at home, where the mothers are too busily occupied with the social or household duties to help them out. For a girl to be a success socially one get along in the world she has to be given a chance among the foremost girls in the country; the mingling with culture and refinement is what prepares the average college girl for future life. It is the stepping stone to a business or social career.

FOR SEWERAGE CONTRACT

P. P. A. Approves Proposed Agreement of the City with the Borough.

FOR A TERM OF TEN YEARS.

W. J. Buttfield Makes Convincing Argument and P. P. A. Places Itself on Record as Favorable to Plan.

"Whereas from an extended consideration of the subject at a special meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association, duly called for such purpose, it appears upon several important grounds to be for the common advantage of Plainfield and North Plainfield, that disposition of the borough's sewage be made by means of the city's disposal plant;

"Now, therefore, Be it Resolved, That this association favors the execution by the city and borough of an appropriate agreement to this end, and that a copy of this resolution be respectfully transmitted to the respective authorities."

Putting itself on record as favoring the proposition by the adoption of the above resolution, the members of the Plainfield Protective Association at a special meeting last night, decided to lend their interest and influence toward the consummation of the plan. This was done after a complete and concise statement concerning the matter and the proposed contract was made by W. J. Buttfield, a member of the Borough Sewage Commission. He referred quite in detail to all the facts leading up to the proposed action, concluding with the assertion that the North Plainfield Council was entirely to blame for the delay, that the contract could have been made a year ago had not the members of the Council gone to sleep.

At the request of President R. Henry Depew and other members present, Mr. Buttfield was invited to give a resume of the sewer proposition and he willingly consented.

Hastily, but thoroughly reviewing the action thus far taken from the inception of the plan, Mr. Buttfield explained that eighteen months ago a commission was appointed by the Borough Council to consider the matter of sewage disposal. There were two propositions. One to connect with Plainfield's system of sewers and the other to install an independent system in the borough. Herring & Fuller, engineers, were consulted and Mr. Fuller after a thorough investigation reported that it would be to the advantage of the borough to build its own plant, which could be done for a great deal less money than to connect with Plainfield's system.

Then the matter was brought to the attention of the Common Council of this city, with the result that the city offered to take care of the borough's sewage at the rate of $25 per million gallons. This was approved by the borough authorities and a definite proposition was asked for. In the meantime Mr. Fuller reported the advantages to be gained by the installation of an independent system, which he said would mean a saving of at least $15,000 in ten years. Then the commission asked the city for a modification of the rate, but it was reported that this could not be done. Failing in this the commission then recommended the acceptance of the city's proposition which was for ten years with the privilege of two renewals of ten years each. In July of last year the report went to the Borough Council and at the request of that body and the sewer commission the subject was again taken up with the Plainfield Council. Finally an agreement was formulated giving the authorities something to work upon and this contract has been approved and is now ready for final action on the part of the Plainfield Council.

At this point Mr. Buttfield called attention to the public hearing to be held at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council Monday night, and urged that as many as possible attend and express their views. In the opinion of Mr. Buttfield, the city has a strong moral obligation. It made the proposition which has been accepted and it is absolutely necessary that the borough have sewers.

As to the contract proposed, Mr Buttfield called attention to the chief points. The city agrees to dispose of the borough's sewage for ten years from a date to be named, at the rate of $25 per million gallons, with the privilege of two renewals for periods of ten years each. There is a time limit imposed, that is the borough must lay its pipes and connect with the city system within two years, unless something should happen over which they have no control. Then an extension of time can be arranged for.

An important provision is that if at any time during the ten years the city is unable to take care of the

MEEKER CLAIMS SETTLED

Indebtedness of Contractor Except That for Labor Provided for in Arrangement.

HE LOST MONEY ON THE JOB.

Claims Aggregate $10,000—William F. Arnold Solved the Puzzle Satisfactorily.

After considerable delay, a settlement was finally reached last night in the adjustment of the various claims against C. M. Meeker, who had the contract for laying the brick pavement in the city. All of the claims, except the one for labor, which he has promised to take care of himself, were provided for in the settlement. It is the opinion of City Treasurer William F. Arnold that while Mr. Meeker will lose some money there will be sufficient funds to meet all indebtedness.

The claims aggregate about $10,000, but $2,000 of this is held in reserve as a five per cent. fund on the contract protecting the city for a period of six months from defective bricks used in the work and to cover any repairs that Mr. Meeker might be compelled to make.

By the terms of the settlement yesterday the sum of $8,000 was turned over to Mr. Meeker, who signed papers releasing the city from any further liability. He turned the money over to William A. Coddington, trustee for the various claimants, including The Pennsylvania Clay Company, Boice, Runyon & Co., Loizeaux Lumber Company, Ernest T. Hand, Hand Storage Company, William Foley, who had the subcontract for laying the brick; Henry Nischwitz and the Fanwood Stone and Crusher Company. The $8,000 will be distributed among these claimants on a pro rata basis and while this may not pay all in full, the remaining $2,000 is expected to.

Matters were considerably complicated, owing to the many persons interested in the contract, but Mr. Arnold, who was thoroughly conversant with every phase of it, was able to straighten out the tangle soon after his return from a trip abroad. There is now every assurance that the labor bill will be settled and that within a short time the matter will be closed. One thing that tended to delay settlement to some extent was the fact that several liens filed against the amount due Mr. Meeker on the contract and this tied affairs up so that the city would not pay the sum until some agreement was reached by all the interested parties. This was done yesterday.

WHOLESALE BIKE THIEF COMMITTED TO COUNTY JAIL

Lucius Taylor, the colored man who in police court, yesterday, admitted the theft of five bicycles, was committed to Elizabeth in default of bail by Judge Runyon this morning. He has refused to acknowledge taking any more machines but Chief Kiely is confident that he made away with at least a dozen between Westfield, Plainfield and Bound Brook. By the time his case is ready for the Grand Jury sufficient evidence will probably be in hand to convict him on the charges he denies.

Taylor's record at police headquarters shows that he has been convicted of larceny in addition to serving a term in the county jail for chicken stealing, and that for the past two years he has had no regular occupation. The belief exists that he has been supporting himself by the theft of wheels. Most of the machines he stole here were sold to a West End colored man who believed that Taylor was in the bicycle business in New York.

Annual Excursion of Baptists.

The annual excursion of the First Baptist church Sunday-school and Faith chapel to Asbury Park, left the North Avenue station this morning at 8:15 o'clock. It required fourteen coaches to accommodate the members of the schools and their friends, it being estimated that there were about 750 excursionists. The crew was made up of Engineer William Huff, Conductor Walter Durling and Brakemen Gallagher and Stevens, all of Somerville. The prospects for a fine day at the shore had a tendency to attract a great many people who enjoy an outing of this kind. The committee in charge comprised L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane, Harold Serrell, J. E. Church and Raymond Carver and nothing was left undone in making the trip a delightful one. The train will leave the Park at 6:30 o'clock.

BIG DAY FOR MARTINE

NEW JERSEYMEN SIT MUTE.

Cedarbrook Worshipper at Bryan Shrine Attempts to Grasp the State's Banner—Has Big Time.

Denver, July 9.—There was not much joy for the New Jersey delegation in the session of the convention yesterday, except for "Bob" Davis and "Farmer Orator" James E. Martine. But for even Martine there was the proverbial fly in the ointment—he was unable to convence the twenty delegates that they ought to join the Bryan procession.

When the great Bryan demonstration beamed forth, lasting one hour and twenty-five minutes, Davis, despite his recent illness, jumped up and shouted, and that is something Davis, always cool and collected, seldom does, even under such compelling circumstances.

Chairman Katzenbach sat imperturbably through the terrific storm which raged all about him, and was somewhat disgusted with the visible artificiality of it all. After it had gone one some minutes it was amazing to him that men of apparent calibre could make such dunces of themselves. However, he smiled indulgently upon them and said he guessed he didn't know how it feels to have your hero reaching the goal with such a tremendous lead.

Martine came in for his share of the noise when the demonstration had been going on for ten minutes. He could stand it no longer, but brushing aside the men who stood in his way, he leaped over the railing that separated the delegates' from the alternates' section and, rushing up to where the unmoved Jersey delegates sat, he tried to wrest the State marker from the grip of William B. Conner, of Middlesex. Conner is one of the biggest men in the delegation and Martine was no match for him. They struggled for a minute, but the "Friend of Bryan" had to give up the unequal contest.

"I'm ashamed of New Jersey; ashamed of my State," he cried hoarsely, as he stood admiring the noisy procession that swept through the immense halls.

Never once in all the hour and half that the noise was kept up did Conner release his grip upon the pole of the marker. Not even the fair Bryan boomers from Idaho and Nevada and Colorado could budge him, though they flocked about him pleadingly. He stood like a rock, keeping New Jersey with New York, its neighbor, out of the Bryan phalanx.

Former Judge Howard Carrow, of Camden, explains that one of the reasons for his withdrawing from the national committee is his earnest belief that it will not be possible to do anything for the party in New Jersey, and that if he continued on the committee, with Bryan as the nominee, he would be nothing more than a figure-head.

The belief among the Jerseymen is strong that Bryan cannot carry New York or New Jersey, and that it will be impossible for them to continue any kind of a State organization with the Nebraskan at the head of the ticket. This, too, at a time when there appeared the best of reasons for the belief that the party was getting back some of its old-time strength, gathering in many of the rebellious ones who left them in the other Bryan campaigns. It is their belief that they could easily win the Legislature and Governor two years hence with any man on the ticket, save Bryan.

Robert Davis says he is sure that Bryan can win even New Jersey, and he expects to make a hard fight to give him such a majority in Hudson as will fully show the Davis strength.

He is sure that Warren and Hunterdon, which stood by Bryan in both of his campaigns, will give him greatly increased majorities, and that several other counties which showed great reduced Republican majorities last fall will rally to his support because of the weakness of Taft in New Jersey.

Will Conduct Summer Meetings.

Kiel Garretson, a student at the Missionary Institute at Nyack, N. Y., will conduct the meetings for the summer of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, which meets every Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms, 100 Madison avenue; also the Rescue Mission meetings every Friday night.

Attending Bankers' Convention.

Alexander Gilbert, of the Clearing House Association and president of the Market and Fulton Bank, New York, has gone to the Thousand Islands to attend the New York State Bankers' convention.

NEW ELECTION BOARD MEMBERS ARE NAMED

Governor Fort yesterday appointed the following members of county election boards:

Union—Ralph L. Morrow, of Plainfield, Republican.

Middlesex—John L. Suydam, M. D., Republican, and ex-Judge Brown, Democrat, both re-appointed.

Somerset—Theo. Hoffman, Joseph Lambruskin, Republicans; Jacob Shurtz, Democrat.

The entire list includes the appointments of members so far as they have been submitted to him by Chairman Franklin Murphy, of the Republican State Committee, and Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth, of the Democratic committee.

The Republicans failed to make nominations in four counties and the Democrats in ten.

RUNAWAY IN COLLISION; TWO CHILDREN INJURED

In a runaway accident replete with thrills, late yesterday afternoon, Miss Ruth McCarthy, the sixteen-year-old daughter of James McCarthy, of West Fourth street, was quite badly hurt and her cousin, Marguerite Mattis, five years old, received injuries that will probably scar her features for life. But for the pluck of Miss Ruth, who did everything possible to bring the frightened animal to a stop, the affair would probably have resulted in a fatality.

The two children were riding with Marguerite's father, Garret Mattis, driver for Neuman Brothers. They were left on the front seat of the wagon as he went into a house at Woodbine and Arlington avenues but the horse became frightened just as he disappeared from sight. The animal swung around into Arlington avenue and ran toward town at top speed. Miss Ruth retained her presence of mind and managed to get hold of the lines but her strength was not sufficient to bring the runaway to a stop. She did succeed, however, in guiding it safely by a trolley car at Seventh street and also in getting it through the narrow part of the thoroughfare opposite the Franklin school.

The animal continued straight to the end of the avenue and then essayed to enter the yard of the Consumer's Coal Company directly in front of it. There were too many obstacles in the way and the wagon collided with a post, pitching both girls into the roadway. They were rendered partially conscious by the impact and were picked up by men in the yard who saw the runaway too late to stop it. The home of both children is a short distance away and they were taken there at once, calls being sent in the meantime for physicians.

Drs. Browning and Blair were quickly at the house and found Marguerite to be hurt the most. There were several severe cuts on her forehead and temple, one of which required five stitches and another four, while she also had a scalp wound on the back of her head. In addition her body was a mass of bruises. Miss Ruth sustained a few minor cuts and numerous contused wounds on the back that were sufficient to keep her in bed today.

The wagon was slightly damaged in colliding with the post but the horse escaped injury. It was caught by employes in the coal yard. The runaway was followed all the way down Arlington avenue by a motorcyclist who made no effort to stop it but only served to frighten the horse still more. The belief exists that Miss Ruth might have stopped the animal but for the noise of the machine.

Public Hearing on Sewer Problem.

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting Monday night at which time a public hearing will be granted on the subject of allowing North Plainfield to connect with Plainfield sanitary sewer system, according to a previously drafted proposition, which was submitted to the borough authorities. It is especially desired that all persons interested attend the hearing and give expression to their views on the matter. The city fathers will be guided largely in their action by this expression of public opinion. It is expected that North Plainfield will also be represented at the hearing and some of its citizens have something to say about the sewer problem.

Mrs. William Durrant, of West Third street, who has achieved considerable success as an amateur photographer, is one of the prize winners in the past month's picture contest conducted by Browning's magazine. Her subject, "Now, Look Pleasant, Please," is one of the most interesting animal studies yet submitted and shows one cat taking a snapshot of another.

ALLURING REALTY "ADV."

Concern Offering Bargains in Plainfield Lots Makes Great Representations.

PLAINFEILD TUNNEL TERMINAL?

Its Advertising Matter Says Our Population Was 5,000 Five Years Ago and Is Now 40,000—Funny "Information."

Some alluring and amusing statements are made by The Equator Realty and Improvement Co., of 149th street and Third avenue, New York, in cards distributed through the Bronx advertising big bargains in Plainfield property. The concern offers to dispose of a whole acre in a lump for $650 and only requires ten per cent. down and two per cent. a month.

"Plainfield had a population of 5,000 inhabitants only five years ago," say the real estate boomers in their card, "and in five years it has grown to 40,000." As a matter of fact the population is but 20,000 and has shown but slight increase in five years.

After alleging that the commutation rate is ten cents the concern's card says that "tunnels and subways in course of construction, which will cut the commutation price to five cents fare."

The front of the private mailing card containing these statements and which the recipient is requested to fill out and return for free tickets, maps, etc., contains these amusing statements: "Manhattan-Jersey Central-Lehigh Valley Tunnels Direct to Plainfield." "Plainfield is the terminal for Lehigh Valley Tunnels."

So far as can be learned here no tunnels are in prospect which will be of any direct benefit to Plainfield. The Lehigh Valley road is three miles away, its station being at South Plainfield in Middlesex county.

Here is a perfectly accurate statement contained on the card: "We are sure that any person can be convinced at first sight that in Plainfield one lot is worth as much as we are getting for twenty lots."

When the attention of E. F. Feickert, chairman of the Board of Trade's advertising committee, was called to the New York concern's methods, he expressed surprised if anyone could be made to believe the "information." He said that probably some concern had noticed the campaign of publicity being conducted by the local board, and had seen an opportunity to do some business.

For the benefit of strangers be it said that Plainfield is a city of 20,000 inhabitants and that land values are naturally high here. We have no tunnels; neither do we ever expect any. South Plainfield, a village of Middlesex county, has no regular method of communication with this city, which is in Union county.

Borough Police Court Cases.

Thomas Rice and John McKenna, of New York, were arrested in the borough yesterday afternoon for peddling without a license and last night they were arraigned before Mayor Samuel Townsend, in the absence of Recorder Dolliver, and fined $2 each. William Corcoran, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was fined $2. The fines were paid.

Renewing Old Acquaintances.

Dr. Charles P. Gamo, of Trenton, who was at one time a member of the local police force, is spending a week's vacation in town renewing old acquaintances. He is now an eyesight specialist, having completed a four years course in the Illinois College of Opthalmy. He has a home office at Trenton and a branch at Phillipsburg.

Recovering from Accident.

Paul Symons, of East Third street, is able to be out after three weeks confinement to the house as the result of an accident. While picking cherries in the yard at his home, a step-ladder on which he was standing toppled over and threw him to the ground. Two ribs were cracked and he was otherwise badly bruised and shapen up.

Drill Engine Jumps Track.

Drill Engine No. 72, of the old type, jumped the switch in the yards at the Potter Printing Press Works, this morning. Fortunately, the engine was going slow and no damage resulted. It was a half-hour before it was again placed on the tracks.

PRIEST SUMMONED POLICE

Father Frederici Formerly of St. Mary's Threatened by Mourners at Jersey City.

SAID THE MASS PUNCTUALLY.

Italian Funeral Cortege Delayed by Brass Bands and Photographer—Priest Says Office Before Arrival.

Father Frederici, formerly an assistant at St. Mary's church, this city, and a priest greatly liked in the parish, had to summon the police at Jersey City yesterday to drive away angry Italian mourners who threatened to storm the Church of the Most Holy Rosary because he insisted upon being punctual in saying a requiem mass. It required the sight of a squad of bluecoats to restore order in the funeral crowd and induce them to proceed to a cemetery.

The occasion was a burial service for Mrs. Lizzie Sevons, whose relatives and friends arranged that she should have last honors of princely magnificance. The mass was set for 10 o'clock in the morning and two bands were engaged to furnish music. A photographer was hired to take pictures at the Sevona home but owing to the long time it required to get the mourners grouped the cortege was an hour late in starting for the church.

In the meantime, Father Frederici and his assistants were in readiness at 10 o'clock and when no one had appeared after a half hour's grace, he went out to the altar and sang Mrs. Sevona's requiem to rows of empty pews. He had just concluded when a flare of brass announced the coming of the two bands, the hearse and fifty carriages filled with relatives and friends.

Father Frederici related that he had sung his requiem but the chief mourners replied that two were better than one and to go ahead and sing another. He refused, whereat dissension arose and angry threats were made despite the pronunciation of the anathema against the desecrators of the Holy Church. The crowd was finally moved out to the street where the police formed them in line and started them toward the cemetery.

BOROUGH YOUNG WOMAN BRIDE OF WILLIAM W. MILLS

Miss Emma Almer, of Greenbrook road, and William W. Mills, of this city, were married last night at the home of the bride's uncle, Adolph Bohren, of the borough. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. C. H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, and was witnessed only by relatives of the two families.

Miss Lena Bohren, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and William Reig, of this city, was best man. The wedding march was played by Emile Zuber, of Elizabeth. Miss Almer wore a lace gown with ribbon insertions and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and roses. Her attendant's gown was of pink chiffon and she carried carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and supper was served in a natural bower underneath an arbor on Mr. Bohren's lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Mills afterward left for a short trip at the conclusion of which they will make their home at Second street and Madison avenue, the groom having recently purchased the property. Mr. Mills is engaged in the tinning and heating business and has a host of friends in the city and borough. He and his bride were remembered with many handsome wedding presents.

Gave Plaintiff $98 and Interest.

The second trial of the case of Martin A. Rose against Davis Steinman, in which the plaintiff sought to recover $93 which he claimed he loaned the defendant, was heard in the district court, this morning, before Judge Clark Whitemore and a jury of nine men, Judge Newcorn being asked to preside over a case in the Elizabeth district court for Judge Whitemore. The jury comprising John T. Case, F. J. Smith, Edward M. Tomlinson, Cyrus F. Boice, William H. Clum, I. D. TenEyck, Joseph Schmidt, Clarence D. Slape and Peter A. VanFleet, was out but a short time when a verdict was returned for $98 and interest in favor of the plaintiff.

Next Excursion July 16.

The next excursion to Asbury Park from this city, will be a union one including the Sunday-schools of the First Presbyterian, Congregational, Park Avenue Baptist and Dunellen Presbyterian churches, on Thursday, July 16. The trains will leave Plainfield at 8:15 o'clock in the morning and returning leave the Park at 6:30.

NOMINATE BRYAN TODAY

AN ANTI-INJUNCTION PLANK.

Nebraskan's Nomination Might Have Been Prevented—Mitchell for Second Place On Ticket.

(By James E. Martine.)

Denver, Col., July 9.—William Jennings Bryan will be nominated today by the Democrats in convention assembled for the third time for the office of President of these United States. I verily believe that his nomination will be made unanimous amid a scene such has never before been witnessed at any political convention in this grand country of ours. Matters are dragging along slowly. Patrick H. McCarren, of Brooklyn, has left for home with his delegation, having been turned down by the committee on cderentials. James Guffey, of Pennsylvania, another oil king, has met with an almost similar fate.

Permanent organization was the first business today. After that came the adoption of the platform. The nomination of Bryan will follow. The nomination cannot be reached unless there is a night session.

The committee on resolutions, when it met at 9 o'clock this morning, could not do more than make a general guess as to when it would be ready to report to the convention. The general guess was some time late this afternoon. The principal work before the committee today was to endeavor to so harmonize differences as to prevent a minority report. Should the minority report be put in and unlimited debate allowed the convention would be in session until August.

Members of the committee who are old timers at such work say that the platform will be the most remarkable of the kind ever presented to a national convention. It will be a record breaker in length, in the variety of subjects treated and in method of treatment. An anti-injunction plank satisfactory to the most radical of the labor organizations has been agreed on by the sub-committee and will undoubtedly be in the platform as reported to the convention. Even if there is no minority report the reading of the platform, it is expected, will occupy fully two hours' time.

The remarkable incidents of the second day's session of a remarkable convention disclosed in unmistakable form the fact that the nomination for Bryan could have been prevented if a movement to that end had been started in time and properly organized. But today the men here who regard his nomination as a safe passport to defeat are saying openly that it is now too late to do anything to save the party.

There is talk of John Mitchell for second place on the ticket.

MONEY SLAYER'S OBJECT.

Murdered Italian Was About to Return to His Family.

Prosecutor's detectives at New Brunswick have been unable to get any trace of the murderer of Giuseppe Bartelle, who was found dead in front of his house near South Amboy Tuesday morning. The authorities believe that the man, who lived a hermit's life in the woods, had been murdered for money which he was known to have in the house.

The man had been making plans to leave this country for Italy to rejoin his wife and family. He worked for the Susquenhanna Coal Company and had been depositing his wages in a bank in Passaic. It is thought that the murderers had heard of his intention to leave the country and thought that he had withdrawn his money from the bank.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hyde Demaray are spending a few weeks in New Germantown.

Miss Melissa Voorhees has returned from a visit to relatives in Trenton.

WESTFIELD.

A committee, to be appointed by the Mayor, is to make an investigation of the feasibility of depressing the roadway under the railroad tracks at Broad street crossing. It is generally admitted that the Osborne avenue bridge that was looked to as a relief for traffic over this dangerous grade crossing has not given the relief expected. The bridge has cost the town and railroad company thousands of dollars, but not more than half a dozen teams use it in a day, while hundreds of wagons use the grade crossing a few hundred yards distant. The main reason is that the grade of the approaches to the bridge is so steep that teams with loads cannot use it.

J. W. Manhattan has been awarded the contract for laying sidewalks in Westfield, the price varying from seventy-five cents to $1.25 per foot, according to the grading to be done.

Councilman A. J. Wilson has severed his connection with the Hall Signal Company of Garwood, closing eighteen years of service with the company.

Garwood health code will come up for final consideration by the Board of Health at the meeting to be held this evening.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The union service Sunday night will be held at the First M. E. church and Rev. Dr. John H. Raven, of New Brunswick, will preach.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, will enjoy his vacation during the month of August. The list of supplies has not yet been completed.

Rev. Charles Fountain, who was graduated from Crozer Theological Seminary, this year, is spending the summer at his home in this city. He will probably be heard occasionally at the local Baptist churches.

Rev. Dr. H. M. Simpson, of Elizabeth, will preach at Grace M. E. church, Sunday morning and night, for Rev. Ora J. Shoop, who will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church, Westfield, during July for the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hayes.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. John Manley and daughter, of Park avenue, are sojourning at Ocean Grove.

Miss Jennie Cross, of Phillipsburg, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cottrell and children, of this city, have gone to Tolland, Mass., where they will spend the summer.

Herbert Douglass, of West Front street, who has been sojourning on the Jersey Coast, is expected home the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, who have been in town for a short time, have gone to Watch Hill, R. I., where they will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Peck, of West Front street, who are enjoying their vacation at Asbury Park, are expected home the latter part of the month.

Getting Closer Together.

The Wife—I don't think we'll be able to use that old hammock this year; it's shrunk awfully.

The Husband—Oh, it's all right. You know daughter's engaged now. She's never notice it.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Distinction of Terms.

"Did you say he was a crafty politician?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum, "not crafty, merely grafty."—Washington Star.

The Reason.

The new directoire gown is expensive, uncomfortable to wear and very striking in its appearance. Which is why the dear women will insist on wearing it.

JULY SALE LEADERS.

SALE IS FULL OF LEADERS. Too many to tell about here. Sale grows greater in attendance and offerings. Here are some of many new ones:

MEN'S NEWEST $1.00 AND $1.25 SHIRTS 74c.
WHITE AND COLORS—Negligee Shirts—This store has ever a surprise "up its sleeve" and here is one that will create an unusual stir. Our last sale of white (white shirts are scarce, you know) and colored shirts was a tremendous success, showed so emphatically that it was just what men wanted, that we determined to have another just as soon as we could get the shirts. But it was not until now that we could secure shirts up to our standard in make and material, fit, patterns and colors. But here they are, in time for vacation buying—about 2,000 shirts, that will no doubt go like ice did those hot days last week: Fine madras and percales; plain front and pleated; coat and regular styles; separate and attacht cuffs; mostly in black and white; neat stripes, checks, dots and figures; also white—pleated; sizes 14 to 17; $1.00 and $1.25 white and colored shirts, at .74

MEN'S FINEST 50c WASHABLE NEW FOUR-IN-HANDS AT 25c.
Some of the very styles we have had at 50c—same goods, from same maker, who is now selling his surplus in preparation for Fall. We were lucky to capture the best lines; all 50c materials, imported, solid white, blue and tan; also those pretty self figured pongees in various shades; and a beautiful assortment of Scotch madras and cheviots in solid blue, white grounds, with over-checks in color combinations; 1¾-in. French seam four-in-hands, simply another reward for our being on the spot; advantages that will extend to you if you will be on the spot, too; 50c neckwear, Friday and Saturday, at .25

BOYS' $1.00 NEGLIGEE SHIRTS 79c.
BOYS' $1.00 NEGLIGEE SHIRTS—Fine assortment, all new colors and patterns; separate and attacht cuffs; fine madras, coat style, made as well as can be; style like men's; but special, youthful designs, that is the reason they have been so popular at regular price; $1.00 shirts, Friday and Saturday, till noon, at .79

BOYS' $1.50 NEGLIGEE SHIRTS $1.19.
Finest line, boys' imported madras shirts in the City; newest patterns and colorings; neat, dressy, just the shirts to satisfy boys longing for mannish effects; one of our most popular lines, will make a hit at special price; best $1.50 shirts, Friday and Saturday, till noon, at 1.19

BOYS' 79c TROUSERS AT ONLY 50c.
BLOOMERS AND KNICKERBOCKERS—Light and medium gray and brown, double and twist cassimeres; neat checks, stripes and plaids, full cut, perfect fit, patent waist-band, taped thruout, bloomer elastic bottoms; knickers, strap and buckle; sizes 3 to 16 years; Summer play-time demands trousers aplenty—so this opportunity will be welcome; 79c trousers, at .50

A Supplement to an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance for the assessment of taxes for the year 1908," approved May 4, 1908.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000) as the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district for the ensuing school year exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools (all amounts apportioned to said school district under and by virtue of Chapter 267 of the Laws of this State for the year 1908 having been applied in reduction of local taxation for said year) and has made two certificates of said amount signed by all the members of said Board of School Estimate, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district, and the other to the Common Council of said city.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled: "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools, and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," approved October 19, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the sum of Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000) be and the same is hereby appropriated for the purposes aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council, and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year nineteen hundred and eight in the same manner as moneys appropriated for other purposes in this city are required to be assessed, levied and collected.

Adopted by the Common Council July 6, 1908; approved by the Mayor July 6, 1908.

George Wiltse, of the Giants, has the distinction of being the only left-handed twirler in recent years to pitch a ten-inning no-hit, no-run game, which he did against the Philadelphia Nationals on July 4.

Somerville against Plainfield at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, should attract the largest crowd of the season, especially as there will be a band concert by the Liberty Band. The West Ends, it is said, will come here prepared to win and the Clinton Avenues will be ready to give them a lively time of it. It is not known as yet who will pitch for Somerville, but Clifford Randolph will officiate for Plainfield.

The numerous amateur teams in Plainfield and vicinity this season are putting up a good article of ball, a majority of them being evenly matched. Already a number of fast players have been developed and it is doubtful whether they will continue to be seen with local teams next year.

Clifford Randolph, who is the star twirler for the Clinton Avenues, will sooner or later be found in fast company. He has promised to remain in Plainfield this year, desiring to get more experience, but he is sure to get a number of offers for next season and may land a minor league position.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, is doing all in his power to give the fans first-class ball and especially make the game on Saturday one well worth seeing. The last time Plainfield and Somerville met, the former team won by a close margin and the Somerset county boys are determined to regain the lost honors, if possible. For this reason they will be on the job Saturday.

The Mono F. C. has asked the Clinton Avenues for a game, and if Manager Dorflinger can arrange it he may accommodate them. The Monos have been cleaning up everything this season and feel sure that they can defeat the city champions. The only way to prove it is by arranging a contest.

It is regretted that Y. M. C. A. is not showing up stronger this year, although the team has done fairly well in the State Association League. What the aggregation lacks is team work and until they acquire that little can be hoped for. Manager Listman is anxious to have his boys play fast ball and is doing all that he can to accomplish the purpose.

GOLF.

Will T. Glenney is showing great improvement in his game this season and his work at the Plainfield Country Club last Saturday, when he returned a net score of 64, within three points of the amateur record for the course, shows that he is to be reckoned with in future competitions. He won both the gross and net score prizes in the competition, but not being permitted to take both, he chose the best gross score prize; a silver cup. He has been particularly strong in driving, while showing a big improvement in approaching and putting.

Under the direction of the house committee of the Plainfield Country Club, of which Willard Wadsworth is the chairman, a general change is being made at the clubhouse. In place of the stewart, who has been there, the Misses Scott, of East Orange, have been engaged and they will take full charge of the restaurant.

W. Lester Glenney, who won the club championship at the Plainfield Country Club, last Saturday, demonstrated that he is capable of playing a hard game. The match between him and Frank O. Reinhart went twenty holes and then Glenney won out by 1 up. Throughout the competition the contestants were about as evenly matched as any two players could be. Reinhart displayed much of his old-time form and was strong on his drives as well as approaching and putting. The match was well worth seeing from start to finish.

A comparison of the scores in the open golf championships are interesting. Last year in the United States open, Alec Ross won with a score of 302 for seventy-two holes. This year, James Braid won the British open with a score of 291. The Western open was won this year by Willie Anderson, with a score of 299, while Alec Ross won the Massachusets open with a score of 290.

The Plainfield Country Club contemplate many changes this season which will add to the convenience and comfort of the large membership.

J. E. Martine sent one dispatch yesterday to The Daily Press that will remain unpublished for the good and sufficient reason that in it he made the assertion: "Words fail me." We couldn't risk our reputation nor that of "Jim" by circulating such a statement.

In tomorrow's issue will appear a clever cartoon by William N. Runyon, which is up to the high standard of his previous work in this line for The Daily Press. It is a political cartoon of great merit and is prompted by the action of the Democratic convention at Denver today.

By the way the special elections are going in various parts of the State, it seems quite likely that the $300,000 worth of automatic voting devices will soon be relegated to the junk heap. These special elections are costly to the taxpayers, but not nearly so much so as is the purchase of such machines without the consent of the voters.

New Jersey's Spanish War Veterans Petition Congress to Act.

STATE OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

Captain J. W. Desmond, of Jersey City, Chosen Department Commander—An All-Day Session.

Captain John W. Desmond, of Wikoff Camp, Jersey City, formerly senior vice-commander, yesterday afternoon was elected department commander at the fifth annual state encampment of the New Jersey Spanish War Veterans, which was in session in Elizabeth all day. The election of Captain Desmond was followed by the election of former Lieutenant Colonel Hanley, of the First Regiment, Newark, as senior vice-commander.

The election of commander brought to a conclusion the day's business, the principal feature of which was the unanimous passage of a resolution yesterday morning calling upon Congress to take some immediate action toward raising the sunken battleship Maine and providing a burial for such bodies as may be discovered when the wreck is hoisted.

In his report, made at the morning session, Department Commander John T. Collins, of Rutherford, who presided, reviewed the activities of the last year and reported thirteen camps to be in prosperous condition. He spoke of the fact that New Jersey had been defeated in its fight to bring the next national encampment to this State, Boston having been chosen.

Major Robert L. Patterson, of Elizabeth, and formerly department commander of the Spanish War Vetegrans, was in charge of the local arrangements and acted as host.

Sixteen camps were represented yesterday, as follows: Camp John J. Brereton, No. 1, Paterson; Camp John T. Hilton, No. 3, Rutherford; Camp Major John Engel, No. 5, Hackensack; Camp Colonel Wikoff, No. 6, Jersey City; Camp Colonel D. A. Currie, No. 8, Englewood; Camp General A. McArthur, No. 9, Hoboken; amp William J. Sewell, No. 10, Elizabeth; Camp W. E. Holland, No. 12, New Brunswick; Camp D. D. Mitchell, No. 13, Newark; Camp William McKinley, No. 14, Asbury Park; Camp Eugene A. Hudson, No. 15, Atlantic City; Camp Buckley O'Neill, No. 16, Newark; Camp Gerardin John, No. 18, Bayonne; Camp U. S. S. Badger, No. 19, Hoboken; Camp S. C. Landon, No. 20, Somerville; Camp Sergeant K. K. Fisk, No. 17, Camden.

The complete list of officers elected follows: State department commander, John W. Desmond, of Jersey City; senior vice-commander, George Hanley, of Newark; lieutenant vice-commander, William I. Newman, of Hackensack; department inspector, George E. Spittlehouse, of Elizabeth; department marshal, George V. Martin, Hoboken; judge advocate, Guy Fake, of Rutherford; department chaplain, the Rev. Otis A. Glazebrok, of Elizabeth.

MISSING DAUGHTER FOUND.

Arrest of Married Man in Trenton Followed by Her Recovery by Police.

Trenton, July 9.—After searching for more than a week for their daughter Margaret, seventeen years old, Mr. and Mrs. George Huber, of Rushtown, Pa., yesterday secured the arrest in this city of William Everett, a married man, charging him with an offense against the girl, who is said to be in a serious condition as the result of an operation. The girl came to Treaton some months ago and found employment as a domestic. Her parents feared all was not well with her when she ceased to write to them, so came to this city Saturday and asked the police to help them in their search.

The police located her boarding with a family on Pennington avenue, to whom she had given the name of Mrs. Everett. To the police the girl declared that she alone was responsible for what had happened to her, that she loved Everett, in spite of the fact that she had known from the beginning of her acquaintance with him that he is married.

"BLACK HANDS" ON TRIAL.

Former Newark Pastor Identifies Two of the Accused.

The Rev. Augustino Dassori, an Italian minister, formerly in charge of a church at Newark, now living a retired life as a farmer near Franklin Park station, went on the witness stand yesterday at New Brunswick in the trial of Michael Filostoe, John Cery and Antonio De Natale, Italians charged with sending "Black Hand" letters to him demanding $5,000, under penalty of death of the minister and his nieces.

He identified two of the men as men he had seen about his place soon after he had received the letters and as the men who were waiting near a sign along the railroad where he was told to leave the money. Mrs. Dassori and Miss Minnie Grey, a niece, also testified to having seen the men about the place.

PASTE THIS IN YOUR REFRIGERATOR.

Absolute cleanliness is essential if the refrigerator is to be kept in condition during hot weather. This can only be achieved by constant watchfulness on the part of the housewife.

Make a point of examining the cellar every day. Emamine all parts of the refrigerator, the ice chest, shelves and outer drain. Also take a look into covered dishes to see that nothing spoilable has been overlooked.

Twice a week clean out the refrigerator thoroughly. This is best done in market mornings, when the shelves are comparatively empty.

Scour well with a clean scrubbing brush and soapy water. Then wash out with boiling hot soda water. Take out all the shelves and wash them off in the same way. Dry carefully, as moisture soon breeds mould.

Air is essential, so leave the doors of the refrigerator open after this cleaning up, for at least an hour.

See that the drain in unclogged, otherwise the housewife may be horrified to find it full of snails. Pour boiling soda water down this occasionally.

Even this care will not suffice if the refrigerator is filled up with smelly cooked dishes or half-spoiled vegetables. Be careful what is put in and remember that the ice chest is for ice, and should not be encumbered with all sorts of messes and left-overs, that should go in the lower part if their place be in the refrigerator at all.

Provide everything with covers, especially milk, butter and eggs, which quickly absorb impurities.

Do not keep cantaloupes in the ice chest, as nothing more rapidly taints other foods.

Never put hot dishes either in the ice-box or in the lower part, as the steam generates moisture that is injurious both to the refrigerator and to the food supply kept in it.

Keep your refrigerator clean each day. Do not make a culinary junk shop of it and you will be saved many of the woes that afflict the neglectful housekeeper when heat works havoc with all food supplies.

THE JUMPER STILL HOLDS UNDISPUTED SWAY.

There is no end to the jumper family. It may be a pair of bretelles embroidered to match a skirt; it may be a combination of tailor-finished straps to carry out the trimming scheme of the skirt; it may be sleeveless or may have sleeves of any length from shoulder to wrist, and little or much material may go to its making. One girl has taken off the band that trimmed the skirt of her last year's serge suit and made it into a very original pair of bretelles, which are a succession of straps and stitchery. The result is the smartening of an old suit and the outlay is nil.

Many a girl is busy with the making of guimpes, for no girl ever had too many for her summer's outing. One of the most effective and simplest guimpes seen lately is made of row upon row of half-inch coarse Cluny lace—the real hand-made kind. One girl has made for herself a guimpe of fine batiste tucked and inset with Valenciennes insertion and Irish crochet medallions. The medallions her mother, who remembered the art of crochet from her youth, made for her.

Tucked net guimpes and chemisettes, inset or not with filet, Cluny or Irish lace, are very much liked. For tailor-mades, these are often of colored net, which is practically for traveling and other hard wear. All these neck fixings have very high collars, which are more often than not finished with plaitings. Sometimes there is a plaiting at both top and bottom. This is, in fact, the very latest cry. That it is for the small neck goes without saying. To outline a fat neck with a ruche at the bottom of the collar is, of course, not to be thought of.

Long Lines for Stout Figures.

There is no denying the fact that the craze for long lines is being somewhat overdone by many thin women, who emphasize their slenderness to the verge of attenuation, but to the over-plump the vogue is a boon.

Any type of lingerie costume may have long lines if the trimming be correctly arranged upon the skirt and the bodice, and nowhere is this fact better emphasized than in the one-piece costumes of empire and bebe princesse design. This is because the embroidery bands may extend unbroken from shoulders to skirt hem at front and back in the form of panels, so wide and distinct of pattern are some of the new needlework designs.

The panels may extend up the side of the skirt and into the arm size, thus affording the effect of additional slenderness at the waist line, where womankind is prone to take on flesh with advancing years.

TARGET PRACTICE CODE REVISED FOR N.J. GUARDS

Owing to the establishment of the department of small arms by the State militia, a revision of the military code has been found necessary, especially that relating to target practice. The following changes were made in an order issued yesterday by Adjutant General Breintnall:

"To marksmen, when first qualifying as such, will be issued a marksman's pin, which will be worn until the close of the succeeding practice season. If qualification is renewed in the succeeding season, the pin may be worn another year, and so on for further seasons, but if the grade of sharpshooter is attained, or that of marksman not reached, the pin will not be worn. To the soldier who has qualified as a marksman for three years, not necessarily consecutive years, or, in the case of enlisted men, not necessarily in the same enlistment, a pin will be issued which will specify the years of qualification, and this pin will be worn above the marksman's pin so long as the soldier is entitled to wear the latter.

"To the sharpshooter, a silver badge will be issued. For the year when qualification is first completed, the badge will consist of a pin and cross; the soldier having once qualified as a sharpshooter may continue to wear the badge even if qualification is not renewed in future years. To the soldier who has qualified as a sharpshooter for three years, not necessarily in the same enlistment, a silver bar will be issued, which will specify the years of qualification, and will be attached to the badge between the pin and the cross. For each additional three years of qualification an additional bar will be issued, and each in succession attached below the one previously supplied and above the cross.

"If the grade of expert rifleman is attained, the sharpshooter's badge will not be worn.

"To the expert riflemen will be issued a silver badge. The soldier having ever qualified as an expert rifleman may continue to wear the badge even if qualification is not renewed in future years. To the soldier who has qualified as an expert rifleman for three years, not necessarily consecutive years, or, in the case of enlisted men, not necessarily in the same enlistment, a silver bar will be issued, which will specify the years of qualification, and will be attached to the badge immediately below the pin. For each additional three years of qualification an additional bar will be issued, and each in succession attached immediately below the one previously issued."

FORT INSPECTS ROADS.

Has As Guest On Trip the Governor of Maryland.

Governor Fort, with the State Road Commissioner and State Supervisor of Roads and Governor Austin L. Crothers, of Maryland, passed through Camden in an automobile yesterday morning on an inspection tour of Jersey's improved roads. The route was down the White Horse pike to Atlantic City, where luncheon was taken. Then the trip on the road at Absecon leading to Long Branch was begun. It is expected that the party will reach Sea Girt tonight, when they will be entertained at dinner and over night at the summer capitol.

Today the party went to Eatontown, where the Colt's Neck road, in course of construction, was inspected. From there they will go to Freehold, Hightstown, New Brunswick, and thence through Middlesex, Union, Essex and Hudson counties to Jersey City.

borough sewage, there shall be no liability on the part of the city and no claim for damages, but the city is to exercise every precaution to care for the sewage, but in case of any damage suit result in the future from any alleged nuisance or other cause the expenses are to be put on a pro rata basis and with each renewal of the contract there is to be a re-adjustment of the rate according to the amount of borough sewage cared for.

The contract further provides that the borough shall minimize the quantity of surface water likely to pass through the sewer as far as possible, it being realized taht there is likely to be a certain influx of surface water.

It is also intended to engage the services of a competent inspecting engineer, who shall give his entire time, day and night, to looking after the system of sewers, it being realized that City Engineer Gavett would be unable to devote so much time to the work. It is further provided that the borough shall build a trunk line to Green brook and Rock avenue, and from that point the city will install the trunk line to the sewage farm. The borough is to give the city a bond agreeing to pay the city a minimum amount annually. This sum has not been determined upon yet.

The engineer's figures show that during the first ten years the borough will pay $50,000 for this service on the incerasing scale. At the end of the first ten years terms are to be agreed upon for a renewal by arbitration, the two Mayors and a third party to decide upon the terms.

In case the city should at any time during the existence of the contract decide to remove its sewage plant, that act will terminate the provisions of it and make it void. A question was raised on this point, but it was the opinion that if there should be a removal the borough would have an opportunity to continue to get the benefit of the city system of sewage disposal, and besides, Mr. Buttfield said that it was only a question of time when the borough and city will be one and that act will dispose of any trouble along that line.

"Personally," continued Mr. Buttfield, "I think one large disposal plant is the ideal thing, one that would receive the sewage from Fanwood heights to the Raritan. As to the term of years for the contract I am informed that according to the city's charter the Common Council cannot make such a contract for a longer period than ten years at a time. Of course the fact that the city is likely to remove its plant is one risk the borough must take."

H. C. White, secretary of teh association, suggested that the city might take such action terminating the contract and then agree to let the borough continue to use the system provided it pay cost of removal. This was thought to be a very unlekely condition.

Due notice must be given the borough of any change and it was the belief that such a change could not be eected in less than a year. It was further explained by Mr. Buttfield that five bills were passed by the Legislature permitting the contemplated action and in the opinion of lawyers, including Corporation Counsel Marsh and Borough Counsel Reed there is now no legal obstacle in the way of putting the contract through.

Former Councilman D. F. Ginna, who gave a great deal of time to a consideration of the subject when he was a city father, advised the borough to accept the contract if the present Common Council would agree, that it was a fair one to the borough and that the city would be in a position to care for the borough's sewage for ten years to come after increasing the number of contact beds at the sewer farm. Plainfield, he said, would lose nothing and the borough would get a fair contract. He believed that such an agreement would considerably lessen the borough's liability in case of any future action or injunction suits.

"I own property in the city as well as the borough," said Mr. Buttfield, "and I would much prefer to have the borough connect with the city's sewer system than to install an independent one in the borough. I remember when it was intended to purchase land in North Plainfield township to establish a sewage system the people were up in arms and the township committee threatened an injunction."

After the discussion, Mr. White offered the resolution, which was adopted approving the action, and the vote was unanimously in favor. The members were urged to attend the public hearing of the Common Council on Monday night and urge adoption of the contract.

NO CURFEW IN BAYONNE.

Council Votes Down Plan to Ring Fire Alarm Bells.

The Republican majority in the Bayonne Council yesterday defeated a resolution offered by Councilman McCormack, Democrat, to resume the ringing of the bells in the fire towers when alarms are received, and at 9 o'clock at night, which for many years has been a curfew and a signal for the children to get off the streets.

The Republicans declared that as the city has a full paid fire department there is no need of sounding the tower bells, which collects crowds, who interfere with the firemen. Mr. McCormack declared that two-thirds of the residents favor the ringing of the bells, and that at night, when the 9 o'clock tap was given, thousands of watches and clocks throughout the city were set.

Beer Ark in Ocean Grove!

Ocean Grove, July 9.—That beer and Methodism do not mix is a truth that was aptly proven in Ocean Grove this morning when a forgetful beer ark driver steered his craft into the Ocean Grove gate. An Ocean Grove cop smelled the stuff from a side street before the wagon hove in sight and a lively argument developed before the team turned about.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

In excellent health, despite her age, Mrs. Eliza Fish, of Beverly, yesterday received the congratulations of many friends on her ninety-fifth birthday.

As a result of a team of horses backing and squeezing him against a barn, Ezra B. Stevenson, Jr., of Beverly, is suffering from several fractured ribs.

Riding in a freight car with his feet extending outward, Linwood Watson, of Bridgeton, was badly hurt by coming into contact with an obstruction at Finley.

After six months in a Philadelphia hospital, in which time four operations were performed on a leg wounded in the Civil War, E. Chandler Reed, of Beverly, has returned home.

Michael Bliss, palm reader and fortune teller, of Atlantic City, predicted a gloomy future for Policeman George Herbert, but failed to discover that the man was a detective until he (Bliss) was taken before Recorder Hayes and fined $50.

Using a preparation containing benzine for cleaning a stove, in which there still remained embers of a fire, caused an explosion which resulted in Mrs. Marie Belmonte, of Paterson, being burned about the hands yesterday afternoon.

Charles Ahnert, a freight brakeman, was killed at May's Landing while attempting to couple cars yesterday. He fell between the cars and was ground to pieces before he could be picked up. The body was taken to Atlantic City.

Elsie Kirsinger, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Louis Kirsinger, was attacked by a dog near her home at 256 Liberty street, Paterson, yesterday afternoon. The dog sank his teeth into the fleshy part of the child's leg, tearing the flesh. Dr. Alexander cauterized the wound.

Michael Leonard, an iron worker residing at 34 Plum street, Paterson, was hammering a nail into a piece of hard timber yesterday, when the nail flew out and struck him in the eye, penetrating the cornea. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. The physicians have slight hopes of saving the sight of the eye.

Rev. Willard C. Young, colored, who was sentenced to serve six months in jail by Judge Scott last Friday, got out on bail yesterday and will be at liberty until September 10, when arguments will be heard by Judge Scott on the question of whether a new trial should be ordered.

The shooting of a dog by J. C. Still, negro, on Madison avenue, Mt. Holly, last night, created a sensation when a number of the pellets landed among women sitting in front of their homes, and one grain penetrated the arm of Mrs. Herbert L. Townsend. Still was arrested and heavily fined for his carelessness.

Alleged to have been brutally beaten by Edward Wilbur at New Lisbon, Charles Albertson, of Pemberton township, well known as a former freeholder, is in a serious condition. Albertson was in New Lisbon Monday night, and when Wilbur believed that his wife had been insulted by the non-resident, he is said to have made the attack. One side of Albertson's face was pounded almost to a pulp.

Gealie Tierno, three years old, fell from a rowboat on the lake at Clementon yesterday and was drowned. She was with several other children when she toppled into the water, and, they, badly frightened, ran to the woods, where they were found later. Asked what had become of Gealie, they said she had fallen into the water. The lifeless body of the little girl was soon recovered.

ADMIT THEY SHOVED MASTIS TO HIS DEATH.

Elizabeth, July 9.—Police-Sergeants Mulcahy and Matson arrested yesterday afternoon at Elizabethport Thomas Flannigan, eighteen years old, of 68 Pine street, and John Sullivan, eighteen years old, of 139 Pine street, who admitted pushing overboard on the Fourth of July, from Pier 6, Elizabethport coal wharves, Joseph Mastis, a Pole, twenty-two years old, who was drowned. A companion of Mastis was also thrown into Staten Island Sound, but was rescued.

The prisoners were arraigned in police court and told their story of the affair. They said they had been skylarking with the Poles and accidentally shoved them overboard.

Becoming alarmed at this, they ran away, not knowing the Poles were unable to swim. While Judge Mahlon was satisfied from this statement the affair was not one of intentional murder, nevertheless a life had been sacrificed and he would hold the defendants for the grand jury. They were committed to jail.

—Use Press want ads. They pay.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wolverton, of Piscataway Township, are now in charge of the Industrial Home, succeeding Mr. and Mrs. I. D. TenEyck, who resigned.

—City Engineer Gavett's men are preparing North avenue for the treatment of Tarvia, which will be expected to keep the dust down, thereby adding to the comfort of residents as well as those who use it as a means of travel.

Your Doctor Will Tell You That You Need A Natural Tonic

The majority of so-called "Spring" tonics supply a false stimulation to the body—but this is not the natural and most beneficial way of helping the system to overcome lassitude.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

tones and builds up the body in the natural way—through the stomach. A run-down condition of health is almost invariably due to a disordered stomach and digestive organs. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge tones the stomach and restores it to its normal healthy condition. Then the restored stomach does the building up and brings the body back to a state of perfect health. This is the natural way.

Jayne's Expectorant is the oldest and most reliable Cough Cure known.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic for the Week Beginning July 12, 1908.

By REV. S. [illegible]

Topic.—Character and courtesy. 1 Pet. iii. 8-12

Character is what a man really is as God sees him and not what he seems to be to his fellow men. The latter is reputation. Character and reputation are in many instances synonomous. For people are really within what they manifest themselves to be without. Their inward lives square with their outward lives. In many other cases this is not true. The reputations and characters of men are often wide apart. The outward lives may belie their inward and secret lives. If we are true and honorable with God and our fellows, we will not appear in a false light, but will manifest in our outward lives the real principles of our inward lives. Moreover, we are all desire good reputations, we will see to it that our characters also are good.

Courtesy should be one of the ways in which we manifest our character. It comes from the word "court" and suggests the manners of those in kings' courts, which all know must be genial and affable under any and all circumstances. The courtier cannot manifest anger or ill feeling or neglect to be kind and obliging, nor should those who are courtiers in the kingdom of Christ, especially since we are always in the presence of our King.

Courtesy should be a most fragrant flower of character. It should begin in thought. We should think kindly of all men, even those who may be our enemies or who may have wronged us. Existing in the mind and heart, courtesy should manifest itself in speech and action. Nothing costs so little as kindness in speech and action. Nothing adds more to the happiness of those about us. On the other hand, in no way can we do ourselves more harm than by discourtesy. We may forget the unkind word, but the one to whom it was spoken does not. We may forget an unkind deed, but others will not. We may not seize the many opportunities about us to be thoughtful of others, to bear with their infirmities and to be helpful and obliging in their times of need, but if we do not we shall reap the reward for such neglect. In the kindly spirit of Christ, "be courteous"—courteous in the home, courteous among friends, courteous to strangers.

Dr. Clark In Berlin.

A very notable one was the visit of Dr. Clark to Berlin. Dr. Clark is so well known in Germany by reason of his books and messages that each Endeavorer there wished to see him face to face, so that, although there was but little time to announce the meeting, the hall was filled to overflowing before the meeting began. When Dr. Clark rose to speak the whole audience rose in their seats, waving flags and singing their welcome to him. Pastor Blecher voiced the hearty welcome of German Endeavorers to their beloved president and spoke of the pleasure it was to them to know that he was strong and well again. Dr. Clark brought with him greetings from Scandinavia and told of the interest and enthusiasm which the message of the German emperor had aroused through all the world. The emperor has also sent his thanks for a message of greeting sent to him by German Endeavorers on the occasion of his silver wedding. Many of the Berlin Endeavorers testified how much Christian Endeavor had been to them and expressed their personal gratitude to Dr. Clark for his messages and for the work in which God had so greatly used him. Pastor Stieglitz, a member of the German Christian Endeavor council, spoke of the personal esteem in which Dr. Clark is held. Scarcely any churchman of the present day has received as much honor and love as Dr. Clark, yet he still remains the same simple, faithful, lovable and indefatigable servant of Christ, always giving to Him all the honor. On Feb. 2 Dr. Clark commenced a new society in the American church of Munich, where he has been working during the past months.

Secretary Shaw's Loving Cup.

A beautiful and large silver loving cup was given recently to Secretary Shaw by his own Christian Endeavor Union, that of Andover, Mass. The inscription, below the C. E. monogram, is as follows: "Presented to William Shaw, General Secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, by the Andover Christian Endeavor Union, 1907."

The Andover union consists of six societies of average size and quality, part of them in the town and part in the country. Every member of the union gave his share toward the purchase of this cup. That fact shows two things. One of them is the universal honor in which Mr. Shaw is held at his own home. The other is the businesslike way in which they do things in that union.

Practical Endeavor.

At Sholapur, India, the Christian Endeavorers repaired the church walls lately. The women of the society earned money to buy whitewash, the boys doing the whitewashing during their holidays, while the girls cleaned the benches and oiled them. This is practical endeavor.

No Prosperity Without Christ.

Again and [illegible] need to come back to this [illegible] Christian Endeavor [illegible] prosperity [illegible] bers and [illegible] Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

"Humph!" We'll soon find out who he is and what may be done with him. I'll wait for the duke. Take him into the library and lock the door. It's a hundred feet out of the window, and if he wants to break his neck, he may do so. It will save us so much trouble. Take him away! take him away!" his rage boiling to the surface.

The princess shrugged.

"I can't talk to you either," said the prince, turning his glowering eyes upon the girl. "I can't trust myself."

"Oh, do not mind me. I understand that your command of expletives is rather original. Go on; it will be my only opportunity." The princess rocked backward and forward on the divan. Wasn't it funny!

"Lord help me, and I was perfectly willing to marry this girl!" The prince suddenly calmed down. "What have I ever done to offend you?"

"Nothing," she was forced to admit.

"I was lonely. I wanted youth about. I wanted to hear laughter that came from the heart and not from the mind. I do not see where I am to be blamed. The duke suggested you to me; I believed you to be willing. Why did you not say to me that I was not agreeable? It would have simplified everything."

"I am sorry," she said contritely. When he spoke like this he wasn't so unlovable.

"People say," he went on, "that I spend most of my time in my wine-cellars. Well,"—defiantly,—"what else is there for me to do? I am alone." Max came within his range of vision. "Take him away, I tell you!"

"'Take Him Away!'"

And the colonel hustled Max into the library.

"Don't try the window," he warned, but with rather a pleasant smile. He was only two or three years older than Max. "If you do, you'll break your neck."

"I promise not to try," replied Max. "My neck will serve me many years yet."

"It will not if you have the habit of running away with persons above you in quality. Actions like that are not permissible in Europe." The colonel spoke rather grimly, for all his smile.

The door slammed, there was a grinding of the key in the lock, and Max was alone.

The library at Doppelkinn was all the name implied. The cases were low and ran around the room, and were filled with romance, history, biography and even poetry. The great circular reading table was littered with new books, periodicals and illustrated weeklies. Since Doppelkinn had been threatened with a literary turn of mind, but a bad vintage coming along at the same time had effected a permanent cure.

Max slid into a chair and took up a paper, turning the pages at random.—What was the matter with the room? Certainly it was not close, nor damp, nor chill. What was it? He let the paper fall to the floor, and his eyes roved from one object to another.—Where had he seen that Chinese mask before, and that great silver-faced clock? Somehow, mysterious and strange as it seemed, all this was vaguely familiar to him. Doubtless he had seen a picture of the room somewhere. He rose and wandered about.

In one corner of the bookshelves stood a pile of boy's books and some broken toys with the dust of ages upon them. He picked up a row of painted soldiers, and balanced them thoughtfully on his hand. Then he looked into one of the picture-books. It was a Santa Claus story; some of the pictures were torn and some stuck together, a reminder of sticky, candied hands. He gently replaced the book and toys, and stared absently into space. How long he stood that way he did not recollect, but he was finally aroused by the sound of slamming doors and new voices. He returned to his chair and waited for the denouement, which the marrow in his bones told him was about to approach.

It seemed incredible that he, of all persons, should be plucked out of the practical ways of men and thrust into the unreal fantasies of romance. A hubbub in a restaurant, a headlong dash into a carriage compartment, a long ride with a princess, and all within three short hours! It was like some weird dream. And how the deuce would it end?

He gazed at the toys again.

And then the door opened and he was told to come out. The grand duke had arrived.

"This will be the final round-up," he laughed quietly, his thought whimsically traveling back to the great plains and the long rides under the starry night.

CHAPTER XI.

The Grand Duke of Barscheit was tall and angular and weather-beaten, and the whites of his eyes bespoke a constitution as sound and hard as his common sense. As Max entered he was standing at the side of Doppelkinn.

"There he is!" shouted the prince. "Do you know who he is?"

The duke took a rapid inventory. "Never set eyes upon him before." The duke then addressed her highness. "Hildegarde, who is this fellow? No evasions; I want the truth. I have, in the main, found you truthful."

"I know nothing of him at all," said the princess curtly.

Max wondered where the chill in the room came from.

"He says that his name is Scharfenstein," continued the princess, "and he has proved himself to be a courteous gentleman."

Max found that the room wasn't so chill as it might have been.

"Yet you eloped with him, and were on the way to Dresden," suggested the duke pointedly.

The princess faced them all proudly. "I eloped with no man. That was simply a little prevarication to worry you, my uncle, after the manner in which you have worried me. I was on my way to Dresden, it is true, but only to hide with my old governess. This gentleman jumped into my compartment as the train drew out of the station."

"But you knew him!" bawled the prince, waving his arms.

"Do you know him?" asked the duke coldly.

"I met him out riding. He addressed me, and I replied out of common politeness,"—with a sidelong glance at Max, who stood with folded arms, watching her gravely.

The duke threw his hands above his head as if to call heaven to witness that he was a very much wronged man.

"Arnheim," he said to the young colonel, "go at once for a priest."

"A priest!" echoed the prince.

"Yes; the girl shall marry you tonight," declared his serene highness.

"Not if I live to be a thousand!" Doppelkinn struck the table with his fist.

The girl smiled at Max.

"What?" cried the duke, all the coldness gone from his tones. "You refuse?" He was thunderstruck.

"Refuse? Of course I refuse!" And the prince thumped the table again. "What do you think I am in my old age,—an ass? If you have any fillies to break, use your own pastures. I'm a vintner." He banged the table yet again. "Why, I wouldn't marry the Princess Hildegarde if she was the last woman on earth!"

"Thank you!" said the princess sweetly.

"You're welcome," said the prince.

"Silence!" bellowed the duke. "Doppelkinn, take care; this is an affront, not one to be lightly ignored. It is international news that you are to wed my niece."

"To-morrow it will be international news that I'm not!" The emphasis this time threatened to crack the table-leaf. "I'm not going to risk my liberty with a girl who has no more sense of dignity than she has."

"It is very kind of you," murmured the princess.

"She'd make a fine wife," went on the prince, ignoring the interruption. "No, a thousand times no! Take her away—life's too short; take her away! Let her marry the fellow; he's young and may get over it."

The duke was furious. He looked around for something to strike, and nothing but the table being convenient, he smashed a leaf and sent a vase clattering to the floor. He was stronger than the prince, otherwise there wouldn't have been a table to thwack.

"That's right; go on! Break all the furniture, if it will do you any good; but mark me, you'll foot the bill." The prince began to dance around. "I will not marry the girl. That's as final as I can make it. The sooner you calm down the better."

How the girl's eyes sparkled! She was free. The odious alliance would not take place.

"Who is that?"

Everybody turned and looked at Max. His arm was leveled in the direction of a fine portrait in oil which hung suspended over the fireplace. Max was very pale.

"What's that to you?" snarled the prince. He was what we Yankees call "hopping mad." The vase was worth a hundred crowns, and he never could find a leaf to replace the one just broken.

"I believe I have a right to know who that woman is up there." Max spoke quietly. As a matter of fact he was too weak to speak otherwise.

"A right to know? What do you mean?" demanded the prince fiercely. "It is my wife."

With trembling fingers Max produced his locket.

"Will you look at this?" he asked in a voice that was a bit shaky.

The prince stepped forward and jerked the locket from Max's hand. But the moment he saw the contents his jaw fell and he rocked on his heels unsteadily and staggered back toward the duke for support.

"What's the matter, prince?" asked the duke anxiously. After all Doppelkinn was an old crony, and mayhap he had been harsh with him.

"Where did you get that?" asked the prince hoarsely.

"I have always worn it," answered Max. "The chain that went with it originally will no longer fit my neck."

"Arnheim! . . . Duke! . . . come and look at this!"—feebly.

"Good heaven!" cried the duke.

"It is the princess!" said Arnheim in awed tones.

"Where did you get it?" demanded the prince again.

"I was found with it around my neck."

"Duke, what do you think?" asked the agitated prince.

"What do I think?"

"Yes. This was around my son's neck the day he was lost. If this should be! . . . If it were possible!"

"What?" The duke looked from the prince to the man who had worn the locket. Certainly there wasn't any sign of likeness. But when he looked at the portrait on the wall and then at Max doubt grew in his eyes. They were somewhat alike. He plucked nervously at his beard.

"Prince," said Max, "before heaven I believe that I may be . . . your son!"

"My son!"

By this time they were all tremendously excited and agitated and white; all save the princess, who was gazing at Max with sudden gladness in her eyes, while over her cheeks there stole the phantom of a rose. If it were true!

"Let me tell you my story," said Max. (It is not necessary for me to repeat it.)

The prince turned helplessly toward the duke, but the duke was equally dazed.

"But we can't accept a story as proof," the duke said. "It isn't as if he were one of the people. It wouldn't matter then. But it's a future prince. Let us go slow."

"Yes, let us go slow," repeated the prince, brushing his damp forehead.

"Wait a moment!" said Col. Arnheim, stepping forward. "Only one thing will prove his identity to me; not all the papers in the world can do it."

"What do you know?" cried the prince, bewildered.

"Something I have not dared tell till this moment,"—miserably.

"Curse it, you are keeping us waiting!" The duke kicked about the shattered bits of porcelain.

"I used to play with the—the young prince," began Arnheim. "Your highness will recollect that I did." Arnheim went over to Max. "Take off your coat." Max did so, wondering. "Roll up your sleeve." Again Max obeyed, and his wonder grew. "See!" cried the colonel in a high, unnatural voice, due to his unusual excitement. "Oh, there can be no doubt! It is your son!"

The duke and the prince bumped against each other in their mad rush to inspect Max's arm. Arnheim's finger rested upon the peculiar scar I have mentioned.

"Lord help us, it's your wine-case brand!" gasped the duke.

"My wine case!" The prince was almost on the verge of tears.

The girl sat perfectly quiet.

"Explain, explain!" said Max.

"Yes, yes! How did this come?—put there?" spluttered the prince.

"Your highness, we—your son—we were playing in the wine cellars that day," stammered the unhappy Arnheim. "I saw . . . the hot iron . . . I was a boy of no more than five . . . I branded the prince on the arm. He cried so that I was frightened and ran and hid. When I went to look for him he was gone. Oh, I know; it is your son."

"I'll take your word for it, colonel!" cried the prince. "I said from the first that he wasn't bad-looking. Didn't I, princess?" He then turned embarrassedly toward Max and timidly held out his hand. That was as near sentiment as ever the father and the son came, but it was genuine. "Ho, steward! Hans, you rascal, where are you?"

The steward presently entered, shading his eyes.

"Your highness called?"

"That I did. That's Max come home!"

"Little Max?"

"Little Max. Now, candles, and march yourself to the packing cellars. Off with you!" The happy old man slapped the duke on the shoulder. "I've an idea, Josef."

"What is it?" asked the duke, also very well pleased with events.

"I'll tell you all about it when we get into the cellar." But the nod toward the girl and the nod toward Max was a liberal education.

"I am pardoned?" said Arnheim.

"Pardoned? My boy, if I had an army I would make you a general!" roared the prince. "Come along, Josef. And you, Arnheim! You troopers, out of here, every one of you, and leave these two young persons alone!"

Ah, how everything was changed! thought Max, as he let down his sleeve and buttoned his cuff. A prince! He was a prince; he, Max Scharfenstein, cowboy, quarterback, trooper, doctor, was a prince! If it was a dream, he was going to box the ears of the bell-boy who woke him up. But it wasn't a dream; he knew it wasn't. The girl younder didn't dissolve into mist and disappear; she was living, living. He had now the right to love any one he chose, and he did choose to love this beautiful girl, who, with lowered eyes, was nervously plucking the ends of the pillow tassel. It was all changed, for her, too.

"Princess!" he said a bit brokenly.

"I am called Gretchen by my friends,"—with a boldness that only half disguised her real timidity. What would he do, this big, handsome fellow, who had turned out to be a prince, fairy-tale wise?

"Gretchen? I like that better than Hildegarde; it is less formal. Well, then, Gretchen, I can't explain it, but this new order of things has given me a tremendous backbone." He crossed the room to her side. "You will not wed my—my father?"

"Never in all this world!"—slipping around the table, her eyes dim like the bloom on the grape. She ought not to be afraid of him, but she was.

"But I—"

"You have known me only four days," she whispered faintly. "You can not know your mind."

"Oh, when one is a prince,"—laughing,—"it takes no time at all. I love you. I knew it was going to be when you looked around in old Bauer's smithy."

"Did I look around?"—innocently.

"You certainly did, for I looked around and saw you."

"But they say that I am wild like a young horse." (Love is always finding some argument which he wishes to have knocked under.)

"Not to me,"—ardently. "You may ride a bicycle every day, if you wish."

"I'd rather have an automobile,"—drolly.

"An airship, if money will buy it!"

"They say—my uncle says—that I am not capable of loving anything."

"What do I care what they say? Will you be my wife?"

"Give me a week to think it over."

"No."

(She liked that!)

"A day, then?"

"Not an hour!"

(She liked this still better.)

"Oh!"

"Not half an hour!"

"This is almost as bad as the duke; you are forcing me."

"If you do not answer yes or no at once, I'll go back to Barscheit and trounce that fellow who struck me. I can do it now."

"Well—but only four days—"

"Hours! Think of riding together forever!"—joyously taking a step nearer.

"I dare not think of it. It is all so like a dream. . . . Oh!" bursting into tears (what unaccountable beings women are!)—"if you do not love me!"

"Don't I, though!"

Then he started around the table in pursuit of her, in all directions, while, after the manner of her kind, she balked him, rosily, starry-eyed. They laughed; and when two young people laugh it is a sign that all goes well with the world. He never would tell just how long it took him to catch her, nor would he tell me what he did when he caught her. Neither would I, had I been in his place!

"Here's!" said the prince.

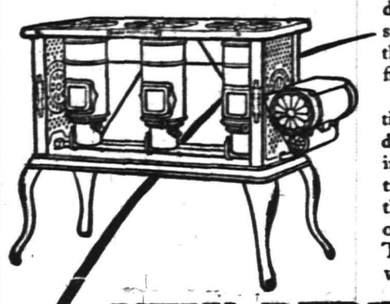
"It's a great world," added the duke.

"For surprises," supplemented the prince. "Ho, Hans! A fresh candle!"

And the story goes that his serene highness of Barscheit and his highness of Doppelkinn were found peacefully asleep in the cellars, long after the sun had rolled over the blue Carpathians.

THE END.

Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen



How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?

You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the

NEW PERFECTION

the kitchen actually seems as comfortable as you could wish it to be.

This, in itself, is wonderful, but, more than that, the "New Perfection" Oil Stove does perfectly everything that any stove can do. It is an ideal all-round cook-stove. Made in three sizes, and fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp a substantial, strongly made and handsome lamp. Burns for hours with a strong, mellow light. Just what you need for evening reading or to light the dining-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

GOLF.

The Park Golf Club is certainly the centre of attraction for the members, this summer. Every Saturday and frequently during the week, the course is crowded with contestants. One thing that has tended to bring the players out is the weekly competition for the challenge trophies and already there is great rivalry among the contestants. In addition the weekly competition for the President's, Golf Club and Hydewood Park cups has a large following.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Harry Kenney Roy Bleau, Robert Cuzen, Joseph Muir, Bert Smith, George Gage and Edward Tomlinson, of the Boys' Club of Hope chapel, have adopted a form of summer exercise. Every Tuesday night the young men take a cross-county run through Fourth street to Grant avenue to West End avenue to Greenbrook road to Rock avenue to West Seventh street to John street to the chapel. Upon their return they take a shower bath at the chapel.

Men's Doubles Tournament.

The Plainfield Country Club will hold a tennis tournament for men's doubles on Saturday, July 18, and Saturday, July 25. It will be open to residents of New Jersey and to other clubs by invitation. Play will commence each day at 2:30 o'clock. The committee may require matches to be played off during the week between July 18 and 25. All matches will be the best two out of three advantage sets of five. Individual prizes will be awarded the winners and runners up. Entries, accompanied by an entrance fee of $2 per team, should be sent to Thomas M. Day, 740 Carlton avenue. The entries will close Friday night, July 17, at 8 o'clock. The committee in charge is as follows: Thomas M. Day, chairman; Henry J. Cochran, Albert D. Beers, Wylie Brown, William B. Cragin, Jr., S. Wallis Merrihew and Willard Wadsworth.

Misses Wildey Win at Tennis.

In the mixed doubles tennis tournament at the Englewood Field Club, yesterday, Miss Natalie Wildey and Alexander Amend defeated Mrs. G. B. Cumming and A. L. Lindley, 6-3, 9-11, 6-2, and Miss Edna Wildey and O. H. Hinck defeated Miss Cassell and Hugh Tallant, 6-3, 6-0. In the women's doubles, preliminary round, the Misses Wildey defeated Mrs. S. Mowry and Miss C. Amend, 6-3, 6-3, and in the first round the Plainfield pair defeated Miss Johnson and Miss M. Lea, 6-3, 6-4.

New Manager at Show Grounds.

H. G. McIlwaine, formerly of this city, but late of New York, and well known in the horse show world, has been engaged to take charge of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's handsome show grounds. He has ridden many prize-winners at the Plainfield and other big shows.

Miss Loizeaux Wins Cup.

In the playoff of the tie for the Holiday cup at the Park Golf Club, yesterday, Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux defeated Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 1 up in 20 holes. The match was one of the best witnessed on the course this summer.

Time Was Not Altered.

It is reliably reported that the time made by A. C. Blair's entry, "Aaron B," in the Fourth of July race at the Driving Park, was not altered as stated, that the actual time made by the horse was posted in the usual way.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Preparatory services will be held at Hope chapel tonight and communion service Sunday night.

YOUNG MAN ADMITS PART IN JOSEPH NASTIS' DEATH.

Flannigan Says He and Companion Pushed Him Into Water Just For Fun.

Thomas Flannigan, of 68 Pine street, Elizabeth, and John Sullivan, of Wall street, Elizabeth, both eighteen years old, who were arrested in connection with the drowning of Joseph Nastis on Sunday at Elizabeth, will be arraigned today, when a charge of manslaughter may be preferred against them.

Nastis, with a companion, was fishing at the Central Railroad docks, when he was pushed overboard and sank before anyone could reach him. The police at once suspected a gang of young men who were in the vicinity, and after an investigation the above named youths were arrested.

Chief Tenney said yesterday that Sullivan admitted that he was present at the time and accused Flannigan of pushing Nastis into the water. Flannigan admits his part in the affair, it is said, but charges that Sullivan assisted him.

Their arrest was the result of clever work by Detective-Sergeants Mulcahey and Matson, who had the only one clue to work on. That was the statement of one of Nastis' friends, who declared that one of the assailants wore a straw hat with a red, white and blue band.

DOUBLE HORSE THEFT.

Irvin Beam Accused of Appropriating Two Rigs Within a Week.

Califon, July 9.—For the second time within a week Irvin Beam, twenty-one years old, son of John H. Beam, of Vernoy, has been arrested, charged with stealing two horses and carriages. Both warrants were issued by Justice of the Peace W. Watson Apgar, of Farmersville.

The first was issued at the instance of Emmett Sutton, of this place. Beam was charged with stealing Sutton's horse and carriage from the sheds of William Philhower, Thursday night, and driving it to Middle Valley and German Valley, where it was found the following morning. He gave bail for his appearance to the Hunterdon county court. Yesterday he was arrested on a second warrant issued by Apgar at teh instance of Peter S. Robinson, a farmer near Califon, whose horse and carriage were taken from Beaty's shed Saturday night. The rig was tracked toward the Beam home, where the horse was found grazing along the roadside early Sunday morning.

He was committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. Beam was arrested in April for breaking and entering at Cokesbury. For that offense he was committed to jail, but later released under bail.

TO CURB LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Monmouth County Dealers Agree to Punish Violators of Existing Laws.

Long Branch, July 9.—The Monmouth County Liquor Dealers' Association held a meeting at the New Casino yesterday afternoon, at which President Herman O. Bauer, of Keyport, presided. W. L. Edwards, of Newark, addressed the members. Mr. Edwards spoke on "The Best Way to Regulate the Liquor Traffic."

He contended that the association should seek to exclude bad men from their ranks and elect only men who would conduct business according to law. After his address there was a general discussion, in which the members present agreed to use their best efforts to make things so unpleasant for men who fail to keep the liquor laws that they will get out of the business, and further, not to elect any man who has been known to conduct business illegally.

Safeguarding Municipal Employes.

The Civil Service Commissioners have directed the secretary to inform the mayors of all cities in the State that as soon as a municipality adopts the law no employe who comes under its provisions can be dismissed, even though the law does not actually go into effect until forty-five days after its adoption. This notification is in accordance with a recent interpretation of the law by Assistant Attorney eGneral Gaskill.

GOVERNOR IS A HORSEMAN.

Sea Girt, July 9—J. Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey, is a horseman. He will not be obliged, like some of his predecessors, to take daily riding lessons for six weeks in advance of the regimental encampment so that he will be equal to the occasion when it becomes necessary for him, as commander-in-chief of the National Guard, to review the regiment in camp.

The Governor learned to ride when he was a boy in Burlington county. Some weeks ago he purchased a new saddle horse. It is a fine animal, well broken and with all the gaits. Governor Fort has taken a number of long rides already. He often goes alone, differing in this from some former Governors, who seldom ventured forth for a canter without four or five staff officers accompanying them.

TRENTON PLANS BIG PURE-WATER PLANT.

An ordinance was introduced in Trenton Council last night authorizing the expenditure of $50,000 with which to purchase land west of the Tristate baseball park, West State street, Trenton, where more than $1,000,000 will be spent on a sedimentation plant.

This move is the outcome of a demand for pure water in Trenton. United States Judge William M. Lanning headed the committee that last winter recommended this work.

VOTING MACHINE POLL.

There will be a special election in the Second and Fourth wards and the Second district of the First ward of Kearny, August 25, from 7 a. mfl to 6 p. m., to determine whether or not the voting machines should be retained.

The Council last night received a communication from E. A. Sargeant asking for pay for work in Argyle place. Sargeant recently sued for the amount and lost. The Council did not do anything with the matter.

Patrolman Is Reinstated.

Rahway, July 9.—Patrolman M. J. Healy has been under suspension for six weeks under charges. His case had been referred by the Police Committee to the Council and by Council back to the committee several times, until Councilmen G. A. Van Sant and David Tremley, who favored Healy's dismissal, resigned from the committee at the meeting last night. Councilmen Reuben Thorpe and George Helmstadter were appointed to fill the vacancies, after which Healy was reinstated. Healy may now bring suit for the payment of his salary while under suspension.

Unmanageable Auto Hurts Two.

An automobile operated by John Tomfords, a member of the real estate firm of Adler & Tomforde, Bayonne, N. J., became unmanageable on Avenue C, thit city, yesterday, and Mrs. Annie Bose, of Avenue C and 47th street, and her son Carl, aged fourteen years, were hurled out and knocked unconscious when the car smashed into an iron trolley pole at Avenue C and 41st street. Mrs. Bose who is a widow of Charles H. Bose, a wealthy druggist, had her ankle sprained. Her son was hurt on the leg and face. Tomforde escaped by jumping.

Shot Himself in the Chin.

Elizabeth, July 9.—Peter Kruese, twenty-two years old, married, and living at Wood and Rahway avenues, Linden Township, was brought to the Alexian Hospital Tuesday evening. The man had shot himself underneath the chin with a revolver, the bullet passing through the lower lip and out through the mouth. The wound, while painful, is not considered dangerous. While the man would not tell just how it happened the hospital authorities believe it was an attempted suicide.

Farm Hands Fought.

Cranford, July 9.—Michael Durkin and Edward Woodhouse, farm hands, employed on the estate of S. M. Scott, quarreled Tuesday night. Woodhouse, it is alleged, attacked Durkin with a pitchfork and Durkin used a caseknife, which struck a button on Woodhouse's coat and was broken. Durkin procured a warrant for Woodhouse's arrest. The warrant was served by Patrolman Hennessey and Woodhouse was put in the lockup to sober up.

Two Drown In Raritan River.

An eight-year-old boy was drowned in the Raritan River near New Brunswick yesterday, and not long afterward the body of an armless man, who is believed to have committed suicidefi was recovered from the river. The boy was Stephen Suller, of No. 155 Albany street, New Brunswick. The armless man whose body was found was Abraham Netherwood, a watchman at the Norfolk and New Brunswick Hosiery Company's factory.

PLAINFIELD CONTRIBUTIONS NOW AGGREGATE $233.00

Much to the credit be it recorded that Plainfield is in the lead among the many towns in New Jersey contributing towards the Cleveland monument fund. Already patriotic residents of this community have given $233 towards the worthy cause which has no political significance.

As yet, the mite boxes scattered about the business section have not been opened and will not be until Saturday, by which time it is expected that the contributions will be greatly augmented by individual subscriptions.

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

In the last forty years 1,769,729 persons have come to this country from England and Wales. Add the Scotch 390,432 and 2,040,290 have come from Great Britain in thirty years. This is more than have come from Ireland in the same time, twice as many as have come from Sweden, four times as many as have come from Norway and more than have come from Poland and Russia put together.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hubler, of Meadville, has both knees broken and her daughter Mary is badly burned about the face and arms as the result of an explosion of peculiar character. The women had bought an alcohol barrel for use as a cider barrel. It was left in the yard during the hot afternoon. Te women went out to survey their purchase. Miss Hubler lighted a match and peered down in the bunghole to see if any fluid remained in the barrel. Gas, generated by the heat, caused a trerrific explosion, burning the girl. The head flew from the barrel, striking Mrs. Hubler and breaking her knees.

The Molteno (Cape Colony) farmers have hit upon a novel plan for dealing with locusts. A farmer has imported some eagle kites for the purpose of scaring locusts from the crops. The announcement almost reads like the fable of the introduction of kites into the devecotes for protection against the hawks, but the time alone will tell whether the effect will be so disastrous to the South African farmers.

A paralytic shock, following his desperate but fruitless endeavor to stop his brother, Wood Roberts, from committing suicide, has within two days completely restored the speech of Howard Roberts, aged 28, of Turner, Me., who had been totally dumb for two years.

Sunday he rushed into a room as his broter killed himself by shooting. Howard was stricken and apparently lay dying that night. Physicians worked over him, and he showed marked improvement and began to whisper. Later on, without any impediment in speech and in deep, normal tones, he told to the family all the circumstances of the suicide and since has conversed fluently.

The Truant Button.

Bacon—I see a boy, aged 12 years, of York, Pa., thought to have been suffering from catarrh for two years, was relieved when a collar button was taken from his nose.

ACKERMAN A CANDIDATE

Before Leaving for Abroad, Senator Announces He Will Accept Renomination.

ISSUES A FORMAL STATEMENT.

Plainfielder Declares That His Right of Independence Has Never Been Interfered With and Must Not Be.

Before leaving on the Baltic for his customary annual trip abroad, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, announced that he would be a candidate for renomination. He issued the following formal statement:

Ernest R. Ackerman.

"The request from many parts of the county that I consent to become a candidate for re-nomination at the primaries in September for the position of State Senator, has been given most careful thought and I have decided to allow my name to be presented to the voters for their consideration.

"The position requires much time and attention. The duties at Trenton, however, have been made easier by my having the pleasure of representing a constituency which appreciates the situation and has accordingly been most lenient.

"It may be proper to state that no one has interfered with my right of action or independence as a member of the Legislature, and it must be clearly understood that if I am re-elected, no private pledges will be made to anyone. This fact cannot be stated in terms too strong. The true interests of the people must have preference over every other consideration and my efforts, if re-elected, will be to faithfully and conscientiously represent the people of Union county, together with the people of the State at large, according to my interpretation of the measures at issue resulting from careful investigation and study.

"A legislator should go to the Capital to help legislate for the people and not leave his independence at home. He should do his own thinking—always welcoming, however, suggestions from and consultations with those desirous of promoting the common good, and eveyer citizen should feel that he has a right to advise and to have his ideas properly and courteously considered.

"The people must be watchful and demand that all political power shall remain in the hands of the many so as to guard against the establishment of anything like a political oligarchy, which is synonymous with 'boss rule.'

"Labor and capital must meet on friendly terms, with due regard for the importance of each, if beneficial results are to be obtained. Those movements should be encouraged which are aimed to advance the common good, to promote the cause of labor and industry and to protect the interests of all with absolute impartiality, thus helping in the broadest sense the general welfare of the people.

"All citizens should be in hearty accord with the principle of 'Home Rule' as expressed in the State Constitution, prohibiting the Legislature from passing private, local or special laws regulating the internal affairs of towns and counties, appointing local officers or commissions to regulate municipal affairs and where practical they should favor the principle of local referendums as illustrated in the Civil Service Law.

"It is axiomatic that the public schools are 'a priceless safeguard of our liberty' and are of untold value to the State. Every effort should be made to guard and protect them in order to meet the requirements of an ever increasing population. It is an exceedingly wise constitutional proviso which states 'The Legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for

RATIFIED BY G.O.P. CLUB

Local Republicans Pass Resolution Approving Work of National Convention.

JOIN THE COUNTY LEAGUE.

F. L. Holt Chosen Delegate to Union of County Clubs—More Names Added to the Membership.

The Republican Club of Plainfield, at its meeting, last night, unanimously adopted resolutions endorsing the action of the Republican National Convention in the nomination of William H. Taft for the Presidency and J. S. Sherman for the Vice-Presidency, and considered matters preliminary to the opening of the campaign. There were about thirty members present. H. H. Williams, C. W. Runyon, Frank Day, Edward C. Smalley and J. C. Pierson were among the new members elected.

President Leslie M. Daniel was in the chair and the first business was the appointment of a committee comprising F. L. Holt, G. W. V. Moy and Charles S. Sminck to draft resolutions endorsing the action of the National convention. The committee presented the following, which was adopted, after which three cheers were given for the candidates:

"Be it resolved by the Republican Club of Plainfield that it heartily endorses the action of the Republican National Convention in the nomination of the Hon. William H. Taft, of Ohio, for President, and the Hon. J. S. Sherman, of New York, for Vice-President.

"It concurs in the opinion of President Roosevelt that Mr. Taft is the best equipped man in the country today to occupy the office of President, and we believe that Mr. Sherman, by his experience and ability, is fully equipped to fill the position of Vice-President.

"We firmly believe that the election of the Republican candidates will inure to the benefit of all classes of citizens, and we recommend and urge that all voters, irrespective of party lines, unite to bring about this desired result."

Another resolution was adopted to the effect that the club join the Union County League of Republican Clubs and H. L. Holt was chosen as the representative of the local organization in that body. The members engaged in an informal discussion of campaign plans, it being the opinion that the club should now actively engage in the work of helping to make the Republican ticket successful in November. During the evening "black cigars" were passed around and the meeting resolved itself into an informal gathering.

Among those present were President Leslie M. Daniel, Frank H. Smith, George J. Tobin, Charles S. Sminck, C. W. Runyon, Dr. A. K. Brennan, Winfield S. Angleman, R. Henry Depew, G. W. M. Voy, F. L. Holt, H. H. Williams, Frank Day, Edward C. Smalley and J. C. Pierson. In the absence of Mansfield Smith, his place as secretary was taken by F. L. Holt.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE ENDORSES CONVENTION.

The City Republican Executive Committee met Tuesday night in the office of the chairman, Winfield S. Angleman, on Front street, and discussed several matters pertaining to the approaching campaign. A committee comprising F. L. Holt, Duncan W. Taylor and Charles S. Sminck was appointed to draft resolutions endorsing the action of the National Republican convention in nominating William H. Taft for the Presidency and J. S. Sherman for the Vice-Presidency.

The resolutions were adopted unanimously. Various matters were taken up in an informal manner and plans were considered for conducting the local campaign.

Released Under Suspended Sentence.

Frank Ryczkowski, the Pole, who was arrested for loitering about Mrs. M. Weinberger's residence in the borough for several hours, and who has been detained at the borough lockup as a suspicious character, was released this morning by Mayor Samuel Townsend on a suspended sentence. This action was taken by the Mayor following an investigation of the man's record in New York, yesterday. Mrs. Weinberger told Mr. Townsend that the Pole formerly resided at 162 East Third street, that he had a bad character. However, His Honor could obtain no information yesterday that would warrant his holding the prisoner. He was given two hours to leave the borough.

TELLS OF TRAVELS ABROAD

Former Mayor Randolph Talks Interestingly of His Six Months' Trip.

HE GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS.

Banker-Poet Says Turkey and Palestine Are Misgoverned But People Are Honest—Describes Other Parts.

A reporter for The Daily Press called upon former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph at his residence on East Front street, yesterday, and, between walks amongst the blooms of the Randolph arboretum, the story of half-a-year's travel—chiefly in Mediterranean countries—was pleasantly told. When Mr. Randolph went abroad with his youngest daughter at the beginning of winter he was still ill of "grippe." On the voyage out his health improved, and he has returned quite well. He visited the Riviera, spent nearly two months in Italy and a like period in Egypt and Palestine, going on then to Turkey and to Greece; then coming north, over the Ionian and Adriatic seas; and on through Austria, Germany, Belgium and Holland to Paris and to London. He and his daughter saw scarcely any winter, being a thousand miles up the Nile when New Jersey was most afflicted with snow and ice and east winds.

"The Nile," he says, "is Egypt." Practically it is all the dampness and all the fertility vouchsafed to that almost rainless country. Alexandria has a few showers—Cairo still fever. At and above Luxor not even a cloud is seen. The dryness of the climate has had much to do with the preservation of Egyptian temples, obelisks and records. Some of the monuments of Egypt are older than the age of the world as it was taught to us old fellows in our childhood. Her temples have held devout worshippers of Osiris, and later have been churches of the very early Christians, and still later have been mosques of the all-devouring Turk.

Palestine is beautiful—though desolate and ill-governed. Especially is it beautiful in its spring carpet of bloom. It is a country stood up on edge. Jerusalem is fifty-four miles from Joppa (or Jaffa) and more than twenty-five hundred feet higher. Jericho is only eighteen miles from Jerusalem, and is thirty-four hundred feet lower—that is, Jericho is more than eight hundred feet lower than the Mediterranean. Similar contrasts are found at Nazareth and Tiberias, and elsewhere. All Palestine is a land of paradoxes, a place, truly, in which to see visions and dream dreams.

"Turkey is noisome in misgovernment; but the Turks are relatively honest and well-disposed. Greece is full of charm, of rich tradition, of lovely scenery,—and even (in these days) of modern progress."

K. R. C. Entertained.

The K. R. C., a social organization in the West End, met last night at the home of Robert Cuzen on West End avenue, last night. Resolutions of regret at the absence of Donald C. Mortimer, who is in Boston, Mass., at present, were adopted. Following the business session, a social time followed, during which there were several novel features introduced which were enjoyed by the members. Those present were Robert Cuzen, Frank M. Rimmer, Peter C. Sweeny, Allen S. Snyder, James S. Kenny and W. Morris Hunter. During the evening refreshments were served.

So Says Alexander Gilbert Who Suggests Better Banking Machinery as Remedy.

MORE CURRENCY NOT NEEDED.

Plainfielder Favors a Unified System —Outlines His Ideas to N. Y. State Bankers.

When Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, said in his address yesterday at the New York State Bankers' Association convention, at the Hotel Frontenac, Frontenac, N. Y., "We are promised the election of a safe man to the Presidency, which will guarantee to the people the continuance of a wise administration of public affairs," there was an outburst of enthusiastic cheering that told in no unmeasured manner the political sentiment of the banking interests of the Empire State.

Mr. Gilbert in his address yesterday said that only a few, comparatively, were killed or wounded in the great business wreck of last October, and that many of the wounded were on the road to recovery. He pointed out that our great resources had not been impaired, and that nothing could hold the country back except its own excesses, which he said were the cause of the recent distress and the panics of the past. He said that a panic was a disease of the business system, and that what was needed was not more currency, but some piece of banking machinery that would enable the banks to create a larger supply of banking credit, or to control, hold in check and gradually reduce over-trading and over-speculation.

He said the trouble of 1907 had its beginning ten years ago, when a great wave of corporation mania swept over this country, resulting in the organization of many large corporations, the formation of numerous trust companies to finance them, the creation of hundreds of millions of securities and their distribution largely through these newly formed money institutions, huge inflation of bank credits and liabilities and the injection into our business life of a vast amount of over-capitalizaztion. All these things combined tended to create a speculative spirit among the people, gathering force with years, and finally culminted in the wreck of 1907.

Even with a currency system that

CLEVELAND FUND GROWS

Patriotic Fraternal Organization Gives Five Dollars to the Cause in Plainfield—Total Now $248.

More contributions have been received for the Grover Cleveland monument fund, and the total to date given by Plainfield towards the worthy cause is now $248. The movement is well received throughout the State and in many cities and towns, newspapers are collecting funds for the object which has no political significance whatever. The purpose is to raise a suitable memorial, somewhere in the State, to the only Jersey man who ever became President of the United States. Governor Fort, Senators Briggs and Kean and a long list of well known men, some of whom are Plainfielders, compose the committee in charge of the undertaking.

The Daily Press takes pleasure in acknowledging a contribution of ten dollars made by William S. Tyler, a man whose interest in civic affairs has been amply demonstrated as a member of the Common Council. Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., has also helped along the good work. The patriotic members last night endorsed the scheme and voted five dollars as their contribution. This is the second local lodge to make a subscription and it is said that others will follow the example set by Somerset Council.

H. C. De Knatel Injured.

H. C. De Knatel, of Belvidere avenue, is detained at home suffering from a fractured collar-bone, the result of an accident while riding his horse through Dunellen, Sunday afternoon. For some unknown reason the animal suddenly went down on all four feet, throwing the rider over his head and breaking the collar-bone. The injury was such that Mr. De Knatel was not able to ride his horse home. He is now improving slowly, although it will be several weeks before he will be able to return to business.

IRATE HUBBY PUNCHED HIM

FOR AN ALLEGED ASSAULT.

Said to Be Intoxicated When He Wanted Warrant For Man After He Was Thrashed—He Disappears.

Following an alleged insult to his wife, Joseph Cerf, of the Guarantee Clothing Company, Cookman avenue, Asbury Park, on the railroad depot platform of the shore resort yesterday morning punched Joseph W. Pike into almost a state of insensibility, blackening both eyes and drawing blood from his nose.

The Cerfs are guests at the Hotel Estelle, where Pike was also registered. Early Wednesday evening, it is understood, Pike made remarks to which Mrs. Cerf took exception. She immediately turned her back upon the man and at the first opportunity reported the matter to her husband, who was looking for Pike the greater part of the night in an attempt to get an accounting.

Pike arose early yesterday morning and after breakfast made for the local depot. Mr. Cerf came down stairs a few minutes later and followed Pike, who was in the baggage room at the south end of the station platform when found by the husband. He was called outside and asked to explain himself. Pike denied point blank that he had insulted Mrs. Cerf, whereupon he was promptly branded as a liar and immediately knocked down. Pike, despite the fact that he is a big fellow, was unable to withstand the onslaught of Mr. Cerf, who is a short, stock man. First one eye was blackened then the other. Completely tired out, Mr. Cerf left the scene of battle wih the warning for Pike to behave himself hereafter. That young man hunted up a doctor.

Yesterday afternoon Pike entered the office of Police Justice Borden, at the Park, in an intoxicated condition, the justice alleges, and expressed his desire to sign a complaint charging Mr. Cerf with assault and battery. The police justice questioned Pike, whereupon that gentleman, it is alleged, said: "You want to know a hell of a lot, don't you?"

"Is that so?" said the judge as he rang the telephone bell. "Central give me police headquarters." Pike forgot his complaint and left the building taking five-foot steps. He has not been seen since.

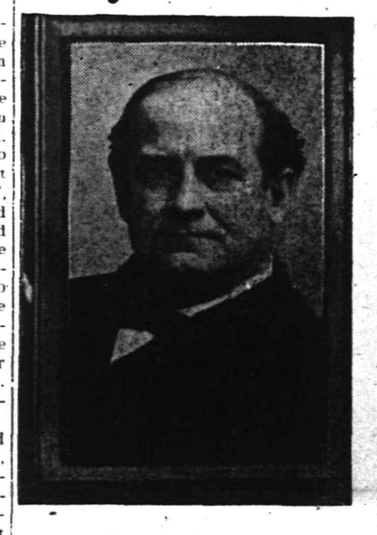
DEMOCRATS ACCLAIM BRYAN THEIR NOMINEE

Wild Scenes at Denver Convention When Nebraskan is Made Party Choice for President.

CANDIDATE ISSUES STATEMENT.

Says He Will Not Run Again if Elected—Delegates to Name Candidate for Vice-President This Afternoon.

Denver, Colo., July 10.—William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, was nominated for President by the Democratic party at 3:30 o'clock this morning (5:30 New York time).



William J. Bryan.

At 3:42 o'clock, less than a quarter of an hour after Bryan had been saddled firmly on the party's shoulder by a roll call vote of 892½ for Bryan, 59½ for Judge George Gray, of Delaware, and 46 for Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, the convention was adjourned.

It had stayed only long enough to give one last delirious shout over the result and to make the nomination unanimous.

The New York vote, 78, was cast for Bryan under the unit rule. New Jersey's vote went to George Gray.

Justice William J. Gaynor, of New York, is said to be the candidate favored by the New York delegation for Vice-President.

Immediately after Mr. Bryan received the news of his nomination at "Fairview," Lincoln, Nebraska, he issued this written statement:

"The Presidency is the highest official position in the world, and no one occupying it can afford to have his views upon public questions biased by personal ambition. Recognizing his responsibility to God and his obligation to his countrymen, he should enter upon the discharge of his duties with singleness of purpose. Believing that one can do this when he is not planning for a second term, I announce now, as I have on former occasions, that if elected I shall not be a candidate for re-election."

Before issuing the written statement Mr. Bryan said:

"This is as purely a nomination from the people as it can be. If elected my obligation will be to the whole people. I appreciate the honor the more because it comes not from one person, but from the rank and file of the Democratic party, acting frely and without compulsion."

After he had heard of the adoption of the platform Mr. Bryan said:

"I am very much pleased with the platform. It is clear, specfic and strong and I am grateful to the committee for the work that they have done in stating the issues. I am sure the platform will greatly strengthen us in the fight we are entering."

After Mr. Bryan was nominated by acclamation for President of the United States early today, the convention took an adjournment until one o'clock this afternoon, when nominations for Vice-President began.

Mr. Bryan was placed in nomination by I. J. Dunn, of Nebraska; John A. Johnston by Congressman W. S. Hammond, of Minnesota, and George Gray by Judge L. Irving Handy, of Delaware. When New York was called, Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, said "New York presents no candidate."

Elizabeth Postoffice's Record.

For the year ending June 30 the postal business of Elizabeth amounted to $125,000, according to the statement of Postmaster Charlock. This is an increase over last year, but the proportionate increase is smaller, due to the depression of the last part of the year. Hereafter the Newark postoffice will be used as a depository by Elizabeth and all the receipts will be forwarded there instead of to the New York Subtreasury.

Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, has been chosen as one of the speakers for the Sunday-school gathering to be held at Ocean Grove soon.

AMUSEMENTS.

The rumor that Boynton Beach has been sold is absolutely without foundation. This rumor has been garbled and is going the rounds in the various communities within ten or fifteen miles and is a little different each time you hear it. Some have it that Boynton Beach will close immediately and that a sugar refinery will be established. Others would rather see a steel plant and more a beer garden. However, it is understood directly from the management that these reports are without foundation and are absolutely false. This popular resort has been run for the last thirty-five years under the direct management of C. W. Boynton, who was the owner and proprietor, but since his death three weeks ago the work has been continued by his son, A. B. Boynton, who has had much experience in this line and is giving it his personal attention. The large crowds which daily visit the resort attest the position which it holds with regard to all who appreciate a first-class and thoroughly clean up-to-date summer resort. As usual there are dances three evenings a week, music daily and free dancing every afternoon except Sundays, when there is a special concert. Thursdays are children's days and seem to be increasing in popularity as the season goes on.

MAY ABANDON BRANCH PLANT.

Bethlehem Steel Company Thinks Cost of Roosevelt Concern Exceeds Its Worth.

New Brunswick, July 10.—The Bethlehem Steel Company think of abandoning their plant at Roosevelt rather than pay the cost of maintaining it. At the meeting of the State Tax Board yesterday it was stated by their counsel that the plant was not worth $135,000, at which sum the township had assessed it, and the company wanted it reduced to $102,000.

The building was erected ten or twelve years ago for a car factory and the Bethlehem company got it. By paying $1,100 a year for a watchman, $1,400 for insurance, $2,680 for taxes and other charges the total cost of maintenance is $11,500. The place is of so little use that the insurance has been withdrawn and a seeker for a car factory they are looking for. The company was not ready to offer any testimony as to the value of the property so far as the land was concerned and the case was adjourned.

W. C. T. U. Treasurer Dead.

Rahway, July 10.—Mrs. J. M. Brookfield, of this city, received a telegram this morning announcing the death of her cousin, Mrs. Hattie Wright Brand, at Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Brand was treasurer of the W. C. T. U. of the United States and was well known to temperance workers in New Jersey.

The choir of the First Presbyterian church will take its vacation the latter part of August and first of September.

There is a possibility that "Lou" Wiltse may be signed by the New York Americans. During the past few days the Plainfielder has been practicing at American League Park, showing what he can do and in view of the deplorable condition of the Yankees he may be given a chance to show his ability in the box.

The New York Giants have taken Pitcher Spade, of the Cincinnatis, by having refused to waive claim to him when waivers were asked some time ago. Spade has won four out of his last five games.

If you want to see a real lively game don't fail to visit Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. Somerville will be here with the intention of wresting victory from the Clinton Avenues, and a band concert will be thrown in as an extra attraction.

Manager Dorflinger expects to have his regular team in the field Saturday when it goes up against the West Ends, of Somerville, and the latter will not walk away with the contest. Clifford Randolph can be depended upon to hold down his opponents.

In the second game between Pittsburg and Philadelphia on Wednesday, the Pirates used seventen players and were defeated by a score of 8 to 5. The Quakers also took the first game, 4 to 1, Pittsburg being unable to do anything with McQuillen's pitching.

With Elberfield and Chase still out of the game, the Yankees continue to play the poorest game in their history. No one believes for a minute that either one of the two players are capable of making the team a pennant-winning one, however. There is something else needed.

The Mono F. C. gave East Millstone such a good game at the latter place last Saturday that the Somerset county boys want another game. It will probably be arranged soon.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, has offered the Mono F. C., Saturday, August 29, for a game and it is quite likely to be accepted. A contest between these teams should prove interesting, especially as the Monos have not yet lost a game this season.

BASKETBALL.

The intercollegiate basketball rules committee held its annual meeting recently at the Hotel Imperial, New York, and made several important changes in the playing rules for next season. With the design of eliminating rough play two officials, a referee and an umpire, were determined upon. The dribble was defined as a continuous passage of the ball, and it was decided that the ball must not remain motionless in the hands of a player after he has started his dribble. It was further decided that a player can shoot for a basket after a dribble. This is a sweeping change, and one calculated to make the game more popular. Further, as a penalty for rough playing, a rule was passed disqualifying any player having five fouls called upon him.

Roswell B. Hyatt, of Yale, was re-elected chairman of the committee; Ralph Morgan, University of Pennsylvania, secretary-treasurer, and H. A. Fisher, Columbia, editor of the rule book. The members of the rules committee are R. B. Hyatt, of Yale; Lieutenant J. W. Stillwell, of West Point; George C. Appell, of Williams College; C. Walter Randall, of Harvard; O. De. G. Vanderbilt, of Princeton; Harry A. Fisher, of Columbia; Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, of the University of Chicago; Isadore Anderson, of the University of Missouri; E. D. Angell, of the Oregon State Agricultural College, and R. Morgan, of Pennsylvania.

GOLF.

Frank O. Reinhart still continues to play a consistent game of golf and judging by his recent match with Lester Glenney for the championship of the Plainfield Country Club he is again in his old-time form.

As usual, in this vicinity the women members of the golf clubs do not take much interest in the game to the extent of playing, at least. At the Park Golf Club more women are following the game this year, but one can count the number of their hands.

Miss Lydia E. Loizeaux, an enthusiastic member of the Park Golf Club, is showing unusual form this year. She engages in nearly all of the competitions and seldom if ever gets a poor score. Wednesday afternoon she defeated Rev. C. L. Goodrich in the playoff for the Holiday cup, by a score of 1 up in 20 holes.

Charles B. Morse will be missed from the Park Golf Club course during the next two weeks. He is enjoying his annual vacation at Oriskany Falls, N. Y., for which place he left this morning. He has been playing a good game at the Park course and frequently scores points for the various trophies.

The new arrangement at the Plainfield Country Club, whereby the Misses Scott, of East Orange, are to take charge of the restaurant and dining room, is sure to meet with general satisfaction. They are both experienced and should give the best possible service for dinners, teas and luncheons.

"Marty" O'Loughlin is again playing in his old form, driving as hard as ever and approaching and putting in fine style. He scarcely feels any effect of the injury which kept him out of the game so long.

The Saturday night dinner-dances are as popular as ever at the Plainfield Country Club and they are delightful occasions for the members and their friends.

The Green committee of the Plainfield Country Club has put in a lot of hard work on the course this season and the condition proves this.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Falling from a load of hay upon a wagon standard, John Hannah, of Daretown, fractured a rib and injured his breastbone.

George Slimm, night watchman at a Bordentown machine works, fell out of a door in the second story of the building, breaking both ankles.

Preparations are to be made to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the landing of Captain May on the Cape May shores, to which he gave his name.

Richard Morgan, aged forty-five, a painter and decorator, of Daretown, dropped dead yesterday while hurrying to catch a train for Bridgeton to visit his sister.

Kicked by a horse in Camden yesterday, John McMaster, of 330 Mercer street, Gloucester City, sustained a fracture of the left leg. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

Struck in the head by a baseball bat, yesterday afternoon, Walter McEntee, eighteen years old, of 23 Wood street, Camden, was badly injured and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

As a result of falling from a wagon, yesterday, David Wenes, of 308 Market street, Camden, was badly injured about the arms and body. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Leaning out of a trolley car on the Federal street bridge, Camden, last night, Marshal Tovey, of 3502 Rosedale avenue, Camden, sustained a lacerated scalp by coming in contact with a passing car.

Tetanus developing from blood poisoning, caused by running a fish hook in his hand, resulted in the death in Camden yesterday of John Russell, sixty-five years old, a May's Landing fisherman.

Robert J. McDermott, a Paterson lawyer, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, that city, yesterday, suffering from a fracture of the elbow. Mr. McDermott received his injury a few days ago in a fall over a boy's small express wagon.

The West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Company, having been unsuccessful in having the Gloucester City Board of Education pay the bill of $57 for moving a schoo' building across its tracks at Powell street, several months ago, will now proceed and enter suit for the bill.

Threatened with arrest unless he pays an old bill for poll tax, Charles Headley, of Millville, has appealed to City Council to settle the matter. The bill is of ten years' standing and Headley claims it was paid to the late delinquent collector, William Ireland, who has been dead for eight years.

The Cape May county freeholders have awarded the contract for building the new State road from Rio Grande to Green Creek to Senator Hand, who was the lowest bidder. Captain Lewis Stilwell, of Goshen, has been appointed county supervisor of roads, and Richard Holmes, superintendent of construction for the new road.

Reports that Robert Ohnmeiss, Jr., held under the charge of having robbed the Marine Trust Company of Atlantic City of $20,500, is a physical and nervous wreck, is denied by his friends. While he has suffered in a physical sense from the excitement following his arrest, he is reported to be in fair health at his father's home in Egg Harbor.

Modern methods of manufacture were discussed by the National Fertilizer Association at its annual convention in Atlantic City yesterday. A uniform system of sampling raw material was urged, and the following officers were elected: President, C. A. Alling, Chicago; vice-president, J. T. Welch, Louisville; treasurer, C. H. Dempwolff, York, Pa.; secretary, W. A. Sadler, Nashville.

William Royer, a Trenton lineman, began a $20,000 damage suit in Mercer Circuit Court yesterday against the Inter-State Telephone Company. He claims that he was permanently injured when he fell from a pole. As proof of his condition he offers the novel claim that because of his injuries the Court of Chancery recently reduced the amount of alimony which he has to pay to his divorced wife.

ACKERMAN'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

Ernest R. Ackerman's formal announcement that he has consented to become a candidate for renomination to the State Senate will give great pleasure to the voters of Union county who appreciate the ideal type of public servant. During his brief career at Trenton, the Union county solon has made a most enviable record; one that reflects the greatest credit to himself and to a county that demands possibly more than the average constituency would.

It is characteristic of the man to leave no one in doubt as to just where he stands. He minces no words in asserting his independence and in declaring that in the future as in the past he will strive to serve to the utmost of his ability the people and the people only. In this connection, a paragraph from his formal statement is well worth quoting:

"It may be proper to state," says he, "that no one has interfered with my right of action or independence as a member of the Legislature, and it must be clearly understood that if I am re-elected, no private pledges will be made to anyone. This fact cannot be stated in terms too strong. The true interests of the people must have preference over every other consideration and my efforts, if re-elected, will be to faithfully and conscientiously represent the people of Union county, together with the people of the State at large, according to my interpretation of the measures at issue resulting from careful investigation and study."

Everyone who knows Senator Ackerman knows that he means just what he says. He is a conscientious, conservative and hard-working public servant, a model legislator through and through. Having confidence in the people of Union county we predict that he will be returned to Trenton by a much larger majority than he even polled two years ago.

HOPE BOYS TO CAMP BACK OF WASHINGTON'S ROCK

Deciding that camping sites are to be had at home, fourteen members of the Hope chapel Boys' Club will pitch tents on the Stephen Schleif farm back of Washington Rock next Monday and spend a week enjoying the simple life. All the paraphernalia usually gotten together for a stay at Lake Hopatcong, Midland Beach, or other popular resorts will be carried to the mountains and the boys will have plenty of diversions to keep them busy. A canoe will be part of the outfit as the sport can be enjoyed on the Watchung lake.

Alfred Berry Marsh, who became a culinary expert through his five seasons experience with the Hope Y. M. A., at Bishop's Rock, will preside over the destinies of the mess tent and prepare an attractive menu three times a day. He will be assisted by "Jim" Penney, originator of the first Hope camping expedition at Boynton Beach twelve years ago, who will also be in charge of the boys. The site selected for the camp is an ideal one in every respect and affords plenty of opportunity for outdoor sports, rambles in the woods and aquatic amusements while yet being within easy reach of the city.

Storm Sewer Is Needed.

It is only a question of time when the Common Council will be compelled to establish a storm sewer in Grant and West End avenues of sufficient size to carry off the surface water properly. After every hard rain that thoroughfare is left in a wetched condition. Surface water is carried from as far as Eighth street through Grant avenue into West End and this together with the water that flows into the latter avenue from East and West Front street makes a volume too great to be carried away without doing damage. Only recently a heavy rain took off a considerable portion of the top dressing recently put on West End avenue leaving it in the gutter to clog up that means of escape for water.

Quietly Wedded.

Miss Laura Scryintha Bodine, daughter of William Bodine, of Jackson avenue, and Goldson LeRoy Young, of West Fifth street, were quietly married last night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Westfield Presbyterian church at his home. The young people were unattended, only the necessary witnesses being present. Mr. and Mrs. Young will go to housekeeping on West Fifth street.

"An important question before the people is the necessity of more complete supervision of public utility corporations with a view of further increasing the efficiency, safety and economy of service in the interest of the public and there should be a law enacted to accomplish these results. However, exaggerations must not prevail or theories be accepted as facts when such a law is being framed, for the interests involved are too important to the wage-earner to permit the 'playing of politics.'

"The highest standards should be maintained in all things pertaining to the people's business and matters of State should be considered with the same degree of forethought, attention and accuracy as if they were related to a private business enterprise.

"I thoroughly believe in political organizations and have constantly and consistently identified myself with and advocated the ideas of the Republican party. It seems clear that the principles of the Republican party as expressed and enforced in the laws of the State and nation have been productive of results as lasting benefit to the general welfare and that the impartial verdict of history will be the great measures adopted under Republican administrations have been both preservative and constructive and that we owe our present greatness as a nation to the wise statesmanship of the Republican party.

"But we must not be content to rest on these laurels. The successes of the past should additionally stir our ambitions in the interests of the people for greater achievements in the future. This should be the motive of those having at heart the progress and prosperity of all the people."

PANIC BUSINESS DISEASE

would have responded automatically to the business needs of the country, he thought there still would have been that tremendous pressure for bank credit as a result of over-trading and over-speculation. While other nations, he pointed out, suffered from an excess of speculative spirit, they did not drift into a panic, owing to their central banking system being able to meet the demands for banking credit and currency requirements and to their ability to apply a brake when the speculative pulse began to beat too fast.

Mr. Gilbert believes the country needs a unified system, a system with its bank of discount, that will make it possible to regulate the interest rate and to use the banking reserve in an emergency, and he presented the following suggestions:

First—That the country can have no relief from a currency measure the tax upon which is so high that banks will find no inducement to take out currency when it is needed.

Second—That an asset currency, convertible into gold at the option of the holder with a guaranty fund, a 25 per cent. reserve and adequate redemption facilities is as safe as a currency secured by gold and safer and more economical than a currency secured by bonds.

Third—That a commission composed of members of Congress, bankers and business men well selected could formulate and agree upon a plan for a central bank that could be operated in harmony with the present banking system and which, during the lifetime of the United States 2 per cent. bonds now held as security for our bank circulation, could gradually introduce a new currency system better adapted to the business needs of the country.

Mr. Gilbert believes, as do most of the bankers here, that there is danger in the Aldrich-Vreeland bill breaking down when put to the test of the first crop moving pressure for currency.

He does not believe that bankers will pay 6 2-3 per cent. for money and lend it for 6 per cent. unless the direct necessity for so doing exists, and he suggests that the new currency law should be amended, making the tax on new currency 5 per cent. for the first three months, followed by a monthly increase. This would allow the banks a small profit in the three months' crop moving time.

Trouble Over Bricks.

Cranford, July 10.—The Central Railroad freight agent yesterday sold for freight charges 8,000 paving bricks, shipped to a local contractor. Five thousand of the bricks were stored in the township yard. A truckman from Westfield had loaded two trucks with them when Sewer Inspector Charles Nick stopped him and presented the freight agent with a bill from the township for $15.60 for cartage. The bill was paid under protest, but the bricks are still held at the yard.

CHANGES FOR CATHOLICS

New Order of Affairs Unlikely to Be Welcome Among Heads of the Churches.

TAKES AWAY INDEPENDENCE.

Many New Regulations For Priests and Laity Are Made in the Papal Decree.

In Catholic circles, it is said that the new order of things that will be brought about in the church by the transfer of American Catholic affairs from the congregation of the Propaganda Fide to the direct control of the cardinal secretary of state will not be cordially welcomed by the American hierarchy. The Apostolic delegate at Washington, Mgr. Diomede Falconio, has not yet received a copy of the Papal decree. A well informed Catholic prelate said yesterday, however, that much of the independence which the American church now enjoys as a missionary establishment will cease when the new order of things goes into force.

How sweeping the changes will be cannot as yet be stated, but there will be important modifications in the status of parish priests and in the manner of electing bishops. The present status of a parish priest in the United States, wat is said at the Papal Legation today, is somewhat analogous to that of a citizen of a territory, while under the new regime he will acquire status more nearly resembling that of a citizen of a state. In a mission country the parish priest is entirely subservient to the will of his bishop and he can be sent from his post at the bishop's will.

When the new order of things goes into force the appointment of a priest as a rector of a church, no matter how unimportant the church may be, will give him unalienable rights which the bishop must respect. Only for certain well defined reasons can he be relieved of his charge and in all cases he must be given a formal trial before he can be removed. All Catholics will appreciate the importance of this new regulation governing the status of parish priests.

Takes Away Independence.

Candidates for bishoprics will have their names submitted directly to the secretary of state, who in turn will place them before the Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical affairs. But they must be sent to the secretary of state by the Apostolic delegate, and he must express approbation of the choice.

There has recently existed a tendency on the part of some American prelates to deal directly with Rome without the intermediation of the Pope's representatives in this country. This policy has proved irritating to the Roman authorities and has led to delay in transacting business and confusion as to the merits of cases.

Many new regulations bearing on the laity will be enforced in consequence of the change to a regularly established Catholic country. One is that every person will be compelled to make Easter communion in his parish church, and if the rules are strictly enforced every one will be compelled to hear Mass on Sunday in his or her parochial edifice or at least some public church. Private chapels and oratories will be placed under rigid rules.

Another rule requires a Catholic to hold a pew within the limits of the parish in which he lives. He will no longer be able to claim parochial rights in a distant church merely because he holds a pew there. Parish priests will have the right to enforce these rules and to compel those who live in a parish to support their church and attend it.

Attendance at parochial schools will also be regulated. The Roman decree is expected at the Apostolic delegation in about 10 or 12 days. A copy of it will be sent to every archbishop and bishop, who will in turn send copies to every priest.

THOUGHT WEAPON UNLOADED.

Chatham Man Now in Hospital Result of Cleaning Revolver Containing Cartridge.

Chatham, July 10.—Charles Windecker, of this place, is lying in Overlook Hospital, Summit, in a serious condition, due to the accidental discharge of a thirty-two calibre revolver while he was cleaning it yesterday. Mr. Windecker, who is about sixty-five years of age, conducts a small cigar and confectionery store on Passaic avenue.

Yesterday he got out the old revolver and commenced to clean it, supposing it was not loaded. One cartridge had been left in the weapon and this went off while the gun was pointed at him. The bullet entered his right side about the waist line, inflicting a serious wound. The ambulance was summoned, and he was taken to Overlook Hospital, where an unsuccessful effort was made to find the bullet.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Many kind-hearted people who heard or read the address to children on kindness to animals by Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, at Trinity Reformed church, would be glad to send a vote of thanks to him. It does seem strange that so important a subject is so seldom referred to by schoolteachers or even in religious assemblies. If every minister and every teacher would emulate the example of Rev. Dr. Johnson what a world of good would be done. Especially should boys be impressed with the fact that no one but a coward would wilfully cause pain to anything that cannot defend itself.

NOTHING SO PRETTY AS WHITE MUSLIN FROCK.

With each successive summer we return with renewed, or even reinforced, fervor to the charms of the muslin frock, but, in a way, the old idea of the muslin frock, with its associations of youth, bright sun and green lawns, has somewhat changed, or perhaps our ideas of the frock have considerably expanded.

The muslin frock in olden days was a girlish conception, associated with smiles and tears, blue ribbons and weddings. In our dreams we still see the early Victorian heroine, charming in fresh white muslin, radiant in blue bows. Now white muslin always seems the most difficult thing to wear with really good effect, and yet nothing is so charming when carried out with due attention to the significance of style. This year fashion decrees that white should rank first for the smartest summer fetes, white crochet and lace rivaling muslin.

But to return to white muslin, which can be very beautiful today, for it verges on the picturesque, copied from Gainesborough and Romney ideas. The muslin is either plain or dainty spotted, and of finest quality, perhaps with the addition of a little broderie a main in the shape of insertions threaded with ribbon. The white "lingerie" Princess robes of today are more elaborate than they were when worn by the heroines of old; indeed, so beautiful that we are apt sometimes to depart altogether from the idea of simple white muslin.

It must always be remembered that the muslin frock for town wear is quite different from that for the country. Very seldom in the street does the simple, girlish muslin look its best, but it is charming for country or seashore. I wonder if the economically-minded woman has realized the charms and value of a black muslin as well as of the printed variety? These have to be carefully manipulated or they look a little old. But the black spotted muslin is a delightful stand-by, and its utility appeals to most of us. Gray muslin, too, is another charming garment for town wear; it is cool and dust-resisting. Some of the dark colored muslins are extraordinarily pretty, though brighter shades predominate.

PRETTY GOWNS AND THEIR MAKING.

Bright touches of vivid color, used sparingly upon gowns of sombre tint, have been characteristic of the most exclusive fashions now for months past, and we have all become familiar with the black and white check gown which has a cravat of brilliant emerald green as its most striking note, or again the frock of chestnut brown cloth, which finds its chief claim to success in a few folds of bright orange velvet, deftly arranged at the throat and again at the wrists.

It is only during the last few weeks, however, that a new vogue for embroideries which are characteristically Egyptian, both in coloring and design, has begun seriously to assert itself.

Just at the moment it seems as though these embroideries had made their way on to any and every kind of coat and gown, regardless, in some instances, as to whether they may happen to be appropriate or not. At the same time their quaint forms and curious colorings help to give them a very distinctive charm, and it seems quite likely that they will figure largely, not only on the frocks, but on the millinery of the immediate future.

A very becoming evening gown of satin charmeuse in a wonderful shade of deep moonlight blue is arranged en princesse and very closely swathed round the figure, both above and below the waist. The skirt is left without any trimming beyond a band of Egyptian embroidery to outline the hem, worked partly in dull gold and silver thread and partly in soft floss silks, in curious shades of sea-green and moonlight blue, with here and there a touch of copper color. Straight across the bodice, back and front, there is a wide band of this same Egyptian embroidery, very effective in its severe simplicity.

The decolletage is cut square and outlined with a closely gathered tuck of white tulle threaded through with a narrow gold ribbon. The sleeves consist simply of soft draperies of white tulle, veiled with moonlight blue chiffon and caught up on the shoulder with heavy clasps of dull gold.

CHINA A MULTITUDE OF VARIED NATIONS.

China is not a nation in the sense in which we ordinarily use the word. If we picture to ourselves the countries of Europe, with their different languages and different customs, drawn together into a loose confederation under the government of a conquering race, we shall have some small conception if what this Chinese "nation" really is. The peoples of these different European countries are all Caucasians; the different peoples of China are all Mongolians. These Chinese peoples speak eighteen or twenty different distinct languages, each divided into almost innumerable dialects and sub-dialects. They are governed by Manchu, or Tartar, conquerors who spring from a different stock, wear different costumes, and speak among themselves a language wholly different from any of the eighteen or twenty native tongues.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR DRESSING THE HAIR.

The pompadour is a feature of the modish coiffure, and concerning its arrangement and the care of the hair a hairdresser says:

"The pompadour must be light; it must be comfortable; it must be hygenic for the scalp, and it must keep its shape. A pompadour that falls short in any of these requirements is a total failure.

"Big fat puffs, made of natural hair, make ideal pompadour builders. Of course, they are very expensive, but we are not at this moment considering the cost. We are aiming at results.

"I take hair that is stubborn and wash it once a week. Or rather, I dampen it. I make a pompadour of tissue paper and I throw the hair over this paper roll and fan it dry. The hair takes on a natural pompadour in this manner. It dries in rounding shape. Women who have trouble with the pompadour can take notice. I have a customer who has her hair dried and perfumed every day. I moisten the hair very slightly by throwing a mist of rainwater over it.

"Her hair is merely damp, as though she had walked in the morning dew with a spray in the air. Then I take a little roll of lam's wool, in which there is wrapped some violet powder. And this I place in a roll of white tissue paper. The whole thing is now used as a pompadour. The hair is combed over it and dried. The result is a lovely perfumed head.

"I advise the Du Barry method of doing the hair at night. Puff it slightly and tie it at each temple with a big, soft pink bow. This is immensely becoming. Just as effective is the tall, black bow on top of the head. The hair is loosely drawn up from each ear to the front of the head, just over the forehead. Here a tall bow is tied and the ends lie loosely in the hair. College girls tie a tall, black butterfly bow over the forehead, so as to keep the hair from trailing on the face."

GOVERNMENT MAPS FOR AUTO TOURISTS.

Automobile tourists are beginning to find the topographic mays of the Geological Survey invaluable in laying out routes of pleasure travel. All public roads, as well as all important private roads, are shown on these maps, while the contour lines indicating the topography and showing the grades of the roads enable the automobilists to determine accurately the character of the country through which he intends to travel.

These maps are made primarily as bases for the gelogic map of the United States which the Geological Survey is constructing, and the fact that they can be employed better than any other majps for non-scientific purposes, such as automobiling, attests their practical value, though this is only one of a very great number of uses to which they are put. No maps, in fact, are so generally used as the survey's topographic maps. Commercial maps are based on them, and a score of bureaus and departments of the government use them as bases for special maps or plottings, for determining routes of march or travel, for planning engineering works, and for many other like public purposes.

The topographic map or atlas which will be formed by the combined topographic sheets published by the Survey was referred to last winter by Secretary Garfield, in a report to Congress, as the "mother man of the country," for it is now the principal source of all other maps. The sheets cover areas termed quadrangles, whose limits are defined by meridians and parallels, and nearly 1,800 of them have already been completed. Some of the States have valued these maps so highly that they have defrayed half the cost of the surveys. The expense of surveying a quadrangle and engraving a sheet ranged from $3,500 to $8,000; but after the map has served its scientific purpose to the Government extra copies can be purchased by anyone for 5 cents each, ro $3 a hundred, which is simply the cost of paper and printing.

Would You Have Pretty Elbows?

To improve the texture of the skin nothing is better than the use of a flesh brush morning and night, lathering it well with any good soap and then scrubbing the arms, not so as to hurt the flesh, but to stimulate circulation. This also prevents the accumulation of any dried skin, and will have a noticeable effect in softening the red place over the elbow, where the skin is inclined to be dry and hard. This latter place will bear a more severe scrubbing than the rest of the arm. When there is pronounced coarseness over the elbows this should be bound at night in sweet almond oil. To apply such treatment a lump of absorbent cotton must be soaked in oil, put over the bone and then held in place by a bandage of cheesecloth or old muslin. It may be necessary to have a strip of oiled silk to prevent greasing the bed covering. This is one of the quickest and most effectual ways of improving the elbows.

GRANNY

By FELIX FELLOWS

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

The rain had come in torrents all the morning but, by two o'clock in the afternoon, the hot July sun blazed upon the dripping slopes of the Tennessee mountains, and the handful of mounted bluecoats that trudged heavily up the red clay road growled at the hot vapor rising from the earth which, with the hot rays from above falling upon them, and their long ride of the morning, made further progress almost torture.

The stick chimney of a mountain hut snuggled close against the mountain side, almost hidden from the road by the tall bushes and undergrowth, broke upon the vision of the men almost simultaneously, and a smothered ah! and speedy tightening of reins sent the tired horses briskly forward.

A sudden break in the bushes that bordered the road showed a rugged path leading up to the hut. With a quick yank of the bridle one of the men wheeled his horse into the path, and then stopped suddenly. There, almost hidden in the brush beside the path, on a rock that benched out from its fellows, sat a girl, and the surprise of the soldiers was reflected on her face. It was a plain face—with rather a large mouth that stood open in consternation, and big blue eyes that stared in wonder—a face that might belong to a woman of anywhere from 17 to 27, but a glance down her form to the skirt that cut off at the ankles, and the brown bare feet exposed beneath, took you back to the conclusion of 17.

In her lap, her two hands clutched a half-finished yarn stocking, with its bristling knitting-needles, while the ball of yarn lay soaking in a little puddle farther down the slope, where it had rolled unnoticed.

"Here, girl," called the leader, "have you seen anything of a man about here to-day?"

"M-a-r-n"—she drawled in reply, "hain't seed a m-a-r-n critter terday." Then, a little brighter—"Who be's you-alls a-lookin' fer?"

"A rebel scout—tall fellow, dark hair and eyes. Been chasing him since daybreak, and an infernal chase he has given us too, up these slippery hills of yours."

"Nup, hain't seed no critter terday," she reiterated, languidly, stooping to rescue the blue ball, which she proceeded to cleanse by mopping it up and down the side of her homespun gown. "Say," she drawled, "be you-alls soldiers?"

"Come, girl, who's up yonder at the house?" asked the spokesman, ignoring her question. "Where's the men?"

"Gone-ter-the-war," she drawled. "Pap and Dan lef' a'most a y'er ago. Hain't seed nuthin' uv 'em, have yer?" and the big eyes took on a wistful expression.

"Come, girl, lead the way, we must search the house."

"Nobody's thar but granny, and she's asleep."

"Well, don't stand there, move along," commanded the man.

"Dasn't," said the girl; "Granny, she's got the asmer, and she's got one of her bad spells, and I dasn't wake her."

"Come, come, this won't do, move along there; we can't be detained by a granny or two."

"Wall," said the girl, planting one bare foot on a little elevation of clay and slowly bearing down till the yellow earth oozed up between the toes, "Wall," repeating the operation on another little mound of clay, "if you-alls bound ter do it, ye'll have ter do it alone, 'ca'se I dasn't. But I warns yer not to wake granny, for it's her spell day and she's bad when yer get her started."

"Well, I guess we can excuse you," said the leader. "Here, John, you hold the horses and we'll go up—and be sure to keep your eye on that lovely specimen of southern beauty."

"Say," she drawled, "you-alls go easy, 'ca'se if she wakes up hell'll be a-poppin', shore 'nuf. And when you-alls come back, jes' turn down ther path thar, to the lef', to ther spring, and I'll git you-alls somethin' ter drink."

A laugh broke from the men. "We'll accept," the foremost turned to say, "provided your something is not spring water."

"Naw, 'tain't neither. It's good ole Tennessee corn juice, as Dad says, as good as ever pisened a rattlesnake. Pap allus 'vites strangers ter drink. It's hospertality he says, and, says he, 'Hospertality is the poor man's saving grace.'"

The men were nearing the cabin door, when they heard the voice of the girl in a sort of a stage whisper. "S-a-y, you-alls, don't 'sturb ole frozen toes, what's bringin' off her second settin' under 'that 'ar table, or she'll raise the roof, and that'll wake Granny, and—"

"And we wouldn't be left in peace to enjoy Dad's 'hospertality,' mockingly finished one of the men. "Well, I for one, say let her sleep, for I'm as dry as a husk." This condition seemed contagious, for the group went cautiously up to the open door, and as cautiously advanced within and began a hurried survey of the place.

The room was sparsely furnished, but bore traces of cleanliness. Its rough home-made table, from underneath which the head of a Dominique chicken protruded, eyeing the intruders with an inquiring twist of her head, was scoured white. Six split-bottom chairs ranged themselves in a straight line along the wall. In the corner farthest from the fireplace stood the four-poster, and the trundle bed was drawn out, with its furnishings piled up to air.

On the bed lay a form, covered, despite the heat of the day, clear to the chin, with a heavy homespun blanket, and on top of that a gay green and yellow patchwork quilt.

Buried deep in the chintz-covered pillow was a head incased in a red flannel night-cap, with the face turned to the wall. The knees were drawn almost to the chin and the hands were hidden beneath the covers.

On a peg, at the head of the bed, hung a homespun dress, and beneath it, on the floor, stood a pair of stiff, solid-looking slippers.

Nowhere in the room was there a piece of furniture large enough to conceal a man. A hasty scanning of the walls and ceiling showed no signs of an opening, save the customary hole leading to the loft. With a quiet movement, one of the men lifted a chair beneath this and mounted upon it, only to dismount, convinced, by the network of spiders' webs, that the board covering had not been lifted for months.

"Better look if there is an entrance to it from the outside," suggested one, and the soldier softly tiptoed out and around the house, but came back, shaking his head.

Apparently satisfied, they turned and filed out, and Granny slept on. As they came down the path, the girl clumsily advanced to meet them and conducted them along the "path to the lef'," to a spring that trickled out of the mountain side and formed a pool in a natural basin that had fashioned itself among the rocks, half hidden by the grass. Stooping at one side she groped about a bit in the shallow water, and brought forth a good-sized jug, securely fastened to the handle of which was a gourd dipper. Placing the jug on the grass she untied the dipper, tendered it to the nearest man and said: "He'p yerself."

After each had held communion with the dipper a couple of times, she said to one of them: "Jes' hold the gourd while I pour out some fer that 'ar' critter, what's holdin' them hosses. Wouldn't do to slight 'em, 'cause Dad says slightin' ain't hospertality, and I knows as how Dad would do it ef he wuz here."

She filled the gourd to the brim, then shuffled back to the gap in the road.

"Hyer," was all she said as she presented the drink, "hyer's some of Dad's hospertality."

The soldiers, trooping along behind her, snickered at her crude manner, and the courteous bow with which the gourd was received made her shy, and she fell to her way of smashing the little mud heaps with her foot, and watching the soft clay as it oozed up between her stubby toes. The empty dipper thrust into her hands made no impression on her, so intent did she seem in her pleasing occupation, but a loud "Good-by" brought her to a recognition that they were going.

"Good-by," she called; "if you-alls should meet Dad er Dan, tell 'em me and Granny's so and so, and tell Dad I 'stended ther hospertality."

She stood gazing after them, and something drifted back to her like a wonder if Dad wouldn't be riled when he heard she had 'steaded the hospertality to a lot of bluecoats.

For a long time she gazed down the road, till the last sound of a hoof-beat died away. Then she hastened to the house, and with a glad "Dan, they're gone," broke into a low, gurgling laugh.

"Talk about your bake ovens!" came from the four-poster, and Granny piled out of that bed in a hurry.

But what a grandmother! Six feet in her stockings! And when the woollen night-cap was snatched off, it revealed three days' growth of beard. Next off came the night-gown, and its wearer put it to an unwonted use in mopping away the perspiration from his neck and arms.

From a drawer in the cupboard the girl produced a man's coat, hat and shoes, and with a "Hurry, Dan!" passed them to him.

"There, bless you, girl!" He was already at the door.

"You say they went up the Clayton road? That's good, just as we planned. Now, I'll cut through by the mill, meet Granny with the horse, and to-morrow morning will see me safe back to the lines. It's early yet, and if I hurry, Granny will be able to get back to you before dark."

She followed him down to the gap in the road, and, as his form disappeared through the bushes opposite, took her former seat on the ledge of the rock. Every now and then her eyes swept the road in the direction whence the soldiers had vanished. Still she sat on, and when the last streak of sunlight had disappeared and the shadows deepened so that vision could no longer penetrate the distance, she strained her ears to catch the slightest sound.

Finally, amid the bird calls, the soughing of the wind, and other familiar sounds of nature, she detected the snap of twigs like some one coming through the grass.

Presently the bushes again parted, at the spot where the man had disappeared a few hours before, and she sprang forward to meet a tired little old woman who emerged therefrom.

"Well, he's off," was her first greeting, and "You're sure they didn't come back this way?" added the grandmother.

"Positive," answered the girl, "and ef them Yankees never see a rebel till they ketch Dan, they'll never see one."

CLINTON AVE. VS. WEST ENDS AT CRESCENT OVAL TOMORROW

Many local baseball games are scheduled for tomorrow and the fans should see several exciting contests. The leading attraction in Plainfield will be the clash between Clinton Avenue and the West End on Crescent Oval, it being the first visit of Somerville to this city in a number of years. The games scheduled are as follows:

Clinton Avenue vs. West Ends, Somerville, Crescent Oval; Scotch Plains vs. Knickerbocker A. C., at Scotch Plains; Y. M. C. A. vs. Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., at Elizabeth; St. Mary's vs. South Plainfield, at Pond's Field; Mono A. C. vs. Highland A. C., at Hope Common; Iola Club vs. Monroe Avenue A. C., at Clinton avenue grounds; Harrison A. C. vs. Lincoln A. C., at Jefferson avenue grounds; Plainfield A. C. vs. New Market F. C., at New Market; Jr. O. U. A. M. vs. All Juniors, at Hope Commons; Dunellen F. C. vs. Climax A. C., at Dunellen.

DOUBLE-HEADER AND CONCERT AT CRESCENT OVAL TOMORROW

Tomorrow will be a gala one for fandom at Crescent Oval, arrangements being completed today for a double-header. The first and big game will be between Clinton Avenue and the West Ends, of Somerville, which will be called at 3:30 o'clock, and to enliven the occasion the Liberty Band will be present and discourse all the popular airs of the day.

The contest between Plainfield and Somerville will doubtless attract a big crowd for it is many a moon since the Somerset county boys have visited this town to play ball. There are still persistent rumors that "Lou" Wiltse will twirl for Somerville, and Justice, of the old Trenton Y. M. C. A. team, will be behind the rubber. That Somerville will strengthen up for the game goes without saying, for they want to win. Manager Dorflinger will present his regular lineup, with Randolph and O'Loughlin in the points. It will be interesting to see how the crack pitcher will work against his opponents.

Immediately following the first game, there will be a contest between the Mono Field Club and the Highland A. C. "Hub" Conover will pitch for the Monos and Eddie Conshay for the Highlands. It will be the first meeting of these teams and it will give the fans a line on their respective merits, besides settling which is the third big team of the city. Conshay gave a fine exhibition of pitching July 4. At Dunellen in the morning, he twirled for five innings, retiring seven men on strikes and in a full game at Belle Mead in the afternoon, he fanned nine men. He won both games.

SCOTCH PLAINS IN THE LEAD WITH PERCENTAGE OF .875.

With seven victories and only one defeat, the Scotch Plains team now leads the local baseball clubs in this city and vicinity with a percentage of .875. Clinton Avenue, Y. M. C. A. and St. Mary's teams are tied for second place with a percentage of .800. The complete standing of the teams to date is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pc.
Scotch Plains	7	1	.875
Clinton Avenue	8	2	.800
Y. M. C. A.	8	2	.800
St. Mary's	4	1	.800
Mono A. C.	7	2	.777
Iola Club	3	1	.750
Highland A. C.	8	3	.727
Holy Cross	5	3	.625
Harrison A. C.	5	4	.555
Lincoln A. C.	5	4	.555
Plainfield A. C.	6	6	.500
Jr. O. U. A. M.	6	6	.500
South Plainfield	3	5	.375
New Market F. C.	3	5	.375
Dunellen F. C.	4	7	.366
Climax A. C.	2	4	.333
Monroe Avenue	2	5	.285

BASEBALL.

It is said that Phil Smith will pitch for the All Juniors in their game against the Jr. O. U. A. M. tomorrow on Hope Common.

Misses Wildey Win and Lose.

The tennis tournament was continued at the Englewood Field Club, yesterday, when in the first round of the women's doubles Mrs. L. S. Coe and Mrs. D. F. Platt defeated Miss Weaver and Miss Mildred Wildey, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. In the semi-final round Miss Edna Wildey and Miss Natalie Wildey defeated Mrs. Coe and Mrs. Platt, 4-8, 6-4, 6-2. In the second round of the mixed doubles, Miss Wagner and J. M. Steinacher defeated Miss Natalie Wildey and Alexander Amend, 6-4, 4-8, 8-6, and Miss Edna Wildey and Otto H. Hinck defeated Mrs. Bumstead and H. Coppell, 6-2, 6-3.

HELD FOR STABBING OVER A BEEFSTEAK.

Captain Jahpet Booye, mainland waterman, who is accused of stabbing John T. Cauwell, a local restaurant keeper, in a quarrel over an alleged tough beeksteak, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Recorder Hayes at Atlantic City for appearance before the grand jury in October.

Cauwell was stabbed with a heavy knife, and has just left the hospital, where for a time it was believed that he could not live.

Mrs. T. S. Thorn, of Orchard place, who has been in the hospital for seven weeks, following a serious operation, has returned to her home, where she is rapidly improving.

FEW WIN PARDON FROM STATE BOARD.

The State Court of Pardons held its July meeting yesterday at Trenton and paroled the smallest number of convicts in the history of the court. Scant patience was shown to the petition of George J. Kerr, of Paterson, serving time for attacking Jennie Bottschieter. It was quickly dismissed.

South Jersey paroles are: Atlantic county, Harry Conners, serving three years for receiving stolen goods; term expires May, 1909.

Camden county—Barney Bogan, serving two years for assault and battery; term expires January, 1909; Charles Fordyce, serving three years for keeping disorderly house; term expires July, 1909; Nellie Halsey, serving two years for keeping disorderly house; term expires November, 1908.

Cumberland county — Willis P. Broadwater, serving seven years for carnally abusing infant; term expires December 1909.

Mercer county—Joseph McIntyre, serving three years for atrocious assault; term expires September, 1908.

Monmouth county—Andrew Banks, serving three years for attempted atrocious assault; Joseph Conover, serving three years for robbery; terms expire May, 1909.

Ocean county—Eleazear Harris, serving five years for manslaughter; term expires February, 1910.

SADLER ON FORT'S STAFF.

Gets in Militia as Paymaster of Second Brigade Staff.

Governor Fort succeeded yesterday in having Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., a Trenton man, made a major in the National Guard, placing him over the heads of many officers, although a civilian. There was some opposition by guardsmen to Sadler's appointment, but Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins settled the controversy by compromising the matter, although in reality carrying out the Governor's wishes.

The position of inspector of small arms practise, which was created by the Executive last week, for which Mr. Sadler was slated, was given to Major David M. Flynn, of Princeton. Sadler was named to the post of paymaster on the Second Brigade staff, formerly held by Major Flynn, and Major Sadler was immediately made a member of the Governor's staff.

The Executive also named Captain Oscar H. Condit, of Battery A, Elizabeth, and First Lieutenant Nelson B. Gaskill, of the Third Infantry, as other members of his staff. Captain Adolph B. Pfeil, of Camden, was made assistant inspector of small arms practise for the Third Regiment.

GETS SUMMIT TRACK.

Rahway Valley Line to Pay for D. L. & W. Connection.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has handed down a decision regarding the complaint of the Rahway Valley Railroad, operating twelve miles of track between Summit and Elizabeth. This company complained that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad would not grant the smaller line proper connections at Summit for passenger and freight facilities. The decision follows:

It is ordered that the defendant, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, be and is hereby notified and required to construct on or before the first day of December, 1908, and maintain and operate during a period of not less than two years a connection with the transfer of freight, from the existing siding leading to the icehouse and the coal dock thereon of said Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company to the line of the complainant, the Rahway Valley Railroad Company, in the town of Summit, N. J., and in the opposite direction, but the expenses of such connection shall be borne by said complainant.

CREAMERY PLANT WRECKED; EMPLOYEE MISSING.

When the plant of the Raritan Creamery was opened up for business yesterday morning it had the appearance of having been struck by a cyclone. Some time during the night an attempt had been made to put the plant out of commission. Some of the machinery had been wrecked and parts of it carried away. All the belting was cut.

An Italian, who was recently discharged from the employ of the creamery, is under suspicion. He has disappeared, but County Detective Totten is on his trail and it is expected he will soon be captured. The proprietors are now busy clearing up the wreck. Missing parts have been ordered and it is expected the plant will be ready for business again in a few days.

Charles Layton, of the borough, is spending three weeks at Niagara Falls.

SPECIAL SESSION NOT TO BE CALLED BY FORT

Governor Fort announced yesterday afternoon that there would be no extra session of the Legislature. He believes that a session would be unnecessary and undesirable, unless conditions should become more acute than they seem to be at present. He gave out this statement:

"Within the past two weeks the comptroller, at my request, has had each of the State institutions make a report of their financial condition at this time, with full estimate of their anticipated needs prior to October 31, 1910, the period to which the general appropriation bill of 1908 is intended to carry them.

"With the exception of the State Home for Girls, at Trenton, and the Soldiers' Home, at Vineland, the State institutions are not in immediate need. The insight which these statements have given me will enable me to present the matter as to further appropriations in a clear light, I hope, and thus hereafter avoid any financial shortages or complications in any institution. There may always be some divergence between the amount appropriated and the possible needs of an institution for over a year after the appropriation is made. If the inmates increase, as they may, a shortage will, of course, result.

"It is in my view always unwise to call an extra session of the Legislature except under some imperative necessity. Provision can be made, no doubt, for meeting the needs of any State institution until next November, and the Legislature, by its first act in January, can supply the needed legislation. At least unless conditions become more acute than at present, no special session of the Legislature will be called."

DEMOCRATS NAME BRYAN

Following the adoption of the platform there was a flurry in the convention over the adoption of a resolution recommending the appropriate observance of the centennial of the birth of Abraham Lincoln next February. There was a roar of approval for the resolution, and Chairman Clayton announced that, as the son of a Confederate soldier and a former slaveholder, he would not put the negative.

MISS GREEN, NIECE OF MRS. E. T. DE FOREST, A BRIDE.

Miss Ruth Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Green, of Berkeley, California, and a niece of Mrs. E. T. De Forest, of West Second street, and George Campbell Jones, of Tonopah, and a graduate of the State University, California, were married Wednesday night, July 1, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Edward Parsons, of St. Mark's Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Florence Jones, and her two nieces, Katherine and Elizabeth Bixby, of Los Angeles. Robert Fletcher, of the Presidio at Monterey, a classmate of the groom, was best man.

The bride is a State University graduate, member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Society, and is popular in a younger social set in the college town. She is a sister of Mrs. Howard Huntington, of Los Angeles, one of the notably beautiful women of the State, and of Mrs. Frederick Bisby, also a prominent matron. The couple will reside at Tonopah.

Baptist Excursion a Success.

The annual excursion of the First Baptist and Faith chapel Sunday-schools to Asbury Park, yesterday, was one of the most successful in the history of the church. Nearly 800 persons made the trip to and from the Park and there was ont a single accident to the party. The excursionists left the seashore at 7:20 o'clock last night, arriving home about 9:15, a tired but happy lot.

Mrs. L. F. Durand, formerly of Plainfield, has been summoned to England to receive her share in the estate of a relative. She leaves tomorrow.

REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR ANNUAL OUTING

Arrangements are about completed for the annual outing of the Union County Republicans to Witzel's Point Grove, Saturday, August 8. The Steamer Isabelle will leave Elizabethport at 10 o'clock in the morning. Invitations have been sent to the following persons to join in the outing: Governor J. Franklin Fort, United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs, State Senators Ernest R. Ackerman and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen; Assemblymen John R. Moxon, Carlton B. Pierce, Kirstein; Mayor C. J. Fisk, of this city; Mayor C. B. Holmes, of Rahway, and Theodore Strong, of the State Board of Assessors.

The schedule of events will include a baseball game at the grove between Plainfield and Elizabeth teams, running races, broad and standing jumps and the ever-popular fat men's race. Of course, there will be plenty to eat going and coming and a big dinner at the grove. The committee in charge of the affair comprises Andrew McCardell, chairman; Edward Bauer, secretary; S. R. Ryno, treasurer; Herbert Buxton, William Benbridge and William Pflug.

MADE FORTUNE IN SPOKANE.

George W. Odgers Visits Old Friends in Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, July 10.—George W. Odgers, formerly of Elizabeth, and now temporarily residing on Littleton avenue, Newark, visited here today. Mr. Odgers for many years was foreman in a boiler shop in this city. Fifteen years ago he went to Spokane, Wash., where he was a successful real estate operator. He made the trip from Newark to Elizabeth in his automobile, accompanied by his wife and only child, a daughter.

This afternoon they started for Ocean Grove and Atlantic City, at which latter place he will spend the remainder of July. He will return to Spokane from Newark early in August. While in Elizabeth he was entertained by Edward K. Drake, a newspaper writer, at his home, on Westfield avenue.

BOYS PLEAD TO MURDER.

Pleas of not guilty to the charge of wilful murder were entered in police court yesterday by Thomas Flannigan and John Sullivan, in Elizabeth, who have been connected by the police with the drowning of Joseph Nastis last Sunday. Nastis was pushed off the Central Railroad pier into the Sound.

Both boys were remanded to jail without bail. Both are said to have admitted having a hand in Nastis' death, making the plea that they were "joking," but neither, so far, has taken the entire responsibilty, and it is said it will be difficult to prove which one is the real culprit.

Bound Brook Freight House Burned.

Fire partially destroyed the New Jersey Central freight house at Bound Brook at 11:30 o'clock this morning, and a small quantity of freight was consumed. It is believed that the fire was the result of some boys playing with matches about oil barrels near the building. No other property was endangered and the local department extinguished the blaze with little difficulty.

TWO CALL HIM HUBBY

Wife No. 1 Visits Court in Elizabeth and Asks for Warrant.

ALL OVER A PHOTOGRAPHER.

No. 1 Pawns Diamond Ring to Pay Lawyer's Fee and Exhibits Her Burns—Edward Torney the Man.

Fortifying herself in the studio of Edward Torney, a photographer at 111 East Jersey street, Elizabeth, Mrs. Katherine Torney, claiming to be the wife of the proprietor, has held the place since Monday against the attacks of a woman who also claims to be Torney's wife. On Thursday a desperate battle for the possession of the studio was fought between the two women, which resulted in the serious injury of the alleged wife defending her stronghold, and resulted in her appearance at police headquarters yesterday morning requesting a warrant for the arrest of her assailant. The warrant was issued. Thursday's battle was a fierce one, the women fighting back and forth in the rooms of the studio for hours. The noise of the encounter became so loud that a large crowd of people was attracted to the scene.

When Mrs. Torney No. 1 made her appearance in Police Court yesterday morning she showed as evidence of the affair an umbrella which she said had been broken over her head, and a badly burned and bruised person. On the right arm she exhibited a burn which she alleged was the result of a flat-iron branding inflicted by Mrs. Torney No. 2.

She also claimed that she had pawned her last diamond to hire an attorney to take her case and prosecute the other woman. Yesterday morning was not the first time she had been in Police Court, having appeared before Judge Mahon April 20, charging Torney with non-support.

Soon after the above date divorce proceedings were begun in the Court of Chancery. Mrs. Torney claims she left her husband and went to Newark, from which city she returned Monday. Arriving in Elizabeth she told Judge Mahon yesterday that her husband was living with another wife. Understanding that the divorce proceedings were still pending in the courts, Mrs. Torney made her way to the studio on East Jersey street, Elizabeth, and found the proprietor out. She immediately took possession of the place, and has held it against all efforts on the part of Mrs. Torney No. 2 to put her out.

When Mrs. Torney No. 1 entered the studio Monday she told the judge she was followed in shortly afterward by Mrs. Torney No. 2. An argument, she says, started between the two women as to which had the right to stay in the place, which resulted in their coming to blows. Mrs. Torney No. 2 retreated from the place, and shortly afterward again attempted to enter. This time her efforts were useless, as the doors had been bolted by the occupant.

Monday night Mrs. Torney No. 1 tells the court, she slept on the bare floor of the studio, and on the following morning there was another fight, which resulted in her being hit over the head with the umbrella and burned with the flatiron. She was successful, however, in holding her possession of the place for another day, and yesterday morning, unable to stay any longer without food, she left.

Going to a pawnshop, she pledged her last diamond and with the money paid a lawyer a retaining fee. From the law office, with the broken umbrella under her arm, she went to the Police Court, where she registered her complaint.

As she left the courtroom yesterday morning she was advised by the judge to return to the studio, and, if she could, to get possession of it again.

Plainfielders Going Abroad.

Among the Plainfielders going abroad next week with Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, are Stacy Raynolds, of Jackson avenue; Mrs. Philip Macintyre, of West Seventh street, and Miss A. F. Thompson, of Netherwood, who will leave on a steamer from Boston, July 17. The party will return to Montreal, Canada, September 5. The tour will embrace portions of Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and France.

Orchard Park Improvements.

Orchard Park, the borough, which has recently been developed by the erection of several houses, has been piped for gas by the Public Service Corporation and all the houses in the park are using the gas either for cooking or illumination.

SHRINERS HONOR HARRY W. MARSHALL

Harry W. Marshall, of this city, illustrious Potentate of Salaam Temple, Mystic Shriners, and Mrs. Marshall, accompanied by a party of ten others, passed through Newark last night on the Lehigh Valley Railroad train leaving the Market street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at 8:10 o'clock.

A delegation of Shriners from Newark, numbering about 200, with a brass band, were at the station when the train pulled in and gave the illustrious Potentate and his wife a warm greeting. The band played two lively selections while the train was at a standstill. Many of those of the local party greeted Mr. Marshall as he started on his long journey to St. Paul, where he will attend the annual Imperial Council of the fraternity.

A street parade was held and the 200 Shriners marched to the station. The parade was followed by three automobiles occupied by several ladies. On the return from the station the ladies marched in two files in the center of the procession.

Thirty-five other members of Salaam Temple, Mystic Shriners, will begin their pilgrimage to the Imperial Council tomorrow. They will constitute the patrol of this branch of the fraternity to the Imperial Council.

They will leave on the Pennsylvanit Railroad train leaving the Market street station at 1:55 o'clock this afternoon, and will remain away about two weeks. The temple has placed a fund of $2,000 at their disposal and directed that they make a commendable showing while in the Western city.

Those who constitute the patrol and will make the trip are: Chief Henry L. Jenkinson, First Lieutenant Edward S. Fancher, Second Lieutenant John D. Lowden, Bernard Wallin, Judson Parker, Howard L. Brooke, Forest A. Heath, Howard C. Griffiths, Roy W. Risley, Oscar J. Wirtz, Henry W. Egner, Edward W. Pierson, Lewis A. Kreiser, George W. Conover, Daniel H. Bender, Frederick W. Mock, Ralph B. Schmidt, Frank A. Champlin, Ernest M. Lapner, Charles A. Winston, Joseph Livingston, Frank H. Lewis, Albert Schurr, F. A. Long, Frederick L. Cook, Lewis J. Bargesser, Elliott S. Bogart, Lewis E. Bronson, William H. Rees, Edwin Leonard, William H. Warren, Frederick E. Sommer, Harry O. Benton and Richard Bye.

BUSINESS COLLEGE "GRADS" PLAN FOR ORGANIZATION

Members of the graduating class of the Plainfield Business College met at the college on East Front street, last night, and completed arrangements for the public exercises to be held on Friday night, July 31. There was also a discussion as to the advisability of organizing a college society and the sentiment was strongly in favor of the proposition.

A committee comprising Harry Porter, Alexander Galloway, Arthur Caleen, Edward Carty, Barton Davis, Claude C. Prall and the Misses Grace Bryant, Maude Farr, Emma Korff, Ethel Forman, Katherine Finger and Lillian Kennedy, was appointed to draft a constitution and devise ways and means for a permnent orgnization. All persons who have attended the college will be eligible to membership, but the members of this year's class who receive diplomas, will meet after the graduating exercises and form an alumni association, the membership to be restricted to those who receive diplomas.

The question of a college paper was considered and it was the opinion that such a paper issued four times a year, containing notes from correspondents, school notes, short stories, etc., would be a means of keeping former graduates with the work of the college and retaining their interest. A committee was appointed to take this matter up and a report will be received at another meeting to be held Tuesday night, July 28, in the assembly room of the college.

Bryan's Neighbors Rejoice.

Lincoln, Neb., July 11.—Two thousand of Bryan's home folk trampled down the alfalfa and the sod at Fairview yesterdy in endeavoring to adequately express their pleasure over his nomination. The affair was intended to be non-partisan, and was attended by a number of prominent Republicans, but the enthusiastic Bryanites in the crowd could not refrain from cheering "for the next President." Mr. Bryan jokingly explained in advance to the newspaper men that if the whole town didn't turn out it should be remembered that having a citizen nominated for Prsident was no longer a novelty to them.

AGED RESIDENT OF WASHINGTON VALLEY DIES

William Archbold, one of the oldest residents in the section of Washington Valley back of Scotch Plains, died at his home shortly before noon yesterday after an illness of three months. He suffered an attack of the grip that developed into complications and for several weeks past he had been sinking steadily.

Mr. Archbold was eighty-one years old and died in the house where he had spent practically all his life. His parents settled in Washington Valley over a century ago, purchasing the home with a gold watch. Timepieces of this metal were held in high value in those days and the one brought over from England by Mrs. Archbold was eagerly sought after by the native Jerseymen. The owner of the valley property offered it in exchange for the watch and the bargain was made.

Mr. Archbold was a jeweller and followed the occupation until a few years ago when he retired from active work and had since been living a quiet life. From the time that he was a very young man he was an active worker in the Scotch Plains Baptist church and had been a deacon so long few of the members can recall when he was first elected. He was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of this city, and until a short time ago he attended erevery meeting, walking from his home to Scotch Plains to get the trolley. He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Mrs. George Rockwell, who made her home with him. There are also two brothers, John Archbold, of Washington Valley, and George Archbold, of Newark.

The funeral will be held in the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

MRS. LOUIS GOLDEN DIES AT HER BROTHER'S HOME

Mrs. Louis Goldin, of New York, died at the home of her brother, Hyman Adelberg, 137 Berckman street, early this morning, as a result of a paralytic stroke suffered last night. She was fifty years of age and had been spending some time at her brother's home here, hoping that she would completely recover from the effects of a stroke ten weeks ago. Surviving her are the husband and five children, Abram, Benjamin and Morris Golden, all of New York; Nathan Golden, of Duluth, Minn., and Mrs. Philip Sugerman, of this city. There are also six brothers and three sisters surviving her.

Services will be held at 12:30 tomorrow and the funeral party will leave on the 1:09 train for New York, where interment will be made at Washington cemetery.

Mother Seeks Support of Sons.

Mayor Harry Swackhamer, of Dunellen, was in conference with Borough Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., this morning in reference to the case of an aged woman of that place, who is practically in destitute circumstances. Investigation on the part of Mr. Swackhamer disclosed the fact that the woman has two sons in Plainfield, who are able to contribute toward the support of their mother and it is his intention to see that they do. Mr. Hetfield has taken up the case and will see that the sons are given the proper notice that they must look after their mother and if they fail then they must take the consequence of the law.

"Growler Party" Got Her In Trouble.

Mrs. Hannah Vanderveer, colored, residing on Warren street, the borough, was arraigned in the Borough Court, this morning, on a drunk and disorderly charge and was given her choice of $5 or five days. She paid. Mrs. Vanderveer joined a "growler party" last night, and in consequence she was in a hilarious mood about midnight, making it necessary for the police to take a hand. She promised to behave in the future.

Supposed Stolen Horse Recovered.

Walter Kreskey, of Pumptown, reported to the local police this morning that a horse had been stolen from his stable. Several hours later, the animal was found wandering about on Park avenue, near the city line. It had evidently gotten out of the barn of its own accord.

Boy Held for Theft of Wheel.

Cornelius Thornton, the West End colored boy charged with the theft of A. B. Cantor's wheel, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. He was held in $200 bail to wait the action of the Juvenile court.

Secretary Henry D. Winton, of Hackensack, former Senator from Bergen, who is secretary of the Cleveland Memorial Association, has sent throughout the State the following appeal for subscriptions on behalf of the association:

"July 4th, 1908.

"To the Citizens of the State of New Jersey:

"Today we are celebrating another anniversary of our independence, and a more fitting time could not have been selerted to present to you this appeal.

"It is, of course, unnecessary to give you even an epitome of the true worth of our late lamented President of these United States, Grover Cleveland, as a public servant or as a private citizen.

"As a public official, a servant of his people, he is classed with the highest our country has produced. His very first act in public life indicated he was there to serve his people honestly and fearlessly.

"His attitude on all international questions and controversies was in strict accord with the principles laid down in the American Constitution, cherished so dearly by all true American hearts. Typical of American manhood and citizenship, he was fearless and insistent in protecting the constitutional doctrines of our forefathers, which have made the United States of America the most powerful of nations. "American for Americans at all hazards," was always his guiding spirit.

"Following the example so promptly and patriotically set by The Newark Morning Star, and in order to perpetuate the memory of this great American citizen to help exemplify his true American traits to our children and theirs, as well as to the generations that will be in the far future, the undersigned committee appeals to every true American heart to assist them in raising sufficient funds for the erection of a fitting memorial. It is a recognition all citizens of our country, young and old, owe this much lamented and beloved man.

"Let your contributions come in, no matter how small. It's not the amount that will speak for itself in this case. It is the loved and quick acknowledgment that is so responsive from the breasts of the American people and so well-known the world over.

"The treasurer is Daniel S. Voorhees, State House, Trenton.

"Respectfully submitted, John F. Dryden, James Smith, Jr., John Franklin Fort, Richard V. Lindabury, Franklin Murphy, George H. Hartford, Peter Campbell, George W. Fortmeyer."

ALEXANDER GILBERT WINS N.Y. BANKERS GOLF CUP

Combining pleasure with business, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, president of the New York Clearing House, further distinguished himself today, when he won the golf cup at the New York State Bankers' convention tournament at Frontenac, N. Y. Mr. Gilbert is an enthusiastic golfer, being a member of both the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club. When at home he can be found nearly every Saturday playing on one course or the other and he generally returns a low score.

In connection with the bankers' convention being held at Frontenac, the golf contingent arranged for a tournament to be played today. Among those who competed for honors were some of the best golfers in the Metropolitan district and several matches were exciting and close. On Thursday Mr. Gilbert addressed the convention giving the bankers an excellent talk on matters of finance. Among others attending the convention is D. H. Rowland, also of this city, who took part in the golf tournament today.

BOROUGH MAY ERECT AN INDEPENDENT PLANT

The question of sanitary sewers for North Plainfield has reached that point that unless the Common Council of this city does not approve the plans allowing the borough to sewer into the city system, the borough will at once establish a plant of its own. This announcement was made today by Mayor Samuel Townsend, who has had plans prepared for an independent system. These call for sewage beds to be located in the West End of the borough on land bound by Greenbrook road, Rock avenue, Clinton avenue and Green brook. Geographically the beds would be nearer the borough than Plainfield's beds are to this city and naturally would meet with considerable opposition, especially on the part of residents in the vicinity of DeKalb and Clinton avenues.

That the Common Council will approve the plans to connect the borough with the city system is the belief of Mayor Townsend, and he does not think it will be necessary for the borough to build its own plant. The general opinion is against the establishment of any number of independent plants, but Mr. Townsend said today: "The borough is going to have sanitary sewers and at the earliest possible day. The subject has been agitated for nearly seven years and it is time something was done to relieve the situation. I shall be at the public hearing to be held Monday night by the Plainfield Common Council and shall express my views, as I hope other citizens and taxpayers of the city and borough will do. The matter must be settled soon."

Regarding the trunk sewer proposed by Mayor C. J. Fisk to take in all the towns and boroughs in the vicinity of Plainfield, Mr. Townsend said he had received a request through City Clerk J. T. MacMurray for the appointment of a committee to confer with like committees from the other municipalities interested. The matter was brought to the attention of the Borough Council and approved, and he added that he is ready at a moment's notice to name such a committee as soon as he learns of some further action looking toward a conference.

It is estimated that it will cost North Plainfield about $175,000 to establish a system of sewers in the borough to connect with Plainfield's plant. This cost is without the building of independent beds.

An Early Morning Still Alarm.

A still alarm was turned into fire headquarters at 2 o'clock this morning for a slight blaze at the back of D. F. Ginna's barn, caused by spontaneous combustion in a pile of compost. With the arrival of the apparatus a single blow of the gong was sounded to bring additional men as it was thought the fire might become serious. It was extinguished, however, before it had gotten beyond a part of the weather boards of the barn and a board fence. The damage will be about $50. The flames were discovered by a woman living in the neighborhood who noticed them out of a window.

Will Hold Union Services.

Union services under the auspices of the First M. E., First Baptist, Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian churches will be held tomorrow night at the First M. E. church, and the other three churches will be closed. Rev. Dr. John H. Raven, of New Brunswick, will preach the sermon.

CITY EXPERIMENTS TO KEEP THE DUST DOWN

Following the decision of the city to use an oil preparation on North avenue and Park avenue, as a dust preventitive and for preservation of the macadam, Mrs. Rufus C. Lincoln, of West Eighth street, has had a similar improvement made a distance of 300 or 400 feet in front of her residence and also an equal distance alongside her property on Irving place. The preparation, which is specially refined by the Standard Oil Company for the purpose, was put on with a watering cart, and those who have examined the work claim it is an excellent job and will undoubtedly stand the hard wear caused especially by automobiles. Mrs. Lincoln obtained twenty barrels of the preparation, using ten on each thoroughfare.

South avenue, opposite the Rushmore Dynamo Works, has been treated with an oil preparation for a considerable distance as an experiment and is said to be working well.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett is getting everything in readiness for the improvement of North avenue and Park avenue. The plan is to use Asphaltum oilene on North avenue and as far as the shipment will last on Park avenue, after which a tank of Tarvia, which will be ordered by the city, will be used as far as it will go on ethat thoroughfare, so that an opportunity will be given to ascertain the merits of both preparations. North avenue is about ready for the preperation, which will probably be put on next week. This will be done by and of a watering cart.

Owing to the nature of the material it will probably be necessary to shut off these thoroughfares treated with it, for possibly two days. It is very sticky, resembling glue, and Mr. Gavett says that if traffic was permitted over the street immediately after its put on, much of the benefits would be lost.

It is especially claimed for Astphalum-oilene that it will hold the macadam intact and keep the dust down. It is realized by the Councilmanic street committee that something must be done to preserve the macadam. In a majority of cases the top dressing is completely gone on the city's roads in the residential section, heavy automobiles which are run at a high rate of speed being responsible for this condition.

PRINCIPAL BUSINESS BLOCK AT SOUTH RIVER BURNED

The principal business block of South River was burned over yesterday afternoon at a loss of $50,000 or $60,000. Firemen from New Brunswick came to the rescue of the town with their apparatus and saved it from destruction.

The blaze started from the explosion of a gasoline stove in the apartments of Dr. Silk, over his drug store, and spread rapidly. The water pressure there is low, and the fire department was unable to check the blaze. An appeal was at once sent to New Brunswick, and Chief John V. Puerschner hurried two of the local companies down. In the meantime the fire spread next door to Levy's jewelry store, then to the Serviss building, and to a big three-story brick building, known as Citizens' Hall. The postoffice and the undertaking establishment of William Morgan, on the first floor, were burned out; the auditorium, on the top floor, and the living rooms, on the second floor, were damaged.

The blaze had swept across an alley and set fire to the Washington Hotel, owned by Otto Lindberg, when the New Brunswick firemen arrived. The bowling alleys, sheds and carriage-house of the hotel were destroyed, but the firemen saved the hotel. The stables of Elwood Manahan were destroyed, but the stock was saved. The fire was under control by 5:30 o'clock.

Patrick Allen, a teamster, who was fighting the fire from the top of the hotel building, was badly hurt by a fall, and Charles Freeman, formerly of this city, was cut about the head by a fall. Trolley traffic on the South Amboy line was stopped, the power being cut at the Milltown power house.

Opening Service at Fresh Air Home.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, will speak at the opening service to be held at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, tomorrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock. There will be special music and singing by the camp children and the public is invited. Similar services will be held at the Home every Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, with good speakers and special music. Meetings will be held every Thursday and Friday evenings at 8 o'clock.

BUNGALOW MAN AS HOST

Hundred New York Realty Men are Entertained at Berkeley Heights.

HELD IN MR. KEMPNER'S HONOR.

Serious Talk and Funny Stories Handed Out During the Repast—Solos and Choruses.

William Jeffery, the local real estate man whose activities in behalf of the simple life have earned for him the sobriquet of "Bungalow Bill," was again host at a large dinner in the dining hall of the tent village at Berkeley Heights, yesterday afternoon. The affair was in honor of Otto Kempner, president of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange, and was attended by 100 realty men and other guests from New York city and the northern part of the State. Informality was the slogan for the occasion, or as Mr. Jeffery expressed it in his printed salutation, "unrestrained bungalowism."

The serving of the dinner began at 2:30 and between courses addresses were made by members of the exchange and humorous stories were contributed by several witty diners. Miss Florence Benedict, of New York, a member of the camping colony at the Heights, rendered several solos in a very acceptable manner, the entire assemblage at times joining in the choruses. Her brother, Edward Benedict, acted as accompanist.

When the menu had been exhausted and the guests were enjoying cafe noir and cigars, F. M. Welles, of Roselle, who developed the Martine tract in the city, arose and presented President Kempner with a small barrel in behalf of the exchange. Responding to the calls to open it he found five twenty-dollar gold pieces on top and the rest of the space occupied by "selected" Berkeley Heights real estate. It was explained by Mr. Welles that the barrel and its contents were extended as a tribute to the man who had done so much for the realty organization of which he is the head. Mr. Kempner was quite overcome by the expressions of good will showered upon him but rallied to the needs of the occasion and thanked the donors in appropriate terms. Following toasts and cheers directed to the president and Mr. Jeffery, the guests adjourned in order to inspect the alluring Berkeley Heights property and the bungalows that are making the place an attractive all-year residential site.

Among the men who partook of Mr. Jeffery's hospitality and voted the dinner a great success were the following: Otto Kempner, Brooklyn; George B. Corsa, F. W. Creighton, Joseph P. Day, William Lippman, S. M. Hodkinson, George A. Haynes, L. E. Henage, C. S. Sedgewick, David Lippmann and B. J. Kline, New York; Thomas A. Ryer and Walter C. Muirheid, Jersey City; John V. Haas, Millington; Philip Hover, Ridgewood; W. R. Squire, Ridgefield Park; C. Alfred Burhorn, Hoboken; W. F. Brower, New Providence; C. S. Story, Hawthorne; Thaddeus L. Brown and William L. Lambert, Nutley; F. M. Welles, Roselle; Daniel Paul, Tenafly; Louis A. Piaget and E. H. Lambert, Paterson; Adolph Amman, Arlington; Henry C. Reynolds, Morristown; Joseph Doolittle, El Mora; Harry Layton, Hackensack; Edward Kanaley, Bound Brook; George J. Bayles and W. Irving Scott, Orange; James W. Lent, Bernardsville; M. M. Scudder, Westfield; J. L. Glaser, West Summit; William B. Grannatt, Jr., Morris C. Van Arsdale, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Philip Currin, Robert Schreiner, Professor A. S. Herr, Thad Doane, Jr., J. Henry Crane, Milton Mendel, William Birrell, Thomas M. Muir and Dr. M. T. Hansell, Plainfield; Thomas P. Rogers, Louis Bergmiller, M. Amadeo, W. H. Rogers, William Lutz, Jr., Randolph Shaffer, M. Laurino, Frank C. Shaffer, Frank Petrone, George Wahl, Jr., Joseph Kuntz, George Herber, George Zimmerman, Robert C. Rogers, Angelo Delducco, John Laurion, William Lutz and "the six Jeffery Bungalow boys," Berkeley Heights.

Gibson Fairman Returns Home.

Gibson Fairman, of Dunellen, who participated in an early celebration of July 4 touching off a tin can full of powder, the day before, receiving burns about the face, arms and hands, was discharged from the hospital this morning and he returned home. His injuries were not as serious as at first supposed and his eyesight was not affected as was feared by the physicians.

MAKE THE FINISHING TOUCHES OF THE GOWN.

This is the day of homemade accessories for dress and toilet. There never has been a time when the odd bits of lace and daintily embroidered linens which have been accumulating for years in the piece boxes could be used so advantageously as now. This is pre-eminently the day of the jabot tie and fancy stock, and every scrap of fine needlework, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant, can be utilized by the ingenious woman.

The dark waist so much in vogue for traveling is set off wonderfully by the white collar and cuffs. Here the clever woman is able to make most attracive sets out of what she has in the house—the result well deserving the name "creation."

An otherwise simple shirtwaist may be dressed up easily by the addition of bands of embroidered linen, while the insertions, outlined in unique designs, give a distinct air to the costume.

Rosettes are much worn as a finish to the collar as a variation to the popular butterfly tie. To make these, the scraps of lace, even of different patterns and widths, may be utilized.

A stunning jabot made from a lace handkerchief, which had long since passed the day of its original usefulness, was worn at an afternoon tea in Newark recently. The foundation was a piece of very sheer mull, cunningly cut so that the lace from the handkerchief could be transferred easily and artistically. The effect was of a costly piece of neckwear, and it indeed would have made inroads on one's allowance had it been purchased as a whole at one of the up-to-date shops.

One frequently is grieved to find the body of a fine, hand-embroidered handkerchief hopelessly worn. The corners with the dainty designs can be fashioned into equally dainty neckwear. If the handkerchief is a hemstitched one, edge the hem with narrow Val., and edge the piece of linen, knotting the centre of the tie with the lace, too. Neckwear as novel as it is artistic will be the reward of a little time and patience.

The collar and cuff sets for the coats give opportunity untold for the clever needleworker. Groups of hand-run tucks, set off with bands of insertion, or rows of feather-stitching or hem-stitching, will make the prettiest finish for the dressy outer garment.

Verily it is a day for transforming the accumulations of years into toilet accessories to delight the woman who would be well gowned.

A Father at Eighty-one.

Deerfield, July 11.—A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. James Woodruff, of Northfield, ten miles from here. Mr. Woodruff is eighty-one years old. His wife is thirty-seven. They were married several years ago. She is Mr. Woodruff's third wife, his second wife being her sister. Mrs. Woodruff was a widow when she was married to her present husband.

Mrs. John Hyler and daughter, of West Front street, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Shaffer, of South Branch.

AMUSEMENTS.

Whether or not the goddess of Good Luck is a particular friend of Frederic Thompson is hard to determine because it has never been proved conclusively that there is such a divinity. At any rate young Mr. Thompson's uninterrupted record of success shows no sign of breaking for Luna Park, regardless of what other amusement places on Coney Island and in other parts of the country are doing, is enjoying more prosperity than in any of the five preceding seasons. Mr. Thompson figured that after a more or less worrisome winter the American public would be ready for a summer of recreation and accordingly he spent $240,000 on new shows and improvements in his immense pleasure ground. The first month has demonstrated the truth of his theory. Last Saturday Luna welcomed 68,240 guests and Sunday the paid admissions at the front gate were a trifle under 91,000, which makes the total for the first four weeks of the season nearly 1,200,000 —the biggest opening month Luna or any other Coney Island park ever had.

There is no doubt about the huge success of "The Gay Musician," the new comic opera by Julian Edwards, and Saidle & Campbell, produced at Wallack's. The prediction of the enthusiastic first night audience seems to have been fulfilled, for the new piece has struck a prosperous gait and has settled down for a run. Broadway seems to have been waiting for just such a musical play, with its pugent comedy, charming music, and artistic cast. The most gratifying fact of the new success is the demonstration that fun and laughter can reign without recourse to vulgarity. The cast of Broadway favorites, including Amelia Stone, Sophie Brandt, Countess Olga Von Hatzfeldt, Martha George, Walter Percival, Joseph C. Miron and Edward Martindell, have won new honors in "The Gay Musician." There is a matinee on Saturday only. "The Gay Musician" has proved to be one of the biggest musical successes that has appeared on Broadway in many years. Its success is legitimate, gained only by artistic worth and without resorting at any time to sensationalism or vulgarity, and yet the new piece is one of fun and gayety.

At Proctor's Newark theatre during the week commencing July 13, Lew Field's Auto Fiends, presented by the Hanlon Novelty Co. This minature production will be under the personal direction of William Raymond Sill. Jos. Le Brandt wrote the dialogue; Jos. Smith has arranged the dances and Alfred Salmon, Max Witt and George Young have collaborated in composing the music. Something to make one's patriotic blood flow more briskly will be the intensely dramatic sketch entitled "The Star Spangled Banner." Jas. A. Kiernan, of "Flora Dora" fame, will appear in a mirth provoking singing and dancing skit, assisted by a capable company. The Big City quartet will mingle good clean comedy with tuneful singing. Carlton and Terre are a duo of Newarkers who have made quite a name for themselves. The Three Picarros, comedy acrobats; William Cahill, the "Man from Ireland," with a fresh budget of songs and stories, Chester B. Johnstone, a cyclist, will exhibit his skill and daring on the wheel. New animated pictures.

ALLEGED ASSAILANT HELD.

Man Accused of Attacking Asbury Park Policeman Must Await Grand Jury's Action.

Asbury Park, July 11.—Harry Wahl, who is alleged to have assaulted Policeman Lippincott, when he latter, with others, entered the grill room of the Devonport Inn for the purpose of raiding it recently, was given an examination before Judge John H. Borden yesterday afternoon, and placed under $200 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

Dr. J. M. Carnochan, one of the physicians who was in attendance on the late former President Grover Cleveland at the time of his death, is staying with his wife at the Hotel Bristol.

The vestry of Trinity Episcopal church here, which met last night, were apprised that their pastor, Rev. William N. Baily, whose resignation was expected, will not resign until he seeks the advise of Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, bishop of the diocese. It is thought that Mr. Baily's ultimatum will be known at the next regular meeting of the vestry, August 12.

An automobile straw ride is the latest thing in entertainments, and last night a merry party started off on one from the Hotel Marlborough. The ride was given by Mrs. C. R. Lacharias, and the party of twenty went to Long Branch.

It is expected that night bathing may be indulged in with safety after this month. Fry & Mitchell, lessees of the bathing privileges, are arranging to install electric lights at Asbury avenue, and will be ready for bathers about the end of this month. Much of the patronage is expected from business men who are occupied during the day.

—The Somerset County Freeholders will hold the regular July meeting on Tuesday at Somerville.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbin, of Basking Ridge, have moved to this city, where they will reside in the future.

DO IT NOW!

When your house, barn or store has reached that stage where it is no longer protected from the elements, it requires painting not simply to hide the weather-beaten boards, but to penetrate and preserve the wood from further decay.

Don't delay the job, but do it now and do it right, by using the old reliable pure linseed oil paint which, when applied according to directions, not only penetrates the pores of the wood and retards decay, but also produces a beautiful glossy finish.

Before deciding on the paint you will use, no matter how much, please secure prices and color cards of MOORE'S HOUSE COLORS from our representative,

All the roads will lead to Crescent Oval this afternoon where the Clinton Avenue and Somerville teams and the Monos and Highland A. C. will play a double-header and there will be a band concert, all for the one price of admission.

Chicago has regained its lead in the National League pennant race and bids fair to hold it for awhile, although the Giants and Pittsburg are pressing hard for first place.

The Yankees have struck bottom and can go no farther down the ladder in the American League race. The fans are waiting to see what will happen next.

There is a report that McGraw is trying to get Dave Brain as a pinch-hitter and possible outfielder. McCormick, who will be remembered by local fans, is doing good work as a pinch-hitter for the Giants.

President Ban Johnson has lifted the suspension hanging over Elberfield and the peppery little player is back in the game.

The Philadelphia Nationals have been going some this week. After taking a double-header from Pittsburg, they insisted on winning another game from the Pirates on Thursday.

It is thought that Frank Delehanty will return to the Yankees soon. He has been in all sorts of trouble since leaving New York, being unable to get along with managers or umpires.

Consent has been obtained for games to be played on the Elizabethport grounds, George Stallings, of Newark, who controls the territorial rights over there, having given his permission. On July 19 the Detroit Americans will play the Elizabethport Stars at the latter place.

"The ball players we can get just at this time," says Frank Farrell, "are the players the other clubs don't want, and we certainly are not going to let any of our players go for others who are not as good."

"Just Baseball," a book full of information about the national game, will be distributed at Crescent Oval and it will be a case of first come, first served. George E. Firstbrook, who assisted in the compilation, has arranged for the distribution.

GOLF.

Following the precedent set last year, the executive committee of the United States Golf Association has appointed G. Herbert Windeler, Boston; Fred S. James, Chicago, and C. B. Macdonald, New York, as the nominating committee for 1909. The first named was president of the United States Golf Association in 1904 and 1905; James served as vice president in 1906 and 1907, while Macdonald, the amateur champion of 1895, was a charter member of the association and vice president for five years.

The annual meeting will be in January and the report is due in December, together with the list of clubs to make application for the championship tournaments. The feeling is that a new man will be chosen to succeed Daniel Chauncey as president, for it has become a custom that no officer shall head the ticket for more than two terms.

In the team match for the Olympic trophy today to precede the Western Golf Association's championship week at the Rock Island Arsenal Golf Club, H. Chandler Egan, who now lives in Louisville, will be captain of the Southern Golf Association team. The Western Golf Association team will be Warren K. Wood, captain; D. E. Sawyer, Robert E. Hunter and Kenneth P. Edwards.

The unusual feat of scoring three 2's was accomplished in a four-ball match over the links of the Arsdale Golf Club yesterday. C. A. Huber and Edward Heal had the professionals, Dave Honeyman and Chris Crosby, respectively, for partners. Huber and Honeyman won the eighteen-hole match by 3 up and 2 to play, whereupon an extra nine holes was suggested.

In this round Crosby made the fourth, fifth and eighth holes, all under 200 yards, in 2 each, and he came within an ace of getting a 2 at the 260-yard sixth hole. Even at that, this nine hole tilt ended all square, for Honeyman with a 3 at the home hole succeeded in halving the match. Honeyman recently broke the eighteen-hole record for the links with a 69.

Everything is flourishing in Arsdale these days and the course presented a busy scene yesterday, despite the fact that it was the middle of the week. Now that the clubhouse has been furnished it is expected that the associate members will see an increase.

Bob Peebles, the professional formerly connected with the South Orange Field Club, is doing well at the South Beach Golf Club this season. An eighteen-hole course will be laid out eventually, but the members are at present using nine holes.

The Eastern Professional Golfers' Association has not given up hope of holding its championship this season over a course in this section. An effort is now being made to raise the money.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May Be Sapping Your Life Away—People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Plainfield testimony to prove it.

Oliver H. Voorhees, job printer, living at 21 Stone street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was suffering from kidney weakness for a long time, due, probably, to my being compelled to be on my feet so much of the time. On arising in the morning I would find myself very weak, and suffering from severe pain in the back and sides, accompanied by headache. The kidney secretions were of bad odor, and the desire to pass them was too frequent. I could not seem to find either a doctor to cure me, or a medicine that would help me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy. Before I took three boxes I was relieved of my aches and pains, and my kidneys were well again."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Accused of assaulting a girl, John Harris, of Swedesboro, was committed to the Woodbury jail yesterday.

Pilesgrove will hold a special election July 21 to decide upon the retention or rejection of the voting machine.

Kicked in the face by a pony, Roger Oliver, son of D. Porter Oliver, of Burlington, lost several teeth and his face was badly lacerated.

Falling downstairs at his home at Sixth and Royden streets, Camden, yesterday, Charles Hagerman, aged sixty-five, broke two ribs and sprained his left arm.

When John Kincald, of Mantua, attempted to pick up lines that had dropped behind a horse's feet he was trampled and kicked so badly that he is in a serious condition.

George Tomlinson, of 463 Hamilton avenue, Paterson, a locomotive fireman, had his hands scalded by steam yesterday. The burns were dressed at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Although a large crowd near the Gloucester City ferryhouse yesterday saw a laborer held up and robbed of his watch by two men, no one interfered and the highwaymen escaped.

An investigation yesterday proved that heart failure, not an overdose of laudanum, as was thought, caused the death of Mrs. Daniel A. Scudder, eighty-one years old, at her home in Trenton.

Lillian Woodland, of Atlantic City, a salesgirl, took a mouthful of carbolic acid yesterday, supposing the stuff to be toothache drops, and nearly died before a physician could be reached. She was taken to a hospital and will recover.

Joseph Koroinick, of 122 Columbia avenue, Passaic, while stepping from a moving Main line trolley car at Main avenue and Passaic street, that city, last night, slipped and fell heavily to the stone pavement, sustaining rather serious injuries. His head was badly lacerated.

Miss Mary Harding, of Bridgeton, will leave for China August 11 to work among the missionaries, and upon her arrival will be married to Rev. William Johnson, who has been at work there a year. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Princeton and is known as the pastor of the "parish abroad" of the Second Presbyterian church, Bridgeton.

J. Leonard Lloyd, a young man, of Wilmington, swam across the Delaware River to Pennsgrove, a distance of about four miles, in one hour and eighteen minutes. Lloyd was accompanied by two companions in a boat, but their services were not needed, as he finished strong and appeared none the worse for having been in the water so long.

Captain Japhet Booye, a mainland waterman, of Atlantic City, who is accused of stabbing John T. Capwell, a restaurant-keeper, in a quarrel over an alleged tough beefsteak, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Recorder Hayes for appearance before the grand jury in October. Capwell was stabbed with a heavy knife, and has just left the hospital, where, for a time, it was believed that he could not live.

Mrs. Thomas Ivins, of Clayton, was horribly burned by a gasoline fire yesterday. A coffee pot had boiled over in her absence and put out the fire, leaving the gasoline to run all over the kitchen. When Mrs. Ivins struck a match to relight the stove she was instantly enveloped in flames and the house took fire. Despite the efforts of her husband, her clothing was burned from her body and terrible injuries resulted. She is not expected to recover.

WOULD ABOLISH FREEHOLDERS.

Republican County Committee of Bergen Favors Making Third Attempt.

Hackensack, July 11.—The Republican County Committee, at its regular monthly session yesterday, decided that one of the issues in the county campaign this fall will be the abolition of the Board of Freeholders. Surrogate E. L. D. Hester declared that while the proposition had met defeat twice, he believed that the time had arrived when a change would be acceptable.

Joseph C. Shenck, of Rutherford, called the attention of the committee to the action taken by the Rutherford Republican Club recently, declaring in favor at least of reducing the board. He personally expressed himself as in favor of its abolition. He cited where a smaller board had greatly reduced the expense of government in Monmouth county.

RIGHT OF WAY COMPACT WAS NOT ACKNOWLEDGED.

Cranford, July 11.—The town has struck a rather extraordinary snag in plans of sewer extension, and even the present sewer system is threatened. Assay Shabeen, a Syrian, is the present owner of a fifty-acre tract of land through which the trunk sewer runs. He has cut it up in building lots, and frequent searches showed no record of the township's acquirement of a right of way.

After a thorough search among old township records the documents, an agreement with the former owners, was found. It was signed, but had not been acknowledged and therefore is considered of no effect. It is asserted that Shabeen can compel the township to vacate his property or acquire a right of way at his terms.

The property is very much more valuable now than it was when the sewer was constructed fifteen years ago. The drain is the tidewater outlet to Rahway.

The borough of Garwood has had under consideration plans for a sewer system which contemplated the use of the same trunk sewer.

Horse Kicks at Water Wagon.

Cranford, July 11.—One of the township horses kicked a hole in the water wagon yesterday. Charles Squires, the driver, was obliged to get off the wagon in a hurry. The township clerk states that he is now negotiating the sale of the animal to a brewery.

Injured Farm Hand Recovers.

Califon, July 11.—Raymond Beam, twenty years old, a farm hand, who was reported fatally injured, when taken to the hospital in Easton, Pa., July 4, with injuries received in a brawl at the Glen Gardner station of the Central Railroad, returned yesterday to the farm of Irving Philhower, near this place, where he had been employed. At first it was thought that Beam suffered concussion of the brain and was injured internally. Edward Lisk, John Lisk and Edward Engle are in the Hunterdon county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury, charged with the offense.

SUSSEX WILL BUILD MILES OF MACADAM.

Newton, July 11.—The Sussex freeholders in session here yesterday passed resolutions favoring the building of about thirty-six miles more of macadam roads throughout the county. The roads to be improved are from the borough of Branchville, through the villages of Augusta and Lafayette to the Sparta Township line, eleven miles; from Newton, through Fredon and Stillwater Township to Middleville, seven miles; from the residence of Bowdewine Roy, in Stillwater Township, thrpugh Stillwater to Warren county line, three and one-half miles; from Branchville to Newton, six miles; from Newton to Ross' Corner, four miles; from Allamuchy, through Tranquility and Brighton to the junction of road between Andover and Newton at residence of Thomas Cuff, five miles.

A discussion arose as to whether municipalities immediately affected should pay ten per cent. of the total cost of these roads. It was agreed to leave this in abeyance.

The board voted to have the Stanhope-Andover-Newton road surveyed at once and will advertise for bids as soon as it is possible. When the roads proposed are constructed, it will be possible to travel over macadam roads from the Morris county line, at Stanhope, to Tuttle's Corner, in Sandytown Township, or nearly across the entire county, as well as many miles in other directions. A resolution to build the Hardyston strip this year was lost by a vote of ten to five. The committee in charge of the Frankford-Sandytown road was authorized to advertise for bids for its construction, the specifications having been approved by the State Road Commission.

Icehouse Burned; Loss $5,000.

Perth Amboy, July 11.—Fire destroyed the icehouse of Gross Brothers, at Fords yesterday, the loss being placed at $5,000. Firemen after exhausting the cistern supply of water pumped it a second time from a cellar in which it had collected.

IN HOSPITAL AFTER DIVE.

John Deer, of Hoboken, Landed on Head on Bottom of Saddle River.

Paterson, July 11.—John Deer, fifteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Deer, of Hoboken, was taken to the local General Hospital yesterday in a semi-conscious condition, the result of a dive from a bridge into the Saddle River several days ago.

The young man is believed to be suffering from a fracture of the skull. He was taken unconscious from the water, his head having struck the bottom, and but for the presence of four companions, who carried him from the stream, he would have been drowned.

Dr. Vroom, of Ridgewood, who has been in attendance since the boy was hurt, prevailed upon the family to have the boy transferred to the hospital here. The lad's condition, while critical, is not hopeless, and the attending physicians say he has a possible chance for recovery.

EYE GOUGED OUT BY ELBOW.

Paterson Italian Says That a Neighbor Hit Him with Brass Knuckles.

Paterson, July 11.—In what appears to have been a family row, Charles Yondoli, of 74 East Thirteenth street, had his left eye gouged out with brass knuckles. Warrants have been issued for Pietro Chinni, of 72 East Thirteenth street, and his mother. Chinni is accused of the assault.

The trouble occurred yesterday afternoon. Yandoli and Mr. and Mrs. Chinni engaged in an argument concerning some matter which concerned family relations, when young Chinni, the son, came along and, it is said, hit Yandoli a blow in the face. He followed up the attack on Yandoli, who, it was declared, was held fast by Mrs. Chinni, while her son continued the beating. Yandoli fainted and was left on the sidewalk, where he was found by pedestrians, who carried him into his home.

Chauffeur Deprived of License.

Trenton, July 11.—J. B. B. Smith, State commissioner of motor vehicles, has ordered the revocation of the chauffeur's license granted to F. C. Tyson, of Union Hill. Tyson is charged with having taken an automobile out without the owner's permission and with running into two carriages and injuring two persons during his clandestine trip.

SUICIDE TO AVOID LANDLORD.

New York Woman, Destitute, Preferred Death to Again Facing Owner of Her Home.

New York, July 11.—Rather than face her landlord when she had no money to pay the rent of a boarding-house in which she had lost the savings of a lifetime, Mrs. Henrietta Scadder killed herself today by inhaling illuminating gas.

Mrs. Scadder and her husband formerly were employed by several wealthy families on Fifth avenue, but three years ago, having accumulated a little capital, they decided to open a boarding-house. For a time they were successful, but many months ago the patronage of their house began to decrease and of late had amounted to almost nothing. When the July rent came due the family purse was empty, but the landlord extended the time of paymen until today. For days Mrs. Scadder had talked of the humiliation of again telling the landlord that she could not pay, and during last night, while her husband slept she went to the kitchen and turned on the gas. She was thirty-six years of age.

OPPORTUNITIES IN PACIFIC.

Samuel L. Moore Tells of Trip Around the World.

After a tour around the world, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Moore and the Misses Helen Armstrong and Edna Chumar, of Elizabeth, have returned home. The party was absent five months, and their itinerary included the Philippines and Hawaii. Mr. Moore, who is a large manufacturer, states that he was impressed with the opportunities presented in the countries named to young, energetic Americans. He was also impressed with the progress made by the Filopinos.

The party crossed the equator four times and visited every country but South America.

GETS FREQUENT CALLS.

Exhorter Lands in Elizabeth Police Court, but Is Freed.

"Every once in a while I get a call from the spirit to go out in the world and do good, so I start out on a tour, preaching in the various towns to sinners."

With this statement, Elmer George, of New Brunswick, explained his action in preaching a sermon at Elizabeth without a permit. He was arraigned in the police court and discharged. George was formerly attached to the Salvation Army. He says the "spirit" visits him every few days. Elizabeth, he said, impressed him as being in need of his services.

6. Officers must remain at the targets assigned their respective companies and will require the enlisted men to remain directly in the rear thereof.

FORT IN THE SADDLE.

Renewing Accomplishment of Youth to Lead Troops.

Governor Fort has bought a new horse, and is riding daily at Sea Girt to get his muscles hardened so as to review the Third Regiment next week without resultane discomfort.

The Governor knows how to ride, as he was brought up on a farm in his youth, when the boys had to ride horseback, and frequently bareback, buggies in that day being considered only for the women.

CONGRESSMAN LEAKE BOLTS PARTY TICKET

Congressman Eugene W. Leake, Democratic Representative from the Ninth, New Jersey, District, came out in a signed statement yesterday repudiating Bryan and practically bidding farewell to the Democratic party. He urges all his friends and all friends of American ideals to vote for Taft.

Mr. Leake denounces Mr. Bryan as vigorously as Allan L. McDermott denounced the Commoner in 1896. Leake sent a letter to Mr. Taft yesterday, offering to take the stump for the Republican nominee. Mr. Leake's statement is as follows:

"Fortunately, parties cannot always choose the issues of political campaigns. Neither candidate nor platform can make the paramount issue of the approaching Presidential election other than Bryanism. Since the Civil War no greater peril has confronted the country than the danger of a Bryan dollar which means repudiation, the danger of Bryan statesmanship which means ruin, and the prostitution of the Democratic party to a few labor agitators, which means riot.

"If the candidate and the platform are the stands of Democracy, I am no longer a Democrat and will oppose this new labor organization masquerading under the guise of the Democratic party, whose success can only be based upon class hatred, prejudice and demagogy.

"It behooves the laboring man who does not wish to bring about a condition in which it will be unprofitable to manufacture, who seeks work instead of the promises of politicians; the business man, merchant and investor who prefer prosperity to bankruptcy, and those who cherish the maintenance of American ideals, to support for the Presidency, irrespective of their previous party affiliations, the Hon. William H. Taft."

"Jersey City, July 10, 1908.

"Hon. William H. Taft,

"Hot Springs, Va.

"My dear Mr. Taft—I cannot subscribe either to the candidate or the platform of the Denver Convention. The conservative citizens of this country who are neither reactionary nor the representatives of predatory wealth or special interests but who desire a rigid enforcement of the law with equal-handed justice, must look to you for the protection against the wave of radicalism and class prejudice which will follow the Denver Convention. You will have my vote on election day and if, during the campaign, my services will be of any value to your National Committee, I will cheerfully tender them.

"Very respectfully yours,

"EUGENE W. LEAKE."

Congressman Leake said yesterday afternoon he had no intention of resigning as a Member of the House of Representatives.

"I was elected by the people," he said, "and I intend to serve out my term." His term will expire March 4, next.

GLAD HE SHOT A NEGRO.

Trenton Youth Resented Insulting Remarks—Held Without Bail.

For shooting Samuel Halliday, a negro of 225 West 62d street, New York, John Fletcher, 19 years old, of Trenton, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Harris in the West Side Court to await the result of the injury. Fletcher freely admitted he shooting, and said he "just didn't like the insulting actions of the negro."

The prisoner said he was passing along Sixty-eighth street from Central Park West yesterday when he heard a negro make several nasty remarks to pedestrians.

"When I got up to where he was sitting," Fletcher told the Magistrate, "he called me a foul name, and I didn't hesitate, but put a bullet into him. I don't regret it, I didn't like his talk."

Halliday was taken to the Roosevelt Hospital, where Dr. James said his condition is serious.

Meyerholz Paroled.

Recorder Lazarus at Bayonne yesterday morning paroled for the Grand Jury William Meyerholz, proprietor of a picnic resort on Newark Bay, who was charged with violating the Bishops' law on Sunday, June 21. Complaint was made by Councilmen Charles A. Collier, Albert H. Phillips and Michael O'Keefe, who purchased ginger ale and beer. After getting the evidence the Councilmen notified the police. The indications are that next Sunday will be unusually dry in this town.

Fed Horse on Street; Fined.

Henry L. Bruns, a grocer, of 221 Avenue E, Bayonne, fed his horse on the street yesterday and removed teh animal's bridle in violation of a city ordinance. The horse ran away with two children in the wagon, but was stopped before any damage was done. On complaint of Health Commissioner Jerry Lisk Bruns was fined $5.

NEED 7,000 FOR CENSUS

Big Job on Uncle Sam's Hands in 1910 When We'll All Be Counted.

PREPARING FOR THE WORK.

Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico Included But Not Cuba or the Philippines—What It Means.

It will require an army of 70,000 people to take the thirteenth census in 1910. The task of making the enumeration of the 90,000,000 people in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico, and in Guam, Samoa and the Panama and Canal Zone, will be one of enormous proportions. It will be the most gigantic work of enumeration that has ever been attempted in this or any other country, and it is intended to reach the acme of correctness and thoroughness. Not merely a count and compilation concerning the population alone, it will include a census of agriculture, manufactures, mines and quarries.

Director S. N. D. North, of the Census Bureau, is already getting ready for the thirteenth census. He has been planning on it for a year or more. It was hoped by Mr. North that the Crumpacker bill to provide for the thirteenth and subsequent decennial censuses would be passed the last session of Congress, but it failed of enactment along with numerous other measures of importance by reason of the rush at the close of the session and the anxiety of the Congress leaders to hurry the session to an end. The Crumpacker bill, however, will doubtless be passed early the next session. It is the first bill of high privilege on the House calendar, and it is expected it will be taken up the first or second day of the session and disposed of by the House. It has not yet been acted on by the Senate Committee on Census, that committee having held back until the House had opportunity to pass the measure. No delay in the Senate, in committee or on the floor, is anticipated.

It's an Expensive Job.

It will cost about $14,000,000 to take the thirteenth census, but this is not carried in the Crumpacker bill as it is on the House calendar. It was in the bill at first, but the speaker and Chairman Tawney, of the House Committee on Appropriations thought it unwise to make so large an authorization a year before it would be used, and there was also a feeling that the appropriation should be put in one of the regular appropriation bills, as the legislative, executive and judicial bill. The coming session of Congress will no doubt appropriate liberally for census purposes.

A census of the Philippines will not be included in the coming decennial census for the reason that one was taken in 1903, and it is doubtful whether the Philippine Government would care to bear the cost of another enumeration so soon.

Important changes in the taking and compilation of the census and in the method of publication of the returns will be made. For one thing, the returns will be greatly condensed. The twelfth census required ten volumes. It is the expectation of Director North that the thirteenth census will be published in six volumes, or seven at the outside. The mortality statistics of the last census will be dropped. They were found unsatisfactory as collected at the last decennial census. The reduced number of volumes will considerably lower the cost of the thirteenth census.

A change that is believed to be in the interest of accuracy and completeness will require the enumeration of population to be made as of April 15 instead of June 1, as has been the case heretofore. The reason for this is interesting. The population of the United States is exhibiting more and more a tendency to go to the seashore and the mountains, and the lakes to avoid the hot weather, and it is going much earlier than formerly. The result is that enumerators who are set to work June 1 are certain to find many houses deserted and their occupants gone away for the summer. It is thought April 1 will be a much more satisfactory date for this reason. At that time of year the exodus to the resorts will not have begun.

Will Need 65,00 Enumerators.

Provision will be made for 330 district supervisors, and there will be several thousand persons in the clerical force in the Census Bureau establishment in Washington. The number of enumerators will be 65,000. As already mentioned, the total force needed to do the work will approximate 70,000. The clerical force will be under civil service, but it is thought to be impracticable to attempt to make the enormous force of enumerators subject to the civil service requirements. Mr. North considers it out of the question to try to select the enumerators by civil service methods, though objections have been raised by friends of the civil service to the proposition that its workings should not be extended to census enumerators. It is apparent that those politicians who are hostile to the civil service see excellent opportunities in the selection of a vast body of enumerators in the old-fashioned way, through polotical preferment, but there is unquestionably room for doubt whether a workable civil service scheme could be devised to met the situation.

A five-year census of agriculture is a feature of the Crumpacker bill. No doubt Congress will make provision for such a census. Secretary Wilson believes such a census should be had. Such is the progress being made by the United States in an agricultural way that he finds his department loses its reckonings badly if the census is taken for agriculture but once in ten years. And in this connection it may bbe said that a five-year census of population is something that the country is likely to come to before many years. Director North confidently expects it. Now, a census of manufactures is taken every five years. The same reasoning that prompted this will hold good, Mr. North believes, for the taking of a general census every five years instead of every ten years. The c ountry is growing by leaps and bounds, and long before the decennial census is taken and the results made known the preceding decennial census is utterly out of date, and its figures of little use except in way of comparison.

The mining census has been taken separately from the manufacturing census, but the pending bill would have the two taken jointly. The relations of mining and manufacturing are so intimate that this is deemed necessary.—Washington correspondence New York Globe.

A COLONIAL BEDSPREAD IN AN ATTRACTIVE ROOM.

A girl who has ideas of her own has made a bedspread that has an antique look as if it had belonged to her grandmother's wedding outfit. She has used plain white linen sheeting for the foundation and appliqued the corners and centre with designs cut from an old flowered cretonne. The spread is long enough to go over a roll at the head. It will be used in a room which has curtains of olr-fashioned scrim applique with the same designs.

The wallpaper is plain buff with a flowered border cut out on the lower edge. The border is almost a perfect match for the cretonne applications.

The dresser has a glass top which is put over a strip of the cretonne. An old-time mirror standing on three drawers picked up in a second-hand store has been painted white and will rest on the back of the table. The table used is a simple, plain, four-leg stand just long enough for the mirror. It is painted white. A white bureau, white chairs and white writing table, a cot couch covered with plain buff denim and denim covered pillows complete the furnishings of the room.

And all these things may be done by any girl with ideas. Let's use our brains and ingenuity at home.

TRIMMING THE LEGHORN.

Additional summer millinery now becomes one's need.

Last year's Leghorn is a matter of much perplexity to its possessors, and the only way of bringing it up to the requisite standard seems to be to turn the crown into the similitude of a Charlotte crown by means of a soft embroidered lingerie top or one of point d'esprit and lace, and encircle it with little "market bunches" of pinks or pansies and forget-me-nots or introduce on one side one of the mammoth "comin'-through-the-rye" bunches of field flowers, wheat and bearded barley, which have again come to the fore, and include cucko flowers and marguerites, corn cockles and, above all, scarlet poppies.

Poppies, indeed, are a rage, and even conservative dressers are loading their hats with them. A high bank around the crown fairly conceals that erstwhile prominent feature. But the pink roses will ever predominate over all.

TAKING CARE OF GLASSES.

"Few people," said an oculist, "appreciate how easily their eyeglasses become scratched. Perhaps the flaw is not visible to the naked eye, but an accumulation of them soon dulls the glass and impairs the vision. The scratches come usually from the way people lay their glasses down. There is but one way, and that is so the glasses rest on the nose piece.

"With spectacles have the lenses supported by the bows at right angles with the surface on which they rest. Never put down glasses or spectacles with the lenses resting directly on the surface."

Appreciation of American Clubs.

An Englishwoman coming to this country said she had meant to examine the women's colleges, but she found the women's clubs so absorbing that she spent her time studying them. She was astonished, she said, to find so little literature on the subject, and, while she knew many English clubs, they are not of the same kind at all. The State and city federations, she thinks, are a great means of education and culture for the American woman. Especially do the clubs give opportunity for women of middle age to keep in touch with questions of vital importance.

Summer Fancy Work.

Crocheting will be favorite porch work this summer. Already many who have not used the needle for years are becoming adepts in copying the Irish crochet. The medallions are particularly effective when used for insets in waists or ties.

SOME CAUSE FOR HIS DISLIKE.

Bachelor's Explanation of His Antipathy to All Children.

"I hate children," he said.

"Why?"

"I think they ought to be locked up in asylums till they're old enough to take care of themselves. If it hadn't been for a child—well, it might have been—"

"What?"

"I loved the child's mother. She was a rich and beautiful widow, and I was madly in love with her. I was actually contemplating—in fact, I had just got to the point of putting the delicate question. We were in the drawing-room. The child was playing in the corner. Forgetting all about that, I put my arm fervently round the widow's waist and implanted a passionate kiss upon her lips, when the child started up and rushed at me saying: 'Don't you kill my mamma!' and ran screaming into the kitchen calling for the servants.

"But the worst came a few nights after. I called at the house. There were several ladies there, and the child was being petted all round. Of course, the widow was friendly, but that child deliberately turned her back upon me. I didn't mind that; but the mother, to be nice, said: 'My darling child, don't you know Mr. Blank?' 'Oh, yes,' said the imp very pertly. 'Oh, yes, I know you! You are the man that bited my mamma!' I need not—could not—describe the effect."—Stray Stories.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE KID?

That Is the Third of the Series of Questions Asked.

This is said to have really happened in a New York public school, and to have nearly cost the "innocent bystander," which happened in this case to be the boys' teacher, her license, her position, and goodness knows what all. One of the members of the board at that time, who spoke with a slight brogue, visited a schoolroom and gave out this problem:

"If half a gill costs a half a mill, what will a pint cost?"

On the back seat a little freckle-faced boy with one front tooth missing scribbled away like mad, then folded his hands and sat up.

"Ah," said the board member, "there is a bright little boy who has finished the problem already. Bring me your paper, my little man, and let me see what you have said."

The boy came, and "here is what he wrote:"

"If a brick hit a Mick, what would happen to the brick?"

Origin of Pommes Souffles.

With reference to the fiftieth anniversary of the first railway in France, a French contemporary points out that it was in connection with this event that the virtues of pommes souffles were discovered. A French chef was traveling on the new line from Paris to St. Germain, and was preparing in the train the banquet which was to celebrate the opening. Just before arriving at St. Germain he threw some potatoes in the boiling butter. The train, however, was delayed, and the potatoes had to be taken out again. When the train restarted the potatoes were once again put in the boiling butter, and to every one's delight were found, on being taken out, to be deliciously light and inflated. The beauties of the pomme souffle had been revealed.—London Globe.

Holland Has Cheese Carriers' Guild.

The cheese carriers of Holland form a very ancient and exclusive guild, and no one who is not extremely clean in his habits and spotlessly white in dress would have the slightest chance of getting employment in the guild. The cheese markets, which are held once a week during the summer in the principal towns of north Holland, bring an element of gayety in the lives of the farmers, their wives and daughters, who always don their very best and wear all their gold ornaments and pearls for the occasion. At the same time the shopping for the whole week is done and carried back to the farms in the empty cheese carts. The May cheese, which is brought to market in June, is said to be the very best and choicest.

Sunday Work.

The small nephew from Virginia was making his first visit in the north. Came a rainy Sunday, and he suggested building a mansion of wood blocks. His uncle surveyed him amusedly.

"Up here," he said, "we don't work on Sunday."

The small boy reflected.

"Well," he said at length, "we don't do no work Sunday either, 'cept read the Bible an' feed the hawgs."

The Idle Chickens.

Little Margie on her first visit to a farm was told to wander about the barn and search for eggs. Some time later the child returned almost in tears.

"Couldn't you find any eggs, dearie?" asked her mother.

"No," replied Margie, wearily. "I think it's mean, too, 'cause lots of hens were standing around doing nothing."—Lippincott's.

His Natural Place.

"I wonder," exclaimed the wrathy woman witness, "that the lawyer on the other side can lie easy in his bed!"

"He can, probably," replied her husband, "but he prefers to do it in court."

When the Parrot Spoke

By CLIFFORD HOWARD

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

Town gossip was in a flutter of speculation: Doctor Harriman was among the bidders at the public sale of Ann Motley's furniture!

It was, of course, common knowledge that once upon a time the doctor had been the accepted lover of Ann Motley, but that their tranquil courtship had come to a sudden ending and that from that time to the day of her death the timid and reserved spinster and the kindly doctor had gone their separate ways. What had come between them, why they never again spoke or met, nobody knew. Evidently, there had been a quarrel—proving that love's course runs no more smoothly in the summertime of wooing than in its season of bud and blossom; but beyond this there was naught but rumor.

There were those who professed to note a change in the doctor since he had ceased to call at the garden-cloistered cottage on the hill. Nor were these observers far amiss; for whatever may have been the extent to which he gave visible sign of his troubled heart, the estrangement between him and Ann Motley was to the doctor an unending source of sorrow and bitterness. It was not so much because of what he had said to her in the moment of their little storm, for he had spoken with obvious unmeaningness, but it was because she would not forgive him.

After the first day of ruffled temper he had chivalrously acknowledged himself in the wrong; and, unheeding the words she had uttered in the stress of overwrought emotion, declaring their love and friendship at an end, he went to her in penitent love, craving frogiveness. But she refused to receive him. Prim, sensitive Ann Motley! The timid love that had had its first awakening in the sunlight of his presence had shrunk back into her heart, wounded and affrighted. He had profaned her proud sensibilities, and she felt that she could not forgive him. And therefore it was that she refused to see him and that when he wrote to her she declined to answer his letters.

"Your silence tells me," he wrote in his final appeal, "that you cannot know how deep and all-absorbing is my love for you. If the few hasty, unmeaning words that escaped me in a flash of thoughtless irritation have outweighed with you all I have said or done, it is useless for me to attempt to convince you to the contrary. I shall not again ask you to take back the love you have cast aside. I pray only that you will forgive me. Surely, you cannot deny me this. Let me know by some word or sign that I have your pardon for my cruel though unintended words, and I shall ask no more. Grant me this—not for my sake, if you so will it, but for the sake of the friendship, the love, the happiness that once were ours."

These were the last words he ever addressed to her. She did not respond. Silent and unforgiving, in obedience to the dictates of an exacting conscience, she shut herself out from his life.

Then, with the pride of lofty manhood, he respected her decision and thereafter bore himself toward her as a stranger. Never again did he approach her nor mention her name. Yet there was not a day during all the weary years that followed that he did not bow in spirit before the shrine of his buried love and pray to heaven that he might some day know she had forgiven him. In vain he sought to ignore the blight that her unforgiving silence cast upon the sacred memory of her being. It lay upon him as a curse; and as time went on his prayer became a craving—a morbid, brooding passion—inspired by a dread lest he or she should die before his soul should be cleared of its deepening blot.

Throughout his daily life it haunted him with a restless fear. Yet he gave no conscious outward sign to the world nor to her of the torment of his spirit. Ministering to others in their trials and afflictions; ready always with his kindly interest and words of cheer, and giving to weary hearts the comfort and the benediction of his tender sympathy, he shared with no one the burden of his own cross; but, alone and uncomforted, he bore it in mute desolation through the unbroken silence of the years.

And when, one evening in June, she passed away suddenly and without the herald warning of sickness—her heart having gently ceased its work as she dozed in her chair—the blow fell upon him with crushing despair. She was gone; leaving him alone, utterly alone—and unforgiven!

Yet withal there remained the nebulous hope that perchance she had left among her papers some message for him; something that might tell him she had not departed without an answer to his prayer. And thus it happened that he was present at the sale of her little property and was the highest bidder for the old-time mahogany desk, which the auctioneer described and put up for sale with irreverent harangue. And because of the sacredness attaching to the things that had been hers—to the things associated with the bygone days of their love—he bought her books and her clock; her ivory-type portrait of herself as a girl; her little cushioned rocking chair, and the old piano—with its brass mounted legs and its candle-racks—upon which she used to play for him the sweet melodies of the long ago as they sat alone in the dim light and quietude of love's happiness.

"Two fifty I'm offered for this parrot and the cage," shouted the auctioneer in noisy fluency, breaking in upon the doctor's wandering thoughts. "Do I hear three dollars?" Two fifty, two fifty! Do I hear three? Three dollars I am offered; three dollars is bid! going at three dollars!" he sang on, interpreting an undesigned nod on the part of the doctor as a bid at the higher figure. "Going—going at three dollars! Three dollars! Going, going—gone!—to Doctor Harriman."

The doctor started in surprise and was about to protest, as the cage with the parrot was brought forward and placed with the other things he had bought. Checking himself, however, in order to avoid possible controversy, he accepted the situation without comment. He had not meant to buy the bird, nor did he want it. It had for him no association with Ann Motley; for, in truth, according to the statement of the auctioneer, it was a comparatively recent acquisition. Nevertheless, it was now his; and thinking to dispose of it in time to some one who might care for it, he had it taken to his home with the other purchases.

In the solitude of his library, breathing now an atmosphere of another presence and of other days, he opened her desk. With trembling hands and with a disquieting sense of profanation, every drawer, every recess was carefully, tenderly, explored; but his search was fruitless. There was nothing—nothing for him; no message, no word, no token, not even his own letters, to comfort him with the belief that she had retained some lingering regard for his memory. Was it then true, as his embittered soul had feared, that she had gone without loving him, without remembering, without forgiving him?

He closed the desk and sank upon his knees. A convulsive sob shook his bent frame; and, throwing himself forward, he buried his face in his arms upon the little rocking-chair that had once been hers.

About him were the deepening shadows of twilight and the hush of eventide. The old furniture of Ann Motley, with its generations of hallowed memories, lent a mellow sanctity to the stillness of the room; and in the enshrouding calmness, with the face of sweet Ann Motley looking down upon him from the desk beside him, his heart poured forth its anguish in silent, sobbing tears.

Then suddenly a voice, low and quavering afar off, broke softly upon the shadowed silence:

"Grant, O Lord, that he may yet come back to me and know that I love and forgive him."

For a moment after the voice had ceased the doctor remained motionless. The slight flutter of wings and the tapping of a beak upon the bars of a cage alone disturbed the ensuing quiet. Then, raising his head, the doctor clasped his hands before him in sudden fervency, and as his eyes were lifted up to heaven, filled with the light of a strange awakening, a smile of illumining peace shone upon his countenance; and as spirit communing with spirit his face grew beautiful in the softening radiance of revelation, and upon his parted lips there trembled a soul-uttered prayer—an answering message of love and thanksgiving.

Gift with String to It.

Up to six months ago the French village of Gannat had neither debt nor history. Then one day it received a bequest of $50,000. Now it is about to issue its first loan, and it has become one of the most talked about towns in the republic.

Gannat was represented in the chamber of deputies for a number of years by a crusty old bachelor, M. Delarue. When M. Delarue died the village council was delighted to learn that the deputy had made the town of his birth his sole heir. It was some weeks later before it woke up from its happy dream.

The testament of "Pere Delarue" was hedged about with all sorts of onerous conditions. In the first place, it provided that a monument should be erected to his memory. There was a clause calling for the construction of a museum and a public library destined to shelter the testator's works of art and numerous books. Many of the books were in bad condition. The village was required to see that they were all properly bound. In spite of these conditions matters were still bright when the financial crisis struck the money markets of the world. The bequest of the village beneficiary suddenly shrank to about one-half of its original value.

At the present writing the name of Delarue is the most unpopular in Gannat. This unpopularity has been increased by the fact that only half of the village bonds by which the corporation hoped to complete the museum and the library have thus far been subscribed.

HEARTS & MASKS

A MASTERPIECE OF MERRIMENT

By HAROLD MACGRATH

"'Hearts and Masks' is a delicious detective story—a mystery, a robbery, an unmasking and all, but yet with this plot a bright, unconventional, witty dialogue that keeps the mind on the alert continually."—Boston Journal.

"Here, indeed, is a joy-spreading story that is as spirited and swift in action as anything well could be. It is light, yet it is carried forward with a swing and go that seize the reader at the start and never release him."—Nashville American.

When Harold MacGrath wrote this, most exhilarating story, he was in his gayest mood and full of the zest of life.

"A peculiarly ingenious story, done with a light and cheerful touch that keeps the reader in amused suspense until the last page."—New York Herald.

"The dialogues are crisp and witty and the story is told with a dash and vim which makes it highly interesting."—Pittsburg Times.

"'For frenzied romance served hot in a piquant sauce of modernity, taste the latest concoction in literary culinaries served by that eleventh hour modern, Harold MacGrath, in his 'Hearts and Masks.'"—New York Telegram.

"Take Harold MacGrath's story 'Hearts and Masks' with a grain of salt and simply enjoy it—there is no necessity of believing it, nobody wants you to!"—Philadelphia Telegraph

At every page the adventure turns an unexpected corner. It teems with breathless excitement, sparkling dialogue, facinating, glittering atmosphere.

"'Hearts and Masks'—the very title suggests another of those blithely irresponsible romances of Mr. Harold MacGrath. Of course, it never could have happened, but it is delightful make-believe just the same."—New York Globe.

"'A night's wild adventures,' all told in the comedy vein, Mr. MacGrath's story is well invented, and he tells the invention capitally, carrying it on with a wealth of incidents and much attention to detail."—New York Evening Mail.

This story will appear serially in this paper, and you will like it. Watch for the opening chapters of this remarkable mystery of the ten of hearts.

WHAT IS PRAYER?

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.,
Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

The Lord Jesus teaches five things concerning prayer:

1. In prayer we ask and receive. Prayer is petition. "Ask, and it shall be given you." (Luke 11:9.) "If ye shall ask anything, I will do it." (John 14:13, 14.) Prayer is not living right, though living right has relation to prayer. Prayer is not quietly doing the will of God. As defined by Jesus, it is asking of him and receiving what we ask.

The Word "to Pray."

Our Lord uses four words in the Greek which are translated by an English word "to pray," and a study of these will reveal the impulse that prompts the asking. One word has in it the thought of inquiry. We go to God in prayer to ask questions and learn of him what we ought to do.

Another word has in it the sense of need. It is the word used in describing the prayer meeting after Pentecost: "When they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled." (Acts 4:31.)

Another word has in it the thought of calling to one's aid, and was used by Christ when he said: "Thinkest thou that I cannot pray to my Father, and he will presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?" (Matt. 26:53.) This implies that God comes to the aid of his people in answer to prayer.

The remaining word has in it the thought of thanksgiving and praise—the word most frequently used by Christ. "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation," (Matt. 26:41), as if a grateful, praiseworthy spirit in our petitions makes a sort of double shield of safety.

Asking and Receiving.

All of these words have in them the primary thought of asking that we may receive, whether the asking be prompted by a spirit of inquiry, a sense of need, a desire for help or a spirit of praise, and we rejoice that God never wearies of our petitions. He delights to "give good things to them that ask him." (Matt. 7:11.)

But we need more than gifts from God. Our greatest need may be that he shall act for us rather than give to us, and it is comforting to learn that God works in answer to prayer. "Ask and it shall be given to you," is not plainer than the other promise. "Whatsoever ye shall ask that will I do." God's doings may be more precious than his gifts.

Ask in Christ's Name.

2. In prayer we ask in the name of Christ. "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do." And again: "If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it." "Name" in the Bible stands for character, so that when we pray in the name of Christ we are praying in the character of Christ. We ask for what can be given according to his character.

Ask in Faith.

3. In prayer we ask in faith. "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing ye shall receive." (Matt. 21:22.) "Dost thou believe?" was the test question. "All things are possible to him that believeth."

Ask in Fellowship.

4. In prayer we ask in faith and fellowship. "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you." (John 15:7.) These words occur in the "vine" chapter of John's Gospel, and we have in them the relation of the branch to the vine. Child-life is one thing and branch-life is another. The child is born and then grows away from its mother. Children can live after the mother dies, but the branch is dependent every moment upon the vine.

For God's Glory.

5. In prayer we ask in faith and fellowship for something in harmony with his character, that God may be glorified. "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son." (John 14:13.) James gives the secret of so many unanswered prayers. "Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your desires." God does not allow us to abuse prayer by making it a means of cultivating selfishness.

Away with the thought that prayer is only a pious exercise and the only benefit is its reflex action upon the soul. Prayer is the Christian's means of bringing things to pass, and we need to wake up to the fact that it is the mightiest force in the universe. It is God's method of doing things through his people. The man who really prays links himself with Almighty God in purpose and power.

Crime Caused by Drink.

Most of the crime is directly caused by the saloon. The state is rather inconsistent in its attitude towards criminals. It licenses the saloon with one hand and with the other hand punishes the poor man who gets into trouble through drinking.—Judge McKenzie Cleland of the Chicago Municipal Court.

LOOK AT THE WOOLEN GARMENTS NOW.

Even when the housekeeper thinks she has packed her clothes away with every precaution against the all-pervasive moth, it is well to take a look at them in midsummer.

This is not a specially pleasant prospect, for camphor chests and cedar boxes are usually in the hottest room in the house. But what is an hour or two sweltering against ruin to one's tailor suit that can do duty a second season if moths do not interfere?

One housekeeper who never has sent even her costliest furs to the professional packer makes a practise of taking each article from her camphor chest in late July. She brushes it thoroughly, looks it over carefully and hangs it on an upstairs porch while she goes over the entire contents of the trunk.

Fresh papers are laid between the clothes, a new supply of camphor added to freshen the original lot and the key is turned until frost arrives, in perfect confidence that the unlocking will not bring moth holes in its wake.

A small trouble certainly, but a trouble that pays.

Cloth skirts or coats that are used occasionally during the summer may be kept free from moths by taking them out once a week and giving them a thorough brushing and airing.

PLAN FOR A SUN PARLOR.

Sun parlors are better liked every year, and architects say that in time they will replace piazzas. A piazza is comfortable only in hot weather, but a sun parlor can be used all the year round. Some people are inclosing their piazzas with glass. Care should be taken to brighten the interior with warm coloring.

An old stone porch that had been for years a stiff, gloomy affair recently blossomed into the most decided sun parlors. The floor was covered with well-chosen rugs, the color scheme being dark green, with bright red to relieve the sombreness. At the windows bright red curtains hung straight down to the sills, and the shades close to the windows were truly gorgeous. These were of a material not too thin, but transparent over a trellis. When the shades were half way down it gave the effect of a window garden.

The furniture was mission with red and green cushions, and all stone work was covered with vines and ferns—plants easily cared for. Spring flowers were growing in pots placed on small tables here and there, and yet the room was not overburdened with things blooming.

WHEN I HAVE TIME.

When I have time, so many things I'll do
To make life happier and more fair
For those whose lives are crowded now with care;
I'll help to lift them from their low despair,
When I have time.

When I have time, the friend I love so well
Shall know no more the many toiling days;
I'll lead her feet in pleasant paths always,
And cheer her heart with words of sweetest praise,
When I have time.

When you have time, the friend you hold so dear
May be beyond the reach of all your sweet intent;
May never know that you so kindly meant
To fill her life with sweet content,
When you have time.

THE MUSHROOM REMAINS.

Drooping or sagging at back, front or sides, but invariably sharply lifted at one point or another, the mushroom brim remains to gladden the hearts of those women who were first to adopt it when scarcely larger than the fungus which gave it a name, and clung to it loyally during the seasons of its growth to positively ridiculous proportions.

At the present moment this becoming shape is wonderfully attractive, its brim being sufficiently wide to shade the face, the crown moderately high and the trimmings arranged fluffly to afford height or breadth wherever most desired.

A Double-Sided Hole.

The latest story of German "thrift" is told at the expense of the proprietor of a circulating library who charged for the wear and tear suffered by his books at the hands of his patrons. One volume came back to his scrutiny. "See here!" he exclaimed, "there is a hole in page nineteen of my beautiful book. And see here," he went on, turning over the leaf, "there is another on page twenty."—The Argonaut.

No Lack of Diversion.

Mrs. Jenner Lee Ondego—Didn't you find it hard to entertain so large a company on such short notice?

Mrs. Gadder—Oh, no; they all seemed to find plenty of entertainment in the peculiarities of our new butler.—Chicago Tribune.

On the Trail.

"I'm gunning for railroads," announced the trust-buster.

"Then come with me," whispered the near-humorist. "I can show you some of their tracks."—Southwestern's Book.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

SENATOR ACKERMAN'S WORD.

The statement of Senator Ackerman, made on the eve of his departure for Europe, concerning his candidacy for re-election will be read with no little interest, both in and outside of Union county. Senator Ackerman's services have always been appreciated in these parts, and we believe that his work has been recognized to have merit throughout the State. His efforts at the last session of the Legislature in behalf of civil service reform were sufficient to win for him wide recognition. He engaged in a long and often discouraging fight in behalf of a law having good government for its end, and won out. But besides that he has always been a pains-taking and thoroughly conscientious legislator. He has always been on duty, and forever ready to lend a hand in the detail work of securing the legislation needed by Union county towns and cities. The task has not always been pleasant for a man of lorge business connections, but Senator Ackerman's interest, not only in the big things, but in the routine as well, has never flagged.

As might have been expected, the Senator enters the political field with the highest ideals. He stands firmly for the right which belongs to every legislator to do his own thinking, and declares without reservation that he will make no pledges to anyone. He stands ready, however, to welcome suggestions from his constituents, and experience has shown that he undoubtedly means what he says. While a thorough believer in Republican principles, he asserts his right to labor in the interests of all the people—a sane and intelligent point of view for any public servant.

The entrance of Senator Ackerman into the contest for the Senatorship ought to be equivalent to an election. He appeals as a candidate to all those citizens who favor clean and progressive government. He has the time, ability and experience to do the work well, and the county and State are to be congratulated that he is willing to serve another term.—Elizabeth Journal.

RAHWAY ROAD WINS.

Lackawanna Must Connect It with Its Line in Summit.

Decision has been announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad in the test case brought by the Rahway Valley Railroad to force the Lackawanna to grant a connection at Summit. It was the first case of its kind brought up under the interstate commerce law.

WAITRESS REFUSES $5 TIP.

Law Student Startles Guests at Bradley Beach Hotel.

Miss Louise Dean, law student, stenographer and typist and temporarily waitress at the exclusive La Reine Hotel, Bradley Beach, has caused a mild sensation among the summer guests at the hostelry by refusing to accept a $5 tip.

"I can't take it," she told the dispenser of tips. "I hope you won't be offended, but the hotel pays me for my services."

"But you have earned it. It is yours by right and custom," said the guest.

"By custom it may be, but not by right," was the reply. "I'm against it and cannot accept it."

Miss Dean's home is in Somerville, Mass. She is working as a waitress because her duties give her an opportunity to study law and take sea baths. When she progresses further in her law studies she will find that the "right" to tips has been judicially determined in the case of the Dippers of Tunbridge Wells.

BOY BECAME LOST.

Edward French Located After Police Had Searched Many Hours.

Edward French, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. French, of Watchung avenue, who has been in ill health for several years, went out for a ride on his bicycle yesterday afternoon and failed to return home at a reasonable time. His parents instituted a search of the neighborhood but without locating him and the police were notified. The entire force of patrolmen was on the lookout for him but he was not located until late last night when he was found on Hillside avenue endeavoring to reach the house.

The boy explained that he had gotten confused by getting on several streets not familiar to him and had been wandering aimlessly about. He became tired of riding his wheel and left it some place but could not recall where. The police are looking for it.

Buys "House of Seven Gables."

Salem, Mass., July 11.—Hawthorne's famous "House of Seven Gables" has been purchased by Miss Caroline O. Emmerton, of this city, to be used as a social settlement centre. The old building on Turner street will be completely repaired, but in keeping with its original colonial architecture. Miss Emmerton is the daughter of a sea captain who amassed a fortune in the coast trade. The old house belonged to the family of Captain Samuel Ingersoll, relatives of Hawthorne. Like numerous famous landmarks, the authenticity of this house of seven gables has been questioned.

Mrs. Thomas Fay, of West Second street, has been visiting Mrs. Peter McDonough, Jr., of Perth Amboy, formerly of this city.

PASTOR ALLEGES FRAUD.

High Bridge (N. J.) Minister Says Chicago Firm Deceived Him.

In a bill filed yesterday at Chicago, Ill., which contains thirty-five thousand words the Rev. Oscar M. Voorhees, of High Bridge, N. J., accused three members of the United Presbyterian church of selling him property for $10,500 which was a bad bargain. The defendants are David C., John A. and Charles P. Campbell, partners, doing business in Chicago as the Campbell Investment Company.

The minister also complained that Theodore P. Shonts was grantor in the deed to the property, but said that it apepars that the defendants used his name to "give color to the affair, which might easily mislead an unsuspecting clergyman." Mr. Voorhees recited that in 1898 he took up an investment offered by the Campbells. For many years, he says, they have been members of the United Presbyterian church in Chicago, and he believes have taken an active interest in church matters and Sunday schools. In carrying on their business, he says, the Campbells have been in the habit of advertising it extensively in religious papers of various denominations and of sending circulars to ministers and members of churches in several States.

BOOK ACCOUNTS ARE NOT EXEMPT.

Judge Booraem at New Brunswick yesterday morning made the ruling that a business man's book accounts are not subject to the statutory exemption in civil proceedings. The law provides an exemption of $200 on the personal property of a man of family living within the State.

A judgment of $150 was given the plaintiff in the suit of Meyer Feller vs. Herman Hollander, of South River, and the matter was taken up in supplementary proceedings, Hollander's book accounts, amounting to nearly $130, being tied up by a restraining order. An examination was made before Commissioner James H. Van Cleef.

Judge Booraem held that the exemption could not be applied to the book accounts and that the accounts should be collected to satisfy the judgment in part. He announced that a receiver should be appointed later. Woodbridge & March are counsel for Feller.

DIVORCEE IN RAGE.

Objected to Phonograph Singing "I Saw You With My Eyes."

Mrs. Mary E. Corder, of 243 Palisade avenue, of Jersey City, recently divorced by her husband, was discharged in the Second Criminal Court yesterday morning. Mrs. Mamie Kirstead, her next-door neighbor, who complained that she used vile and profane language, was a witness against her in her husband's suit.

The cause of the language, Mrs. Corder said, was the fact that Mrs. Kirstead turned loose her phonograph, which smote the Corder home with "The Merry Widow" and "I Saw You With My Own Two Eyes." The latter song, it was claimed, referred to Mrs. Corder and the young man who was corespondent.

Miss Elsie Goddard will sing the offertory solo at Warren chapel tomorrow morning at the 11 o'clock service. Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz will sing a solo at the evening service at 8 o'clock.

COLORED MAN INJURED WHILE STEALING A RIDE

William Watt, colored, aged about forty years, claiming New York as his residence, was found lying alongside the New Jersey Central tracks at Dunellen late last night by Marshal Blaine. He declared that his arm was broken. With the assistance of the marshal he was removed to the borough station house, where a physician was summoned to examine him. An investigation showed that several bones in the arm were fractured. After a conference with Mayor Harry Swackhamer, the man was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital about midnight.

According to the man's story he had been stealing a ride on a coal train and just as he jumped off, near Dunellen, another train came along and struck him on the arm, breaking the bones. Watt claimed that he had been searching for employment. He will be detained at the hospital for several days.

Among the guests registered at the "Antlere" in the Catskills are Mr. and Mrs. Sumpter and family and Miss A. S. Hughes, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Cook, of Westfield, have leased Bay View at Lake Hopatcong for the season. They have as guests Mr. and Mrs. William T. Ward, of Brooklyn.

Camp Mohegan at Lake Hopatcong is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Dufford and the Misses Eliza, Della and Marjorie Dufford, of West Front street. They entertained this week Miss Emma Dubois, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Darange, Mrs. R. S. Swackhamer, Miss Bertha Swackhamer and Alfred Harrol, of this city.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Members of Perseverance Lodge and Visitors Afterward Enjoy a Supper.

District Deputy Smalley and staff, of Bound Brook, installed the following officers of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., last night: Chancellor commander, B. J. Schreiner; vice-chancellor, Charles A. Paterson; master of the work, V. W. Nash, Jr.; prelate, Rutherford B. Dalley; master at arms, J. B. Higgins; inner guard, Robert Newton Crane; outer guard, Peter Strem.

Following the installation, the members of the lodge and visitors adjourned to the banquet room where a supper was served. The affair was in charge of the Good and Welfare Committee.

THIS NIGHT WATCHMAN LOSES HIS CLOTHING.

Special Policeman Greenog fell asleep while on his way from duty yesterday morning at Camden and when he awoke he found he had been the victim of thieves, who had stripped him of most of his clothing. Modesty impelled him to hide behind a bench on a porch until early workers had passed that way.

He asked the first man he saw to notify police headquarters and two patrolmen were sent to his assistance. To them he told his story, and while one stood guard over him the other secured clothing from neighbors so he could return to his home.

SAUER CONVICTED.

Jury Finds Him Guilty of Selling Liquor on Sunday.

Herman Sauer, the Roselle innkeeper, who has been on trial for Sunday selling, was found guilty yesterday afternoon, at Elizabeth, the jury having been out but a few minutes.

Several girls of tender years testified that they had secured drinks in Sauer's place. His resort, which is known as the "Wheatsheaf," has been popular with young folks for years, being the stopping place of sleighing and picnic parties.

Cleveland Will Probated.

The will of the late Grover Cleveland was admitted to probate at Princeton yesterday. Specific bequests amounting to $51,000 are made. To each of his children he left $10,000 and the residue of the estate goes to Mrs. Cleveland. A request is made in the will to have a modest monument erected at the grave. The value of the estate is not stated.

CORDOVA FREE AUGUST 14; JULIA BOWNE IS WAITING

J. Frank Cordova, the unfrocked South River pastor, has only a little over a month to remain in the Trenton State prison, where he was sent by the late Judge Woodbridge Strong at New Brunswick after twice eloping with Miss Julia Bowne, a member of his choir.

The ex-dominie's term, it has been figured, would expire this week, allowing for commutation for good behavior, and those who had followed up the case were surprised not to hear of his release. George O. Osborne, warden of the State prison, when called up today about it, said:

"Cordova will leave prison on August 14 at 8 a. m. He would be free now if he had been sentenced to one term of four years, but he got two terms, one of three years and one of one year." When released Cordova will have served three years, four months and eleven days.

It is just about four years ago that Cordova deserted his wife and ran away to Canada with Julia Bowne. They returned and the girl went to South River, Cordova staying in New York. Early in 1905 the couple again eloped, but were caught in Washington. Cordova was given teh limit for an assault and battery charge on hfs wife. It was the only maximum sentence Judge Strong ever gave, but he did it because he said there was no sign of repentance, and that there was every reason to believe there would be a return to "unrighteous living" again. Miss Bowne is living near Ocean Grove with her parents and her child. It has been frequently declared that she will join Cordova when he leaves prison, but she has refused to make any statement.

TEACH THESE THINGS TO YOUR DAUGHTER.

To thoroughly understand a baby's requirements; to treat the little accidents that occur at home; to look after sick folk, and to keep her head in emergencies.

To be natural and unaffected.

To read good books, and read them thoroughly; to cultivate the art of listening; to write a good business letter, and to be able to sustain a conversation on everyday topics.

That a stitch in time saves nine.

That personality is worth more than beauty or wealth; that a happy face is always equal to a pretty one; and that she needs both her head and her heart, and must never be all one nor all the other.

To do her best, and leave the rest.

To cultivate a habit of prompt decision—it is very refreshing to meet a girl who can say at once whether she would like this or that—and to make up her mind what she is going to do, do it and finish it.

Not to get into the habit of faultfinding.

To shop sensibily. She must learn not to buy a thing she doesn't want because it is cheap; to buy good clothes rather than pretty ones; to value quality bebfore quantity, and to have the money for everything before she buys it.

To love home—and to make home lovely.

To make and mend her own clothes and trim her own hats; to keep up the accomplishments she learned at school, and to take plenty of exercise.

To value time.

To understand housekeeping, in the widest sense of the word; to learn plain cookery at first and fancy dishes after; to understand and appreciate domestic economy, and to receive callers hospitably and gracefully.

To have an object in life.

To keep all appointments punctually; to have an hour for rising, and rise; to keep a strict account of all her expenses, household and personal, and to keep her temper always under control.

To learn all she can about everything.

To be loyal to her friends and her family; to be always ready to help her brothers and sisters in their little troubles, and never to let a day pass without doing something to make somebody happy.

SOME PRETTY STYLES FOR A DAINTY NEGLIGEE.

The woman who does not care for the loose negligee should by all means embroider herself one of the new shaped dressing sacques which fit into the waist front and back.

These are made with a French back, cut in sharply to the waist and ending just below the hips in a square slashed tab. This back extends over the shoulders without a seam, slanting sharply from the shoulders to the waist line and ending in two square tabs slightly longer than the rest of the sacque.

One side of the front overlaps a little from the neck to the bust line, and the entire thing, front and back, is finished on the edge in a narrow hand-embroidered scallop.

The side pieces and wide bell sleeves are cut in one and fit under the front and back portion. The sacque comes in closely to the waist and is finished around the bottom with an embroidered scallop, while the flaring elbow bell sleeve, which is also edged with scallops, starts from the waist and runs out almost at right angles.

Bows of ribbon at the throat and on each side of the front where the sleeves start give a pretty effect.

Any pretty sheer cotton goods, either colored or white, is suitable for this sacque, or it can be made up in light cashmere or silk for slightly cooler days. If the material is white it is effective to do the scalloping in a color, with ribbon bows to match. The colored materials may either be worked in self tones or in white.

FOR THE STOUT PERSON.

If you are fat study your belts.

You may not masquerade as a sylpm, but you will cease to look like a barrel.

A tapering line from back to front will make a generous waist look fairly slender.

The stout-waisted woman should cultivated narrowness, subdued colors or monotones and stiffness in her treatment of the waist line.

A shaped leather belt, provided it can be kept from slipping up, is the best kind for faking a slender waist when you have it not.

Some of the new leather belts taper until they become discreetly narrow in front and are found in all sorts of supple skins in charming dull tones of blue, red, green, brown and purple.

A novelty belt has a tiny change pocket on one side and a watch pocket on the other.

Quite as good a choice is the moire belting.

Choose the plain colors rather than the fetching ones in different color, and be sure to have it narrow.

THE TAILORED HATS.

Hats designed as accompaniments to tailored walking suits of the rather dressy order are becoming more ornate with the advent of warm weather. This is because the recently imported shapes are of a type that will carry considerable trimming, as is evidenced in the case of the various modifications of the English walking and boat shapes which roll somewhat at both sides, and are slightly peaked over the brow.

In some instances their brims are faced or bound and on the crowns, which may be peaked or dented, are placed broad flat bands of velvet or ribbon, and at the front or left side, upstanding, almost aggressive-looking clusters of fancy feathers, dyed to match the color scheme of the costume.

A Touching Appeal.

"It's a great help to be able to size up the men you come in contact with," said a business man to his son, "but it's more important still that you should first know yourself.

"For instance: A noisy bunch tacked out of their club late one night and up the street. They stopped in front of an imposing residence. After considerable discussion one of them advanced and pounded on the door. A woman stuck her head out a second-story window and demanded, none to sweetly, 'What do you want?'

"Ish this the residence of Mr. Smith?" inquired the man on the steps with an elaborate bow.

"It is. What do you want?"

"Ish it possible that I have the honor of shpeaking to Misshus Shmith?"

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Dear Misshus Shmith! Good Misshus Smith! Will you—hic—come down an' pick out Mr. Shmith? The rest of us want to go home."—Everybody's Magazine.

He Knew the Man.

"Gailey seems happy tonight. He must have money."

"Why do you think that?"

"From the way he is cracking jokes."

"Nonsense! If he had money he wouldn't be happy unless he was cracking bottles."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

MARTINE IS SPEECHLESS!

Salt Lake too Much for Salt River Devotee Who Goes in Swimming.

JERSEY DELEGATES IN UTAH.

"Farmer-Orator" and Other Jersey Democrats Are Enjoying Sights and Scenes in Wooly West.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 13.—New Jersey delegates and friends arrived here yesterday morning. Some of them went to church and others took baths in Salt lake.

James E. Martine, of Plainfield, the champion Pike's peak Bryan man, in attempting to deliver a speech while bathing, was pushed under the water by a Grayite and had to be assisted to the bath house. He was sick from taking too much salt water.

Mr. Martine has made a great many trips "Up Salt River" without experiencing any discomfort, but he always kept his head above water. The Grayite who shoved him was unfamiliar with this latter fact, hence Mr. Martine's unpleasantness.

The New Jersey Democratic delegation spent yesterday viewing the sights of the Mormon capital.

This morning they are due to arrive at Yellowstone, Mont.—2,997 miles from Trenton—and will at once enter the national park in the heart of the Rockies to spend the day viewing the most majestic scenery on this continent. They will remain in Yellowstone park till next Friday morning, when they will resume the tour in the special train, which in the interval will be sent to Gardner, Mont.

The party will arrive in St. Paul next Sunday and will spent the day viewing the sights of the Minnesota capital, and possibly paying their respects to Governor Johnson. Monday will be spent in Chicago and that evening they will leave for New Jersey, the train arriving in Trenton at 10:35 a. m. Tuesday.

Only three of the New Jersey's delegates remained in the convention city for the concluding session, but its 24 votes were cast, with those of all the other states, for Kern for vice president by former Senator Smith. The two other delegates who stuck were former Judge Millard Cutler, of Hunterdon, and John R. Hardin, of Essex. The rest of the delegation started at 4 o'clock Friday morning for the sight-seeing tour they had planned. They were not even on hand to cast their vote in the ballot which nominated Bryan, but the 24 votes were cast for Gray by Smith.

Former Senator Smith declared positively that the ticket will be loyally supported. He worked long and earnestly on the committe on resolutions, and expresses the belief that the pledges, as made, will be generally satisfactory.

Robert Davis, the rival State leader, comes back to Jersey with his face overspread with sunshine.

"Just watch the result next November," he said before leaving on the special train. "It will show that I was right in standing for Bryan. If our people could have been in this convention while that great sendoff for Bryan was going on they would change their minds about Bryan. Why, the people are back of him, that's sure. Then, that platform is going to be worth thousands of votes in our State. The Democrats will carry New Jersey."

BERLOWITZ CASE ENDED.

Plaintiff Injured Her Side in the Matter By Premature Boasting.

In the case of Mrs. Annie Wilensky against Special Policeman Harry Berlowitz, Judge Runyon announced today that he had found the defendant guilty of petty annoyances as charged bu that he would suspend sentence. Francis J. Blatz, counsel for Berlowitz, submitted briefs to show that the complainant had made the boast that she would "break' the officer and the court announced that the talking had weight in bringing about the suspension.

Relative to the resignation of Berlowitz, as Judge Runyon intimated last week would be advisable, nothing was mentioned in court this morning. Interrogated after the proceedings, Chief Kiely said the matter rested in the hands of Alexander Ayers.

In the City Court.

Walter Carr and Charles Hankerson, two colored boys, were arraigned in the city court this morning, charged by A. B. Cantor, of West Third street, with breaking a window in his store. They promised to pay for the damage and sentence was suspended.

WEEK END PARTY HELPS THE BOROUGH'S TREASURY

There was an unusually busy session of the Borough Police Court, this morning, when seven offenders were arraigned before Recorder Dolliver. The party included Charles Vanderveer and his wife, Hannah, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Smith, all colored, and Mrs. Mary Parkinson, white. According to the complaint of the police all were engaged in violating law and order at the home of the Vanderver's Saturday night, and the disturbance was so great that the neighbors were obliged to summon the police. When they arrived everybody was in a hilarious mood and "rough house" was on in earnest.

Hannah Vanderveer, who was arrested last week on a similar charge, was fined $10, and her husband was let off with a penalty of $3 for his part in the celebration. Sentence was suspended on Potts and his wife, it being shown that they were not as much to blame as the others, while Mrs. Parkinson was given her choice of $3 or three days. Carman Smith was fined $3 and sentence was suspended on his wife. In each case the fine was paid.

Sheridan Jones, who was picked up on Race street, Saturday night, being drunk and disorderly, was given his choice of $5 or five days. He decided to remain in the lockup. He is an old offender and the borough authorities are about getting tired of seeing him in court.

FIRST SUNDAY SERVICE AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

The opening Sunday afternoon service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, yesterday, attracted a large number of people, despite the excessively warm weather, and besides there were about 200 children and mothers of the Home present. The meeting was in charge of George E. Hall, vice-president of the association, and the speaker for the afternoon was Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, who took for his theme, "Stumbling." He held the closest attention of every one present through his helpful and interesting remarks.

During the service there was special music, there being vocal solos by Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano, and Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto, of the First Baptist church choir. They also sang a duet to the delight of all present. In the congregational singing, Whitney Frazee assisted with the cornet. From now on there will be the usual week-day services and a Gospel service every Sunday afternoon to be in charge of interesting speakers.

GEN. COLLINS PLEDGES SUPPORT TO BRYAN

General D. F. Collins, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, has issued the following statement:

"While the Democrats of Union county were of the opinion that another leader could be found who would insure a much better chance for victory in the coming presidential campaign they will certainly give their unqualified support to William Jennings Bryan now that he has been named as the choice of the national convention. Bryan is a thorough Democrat and a great American and although his attempts to lead the party to success in the past have ben disastrous he is entitled to our best efforts. Union county Democrats accept the situation and while some may not believe that the best possible step has been taken at the convention we will leave nothing undone to assist Bryan in his campaign.'

Capt. Humphrey Recovering.

Captain Chauncey B. Humphrey, of the Twenty-first Infantry, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, is recovering from an attack of typhoid fever with which he has been ill at the Fort Leavenworth hospital for the past three weeks. He expects to be out within a short time. Captain Humphrey was a member of the class of the Army School of the Line which graduated June 30.

Funeral of Eugene Green.

The funeral of Eugene Green, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Green, of Pond place, was held at the parents' home yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich and was followed by burial in Evergreen cemetery. The boy died Saturday after a brief illness with a blood disorder.

EXCISE PROBE GET FACTS

Judges and Prosecutors Explain Conditions in Their Counties to Commission.

ATLANTIC CITY CONFERENCE.

Today the Commissioners Are Delving Into the Situation in Paterson—Much Being Accomplished.

Nearly every county in the State was represented by its prosecutor at the meeting of the New Jersey Prosecutors' Association, held at Atlantic City on Saturday in conjunction with the newly appointed State excise commission, of which Mayor Fisk, of this city, is chairman. A short session in the morning and a lengthy one in the afternoon at the Metropolitan Hotel were given up to a discussion of excise conditions throughout the State.

Each prosecutor told the excise probers the condition in his particular county, and many valuable suggestions on the situation were developed. The commission obtained material from the prosecutors that will greatly aid them when the liquor problem is sifted in the sessions to be held before report is made to the Governor.

Discussion at the afternoon session covered local option, high license, prohibition and excise regulation by the courts.

The prosecutors were unanimous in the opinion that the licensing power should be vested in the same body in every county, whether in an excise commission, common council or court. The majority of the attorneys favored the courts. Several judges of common pleas courts who were present spoke upon the matter. While all the judges disliked, from a personal view, the responsibility of granting licenses, all were agreed that it would tend to a better enforcement of the laws.

It was also the opinion of the prosecutors and the judges that politics in the situation would be placed at a minimum if such general power were vested in the courts.

Most of the prosecutors favored three classes of licensing—retail, where liquors should be drunk upon the premises, but its removal in quantities prohibited; places where liquors are sold but not to drunk and sellers of large quantities, brewers and distillers. The prosecutors also strongly urged that licenses be limited on the basis of population. The sale of liquors from beer arks was strongly condemned.

There were seventeen prosecutors at the meeting. Among the judges present were: John G. Horner, Burlington; Judge Royal P. Tuller, Cumberland; George A. Shipman, Warren; Louis H. Schenck, Somerset, and John L. Connet, Hunterdon.

The members of the excise commission present were: Peter Backes, Trenton; former Senator George G. Smith, Lakewood; Mayor Appleby, Asbury Park; former Senator John Howe, Newark, and C. Van Huson Whitbeck, Hackensack.

Today the excise commission is in session at Paterson.

TWO SLIGHT FIRES.

One Occurred at Residence Yesterday and Other Near Barn Saturday Afternoon.

Fire headquarters received a still alarm at 7:38 yesterday morning for a blaze in the house at 312 East Seventh street, owned and occupied by John F. Hellstrom. It was found to be under the first floor and was caused by heat from the chimney. Two tanks of the chemical engine were used in putting out the flames. The damage is placed at $50.

An alarm was turned in Saturday afternoon for a slight fire in a pile of bedding at the barn of Joseph Manhattan, located in the rear of his home on Elm place, near the brook. A couple of extinguishers put an end to the trouble before any real damage had occurred.

Hope Boys Begin Camp Life.

The Hope Boys' Club camping expedition left this morning for a week of "simple life" on the Schleff farm back of Washington's rock. The members of the party are the following: Harold Firstbrook, Louis Brown, David Hendry, George Gray, Jr., Leslie Randolph, John Herron, Thomas Herron, Harry Anderson, Charles Nicholson, George Leighs, Jr., Arthur Walls, Roger Haskard and William Marsh. They will be in charge of James Penney and Alfred B. Marsh.

LEGISLATORS WILL BE GUESTS OF GOVERNOR

Governor Fort will give the first of a series of large but informal receptions and luncheons Thursday afternoon in the executive cottage at Sea Girt. The guests of the governor will be President Hillery and all the members of the Senate of New Jersey; Speaker Jess and all the members of the house of representatives; United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs; former United States Senators Rufus Blodgett, James Smith, Jr., and John F. Dryden, and the ten congressional representatives of New Jersey.

During the summer there will be three other functions of a similar character. One will be a gathering of all the political county chairmen throughout the State, another will be a reception and luncheon to the heads and deputies of all State departments and the third will be for the Legislative Correspondents' Club of Trenton, the New Jersey State Editorial Association and specially invited editors and other newspapermen from various parts of the State.

DEATH ENDS LONG ILLNESS.

Calvin Sutton Passes Away at His Home From a Complication of Diseases.

Following a long illness from a complication of diseases, Calvin Sutton died yesterday at his home on Chatham street. He was the son of the late Levi Sutton and was born in Plainfield forty years ago, residing in this vicinity all his life. He was employed by Woolston & Buckle for the past seventeen years, having learned the painter's trade when a young man. He is survived by a wife, two sons and two daughters; also two brothers, William and Corletta.

The funeral will be held at his late home Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Party for Frances Schafuss.

In honor of the fifth anniversary of her birthday, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Schafuss, of Fairview avenue, gave a party for their daughter, Frances, Saturday afternoon, to which was invited ten of the little girl's friends. Several atractive features were prepared by Mrs. Schaffus for the occasion, not the least of which were the decorations, which were appropriate to Fourth of July. The little folks played games and had a jolly good time and during the afternoon refreshments were served. The young celebrant received a number of pretty gifts as reminders of the happy event. Those present were Frances Schafuss, Lester Boyer, Toddie Cummings, Roswell Ewart, Charlotte Fowler, Edith Shotwell, Marjorie VanEmburgh, Augusta Clawson, Herbert Hooker, Nellie Berkhan and Florence Berkhan.

Boretta Ludovici.

Boretta Ludovici, aged eighty-four years, died yesterday at his home, 1088 Arlington avenue. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be at Samptown.

STORM PLAYED HAVOC

Four Houses Struck by Lightning and Many Wires Put Out of Commission.

A GREAT ELECTRICAL DISPLAY.

Fire Department Called Out to Quell Blaze in Park Avenue Residence—Telephone and Lighting Services Badly Crippled.

Following up warnings given for fifteen or twenty minutes previously, one of the severest electrical storms that has visited this section in years burst over the city at 7 o'clock last evening. Though it lasted little more than an hour, four houses were struck by lightning, trees were blown down or suffered the loss of large branches, and telepsone, electric light and fire alarm wires were put out of commission. Rain fell in torrents during the entire time the celestial pyrotechnics played about and for five or ten minutes good-sized hail stones dropped around to add to the confusion.

One of the houses struck by a bolt was the residence of LeRoy J. Ellis at Park avenue and Randolph road, owned by Frank J. Hubbard. The family is spending the summer at Cedar Lake, N. Y., and the upper part of the building had been burning for some time before the flames were discovered by Wm. E. MacClymont from his home across the street. All the apparatus at headquarters turned out in response to a telephone alarm and the firemen worked for an hour before putting out the blaze. They had to break in a front window in order to gain entrance to the place but succeeded in keeping down the damage by using the chemical engine alone. Three tanks were discharged before the flames were extinguished though two lines of hose were stretched in for an emergency. The damage is placed at $500.

Another bolt of lightning that startled the business section of the city collided with a corner of William Mills' residence, located at Second street and Madison avenue. It ripper things up like a fractious colt and bored a hole clear into the attic. From the appearance of the place it must have had a high old time before it took its departure by some exit not yet located. Mr. Mills and the members of his family were downstairs but were slightly affected by the shock, as were also other people residing in a part of the house. Mr. Mills went to the attic after he had fully recovered and found incipient blazes in two or three places. He extinguished them withou tcalling the fire department.

While the storm was at its height, the largest house in the Italian settlement on Lake street was picked for a target by the lightning and was tagged by a bolt of the grandpa variety. The aftermath was somewhat like that of a small boy poking a bee hive with a stock. Less than thirty seconds after the top of the structure was hit, the inmates seemed to pour out of doors, windows, cellarways and even the skylight route over the roof. A neighboring resident asserts that when they all collected under friendly trees to escape the rain it looked as if a regiment had been inside the place. They all refused to go back until the storm had passed over.

The fourth house struck was the residence of Frank McInerney on Park avenue just below the Ellis home. A bolt shattered the chimney and did some skylarking around the roof but occasioned no great damage.

The numerous wires about the city seemed especially attractive to the lightning and bolts could be seen running over them repeatedly. Several electric light circuits were put out of commission for awhile and the fire gong seemed to have a Saturday night jag. It tooted every little while, giving long and short blasts, and on two occasions seemed to sound an alarm. The trouble is supposed to have been caused by crosses as no break was discovered by the linemen. The telephone company reports a large number of fuses burned out in the individual stations but the distributing boards at the exchange passed through the ordeal in applepie order.

A bolt of lightning struck a large apricot tree at the home of J. D. Spicer, West Fifth street and Arlington avenue, and ruined it. After the storm Mr. Spicer picked several quarts of green fruit from the dead tree.

That the storm last night was local is shown by the fact that there was no rain at all at Highland Farm, the home of Henry Rogers, near Washingtonville. There were only a few drops of rain at Elizabeth, not enough to lay the dust.

DEATH FOLLOWS INJURY RECEIVED IN ODD MANNER

Robert Evans, a well known local man employed as driver by John Lynch, of Elizabeth street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital shortly before 7 o'clock last night as the result of injuries received in a peculiar way three hours previous. He had not been feeling well throughout the afternoon and while standing in front of his horse's head at the North avenue station he was suddenly overcome by the heat. He pitched forward and the side of his head struck with great force against the projecting edge of a cobblestone, crushing in the skull.

Evan's fall was witnessed by Richard Higgins and G. W. Hankerson, who summoned the ambulance and had him removed to the hospital. He was unconscious when picked up and remained in that condition until death ensued. The fracture of the skull was a very severe one and it led to the belief at first that he must have been kicked by his horse as he fell.

Evans was thirty-three years old and came to Plainfield from Ireland in 1896. He was employed for a long time by the late Patrick Keeley but for the past four or five years had been with Mr. Lynch. He was widely known throughout the city by his almost excessive politeness and his custom of addressing his men acquaintances as "master." He was unmarried and leaves a father and sister in Ireland.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in St. Mary's church, and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

DR. RAVEN PREACHES AT UNION SERVICE

The union service at the First M. E. church, last night, was well attended considering the unfavorable weather condition. Rev. Dr. John H. Raven, of New Brunswick, preached the sermon from the theme, "Ye Believe in God, Believe Also In Me," and it was a fine discourse, holding the closest attention of the congregation throughout.

The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the church. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, offered prayer and Dr. Raven read the Scripture lesson and preached the sermon. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, gave out the closing hymn and pronounced the benediction. Next Sunday night the union service will be held at the First Baptist church and Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea will preach. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will preach at the last service to be held in Trinity Reformed church, Sunday night, July 26.

REV. MR. SHAW PREACHES HIS FIRST SERMON HERE

Rev. Edwin Shaw, the new pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, preached his first sermon as pastor, Sabbath morning before a large congregation. He was well received and his discourse, a strong Gospel one, held the undivided attention of all to the close. Mr. Shaw resembles in many respects his brother, Rev. E. B. Shaw, the former pastor, but he differs from him in that he delivers his sermons from manuscript, instead of extempore as was the case of his brother. He made a favorable impression unon all who heard him and the congregation is much pleased.

For more than eighteen years Mr. Shaw served Milton College as professor of Latin and Chemistry and it is said that the present excellence of the college library is due in large measure to the careful and painstaking work of Mr. Shaw. The current issue of the Milton College Review pays a glowing tribute to Mr. Shaw and regrets his departure from that seat of learning. While a professor at Milton College, Mr. Shaw preached nearly every Sunday at some nearby church and in this respect his work will not be new to him.

ATTACK REVEALS DISCORD

Mrs. George Whitley, Feloniously Assaulted, is Defendant in Divorce Case.

IS ONE OF THE FAIR HEIRS.

Mystery Surrounds Incident At Sister's Home In Caldwell—Wife Separated From Husband After Short Married Life.

Through a felonious assault committed early Saturday morning on Mrs. Mabel Whitley, niece of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair and a former resident of Plainfield, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Leonard, of Caldwell, local people learned for the first time that proceedings for divorce have been instituted by the young woman's husband, George Whitley, at present living in Massachusetts. The fact was made known by relatives while being questioned about the attack but aside from the bare mention no further statement was made.

The assault was a mysterious affair and according to the story given to reporters took place shortly after Mrs. Whitley had retired late Friday night. She was awakened by the attempt of a man, who had evidently secreted himself beneath her bed, to stuff a cloth in her mouth. She wrested herself from the stranger's grasp and sprang from the bed, but before she could remove the cloth from her mouth sufficiently to make an outcry, the fellow seized her by the throat with both hands. A scuffle then ensued, which was heard by Mrs. Leonard and her husband, who were downstairs with Elmer Leffler, a brother of Mrs. Whiteley.

The three hurried to the latter's room, but finding the door locked, Leonard rushed down stairs for an axe, with which he broke the door open. Mrs. Whitley was found in a faint upon the floor. There were marks upon her throat and arms, which plainly showed the frantic struggle she had made to release herself from her assailant's hands. The stranger, having heard other occupants of the house at the door, had jumped through the wire netting of the window to the piazza roof and escaped without being seen. Marks on the bed clothing, it is said, showed that the man had recently worked about oily machinery and also that he had worn "sneaks." Nothing about the room was missing, nor were any of the articles about the room disturbed.

Mrs. Whitley was thrown into such an extreme nervous condition by the occurrence that Dr. Edwin E. Bond, of Caldwell, was called in attendance. The physician administered restoratives, but Mrs. Leonard remained in attendance upon her sister all night. The door was locked by the assailant before he began his work. Mrs. Whitley, formerly resided on West Fifth street, and is one of the Fair heirs, being a daughter of Mrs. Geo. E. Leffler, a sister of the late Mrs. Charles Fair, who with her husband, was killed in an automobile accident in Paris. Mrs. Whitley is a graduate of Mt. St. Dominic's Academy of Caldwell.

In September, 1904, Miss Leffler was married to George Whitley, son of Frank Whitley, of Essex street. The young man had been pitcher for the New Market baseball team and they met at a game in the village. Miss Leffler was living then with her uncle, Abram G. Nelson, who was one of the chief supporters of the organization. The ceremony took place at his home and was a brilliant affair. After keeping house here for three years, Mr. and Mrs. Whitley moved to Massachusetts and nothing was heard from them until the assault of Saturday.

When relatives were pressed for details about the divorce proceeding, they refused to give any information and what led to the action is a matter of speculation. It is declared by a friend of Mr. Whitley's that his petition has been made in a Massachusetts court and that desertion is alleged.

Irish Actor in Trouble.

James Nolan, a one time actor at the Irish National theatre in Dublin, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He was arrested at Second street and Park avenue Saturday night as he was reciting the "Boyan Water" to a crowd of curb brokers. He was let go on suspended sentence and as he backed out of court, conferred profuse blessings on the head of the magistrate and the entire police force for their consideration and treatment. Nolan attended the Clinton Avenue-West End ball game Saturday afternoon and kept the big crowd laughing by his comments on the proceedings.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield Council has appropriated $800 for protecting the shade trees. All of the damage that will be done by the elm beetle this year has been done, as by today the larvae will have stopped feeding on the leaves and make its way to the ground, where it will remain until next spring. It is to prevent a crop of the beetle next year that the money will be spent.

Rev. F. E. Sturgis conducted services at the Westfield Congregational church yesterday morning. The evening services at this church have been discontinued for the summer.

Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace church, Plainfield, occupied the pulpit of the Westfield Methodist church yesterday at both services.

Russell, Robbinson & Co. have been awarded the contract for the Fourth Ward school house.

A petition is being circulated in Westfield for signatures for a Sunday night mail collection.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Carl, the small son of Dr. F. Vernon Ware, of Millville, was severely bitten on the lip by a savage dog, which was running at large without a muzzle.

Falling down an excavation in front of his home yesterday, Herman Huber, of 648 South Third street, Camden, sustained a fractured thigh and was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

A dredge of the Philadelphia Lighterage and Tranportation Company sprang a leak yesterday near Kinkora, and while being towed to Philadelphia caught fire and was destroyed off Andalsia.

Members of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters met in Atlantic City Friday to discuss a proposed raise in wages and shortening of hours for the entire trade throughout the United States. Delegates declared trade conditions warranted such an increase.

Policeman William Hollsworth, of Woodstown, is having more than his share of trouble. Several weeks ago he was shot at, later he was badly beaten by a crazy man, a few days ago he fell out of a wagon and dislocated a shoulder and yesterday he fell and knocked it out of place again.

Emil Rehmi, a member of the Fifth Regiment, residing at 20 Belmont avenue, Paterson, while handling a bayonet at the armory in that city, accidentally pushed the bayonet into the fleshy part of his left hand. The wound was dressed at the General Hospital. Rehmi is a plumber and is twenty years old.

Declared by Judge Joline to be a menace to the community, William Dalton was sentenced to the State prison for five years in the Camden Criminal Court Friday. He pleaded guilty to breaking into the store of Baptist Scull, at Locust and Chestnut streets. Dalton was captured by fifteen-year-old Frank Hanna and the latter's bull terrier. The man has already served two terms in State prison.

Harry G. Rathgeb, of Philadelphia, head timekeeper for the Sindia Salvage Company, was badly injured Saturday while working around the vessel off Ocean City. He was swimming around the stern of the wreck when a wave swept him against the iron plate of the side. He made desperate attempts to get away. His heart gave out, and he would have probably drowned had not J. D. O'Brien, foreman of the wreck, gone to his assistance and brought him ashore after a hard struggle.

LUMBER CUT WAS HEAVY.

Notwithstanding Cry of Timber Famine, Year's Total Was Larger Than Last Year.

Washington, July 13.—Notwithstanding the cry of timber famine, the soaring price of lumber, and the disastrous effects of the money panic late in the last year, the total lumber cut of the year 1907, according to figures made public today by the Census Bureau, is 2,705,000,000 feet, broad measure, more than that of 1906. The total cut was 40,256,000,000 feet.

The production of lath throughout the country fell from 3,813,000,000 in 1906 to 3,664,000,000 in 1907—but the production of shingles ran from 11,858,000,000 in 1906 to 11,950,000,000 last year.

"The substantial increase in the total production of lumber in 1907," says the report, "as compared with 1906, in spite of the financial stringency is remarkable, and especially so in view of certain well-known local causes. Aside from the car shortage, which necessitated a restoration of the cut in many localities, the fact that the industry of lumber manufacture was practically suspended on the Pacific coast early in the fall on account of the prospective raise in freight rates by the railroads, materially affected the amount of the output."

The South was far and above every other section of the country the biggest producer of timber, the yellow pine cut for 1907 aggregating the enormous total of 17,694,218,000 feet, by 11,395 mills, as against 15,096,110,000 feet by 8,143 mills in 1906, an increase of seventeen per cent.

The Lake States fell below their average, with eleven per cent. decrease of white pine cut, the figures being 5,491,680,000 feet for 1907. In Minnesota the cut of pine of 1907 formed ninety-one per cent. of the total lumber output of that State, and represented 60.9 per cent. of the aggregate cut of this wood in all the Lake States.

A Matter of Good Manners.

If the rules of politeness which we call etiquette did nothing more than compel people to behave themselves properly when with other people, they would still be indispensable.

To be perfectly well bred is not expected of those who have not had certain advantages, but the controlling of one's temper, the refraining from the hasty retort and the sarcastic or rude remark is demanded by the least of these laws.

No guest has a right to spoil an evening for a hostess by showing ill temper at any contretemps that may occur; among perfectly courteous people this is an offense against the very first law of good manners; the law that requires one to greet one's enemy courteously upon meeting under the roof of some mutual acquaintance.

In fact, nothing so marks a lack of breeding as this; it is a duty owed to one's ownself as well as to one's hostess to never commit such a breach, a breach not only of etiquette, but of personal pride as well. A lady will always carry off anything of the sort with self-possession and tact.

A Polish for White Shoes.

Get 10 cents worth of whiting and dilute with a half cup of water. Dip a small, clean sponge into the mixture and apply to the shoes. This cleans canvas shoes very nicely, but those of kid and best be treated with a special shoe polish for the purpose.

ODDITIES IN HEADGEAR.

The hat with a beehive crown is new, and as the brim is a sensible width the hat will be more generally becoming than some of the new styles.

Only those who are quite sure of the becomingness of such a style should attempt it, for on the wrong person this kind of hat looks like an old model.

The trimming that is used is very much the same as that of long ago, for masses of flowers or ribbons are arranged high in topknot fashion.

The Abused Lemon.

A squeeze of lemon juice added to sauces, soups, gravies and stews after cooking, will bring out the flavor wonderfully, and is a palatable improvement.

Pitcher Jack Cronin, of the Providence Eastern League Club, who has pitched a few times in this city, was fined $50 by President Powers for assaulting an umpire in a game at Jersey City on Thursday. So far as known this is Cronin's first offense since he has been playing the game.

McGraw has secured the services of Dave Brain, formerly of Cleveland, but the question of getting Spade, the Cincinnati twirler, is still in the air.

Harry McCormick is now playing an outfield position for the Giants and hitting the ball hard.

The Yankees are still losing games and it certainly would give the fans and awful jolt if they should score a victory.

Foxen, formerly of the Jersey City Eastern League team, is pitching good ball for the Philadelphia Nationals. He lost a hard eleven inning contest with Chicago on Thursday.

Plainfield has a number of strong pitchers when one considers Randolph, of the Clinton Avenues; "Hub" Conover, of the Mono F. C., and Eddie Conshay, of the Highland A. C., not forgetting a number of others who are doing good work.

In their efforts to give a first-class article of ball, the Clinton Avenues deserve all the support possible. The season's schedule of contests is one of the best, including games with High Bridge and Somerville, as well as Metropolitan teams.

No word has as yet been received from Flemington in response to Manager Dorflinger's request for a game. It looks as though the Hunterdon county aggregation is much afraid of a defeat.

The Orange Y. M. C. A. team will meet the local association nine at Crescent Oval Saturday in one of the State League games. Orange is considered a formidable opponent and the contest should be a good one.

Not His Fault.

A first grade boy brought perfect spelling papers home for several weeks, and then suddenly began to miss five and six out of ten.

"How's this, son?" asked the father.

"Teacher's fault," replied the boy.

"How is it the teacher's fault?"

"She moved the little boy that sat next to me."—Christian Leader.

WHAT ONE MAN SAYS ABOUT MARRIAGE.

Fair maiden of seventeen summers, dreaming dreams of life and love and unalloyed bliss, would you be "happy though married?"

Wait.

Wait until you are 35.

A German scientist claims to have discovered a sure road to untroubled marital joy and peace and harmony.

He says that the really happy marriages are "contracted" by women who have passed their thirtieth birthday.

He says, further, that the ideal age for a woman to marry is 35.

Then, prosaically and coldly and in most unromantic fashion, he explains the reason why.

He says, this German scientist, that women of 35 have "settled in life." They have learned that the world, even if one is to love, is not a vast and smiling area of untroubled gladness. They have learned, too, how to broil beefsteak, and how to darn stockings, and how to keep a dining room cool and speckless in summertime. They have even learned how to economize on bonnets and bonbons. They may not have quite so idyllic a belief in the unending melody of love's old sweet song, but they know a deal more about keeping house.

Then, too, a woman who marries at 35 chooses her husband with care and discretion. She is more apt to marry the man who suits her than she was fifteen years ago. She has more "common sense."

It is needless to add that the German professor believes that, in marriage as in everything else, it is common sense, and not romance, that matters. He has discovered, however, no means of inducing the girl in her teens—even the girl in her early twenties—to agree with him.

Also, his suggestion must be taken at exactly what it is worth.

WORK ON THE HOTEL PORCH.

The dainty lady just now is turning her thoughts toward the pretty lingerie pillows which do so much to make her bedroom and boudoir just what they should be.

They are quite small, soft down pillows covered with a white material—nainsook, cambric and handkerchiefs linen. Sometimes they are embroidered with white mercerized cotton in a graceful design of small flowers and sometimes they are quite plain, with only a two-inch hemstitched ruffle all round the edge. Others are inset with fine Valenciennes lace insertion, while the ruffles are finished with a lace edging.

Quite the easiest way to make these dainty novelties is to buy an embroidered handkerchief, which may be made larger, if necessary, by sewing insertion roud the edge. This is backed by plain handkerchief linen, and the whole is finished with a hemstitched ruffle of the same material.

The pillows themselves may first be covered with a slip of sateen to match the color adopted by milady, usually either blue or pink, which shows through the sheer linen cover and accentuates the trimming or embroidery.

Women who do not like ruffles finish the pillows around the edge with a single band of Valenciennes insertion.

Needless to say, these pillows may be ornamented in many ways that would not do if they were intended for young babies, for the roughness of lace and padded embroidery bruises the infant faces.

THE LOVE SONG.

(It is said that the men of today are far less passionate in their love-making than their ancestors.)

I love you, or at least I think
That very possibly I do;
In common honesty I shrink
From statements not precisely true,
But still it's safe to say I'm pretty fond of you.

I cannot swear a mighty oath
To worship blindly till I die;
In fact, I should be rather loath
To form so very rash a tie,
Unless I knew a most substantial reason why.

I shall not, with a valiant air,
Pour out my life-blood for your good,
Nor even boastfully declare
That if I had the chance I would,
Because, to tell the truth, I hardly think I should.

No knightly deeds have I to do,
And no impassioned words to say;
Still, I should like to marry you,
If you will tell me that I may,
And also kindly name the most convenient day.

I can't explain the thing, you know
(They used to tell us Love was blind),
But since it happens to be so,
Forgive my weakness, and be kind.
Or if you're not that way disposed—well, never mind!

YARN VIA SEA GIRT.

No doubt the warm wave at Sea Girt yesterday was largely responsible for the story sent out from that place to a New York newspaper regarding the possibility of a successor being chosen to Governor Fort before the latter's term expires. To make this yarn "go," it was gravely announced that "there is said to be a suspicion that William H. Taft, when elected President, will appoint Governor Fort to the United States Supreme Court bench."

That's all very pretty, of course, if only one has a very short memory. But it was only a short time ago that the Governor declared, and reiterated that declaration, that he had no intention of resigning his office for any other position. He had been elected by the people of New Jersey, he announced, to serve as their chief executive and he intended to fulfill that trust. This, it will be recalled, was when he was being boomed for the Vice-Presidential nomination.

After laying a "basis" for his story, the correspondent trots out State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen as a candidate for Governor Fort's place. In the first place, the Senator is not "an office seeker." In the second, his friends are determined that he stay just where he is. Somerset county has gained fame in the Legislature by having such a commanding figure as its representative in the Senate, and those sober, discerning folk who know the difference between good and poor legislatrs may be depended upon to give him a rousing big vote should he consent to again serve them in the same capacity.

But when Governor Fort's term expires, no worthier man could be chosen as his successor than Joseph Sherman Frelinghuysen.

ACCEPTABLE TO ALL.

"The consent of Ernest R. Ackerman to be a candidate for re-election to the New Jersey Senate from Union county," says the New York Tribune, "will be regarded with sincere satisfaction by the friends of good government in that State, and the words in which that consent is expressed may well suggest a way of establishing complete harmony and co-operation between the New Idea and Regular branches of the Republican party."

So far as Union county is concerned, and for that matter the entire State, there has never been any need of harmony when Mr. Ackerman is considered. As he, himself, says, the Senator is an organization man, and at the same time it might well be added that he always has been and always will be thoroughly acceptable to the "New Idea."

In an annual report, recently issued, the head of one of America's greatest universities holds that the boy entering college with a public school training is much better prepared than his mate who has pursued a course at a private school. Most men who have gone through college know this to be true. It is a great tribute to the American system of free education, a system that has no competitors unfortunately.

It was with the Spirit of '76 that the American marksmen won an easy victory on the Bisley range. How could our team have failed in any contest of the kind when the European nations were its opponents?

Mr. Bryan said immediately after his nomination that he would not be a candidate again if elected, therefore, Mr. Bryan will attempt to saddle himself on his party for a fourth time in 1912.

The only hope the Democrats had of making any semblance of a fight next fall was lost when they failed to name a real statesman, George Gray, of Delaware, at Denver, this morning.

THE FORUM.

Prohibition as an Issue.

The Republican and Democratic voters have held their national convention, put in nomination their candidates and adopted their platform of principles, and in looking over these different platforms one fails to find a single sentence in reference to the one over-shadowing question in American politics, which is today the settlement of the traffic in intoxicating drinks. They have both by their silence consented that the traffic in the bodies and souls of their fellowmen shall be legalized and protected by our laws, and that this so-called Christian government of ours shall still continue to be a co-partner in the business of manufacturing drunkards.

Some time ago one of our churches in conference made this declaration: "No political party has a right to expect or shall it receive the vote of any Christian man, so long as it favors the license system or refuses to put itself on record in an attitude of open hostility to the saloon." Both these parties do favor the license system and have absolutely refused to put themselves on record as hostile to the saloon. There is no chance for a consciencious voter who wishes to register his ballot against this iniquitous business through either one of the old political parties. But let us not despair; there is a better day coming.

On the fifteenth of this month another convention will be held. The convention of the National Prohibition party in the city of Columbus, Ohio. This is conceded by many to be the greatest convention that has been held in years; the greatest that has been, or perhaps will be, held this year by any political party. Not the greatest in point of numbers perhaps, but the greatest because it represents a great moral issue and the only political party that has the courage in this year of our Lord to stand in the defence of a noble and a righteous cause. It must be admitted by every conscientious voter that all other issues or questions that have been presented in the platforms of the two dominant political parties sink into insignificance in comparison with this one great over-whelming issue of the settlement of the legalized traffic in intoxicating brevers ages. So an opportunity will be given to all those who wish to protect the American home can do so by casting a ballot for the candidates of the Prohibition party on the third day of November next. There is a chance to elect our issue this year and also a fighting chance to elect our candidates if all the enemies of the saloon get down to hard work and do the right thing on election day.

Jersey Governor Listens to Open-Air Service at Sea Girt.

Picturesque and impressive was the religious service yesterday morning in front of Governor Fort's cottage at the State Camp at Sea Girt. The visitors came by automobiles, carriages, trolleys, or on foot. Rev. Rudolph E. Brestall, Captain and Chaplain, conducted the service. The Regimental Band furnished the music for the hymns.

The visitors and citizen soldiers listened to the sermon with close attention. The Governor sat on the porch of the cottage. With him were the members of his staff, including Col. Colgate, his personal aide. Guard mount yesterday morning and evening parade yesterday afternoon were the only military duties performed by the regiment yesterday.

CENTRAL RAILROAD PROTESTS.

Tells State Board Keyport Has Not Good Reason for New Grade Crossing.

Trenton, July 13.—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has lodged a complaint with the Board of Railroad Commissioners against the town of Keyport, Monmouth county, charging that the authorities of the town have given notice to the railroad company that they are about to extend Division street across the tracks of the company, and have requested the company to lay crossing planks and construct another grade crossing at that point.

The railroad company contends that a number of streets now cross the tracks in Keyport; that Division street is in a vicinity which is not extensively built up, and that there is no apparent necessity for adding to the danger of highway traffic across the tracks of the company by the construction of another grade crossing.

The board has referred the complaint to teh town authorities, with a request for an answer.

Ceylon College President Talks Before Parliament of Religions.

S. C. Kanaga Rutnam, president of Central College, Colombo, Ceylon, was the speaker at Unity church, Montclair, yesterday in the Parliament of Religions now being held each Sunday morning in that church.

He said that he could get no assistance in this country for his school. The American people spent over $7,000,000 in India each year on their missionaries. If that money was spent in educating the Orients the results would be much greater.

"I brought the manuscript of a book with me to this country which I called 'An Unbiased Opinion of the Christian Religion in India.' I brought it to a publisher, who submitted it to the Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, and the answer came back, 'That book must not be printed.'"

"England," he continued, "is holding the natives of India down with sheckels; just so are the missionaries holding the Hindu down."

May Send Our Warships.

Oyster Bay, July 13.—President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Root held a conference here today and discussed the Venezuela situation at great length. They decided that immediate measures be put in effect to protect American interests there. It is intimated that American warships may be sent to the warring Central American Republic with the hope of being able to awe them into peace.

HIS HEN JUST "STOOD PAT."

Stuck in Concrete, She Lived High and Laid Eggs for Mr. Budd.

Hudson Budd's stationary hen at Chatham is dead after a career of of nearly a year as the only one of that variety in that section of New Jersey. Mr. Budd expected that the hen would live only a short time, and consequently does not feel as badly as he might, since she existed several months beyond the time he allotted to her. She became stationary at the time Mr. Budd laid the new concrete floor in his hennery.

The hen, a fine example of the Brahma variety, wandered into the roost a few hours after the concrete had ben put down and sank ankle deep in the mixture. Next morning the concrete had "set" and the hen was anchored. As it was impossible to get her out, Mr. Budd provided a seat for her. One point that interested chicken fanciers of the section was that the egg-laying abilfty of the hen was not impaired in the least.

Mr. Budd thinks fatty degeneration of the heart finally took his prize "stand-patter" to hen heaven.

FINAL TALK ON THE CREED

Rev. Dr. Herring Explains Meaning of "I Believe in the Life Everlasting."

AN INSTRUCTIVE SERMON.

Preacher Says That "Eternal Life" Might Have Been Preferable to "Life Everlasting."

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, delivered the last of the series of special sermons on "The Apostles Creed," at the morning service, yesterday. His theme was "I Believe in the Life Everlasting," which the divine declared to be man's personal answer to the Lord's greatest revelation, for the dominant teaching of the Gospel is eternal life. Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"'I believe in the life everlasting.' This is man's personal answer to the Lord's greatest revelation, for the dominant teaching of the gospel is eternal life. We are told that the purpose of that most spiritual gospel of the New Testament—the gospel of John is not that men might have a record of all that Jesus did but that men might believe in Christ and by believing have life. This is the great thought in the teaching of Jesus. The gist of Paul's advice to Timothy is: 'Timothy, my own son, lay hold on eternal life which is the real life.'

"There is great appropriateness in the position of this clause at the end of the creed. In the first part we have been looking backward to the work of the Father and the work of the Son; then we have confessed our belief in the present activity of the spirit; now we are looking out into the great future. We are thinking of the untold possibilities of our life. There are sorrows, disappointments, imperfections, failures, and injustice here and we long for a compensating world; for a world that will 'redeem the present world from contempt.' That is just what our Lord and His apostles have promised, for we are told that the afflictions of this world shall work out the eternal weight of glory.

"The last words of Paul give us a beautiful picture of the relation of this world to the eternal world. He says: 'The time of my unmooring is at hand.' The picture that I see is that of a vessel on the stays awaiting completion; finally the great day comes and the vessel is launched. From this time on, it lives in another element, the element for which it was made. Death to Paul was like the launching of the vessel for which through all his life he was being prepared. The day of one's death is the day really of his birth into the life that is 'life indeed.'

"I wish that the English version of the creed had read e'ternal life' instead of 'everlasting life,' for that is the more comprehensive expression and the word that used in the Greek and Latin originals of the creed. In 'everlasting' there is simply the thought of time; but in the word 'eternal' there is something more. The eternal is really that which 'transcends and supersedes time.'

"Our Lord defines eternal life in this way, 'This is the eternal life that they should know Thee, the only true God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ.' Eternal life is not simply an everlasting life. It is a life in God; it is a life of fellowship with God. You are conscious of living in a material world. You know what touch with that world means; but are you conscious of living in an eternal world? Do you believe that God is round about you? Such an experience of God is your privilege; for the Scripture is very positive in saying that he that believeth in Christ hath eternal life, and eternal life, as we have just learned, is fellowship with God. We are living in two worlds at the same time; a world of sense, of things seen, of things that are temporal, and in a world which is spiritual, of things unseen, of things that are eternal. The apostle Paul was buffeted in this world of sense as he went about preaching the good news of the kingdom; but he kept at it because he realized, at the same time, that he had his citizenship in heaven. If eternal life is, in its essence, a life of fellowship with God; eternal punishment must be the result of living out of fellowship with God.

"To use an illustration of R. J. Campbell.

"A man spends his life in the pursuit of making money. His God is money. He does not believe that conscience or religion has any right to invade his business life. He believes less and less in conscience. It seems dead and the community suffers as a consequence. Finally, he leaps overboard. Something then did trouble him. There was some hell in his soul and why? Because he was not living in God. Therefore his eternal punishment began in this life. He was out of harmony with God.

"Another man despises everything Christian. Nothing religious touches his heart. No sermon ever pierces his vanity. No appeal reaches his better nature. You think he will repent at death. No. He dies just as he has lived. He passes out into the other life, out of harmnoy with God and his higher nature; then 'the cumulative penalty of the way he has been living will come home to him, and death will be the beginning of his self discovery.'

"I believe then in the life eternal which to me means the ageless life; a life that will be forever upward and onward; but I believe in more than that. I believe in the life that is in harmony and fellowship with God which begins here and now. I am building something now that is to live in another element. What is the character of the stuff I am putting in this vessel? I find that the Scripture says more about heaven as character than heaven as a place. It will make little difference as to the place of heaven if I have not the character to enjoy it. I enjoy what I have the power of enjoying. Eternal life is what then? Time? Everlastingness? No. It is a life with God. Is that not character? There are many things we shall not take to heaven. We shall take, however, our characters and capacities. These will enable us to enjoy the glories of that world. Shall those out of fellowship with God here be always out of fellowship with God? I can hardly believe that any human soul shall forever refuse the invitation of divine love. I read, too, that God will sum up all things in Christ, and through Him, reconcile all things unto Himself, whether things upon the earth, or things in the heavens. But the message for me today is this: Better a less successful life here as men count success, than a life that injures our fellowship with God; than such conduct as deprives us of the eternal life."

THREE HURT IN RIOT CAUSED BY AN INSULT

In a riotous demonstration Saturday night one man was shot and another badly stabbed at Montclair. The victims, Henry Hoffer and A. W. Herburt, are at the Mountainside Hospital in that place. Both are severely wounded, but will recover. Joseph Miller, who is accused of being the ringleader in the riot, is locked up at police headquarters there. Miller is also severely cut and slashed with a knife.

The trouble began between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Edward McDonald were walking along Bloomfield avenue toward their home when they were accosted by a crowd of intoxicated men, who insulted Mrs. McDonald. The woman's husband resented the language of the men, who became threatening. McDonald and his wife retreated to their home, and the crowd followed and stoned the house and fired several shots at the windows. A crowd of people who were returning from Verona Lake, a nearby temperance resort, were attracted by the distubance, and Mr. McDonald's assailants retreated down Bloomfield avenue. Mr. McDonald followed, and near the lake a general fight took place on the trolley road, the fighting holding up the trolley cars, whose passengers were in danger from the shots that were fired and the stones that were hurled through the air by the mob. By the time Constable Demarest and a posse of citizens arrived a half dozen men had been injured and blood was flowing freely. Miller, McDonald and three others were arrested.

Herbrt, who is suffering from several stab wounds, was an innocent spectator. Hoffer is shot in the back and is severely battered. At a preliminary hearing all of the prisoners except Miller were released on their own recognizance.

RESIGNS SOMERVILLE PULPIT.

Rev. Dr. Griffen Read Quits Reformed Congregation.

At the services yesterday evening in the Second Reformed church in Somerville, Rev. Dr. Edward Griffen Read tendered his resignation from the pastorate, after a service of twenty-six years. He came to New Jersey from Bennington, Vt., and has been for a quarter of a century one of the most popular ministers in Somerset county. Dr. Read declared he wished to take a long rest and that his health is somewhat impaired.

Rev. Dr. Read married a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. P. M. Doolittle, pastor for fifty years of the Reformed church at North Branch. He had traveled extensively and has visited the Holy Land, and many other places of interest abroad.

The resignation came as a big surprise to the majority of his large congregation and regret was expressed by all.

A meeting of consistory will take place on Thursday evening, when action on the resignation will be taken. Dr. Read's resignation takes effect October 1. He was formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church at Westfield.

Trolley and Auto Collide.

An automobile and trolley car No. 1910 of the Fourth street line were in collision at Plainfield avenue and Fourth street, at 6:30 o'clock, yesterday morning, but so far as can be learned neither the car or auto was damaged to any extent, neither was any one injured. No report of the accident was made to the police and as far as known there has been no complaint.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The pupils of Miss Emma Tappen gave a musicale on Saturday evening at Miss Tappen's home, in New Durham. There were a large number of friends present, all of whom were delighted at the progress that the pupils had made. Those who took part in the program were Miss Edna Smith, Laura Roberts, Mae Titus, Mary Smith, May Tappen, Margaret Randolph, Grace Dayton.

William Clausen anr his son Harvey, are visiting the fishing banks at Boynton two or three times a week, and have on several occasions made a record catch for the saeson. On Saturday they landed fourteen fine weakfish between them, and were again the most successful fishermen at the beach.

Edward Norman has returned from a stay with his grandparents at South River.

Nellie Van Ness, of Tottenville, spent Sunday with Mrs. Oscar Thorne.

Earl Darlington is back from a visit to his mother in New York.

A QUEER QUINTET.

The photographing of spoken words has been accomplished for some time, but the signs obtained on the sensitive ribbon have not always proved perfectly clear, nor has it been possible to read the traced marks. Vowels and diphthongs spoken in front of a microphone connected with an extremely sensitive Blondel oscillograph are depicted on a photographic plate by curves, each sound giving a different curve. "By means of this method," Dr. Devaux-Charbonnell says, "it wil in time be possible to read a telephone message sent when the receiver is not present to take it." The apparatus, placed in front of the telephone, wil photograph the words, and the photographsigns will be read as shorthand is. The voices of criminals will be photographically stenographed, thus giving an additional means of identification, which with the impression of the fingertips and anthropometry should make identification absolutely certain.

A jewel was lost by a rich Komati in Mysore, India. It was found in the possession of a Mohammedan. Two policeman of the station seized it from him and pledged it and obtained a loan from a local merchant. Then another policeman was asked to search the house of the merchant, and before the search was effected the merchant gave it to him with a present as a bribe not to haul him up before the court. Between the three policemen a sum of about 60 rupees was looted from one or the other of the dishonest and avaricious merchants. Then arose a split among these policemen and their comrades about the division of the spoils, and they are now blinking as to what course to adopt and whom to charge and what offense to charge him with. The people are losing all confidence in these men.

According to recent experiments by Stanilas Tetard, a widely known French agriculturist, wheat and other cereals can be protected against the ravages of crows, which are particularly fond of grain when its sprouts are just pushing above the ground, by treating the seeds before they are s own with a mixture of coal tar, petroleum and phenic acid. This treatment, which delays growth of the seed for a day or two, but causes no damage, imparts an odor which is insufferable to the crows, but which disappears after the sprouts have attained a larger growth, when they are no longer subject to attack.

Elfego Baca owns and runs a weekly paper (published in the Spanish language) in New Mexico. He also practises law. He seems to be as free from bashfulness as Editor Bryan is. His paper recently informed its home readers that "the energetic, accomplished and gentlemanly advocate, Mr. Elfego Baca," was detained at Socorro by law business. It continued: "This intelligent advocate, who by his correct standards and sound judgment in his attention to affairs as to which he is consulted in judicial procedure or which he takes in charge, as well as by his prestige and popularity which he enjoys through his integrity and the confidence with which business is entrusted to him, has known how to capture the esteem of all social classes, not only in the place of his residence, but in other pueblos of the territory of New Mexico and El Paso, Tex. We consider it just to give to Caesar that which belongs to Caesar."

It is surprising to strangers to find Egyptian families occupying some of the tombs which have been excavated and abandoned. It seems uncanny to see babies playing cheerfully about the doors of the tomb houses and to watch chickens running in and out as they do at the mud dwellings. When questioned about the tombs a dragoman said that those occupied as homes had been tombs of ordinary citizens and were of no value as show places for tourists. As some of them have several rooms extending into the rock, and as they are cool in the hottest days of summer and warm in the cool days of winter, they are altogether desirables as homes. The Egyptians do not share the horror of dead bodies felt by Europeans. Children run about with pieces of mummies, and if they cannot dispose of them to tourists they play with them. A mummified foot or hand is so common in Luxor that one may be purchased for a few cents.

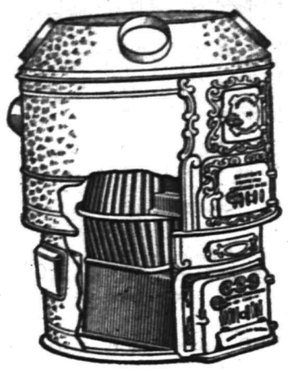
Alcohol a Splendid Cleanser.

Denatured alcohol, while poisonous, is less injurious for cleaning purposes than gasoline. It is best to put the alcohol in an earthen vessel and add a little ammonia to soften it. The ammonia aids greatly in cleaning gthe article. If one has rubber gloves it is best to wear them while washing the silk or cotton fabrics.

The alcohol is used in the great manufacturing firms for giving that excellent finish that we see on even cheap silks, consequently it cannot be looked upon as anything injurious for cleansing purposes. Use it cautiously on colored goods, always testing it before applying to a whole garment, for often it will prove a solvent for some dyes, though making others a fast color.

For cleaning delicate lace, veils or shawls the preparation is recommended. One must get completely denatured alcohol, as there are two kinds, one inferior to the other. It is reasonably cheap.

Did You Burn Too Much Coal?



It's cheaper to have a good furnace, to say nothing of the comfort. The best furnace is the

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

It has the only fire pot that furnishes perfect combustion, burns all the coal cleanly, without clinkers or clogging, and at the same time saves coal and labor. Look up a Boynton dealer and ask him to explain.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all those tracts or parcels of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey:

The First Tract—Beginning at a stone in the middle of Third street and corner of a lot recently conveyed to Edgar T. Randolph; thence with the middle of Third street northeasterly fifty (50) feet to a stone and corner of other lands of said Westervelt; thence southerly and parallel with said Randolph's line one hundred and thirty-three (133) feet, more or less, to a stone in the line of lands of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey; thence along said company's line southwesterly fifty (50) feet, more or less, to a stone and said Randolph's corner; thence northwesterly along his line on hundred and thirty-seven (137) feet, more or less, to the beginning. Being lot No. twelve, in deed from Thomas Forsyth, Sheriff of Union county, to said Job M. Winans, dated June 6, 1883, and recorded in book 162 of deeds for Union county, on pages 221, etc., and being the second lot described in a certain deed of quit-claim made by Meeker Wood and Susan Wood, his wife, to said Job M. Winans, dated June 21, 1888, and recorded in book 199 of deeds for Union county, on pages 327, etc.

The Second Tract—Beginning at a stake in the southeasterly side of lands conveyed by the parties of the first part to Peter Cassidy, by deed dated November 4, 1887, said point being one hundred and eighteen (118) feet, more or less, southeasterly from the easterly side of Third street; thence northeasterly along rear of lands of now or formerly Burdick and Jeannette Peterson ninety (90) feet, more or less; thence southeasterly ninety-five and fifty-five one-hundredths (95.55) feet, more or less, to lands conveyed by the parties of the first part to James Amerman by deed dated September 21, 1889; thence southwesterly along said lands of said Amerman twenty-six and twenty-three one-hundredths (26.23) feet to a stake and westerly corner of said Amerman; thence sotheasterly still along said Amerman's land five (5) feet, more or less, to the northerly corner of lands conveyed by the parties of the first part to Calvin Neighbor by deed dated February 26, 1890; thence southwesterly along said lands of said Neighbor and also lands conveyed by the parties of the first part to William H. Connett by deed dated January 24, 1889, and lands conveyed by the parties of the first part to Catherine McGinley by deed dated January 5, 1889, eighty (80) feet, more or less, to a point; thence northwesterly sixty-three (63) feet, more or less, to the place of beginning.

Being part of the premises conveyed by the Central Jersey Railroad Company of New Jersey to the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company by deed dated January 1, 1872, and recorded in the Clerk's office of Union county February 27, 1872, in book 66 of deeds for said county, pages 185, etc. Also by deed in part from the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey to the Central Jersey Land Improvement Company by deed dated August 25, 1874, and recorded in the Clerk's office of Union county on February 10, 1875, in book 95 of deeds of said county, pages 520, etc.

MAKING MATRIMONY PLEASANT

At a wedding in Greater New York the other day the guests engaged in the usual pleasantry of throwing rice at the newly married couple upon their departure. The bride and groom received this invocation to the goddess of good fotune in the proper spirit of appreciation, but unfortunately some of the rice kernels lodged in the bridegroom's ear, immediately causing intense pain, which increased until it became necessary for the bridal journey to be postponed while the sufferer was given medical attention. An operation was performed and the intruding rice was removed from the man's ear, and then the tour was started. The bridegroom in this case was fortunate. He might have been hit in the head with an old shoe. He might have been star performer in a runaway accident as the horses of the bridal chariot became frightened at the joyous chees of the assembled multitude or at the floating ribbons fastened to their harness by the merrymakers. Weddings nowadays are no light and tame affairs. They have reverted to the ancient type of barbaric force and valor, when the bridegroom won his bride by the exercise of the big stick. As long as the custom of speeding a bridal couple with ribald cneers and flying missiles continues accidents will happen, and bridegrooms will be injured and possibly slain in the melee. The other day a bride was dragged a square by horses that had been frightened by a shoe flung at her by an unskillful hand as she was about to enter the carriage. This was a triumph of the joke matrimonial. Occasionally the couple will escape persecution by sneaking out the back way or by leaving the premises in disguise. But up-to-date friends are on to most of these little tricks, and rarely do the intended victims run the gauntlet without paying the full penalty of their folly. And yet despite such handicaps the marriage institution is maintained and the license clerks are kept working overtime.

OF CASUAL CONCERN.

In Paris it is reported that last year close upon 50,000 horses were killed for food, this showing an increase of 5,000 horses on the figures of the previous year. It would appear, however, that the consumers of horseflesh are to be found chiefly among the poor people, who are not able to pay the higher prices for beef or mutton.

Automatic savings banks on the principle of the penny-in-the-slot machines have been installed in all the Berlin schools. The children receive numbered counters in return for the coins dropped in. When they have collected ten of these counters they take them to the schoolmaster, who presents them with savings bank books, in which the amounts are entered.

The Baltimore Sun states that the flag that floated over Fort McHenry and inspired Francis Scott Key to his immortal national hymn was made by Mrs. John Pickersgill in the old house at the northwest corner of Pratt and Albemarle streets, Baltimore. Three fragments of the flag which were torn from the old banner by the shells that whistled by it in the memorable engagement are still preserved, and are in possession of the Maryland Historical Society.

Many old houses in Holland have a special door which is never opened save on two occasions—when there is a marriage or a death in the family. The bride and bridegroom enter by this door; and it is then nailed or barred up until a death occurs, when it is opened and the body is removed by this exit.

Chloral, morphia and the poppy must look to their laurels as aids to "nature's sweet restorer," for, according to a French contemporary, an invention promises to produce sleep on stormy or hot nights and to effectually banish insomnia. The invention is a musical bed. The subject takes his rest, and with his foot releases a spring which sets a musical box in motion. The apparatus begins to grind out sweet lullabies and melodies, and in a short time the patient is in the arms of sleep.

PRETTY AND ALSO DURABLE.

Having thought of practically every material on the market for a plain street dress, a careful buyer recently selected a navy plaid rajah. Now the material alone is something to be recommended because it is very durable, has just enough body to it to make up nicely, and the color is splendid, for navy blue with a touch of white is a combination suited to most persons.

The dress itself was noticeably plain, with a narrow, deep square yoke and very high collar of embroidered white net. The sleeves were long, the silk portion three-quarter length, with the fullness tucked on top to fit almost closely below the elbow.

Below the sleeves were lace wristlets with points reaching far down upon the back of the hands. A narrow girdle of the dress material was cut on the bias and pleated.

It Usually Does.

"No," said Wiseman, "I've decided never to accept friendly advice any more."

"Why not?" asked Dudely. "It doesn't cost you anything."

"Well, I've found that it usually costs me my friend."—Philadelphia Press.

HEARTS and MASKS

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS MERRILL CO

BY HAROLD MACGRATH
AUTHOR OF THE MAN ON THE BOX ETC.

CHAPTER I.

It all depends upon the manner of your entrance to the Castle of Adventure. One does not have to scale its beetling parapets or assault its scarps and frowning bastions; neither is one obliged to force with clamor and blaring trumpets and glittering gorgets the drawbridge and portcullis. Rather the pathway lies through one of those many little doors, obscure, yet easily accessible, latchless and boltless, to which the average person gives no particular attention, and yet which invariably lead to the very heart of this Castle Delectable. The whimsical chatelaine of this enchanted keep is a shy goddess. Circumspection has no part in her affairs, nor caution, nor practicality; nor does her eye linger upon the dullard and the blunderer. Imagination solves the secret riddle, and wit is the guide that leads the seeker through the winding, bewildering labyrinths.

And there is something in being idle, too!

If I had not gone idly into Mouquin's cellar for dinner that night, I should have missed the most engaging adventure that ever fell to my lot. It is second nature for me to be guided by impulse rather than by reason; reason is always so square-toed and impulse is always so alluring. You will find that nearly all the great captains were and are creatures of impulse; nothing brilliant is ever achieved by calculation. All this is not to say that I am a great captain; it is offered only to inform you that I am often impulsive.

A Times, four days old; and if I hadn't fallen upon it to pass the twenty-odd minutes between my order and the service of it, I shouldn't have made the acquaintance of the police in that pretty little suburb over in New Jersey; nor should I have met the enchanting Blue Domino; nor would fate have written Kismet. The clairvoyant never has any fun in this cycle; he has no surprises.

I had been away from New York for several weeks, and had returned only that afternoon. Thus, the spirit of unrest acquired by travel was still upon me. It was nearly holiday week, and those congenial friends I might have called upon, to while away the evening, were either busily occupied with shopping or were out of town; and I determined not to go to the club and be bored by some indifferent billiard player. I would dine quietly, listen to some light music, and then go to the theater. I was searching the theatrical amusements, when the society column indifferently attacked my eye. I do not know why it is, but I have a wholesome contempt for the so-called society columns of the daily newspaper in New York. Mayhap, it is because I do not belong.

I read this paragraph with a shrug, and that one with a smirk. I was in no manner surprised at the announcement that Miss High-Culture was going to wed the Duke of Impecune; I had always been certain this girl would do some such fool thing. That Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds was giving a farewell dinner at the Waldorf, prior to her departure to Europe, interested my curiosity not in the least degree. It would be all the same to me if she never came back. None of the wishy-washy tittle-tattle interested me, in fact. There was only one little six-line paragraph that really caught me. On Friday night (that is to say, the night of my adventures in Blankshire), the Hunt Club was to give a charity masquerade dance. This grasped my adventurous spirit by the throat and refused to let go.

The atmosphere surrounding the paragraph was spirituous with enchantment. There was a genuine novelty about this dance. Two packs of playing cards had been sent out as tickets; one pack to the ladies and one to the gentlemen. Charming idea, wasn't it? These cards were to be shown at the door, together with ten dollars, but were to be retained by the recipients till two o'clock (supper time), at which moment everybody was to unmask and take his partner, who held the corresponding card, in to supper. Its newness strongly appealed to me. I found myself reading the paragraph over and over.

By Jove, what an inspiration!

I knew the Blankshire Hunt Club, with its colonial architecture, its great ball room, its quaint fireplaces, its stables and sheds, and the fame of its chef. It was one of those great country clubs that keep open house the year round. It stood back from the sea about four miles and was within five miles of the village. There was a fine course inland, a cross-country going of not less than twenty miles, a shooting-box, and excellent golf links. In the winter it was cozy; in the summer it was ideal.

I was intimately acquainted with the club's M. F. H., Teddy Hamilton. We had done the Paris-Berlin run in my racing car the summer before. If I hadn't known him so well, I might still have been in durance vile, next door to jail, or securely inside. I had frequently dined with him at the club during the summer, and he had offered to put me up; but as I knew no one intimately but himself, I explained the futility of such action. Besides, my horse wasn't a hunter; and I was riding him less and less. It is no pleasure to go "parking" along the bridle-paths of Central Park. For myself, I want a hill country and something like forty miles, straight away; that's riding.

The fact that I knew no one but Teddy added zest to the inspiration which had seized me. For I determined to attend that dance, happen what might. It would be vastly more entertaining than a possibly dull theatrical performance. (It was!)

I called for a messenger and dispatched him to the nearest drug store for a pack of playing cards; and while I waited for his return I casually glanced at the other diners. At my table—one of those long marble-topped affairs by the wall—there was an old man reading a paper, and the handsomest girl I had set eyes upon in a month of moons. Sometimes the word handsome seems an inferior adjective. She was beautiful, and her half-hidden eyes told me that she was anywhere but at Mouquin's. What a head of hair! Fine as a spider's web, and the dazzling yellow of a wheat field in a sun shower! The irregularity of her features made them all the more interesting. I was an artist in an amateur way, and I mentally painted in that head against a Rubens background. The return of the messenger brought me back to earth; for I confess that my imagination had already leaped far into the future, and this girl across the way was nebulously connected with it.

I took the pack of cards, ripped off the covering, tossed aside the joker (though, really, I ought to have retained it!) and began shuffling the shiny pasteboards. I dare say that those around me sat up and took notice. It was by no means a common sight to see a man gravely shuffling a pack of cards in a public restaurant. Nobody interfered, doubtless because nobody knew exactly what to do in the face of such an act, for which no adequate laws had been provided. A waiter stood solemnly at the end of the table, scratching his chin thoughtfully, wondering whether he should report this peculiarity of constitution and susceptibility occasioning certain peculiarities of effect from impress of extraneous influences (vide Webster), synonymous with idiocrasy and known as idiosyncrasy. It was quite possible that I was the first man to establish such a precedent in Monsieur Mouquin's restaurant. Thus, I aroused only passive curiosity.

From the corner of my eye I observed the old gentleman opposite. He was peering over the top of his paper, and I could see by the glitter in his eye that he was a confirmed player of solitaire. The girl, however, still appeared to be in a dreaming state. I have no doubt every one who saw me thought that anarchy was abroad again, or that Sherlock Holmes had entered into his third incarnation.

Finally I squared the pack, took a long breath, and cut. I turned up the card. It was the ten-spot of hearts. I considered this most propitious, hearts being my long suit in everything but love,—love having not yet crossed my path. I put the card in my wallet, and was about to toss the rest of the pack under the table, when a woman's voice stayed my hand.

"Don't throw them away. Tell my fortune first."

I looked up, not a little surprised. It was the beautiful young girl who had spoken. She was leaning on her elbows, her chin propped in her palms, and the light in her gray chatoyant eyes was wholly innocent and mischievous. In Monsieur Mouquin's cellar people are rather Bohemian, not to say friendly; for it is the rendezvous of artists, literary men and journalists,—a clan that holds formality in contempt.

It Was the Ten of Hearts.

"Tell your fortune?" I repeated, parrot-like.

"Yes."

"Your mirror can tell that more accurately than I can," I replied with a frank glance of admiration.

She drew her shoulders together and dropped them. "I spoke to you, sir, because I believed you wouldn't say anything so commonplace as that. When one sees a man soberly shuffling a pack of cards in a place like this, one naturally expects originality."

"Well, perhaps you caught me off my guard,"—humbly. "I am original. Did you ever before witness this performance in a public restaurant?"—making the cards purr.

"I can not say I have,"—amused.

"Well, no more have I!"

"Why, then do you do it?"—with renewed interest.

"Shall I tell your fortune?"

"Not now. I had much rather you would tell me the meaning of this play."

I leaned toward her and whispered mysteriously: "The truth is, I belong to a secret society, and I was cutting the cards to see whether or not I should blow up the postoffice to-night or the police station. You mustn't tell anybody."

"Oh!" She started back from the table. "You do not look it," she added suddenly.

"I know it; appearances are so deceptive," said I sadly.

Then the old man laughed, and the girl laughed, and I laughed; and I wasn't quite sure that the grave waiter did not crack the ghost of a smile—in relief.

"And what, may I ask, was the fatal card?" inquired the old man, folding his paper.

"The ace of spades; we always choose that gloomy card in secret societies. There is something deadly and suggestive about it," I answered morbidly.

"Indeed."

"Yes. Ah, if only you knew the terrible life we lead, we who conspire! Every day brings forth some galling disappointment. We push a king off into the dark, and another rises immediately in his place. Futility, futility everywhere! If only there were some way of dynamiting habit and custom! I am a Russian; all my family are perishing in Siberian mines,"—dismally.

"Fudge!" said the girl.

"Tommy-rot!" said the amiable old gentleman.

"Uncle, his hair is too short for an anarchist."

"And his collar too immaculate." (So the old gentleman was this charming creature's uncle!)

"We are obliged to disguise ourselves at times," I explained. "The police are always meddling. It is discouraging."

"You have some purpose, humorous or serious," said the girl shrewdly. "A man does not bring a pack of cards—"

"I didn't bring them; I sent out for them."

"—bring a pack of cards here simply to attract attention," she continued tranquilly.

"Perhaps I am a prestidigitator in a popular dime museum," I suggested, willing to help her out, "and am doing a little advertising."

"Now, that has a plausible sound," she admitted, folding her hands under her chin. "It must be an interesting life. Presto—change! and all that."

"Oh, I find it rather monotonous in the winter; but in the summer it is fine. Then I wander about the summer resorts and give exhibitions."

"You will pardon my niece," interpolated the old gentleman, coughing a bit nervously. "If she annoys you—"

"Uncle!"—reproachfully.

"Heaven forfend!" I exclaimed eagerly. "There is a charm in doing unconventional things; and most people do not realize it, and are stupid."

"Thank you, sir," said the girl, smiling. She was evidently enjoying herself; so was I, for that matter. "Do a trick for me," she commanded presently.

I smiled weakly. I couldn't have done a trick with the cards,—not if my life had depended upon it. But I rather neatly extricated myself from the trap.

"I never do any tricks out of business hours."

"Uncle, give the gentleman ten cents; I want to see him do a sleight-of-hand trick."

Her uncle, readily entering into the spirit of the affair, dived into a pocket and produced the piece of silver. It looked as if I were caught.

"There! this may make it worth your while," the girl said, shoving the coin in my direction.

But again I managed to slide under; I was not to be caught.

"It is my regret to say,"—frowning slightly, "that regularity in my business is everything. It wants half an hour for my turn to come on. If I tried a trick out of turn, I might foozle and lose prestige. And besides, I depend so much upon the professor and his introductory note: 'Ladies and gents, permit me to introduce the world-renowned Signor Fantoccini, whose marvelous tricks have long puzzled all the crowned heads of Europe—'"

"Fantoccini," — musingly. "That's Italian for puppet show."

"I know it, but the dime museum visitors do not. It makes a fine impression."

She laughed and slid the dime back to her uncle.

"I'm afraid you are an impostor," she said.

"I'm afraid so, too," I confessed, laughing.

Then the comedy came to an end by the appearance of our separate orders. I threw aside the cards and proceeded to attack my dinner, for I was hungry. From time to time I caught vague fragments of conversation between the girl and her uncle.

"It's a fool idea," mumbled the old gentleman; "you will get into some trouble or other."

"That doesn't matter. It will be like a vacation,—a flash of old Rome, where I wish I were at this very moment. I am determined."

Clinton Avenue Defeats Somerset Boys in a Great Exhibition.

CLIF RANDOLPH'S GREAT WORK.

Plainfield Pitcher Fans Eleven Men and Is Hit Only Thrice—The Game In Detail.

Fandom enjoyed a treat on Saturday when the Clinton Avenues and West Ends, of Somerville, met at Crescent Oval. It was a great contest in which the Plainfield boys came out victorious by a score of 3 to 1. the same result as the first game between the teams a few weeks ago. There was not an argument or kick throughout the afternoon to mar the pleasure of the game, the features of which were brilliant fielding and sharp, clean hitting in which the locals excelled. Manager Conklin's aggregation played the best they knew how and made every effort to win, but the gilt-edged work of Clifford Randolph, as well as the team behind him, was too much for them to overcome.

Randolph was in prime condition, as usual, and in addition to fanning eleven batsmen, he allowed his opponents but three hits. Rightfully, Somerville should have been shutout, for it was a wild pitch by Randolph, sending the ball under the bleachers, when a man was on base, presented the visitors with their only tally. The infield was a veritable stonewall, while nothing escaped in the outer-garden.

"Flick" Luyster, who lately pitched in several minor leagues, was on the firing line for Somerville, with Bruggey, of Elizabeth, to hold him. They worked well together, but the Plainfield boys found "Flick" for ten hits, Barnes, B. Martin and Randolph eaching getting two, and all of the other members of the team but Gilman, O'Loughlin and Moffett had one each. The contest attracted the biggest crowd of the season to the Oval including a host of fans from Somerville. There was noticed in the crowd some of Plainfield's oldest fans, who have not attended a game in many a moon and they were surprised at the exhibition given by the Clinton Avenues.

The locals started in early to make good and in the first inning they got one run, through a two-base hit by Brit Martin, a single by Emery and an error by Wilcox. In the second inning Frech got a hit, reaching first, and after Randolph had fanned two men, he had a wild pitch which sent him home with the lone tally. After tat the teams settled down and there was no more scoring until the seventh inning, when Randolph started off the inning with a single. Barnes did likewise and Brit Martin was right there with a second two-bagger, which brought the pitcher and first baseman over the home plate, amid te wild cheers of the crowd. There was nothing doing after that for either side and the contest ended with a score 3 to 1.

With the exception of two poorly-judged flies in centre field by Higgins, Somerville put up a snappy fast game, and they made many friends by clever work in which Frech and Grimes excelled for the infield. The ability of the Plainfield team to connect with Luyster at the proper time gave them a well-earned victory and the fact that all three runs were earned through clean hitting tells the story. It is quite likely that a series of three more games will be arranged between these teams.

A feature enjoyd during the afternoon was the concert by the Liberty Band. They played before the contest and between the innings, keeping the crowd in good humor. The score:

Immediately following the game between the Clinton Avenues and Somerville, a second contest was played by the Mono F. C. and the Highland A. C., in which the latter club won by a score of 5 to 4. A large part of the crowd remained for this game. Both Eddie Conshay and "Hub" Conover were in good form, "Hub" allowing three hits and Conshay seven. During the contest the Highlands pulled off three double plays, shutting out their opponents when they were dangerous. The score by innings:

SCOTCH PLAINS DEFEATS NEWARK'S KNICKERBOCKER

The Scotch Plains team scored another victory on Saturday, when it defeated the Knickerbocker A. C., of Newark, by a score of 4 to 2. Hits by Flannery, J. Albert, Frentz and H. Albert in succession in the eighth inning made the contest safe for the home team, bringing two runs over the plate. Weiner struck out five men, and Jomei fanned the same number. The contest was an exciting one from start to finish and was witnessed by a large crowd. The score:

Ball Game Ends in Dispute.

After the South Plainfield and St. Mary's teams played five innings on Hope Common, Saturday afternoon, Manager Peter McDonough, of the former team, claims that the opposing club refused to continue on the grounds that it had been agreed to play only five innings. The score then stood 11 to 3 in favor of South Plainfield. Manager McDonough denies absolutely that he consented to play five innings. He says he suggested that the game be continued on a nearbi field, it being claimed by the manager of St. Mary's team that another club wanted to use the field. Manager McDonough declares that the opposing team should forfeit the game to his club.

Whitehouse Team Defeated.

After winning five straight games the Whitehouse Station A. A. was defeated Saturday afternoon at that place by the Cranfords, the score being 6 to 1. The contest was an exciting one for a few innings, after which the visiting team succeeded in scoring enough runs to put the game on ice, mainly through the errors of the home team. The score by innings:

Cranford .....0 0 2 1 0 0 2 1 0—6

PLAINFIELD TIES NEWARK

By Defeating Elizabeth, Local Team Makes Big Gain in State Y.M.C.A. Contest.

THE SCORE TWELVE TO TWO.

Plainfield Has Won Five Games and Lost One—Elizabeth's Poor Showing.

As a result of the game on Saturday between the Plainfield and Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. teams at Elizabeth, in which the local boys defeated the county seat aggregation by a score of 12 to 3, Plainfield and Newark are now tie for first place in the State Association League, each club having won five games and lost one. The Elizabeth boys played a miserable game, their opponents being able to score at will and gathering eleven hits from Gorman and Jones, while Jim Scott held the opposing batsmen to six hits.

Despite the fact that Elizabeth showed up in poor form, the Plainfield boys put up a snappy, fast game and displayed championship form. The contest was witnessed by a good sized crowd, but the home supporters of the clug found little to cheer for throughout the game. The score:

KICKERS' HANDICAP AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

While there was a large field out at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, the only event on the course was a kickers' handicap. A great many contested for honors, but only a few returned their scores. In an event of this kind each contestant picks his own handicap, while the Golf committee picks the selected score and the one returning that score or the one nearest to it, gets the cup. The selected score was 85, and J. R. Grierson came nearest to it with an 83 net.

The best scores posted in this play follow:

R. S. Rowland, 93, 15-78; C. B. Morgan, 85, 6-79; A. L. Wills, 91, 11-80; S. H. Patterson, 90, 9-81; B. M. Opp, 122, 41-81; E. B. Shoemaker, 92, 10-82; J. R. Grierson, 98, 15-83.

From now on until fall there will be a different event at the club each Saturday, the one scheduled for next Saturday being a bogey handicap. In the fall the members will begin play for the Fall Handicap cups, Classes A and B.

The social features at the clubhouse Saturday were greatly enjoyed by a large number of members and friends. The new arrangement in tre restaurant was in effect and all were much pleased with the luncheons and dinners. In the evening many remained for the dinner dance.

Saturday Ball Games.

The Harrison A. C. defeated the Lincoln A. C., Saturday, by a score of 6 to 4. Reinman and Perry were the battery for the winning team. The Crescents also defeated the Johnston Avenue team by a score of 13 to 12. Pasch and Gunning were in the points for the Crescents.

—Philip Braunstein, of Monroe avenue, has returned home from a business trip throughout the West.

MISS SHREVE WINS THE GREEN COMMITTEE CUP

Miss Harriet R. Shreve was on Saturday declared the winner of the Green committee cup, women's competition, nine holes, at the Park Golf Club, the play ending at that time. She had 9½ points. Miss Grace TenEyck finished second with 7 points, Mrs. F. W. Jones was third with 6 points, while Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux was next with 5½ points and Miss May Shreve last with 3 points.

In the final play for the cup, there was a tie between Miss Loizeaux and Grace TenEyek, each returning a net score of 51. The three best scores:

Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 51, 0-51; Miss Grace TenEyck, 71, 20-51; Miss Harriet Shreve, 63, 10-53.

The weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club trophies brought out a large field. The point winners for the President's cup, handicap event, were E. E. Gano, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and R. V. Carpenter, while for the club trophy, scratch event, E. E. Gano, W. R. Faber and Dr. H. K. Carroll won the points. The scores:

E. E. Gano, 90, 9-81; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 97, 13-84; R. V. Carpenter, 106, 20-86; Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux, 104, 17-87; A. W. Kenworthy, 99, 12-87; W. R. Faber, 94, 7-87; J. B. Betts, 111, 23-88; Dr. H. K. Carrolle, 96, 7-89; Leon R. Thurlow, 106, 9-97; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 108, 10-98; W. V. Byard, 112, 9-103.

Misses Wildey Lose at Tennis.

One of the best of the final competitions in tennis and Englewood Field Club on Saturday, was that in which Miss Carrie B. Neely and the English girl, Miss Clare Cassell, won in the women's doubltes. This match was filled with flashes of brilliant racket work, and the fast driving of the women marked a new departure in this feature of the American women's game. The pair defeated Miss Natalie Wildey and Miss Edna Wildey, recent winners of the metropolitan championship, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Finals In Tennis Tournament.

Monroe Long and Edwin Daniel defeated Vaughn McGee and William Barlow, in the finals, men's doubles, tennis tournament at the Park Club, Saturday.

PERSONAL.

George H. Bachelor, of West Seventh street, has been spending a few days at Portland, Maine.

Miss Cornelia Lounsbury, a graduate of '08 class of Plainfield High School, will enter Swarthmoor College in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Campbell, of New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Martin, of Duer street. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Martin are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Runyon, of East Front street, leave tonight for two weeks' vacation which they will spend in the mountains of North Carolina.

Among the Sunday-school teachers of this city who have been in attendance at the summer school in Asbury Park is Miss May Serrell, of Arlington avenue.

Registered at the week-end at Wendell Hotel, Pittsfield, Mass., among automobile tourists in the Berkshires, were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Young and Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Welch, of Westfield, en route to Albany.

Choir Boys Off For Camp.

The choir of the Church of the Holy Cross, comprising about twenty boys, left today for Shushan, N. Y., where they will camp out for the next two weeks. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the church, under whose direction the boys will enjoy the outing, has been at Shushan for a week or more getting the camp in preparation for the party. He returned home Saturday for the purpose of accompanying his charges on the journey. The country is not strange to the campers as they spent their vacation there last year and had a delightful time among the mountains of New York State.

Dinner for Insurance Agents.

D. O. Evans, superintendent of the local office of the Prudential Insurance Company, entertained his staff and agents at dinner at the Hotel Kensington, Saturday, in recognition of faithful service in the past. The guests numbered about thirty-five, including Division Manager Sandford, of Newark; Superintendents Miller, of Allentown, and Hope, of Somerville, and Agents Bittenbender, Wylie, Searles, Sheppard, A. V. Lunger, J. B. Searles, W. C. Smith, Edward W. Smith, Edward W. Smith and P. A. Vroom, of this city.

Has Leased Accommodations.

H. G. McElwaine, who, it was reported, had become manager of the horse show grounds for the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, has leased certain accommodations at the show grounds, including about twenty stalls, where he will keep thoroughbred horses for horse show training purposes. He will not be the manager as stated.

OUR CRACKSHOTS WIN

W. B. Martin on U. S. Team Which Triumphs over Other Nations at Bisley.

WITH RIFLE AND REVOLVER.

English Marksmen Get Second Place—Major Martin Receives Great Praise.

The great international team match, the most important event of the Olympic rifle contests, has been won by America at Bisley, and the American marksmen thus become the champions of the world. The American score was 2,531, that of the British 2,496 and that of the Canadian marksmen 2,439. In this great victory Major W. B. Martin, formerly captain of Co. K, of this city, is mentioned among the American marksmen deserving of the highest honors. According to shooting eitquette, the honor of the highest individual score goes to W. F. Lueshner, of New York, who scored a greater number of points up to the longest distance than Major W. B. Martin, of New Jersey, who tied him on the thousand yards range.

In the team revolver competition, which occupied most of Saturday, the Americans scored another victory. They defeated the teams, composed of four men each, of the United Kingdom, Sweden, France, Belgium, Holland and Greece.

Starting with a lead at the end of the first range, the Americans displayed splendid skill. They were never displaced, and, with the exception of the contest at the 600-yard range, they scored higher totals for each of the six distances than the finest teams that Canada and all Europe could put in the field. In the individual aggregates also the Americans were always promnient, first Luesrner and then Martin leading all the world's crack riflemen. Many experts consider the outcome a victory not only for the men but for the rfles. They declare that the American short barrelled new Springfield rfle proved itself a far better arm than the new short barrelled Lee Emfield in use in the British service.

PHYSICIAN CONTRACTS DISEASE FROM PATIENT

Dr. A. H. Dundon, of the borough, underwent an operation Saturday for an affection of the face brought by infection from a patient suffering with an unusual form of blood poisoning. The physician contracted the trouble through thoughtlessly rubbing a slight blister on the side of his nose while he was attending a boy suffering with the complaint. Inside of a few days, his features were greatly swollen and serious consequences were threatened. The operation was performed by Dr. Carman and proved entirely successful, the poisoning having almost entirely subsided.

The disease for which the patient was being treated is rarely met with and is known as Ludwig angina. In this for of blood affection, there is no formation of pus but there is a pronounced sloughing of the tissues. Dr. Dundon operated upon the boy and it was while doing so that the disease was communicated to him. He was forced to abandon the case to prevent any further infection.

Accidents Will Happen.

"What's the matter across the way?" asked the tailor of a bystander as the ambulance backed up to the door of his rival.

"A customer fell in a fit, and they are taking him to the hospital," was the reply.

THE MERRY-MERRYS HOLD FIRST TOAST-ROAST DINNER.

Conducting the affair something on teh order of the annual "roast" of the Friars, of New York, the Merry-Merrys lifted up their voices in song and story after a dinner at Maul's Washingtonville Hotel, Friday night. Everybody contributed melody, harmonious and otherwise, and there were numerous toast-roasts pledged to unlucky mortals not fortunate enough to be on the inside of the joyous circle.

Harry Blimm, an amateur minstrel man, presided as Chief Merry, and contributed an original roast-toast entitled, "T. M. M. Still Holds the Coin," after which the new Primrose ballad, "Pretty Merry" was sung with right good will. Numerous recitations laos enlivened the occasion.

The affair is the first of a series that will be held providing the silver lining shows up in the financial cloud that continues to hover about.

NAME SPECIAL POLICEMEN

Vacancies in Department Filled by City Fathers on Mayor's Recommendation.

THE COUNCILMANIC ROUTINE.

No Report On P. S. C.'s Latest Request—Discuss Fire House Repairs—Get a New Street In East End.

The anticipated appointment of three special policemen was made by Mayor C. J. Fisk, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, it being understood that the new men will fill vacancies which have existed in the department for a long time. Those appointed were P. J. McNamara, Joseph Dunlap and Charles Anderson. According to the wording of the Mayor in making the appointments they are to serve until January 1, 1909. In accordance with a resolution offered by Councilman Frank Randolph, chairman of the police committee, the appointments were confirmed.

At the request of the Board of Health, John O'Brien, an employe of the city in that department, was also appointed a special policeman by Mayor Fisk and that was confirmed.

Following the advice of Corporation Counsel Marsh, Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, accepting the offer of Ernest Sharpe, owner of property in the Netherwood district, whereby he dedicates land for a street and in return the city cancels a portion of a sewer assessment made against his property. Under the terms of the agreement Mr. Sharpe is to pay into the city treasury the sum of $58.20 within ten days.

The recent action of C. M. Meeker, contractor, and the several firms holding liens against him on account of claims in connection with the brick pavement contract, was reported upon by Mr. Buxton, who presented all the legal papers in the matter, showing that the city is released from all the claims on the part of Mr. Meeker as well as the different firms interested in the contract. The action effecting a settlement was approved by the Common Council and the final payment was ordered made. The other firms who assented to the terms included Boice, Runyon & Co., Loizeaux Lumber Company, N. B. Smalley & Co., William M. Foley, Hand Storage and Express Company, Henry Nischwitz & Co., Ernest T. Hand, the Pennsylvania Clay Company and the Fanwood Stone Crusher and Stone Company. All of the papers were ordered filed.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted authorized the payment of $62.50, the premium on the city treasurer's bond, and another resolution by the same member and adopted, provided that the $4,000 acquired as premium from the sale of the $95,000 school bonds, be used to retire four bonds.

The contract for building the sanitary sewer extension was awarded to J. H. Samariss, of Belleville, his bid being considered the most advantageous. A resolution to this effect was ordered by Mr. Gloak and adopted. Mr. Gloak called up the amended ordinance regarding the brick pavement and it was adopted on third and final reading.

Progress was reported by Mr. Hibbard regarding the petition of the Public Service Corporation for permission to erect a large gas-holder, and in behalf of the fire and building committee requested more time to consider the matter. He said that an opinion had been obtained from acting corporation counsel, Nelson Runyon, but the committee is not yet ready to give a final report.

It was moved by Mr. Buxton that the committee be given until December 1 to report, but the motion was not seconded.

The fire and building committee being desirous of making extensive needed repairs to No. 1 Engine House, Mr. Hibbard offered a resolution authorizing the appropriation of $1,000 from the regular fire department budget for that purpose. Mr. Buxton thought the committee was expending money rather lavishly, only recently purchasing a team of horses for $700.

It seemed to be the general opinion that if possible arrangements should be made to have the stairway in the centre of the building removed so that the whole lower floor could be thrown into one large room, but it was explained by the committee that this could not be done with the apropriation named. This would require an additional amount of about $500, which the committee did not feel like asking for. The improvements will include a general overhauling and new furniture for the firemen.

In the opinion of Mr. Hibbard and Mr. Suydam the condition of the house is a disgrace, worse than that of the Industrial Home, and Mr.

BREWERS OWN 325 OF PATERSON'S 420 BARS

The New Jersey excise investigating committee, of which Mayor Fisk, of this city, is chairman, paid its first visit to Paterson yesterday, and began learning how the bishops' law is observed.

Among those ordered to appear were Recorder Carroll, Mayor Andrew McBride, Chief of Police Bimson and Clerk of the Board of Aldermen Charles Gell, of Paterson; President W. R. Grafton Bateman, of the Passaic City Council; City Clerk Thomas Watson, of Passaic; Chief of Police William Hendry, and John J. Welsh, Joseph Spit and George Rose.

The Very Rev. William McNulty, of St. John's church, Paterson, was a witness at the investigation.

City Comptroller Donahue showed by the records of that city that 325 or 520 licenses in the city were paid for by the breweries. Commissioner Backes termed them "brewery saloons."

Mayor McBride said from his personal knowledge he believed that the law was being observed.

NOT USED TO RAILROADS, SAILOR HAS A STORMY TRIP

James Hoben, an able seaman from the liner St. Louis enjoying shore leave, was put off a P. and R. train at the North Avenue station, last night, for refusing to hand up his ticket. The conductor turned him over to Patrolman Nolan and as he was carrying a load of third rail whisky that would undoubtedly have run him on the rocks he was locked up for safe keeping.

In the city court, this morning, Hoben told Judge Runyon that he had made three unsuccessful attempts since yesterday morning to get from New York to Philadelphia. He carried a full cargo of rum when he boarded a train at Jersey City and was put off at Bayonne because he insisted on using a hat rack for a bunk. After bracing up on Bergen Point red eye, he took a new start but left the train at Elizabeth by mistake. The railroad men there took him in tow and saw him on board an express but for some reason he believed his ticket should not be taken up until Bound Brook was passed and that's how he was ejected into this port.

"I'm forty-nine years old, Your Honor," said Hoben, "but I'll swear by Father Neptune I've never had such a stormy voyage in all my lifelong experience on the high seas. I want to get to Philly to see some friends before going back to the ship but by Davy Jones it looks as though I'd never land. If you'll let me weigh anchor, sir, I'll guarantee I'll stay below deck until we're warped into the dock."

The appeal made a "hit" with Judge Runyon and Hoben was told he could go. As a precaution, however, a cop was delegated to take him to the depot and see that he got away without even a brace from a friendly schooner.

ANOTHER SET-BACK FOR EAST END FIRE HOUSE

During the protracted adjourned session of the Common Council, last night, the members, at the request of Councilman Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee, took a recess to discuss the question of building a new fire-house in the East End, as proposed earlier in the year. This resulted in temporarily disposing of the matter, it being decided not to take any definite action at present. In the meantime the committee will have other plans prepared and submitted, it being the general opinion that those considered are too elaborate.

Prior to the regular meeting Mayor Fisk and Councilmen Hibbard and Hall had a lively debate over the question. The councilmen were anxious to force the issue, but were not in position to ask for any definite amount for the proposed improvement. Mr. Fisk insisted that a stated sum be determined upon and considered, otherwise he absolutely refused to sanction the action of the committee or Common Council. During the recess which lasted a half hour, there was a free discussion of the matter and all approved the plan to lay it over for the present. It is the opinion of the members, however, that the fire-house will be built this year.

COMPLETING COURT HOUSE

Somerset County's $400,000 Marble Structure Will Soon be Ready for Decorators.

CONSIDER INTERIOR FINISHINGS

Lord Memorial Fountain to Cost $13,000, Gift of Miss Alleine Lord—Contracts for Hardware Made.

Work on Somerset county's new $400,000 white marble court house is being pushed rapidly to completion and it is expected that in a very short time a portion at least of the interior will be ready for the inside decorators. The building is to be connected with the new county jail by an underground passage, the construction of which has not as yet been started. The contractors now have a band of marble workers busy constructing the dome of the new building and the whole structure begins to show up very well.

The building committee of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders has visited a number of court houses in different parts of the State with an idea of getting some pointers as to how the edifices are fitted out inside, and was much impressed with those in Newark and Elizabeth.

The contracts for the hardware to be used in the building have been awarded to local dealers at their bids of $1,350. This exceeds the price allowed in the agreement with the contractor by about $350, but the matter has been taken before the Board of Freeholders, which agreed to stand for any excess within reason.

It is stated that as soon as the sheriff's offices, which are located in an old building at the corner of Main and Grove streets, can be transferred to the quarters for this official in the new court house, that the old structure will be torn down to make ready for the erection of the Lord Memorial Fountain at a cost of $13,000 at that point. This fountain is a gift to the town by Miss Alleine Lord in memory of her brother, the late John H. Lord, formerly president of the Second National Bank of Somerville.

CHIEF AN AUTO SPEEDER? OH, PERISH THE THOUGHT

The New Brunswick papers printed stories on Saturday last to the effect that Chief of Police Kiely had been held up in that city for speeding in an automobile with three friends and that he warded off arrest by asserting that he was hurrying to the office of Prosecutor Berdine to confer with him about a murder in South Plainfield five years ago. The articles went on to state that when he returned home the police head had chuckled over the way in which he had warded off the officers and that Judge Housell, of New Brunswick, had taken steps to bring him to account.

When questioned about the matter today, Chief Kiely stated emphatically that he had no connection with the affair whatever. In the presence of reporters, he called the New Brunswick papers and Judge Housell on the telephone and asked for an explanation. He was told that if it was not he who had been held up it was someone that had used his name but beyond that no information was derived. The chief told all parties that he wanted the matter sifted to the bottom as he was not in New Brunswick on the date specified.

It was stated later today, that a Plainfield official who has his headquarters on North avenue was the man who was held up and that he represented himself as Chief Kiely and concocted the murder story in order to get away.

Take a Day off at the Shore.

The next excursion to Asbury Park will be that the Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian, Congregational church Sunday-schools of this city, and the Dunellen Presbyterian church Sunday-schools, on Thursday. If you accompany these excursionists you will have an enjoyable outing and a chance to take a dip in the briny deep. Train will leave Plainfield at 8:15 o'clock in the morning and returning leave the shore at 6:30 o'clock.

The party made the trip to and from Princess Bay in Mr. Dreier's automobile, the distance of twenty miles each way being covered in two hours.

ARGUE SEWAGE SCHEME

Lively Discussion Before City Fathers on Proposition to Dispose of Borough Sewage.

DUNELLEN'S MAYOR OBJECTS.

City and Borough Mayors Advocate Idea—Strong Arguments Pro and Con—Referred to a Committee.

There was a strong argument pro and con at the public hearing given by the Common Council, last night, on the proposition to allow North Plainfield to connect with Plainfield's system of sanitary sewers and it appeared to be the opinion of impartial ones that the arguments in favor outweighed those against the proposed merger. Elimihating Mayor C. J. Fisk and Mayor Samuel Townsend, of the city and borough, respectively, who were in attendance to represent their own municipalities, there were an equal number of speakers for and against the proposition, eight citizens speaking on each side. The lobby was well filled with interested citizens.

That Plainfield's system of sanitary sewers is a nuisance to a degree was generally admitted, but there was also a strong array of facts to show that one sewage disposal plant is preferrable to two, especially in the same neighborhood and if sewage matter must be disposed of in this way, it is better for two communities to jointly use the one plant than to establish separate ones. There were no expressions of opinion on the part of the Common Council, it being the intention of the members to decide the matter later on.

The public hearing was opened by Mayor Fisk, who briefly reviewed the history of the proposed contract, whereby the city offers to take care of the borough's sewage for $25 per million gallons. He said that he would have to take exception to a recent statement that the city is morally or legally bound to take action on the proposition. He held that the paramount question is upon what terms will the city enter into a contract to do the work. The commissioners appointed for the purpose declare, he said, that they have examined carefully into the matter and find two plans feasible. One being that the borough connect with the city's system and the other that the borough establish its own independent plant.

Continuing, Mr. Fisk said: "From a financial standpoint the plan of merger would seem to be the best and I am told that legally there are no reasons why the city cannot enter into such a contract with the borough. I am also told that such is the case from an engineering point of view; all interests having been protected.

"It seems to me to be a question of policy. Whether it is a good thing to enter into such a contract. This would appear to be open to discussion. The Common Council has not committed itself, neither have I expressed an opinion. The borough has one place to dispose of its sewage, on what is known as the Debele farm, opposite the old garbage disposal works. They cannot go into an adjoining municipality without consent, but the State Board of Health can over-rule if it is thought best. The western limits of the borough are at Rock avenue and if the State Board of Health refuses to allow the borough to go outside, it will be forced to remain within its own borders.

"Mayor Townsend has in his possession a may showing how an independent sewer system may be established in the borough. One thing is certain. Our system can cause no further damage than has been accomplished already, and whether the borough connects or not with it, additional contacts must be built to meet the increasing need. I am informed that the septic tanks are large enough for years to come. Under the plan to connect the borough with the city, we would control the situation and be able to give the system our best attention, reducing the objectionable features to a minimum. If the borough should establish an independent plant there would be an odor and it would then become a question as to which system was the greatest nuisance.

"There are arguments against the merger, one in particular being whether the city should enter into a contract to care for the borough's sewage for a number of years on a basis of added expense. In case of removal of the city plant arrangements could be made to provide for the borough. Then there are sentimental reasons against the proposition, some people saying that the city does not want to care for anybody else's dirt. However, whatever is done should be for the best interest of all concerned."

At this time City Clerk J. T. Mac-

JERSEY PROUD OF MARTIN

Governor Cables State's Congratulations to 2nd Reg'ts Great Rifle Shot.

HIS RECORD AS GUARDSMAN.

Former Captain of Co. K, of This City, Makes Fine Record on the Bisley Range.

Governor Fort yesterday sent a cablegram to Major William B. Martin congratulating him on his great work in the international rifle match shot last Saturday at Bisley, England, in connection with the Olympic games. The message said:

"New Jersey congratulates you and takes pride in the victory of the American team."

It is expected that Major Martin will return from England in time to come into camp with the Second Regiment next Saturday. If he does he will be the lion of the hour.

Major Martin, who resides in Elizabeth and was formerly captain of Co. K of this city, is an officer of the Second Regiment. He is one of the most popular officers of the guard and has long been ranked among the best rifle shots in the country. At Bisley he tied with W. F. Lueshner in making the highest score after being behind him until the shooting took place on the 1,000-yard range. In the match America beat England by 35 points and Canada by 92 points.

Major Martin has had a long and brilliant career in the New Jersey guard. He was promoted to his present position January 15, 1907, at that time being captain of Company K, to the command of which he was elected in 1902.

When the Third Regiment enlisted for the war with Spain he was appointed commissary sergeant of the organization and a little after was commissioned first lieutenant and battalion adjutant. He remained with the regiment until it was mustered out.

Major Martin's record in the guard prior to his becoming captain of Co. K follows: Private, Co. C, Third Regiment, December, 1884; corporal, September, 1886; sergeant, June, 1889; private, January, 1891; re-enlisted, January, 1891; re-enlisted April, 1895; re-enlisted April, 1896; commissary sergeant, Third Regiment, June, 1896; re-enlisted April, 1897; re-enlisted April, 1898; re-enlisted April, 1899; discharged May, 1899, disbandment of regiment; re-enlisted as private Co. I, Second Regiment, May, 1899; first lieutenant, September, 1899; captain, January, 1901; resigned October, 1901; re-enlisted as private, Co. B, Third Regiment, October, 1901; first lieutenant and battalion adjutant, Third Regiment, January, 1902; captain of Co. K and inspector of rifle practice, Second Regiment, July, 1902.

ROBERT RUSHMORE HELPS CLEVELAND MONUMENT FUND

The amount of the local contributions to the Cleveland monument fund is steadily increasing, new subscriptions being reported daily. Mrs. Alice M. Hall, of West Second street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, became suddenly worse this morning and the physician in charge ordered her removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. She was taken there at once in the ambulance.

COLORED CHURCH PLANNED FOR WHITE NEIGHBORHOOD

The congregation of the Shiloh Baptist church, composed of former members of the Mount Olive Baptist church who drew away because of internal dissention, have taken steps to erect a house of worship at Fourth and New streets. A deal was consummated last night whereby they secure an option on the property at the southwest corner preparatory to closing the deal. The Shilohs are at present holding services in Reform Hall but have been notified to vacate and will secure temporary quarters pending the erection of their own structure.

The site contemplated for the new church is in a neighborhood made up almost entirely of white people and the location will meet with disapproval. It is diagonally across the street from Truell Court, while the homes of numerous well-to-do residents are in the vicinity, all having viewed with disfavor the proposed invasion. There are two colored churches on Fourth street a block below while Mount Olive church is two blocks away on Liberty street.

HE SUPPLIED THE "HOT AIR" FOR DOCTOR TO GET HOME

Dr. William H. Anthony, who is associated with the work at Muhlenberg Hospital, had a thrilling experience last night which brought his ingenuity into play. Late yesterday afternoon he was hurriedly summoned to Princeton on professional duties, and he made the trip in a motor-cycle. He was detained longer than he expected and it was in the early hours of the morning that he returned home. On his way to Princeton he lost the tire pump on his machine, but the call being urgent he made no special effort to find it at the time.

While riding between New Brunswick and New Market about 3 o'clock this morning at a forty mile clip, he had a puncture which temporarily disabled his machine. What to do he did not know, but he continued his journey riding on a flat tire until he reached the round-house of the New Jersey Central at Dunellen. Then an idea struck him. He stopped, repaired the puncture and while walking about the place discovered a hose which furnishes compressed air for the engines. Quick as a thought he clapped the coupling on his machine and in a few minutes had enough air to bring him home in safety. No charge was made by William Rogers, the night man at the round-house for the "hot-air," but the doctor was profuse in his thanks.

CONTRACTS ARE AWARDED FOR MORE STREET WORK

Four bids were received at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, for macadamizing certain streets as proposed by the street committee at a previous meeting. The streets to be improved are North avenue, Leland avenue, Netherwood avenue, Monroe avenue, West Eighth street, West Third street and Clinton avenue, and those who submitted bids were Warren B. Travell, Smalley & Kitvhen, J. A. Burke and C. M. Meeker.

Upon the recommendation of the street committee, through a resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, the contract for macadamizing Clinton avenue was awarded to Warren B. Travell, his bid of 78 cents being the most advantageous, and the contract for the remaining streets was awarded to Smalley & Kitchen. The bids were submitted on the basis of lineal feet. The four bids presented, the prices being on the streets in order as given above are as follows:

Warren B. Travell—79 cents; 78, 77, 84, 83, 74, 78; Smalley & Kitchen—78 cents; 69, 67, 68, 76, 68, 80; J. A. Burke—96 cents; 90, 91; 85, 90, 83, 87; C. M. Meeker—84 cents; 78, 70, 66, 1.04, 66, 70.

All the bids were referred to the street committee and a report was made on them later in the evening. It is the opinion of the committee that the prices accepted are fair and will insure a first-class job to the city.

Councilman's Son Under the Knife.

Councilman F. E. Mygatt was detained from attending last night's Common Council meeting because of the fact that his son, Frederick, was suddenly attacked with appendicitis and an operation was at once necessary. The young man was removed to the hospital and successfully passed through the operation. The case was a bad one and prompt action undoubtedly saved his life.

SEARCH FOR LOCAL PASTOR

Police are Asked to Find Rev. Olof F. Domeij Who Disappeared on Sunday Night.

HIS WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN.

Missing Man, 25 Years Old, Recently Appointed By Upsala College Officials to Local Swedish Congregation.

The local police were asked last night to aid friends in searching for Rev. Olof F. Domeij, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran congregation, who disappeared from his boarding place at the home of Peter Lundstrom, 626 East Seventh street. He was last seen there Sunday night following his service in the German Lutheran church on Grove street, but left the place some time between then and 11 o'clock. At that hour, Mrs. Lundstrom had occasion to speak to him and going to his room found that he was absent. The coat and vest he had worn during the day hung over a chair and his money and papers were on a bureau but the young man himself was not to be found. He failed to return through the night and is still missing.

Mr. Domeij, who is but twenty-five years old, was appointed to the local pastorate by the officials of Upsala College. The congregation of the Swedish Lutheran church is small and he was delegated to divide his time between here and Morristown. He had been working in this way for the past five weeks.

On Sunday last, Mr. Domeij preached in Plainfield both morning and evening, the congregation holding its services in the German Lutheran church. He remarked to several of the members that he was greatly affected by the heat and it is believed that when he returned to the Lundstrom home, he decided to take a short walk in an effort to get cool before retiring. It is supposed that he was in a nervous condition of mind and wandered away in a confused state.

The police have been searching for him since the matter was reported but so far have met with no success. No one has been found who saw him after he was noticed on the porch of the Lundstrom home. He did not return to Upsala College.

FARCE AT "NETHERWOOD" BY ELIZABETH FOLK

Entertainment for the women and children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, in this city, will be provided the evening of July 23 by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Westminster Hope chapel of Elizabeth. The program will have for its central feature a farce entitled "An Economical Boomerang," in which the young people from this city will participate.

The Netherwood camp is one of several institutions of its kind in the State. It is maintained by a voluntary philanthropical association, and opened July 6, to run until after Labor Day. It takes children and their mothers from the hot tenement districts of New York city and gives them two weeks of fresh air, wholesome country food, rest and encouragement.

The invitation to the Elizabethans to assist in the entertainment is partly due to the pleasure afforded by a similar pilgrimage last year. The farce is a laugh-provoker from first curtain-rise to the finish. Paul S. Hamilton will take the part of Alexander Dabbleton; Miss Bessie Lloyd that of Mrs. Dabbleton; Mr. and Mrs. Bird Clover, a newly married couple, will be portrayed by F. L. Kobler and Miss Annie T. Heckeroth; the part of a doctor will be taken by A. Miltonberger, and Maggie, the maid, will be assigned to Miss Genie Smart. The invitation to go with the party, see the farce and view the camp, is a general one, and all interested will go by train, leaving here at 7 o'clock.

It is understood that nearly 100 are enjoying the benefits of the place, and receiving also helpful religious instruction, and ample recreation and entertainment. Rev. William B. Hamilton, of the chapel, has been invited to lead the religious service there the second Sunday in August.

Two Councilmen Absent.

Councilmen F. E. Mygatt and Charles C. Randolph were the only ones who absented themselves from the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, when a public hearing was given on the proposition to connect North Plainfield with Plainfield's system of sanitary sewers. It was especially regretted that Mr. Myatt was not present as he is chairman of the committee on public affairs, which has been agitating the question.

Of sixty horse or so,
And scorn to hire a French chauffeur
To make the critter go.
Yet, though it be a boundless joy
To chauff your own machine,
Me for a quiet seat with her,
Right back in the limousine.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Henry Leifke, of West Front street, has broken ground for his new house on West End avenue, near Front street.

—B. Frank Coriell's new house on Arlington avenue is nearing completion. It will be occupied by his son, William McD. Coriell and family.

—N. O. Moore, Jr., manager for The Recorder Press, is planning to spend his vacation in the West, where Mrs. Moore is living this summer.

—A large force of men is being employed to rebuild Mrs. George H. Babcock's home at Arlington avenue and West Eighth street, and she expects to occupy it in the fall.

—Charles Eoff, of Crescent avenue, has been presented with a Buick "flyer" by his father, C. W. Eoff, and he now enjoys his spare time from business on auto trips. He holds an excellent position with the Standard Oil Company in New York and has been promoted twice since entering the employ of the company.

During the rest of the summer the mid-week prayer-meetings at the First Baptist church will be in charge of the deacons of the church.

ARRESTED AUTO THIEVES WILL BE EXTRADITED.

Washington, N. J., July 14.—Assistant County Detective W. G. Roling, of Easton, and D. M. Perry, of Washington, returned from Middletown, N. Y., Saturday, after seeing Lloyd Egbert and John M. Thompson, both of Washington, remanded to the county jail at Goshen, N. Y., on the charge of stealing an automobile belonging to Mr. Perry from the Washington garage on the morning of June 24.

Both men have confessed their guilt. They were given a hearing before Recorder Corwin in Middletown Friday and were sent to the county jail at Goshen to await requisition papers. It is thought the papers will be granted in time to have the men in Belvidere jail by Thursday or Friday of this week. The men confessed that when they left Washington they went to Morristown, Newark, Paterson, Tuxedo and from there to Ellenville, N. Y.

During the week previous to their capture the two men were within eighty miles of Washington. When the auto was stolen one of the men had his hand badly cut by the glass in the door of the closet where the extra batteries were kept. A trail of blood was traced from the garage to the home of Egbert and led to suspicion falling upon him and Thompson. The machine now is practically worthless.

ROSELLE PARK'S NEW SCHOOL.

Bids Received Saturday Night—Newark Firm After Contract.

Roselle Park, July 14.—Bids for the new $68,000 high school for Roselle Park were opened Saturday night at a special meeting of the Board of Education. The lowest bidders were W. D. Lewis Company, of Roselle, $56,000, and the American Concrete Steel Construction Company, of Newark, $55,900.

The Lewis Company offered to reduce the amount $2,000 if stucco was used instead of brick. Yesterday the members of the building committee, as the guests of the Lewis Company, inspected a number of buildings in Morris county where stucco was used. The trip was made by auto.

CIRCUS MANAGER HURT.

Runaway Prevented Wagon Show's Appearance at High Bridge.

High Bridge, July 14.—A circus was billed to appear here Saturday. While on the way from German Valley to this place, near Solitude, a team of horses driven by Manager Robertson took fright and ran away down a steep hill.

The wagon was upset and Robertson was thrown off. Besides internal injuries and severe bruises he suffered a broken arm and leg. He was taken to the Easton, Pa., Hospital. The circus did not show here.

Mrs. Catherine La Forge Johnson.

Rahway, July 14.—Catherine La Forge, fifty-three years old, wife of Louis D. Johnson, died yesterday morning at the Monroe street residence of her niece, Mrs. Mary E. Frazee. The funeral was held at St. Paul's church, Tottenville, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

STORM CREATES HAVOC.

Grainfield's Devastated, Freight Cars Unroofed and Other Damage Done.

Whitehouse, July 14.—A heavy thunder storm passed over this section at a late hour Sunday afternoon, and great damage was done to fields of standing grain and hay, much of which was washed over in the mud.

At Whitehouse Station the high wind unroofed three freight cars of the Central Railroad, which were standing on a siding, and lightning struck the barn on the property of Augustus C. Durling, but very little damage was done. The flagpole in front of the public school building in this place was blown down.

EX-ACTRESS A REPORTER.

Miss Clara A. Tichenor Now "Covering" Assignments in Ithaca.

Miss Clara A. Tichenor, who sang in the "Prince of Pilsen" company in Paris and London last winter and who was before that a chorus girl, is now a reporter on The Ithaca (N. Y.) Daily Journal.

Clad in a Parisian costume, with a Merry Widow hat, Miss Tichenor hurries about covering assignments in the business section, and attracts attention on all sides. Miss Tichenor says the work is "just great." On Saturday she sat in the press box at a baseball game between Ithaca and Waterloo, and kept a business-like box score.

Autos Collide at Long Branch.

Long Branch, July 14.—Two touring cars came together yesterday afternoon at the junction of Broadway and Norwood avenue. George O. Cole, of New York, who is stopping at Sea Bright, and Edward Belloff, of New Brunswick, were the owners of the cars. A woman was running Belloff's car and Fred Bissell was chauffeur of Cole's machine. Belloff's car only suffered a broken lamp. The axle of Cole's auto was bent, and the car was towed to a garage. None of the occupants was injured. There were three women and one man in Beloff's machine.

Found Unconscious in Tunnel.

Paterson, July 14.—Henry Van Der Linden, of 39 Alexander place, Acquackanonck Township, was found unconscious and bleeding profusely from a deep wound on his head under the Straight and Fulton street tunnel of the Erie Railroad yesterday. When found it was at first thought that the man had been struck by a train on the railroad, but later developments showed that he was the victim of an accident while walking about the streets under the influence of liquor. He was taken to a hospital, and later discharged.

Managers Dorflinger and Conklin will get together within a short time and plan for another series of three games between the Plainfield and West End teams. They both realize that such contests are money-makers.

It was reported Saturday that a representative of the Jersey City Eastern League club was at Crescent Oval watching the work of Clifford Randolph and Jack Martin, and that he was greatly pleased with them. Jack certainly would be an improvement over the short field position as covered now by one Joe Bean, but whether his hitting would compare favorably is another question. Here he has been hitting the ball hard, but he would be up against a different lot of pitchers. With good backing and coaching Randolph should develop into league material. He surely has something that fools 'em.

Manager Conklin, of the West Ends, while disappointed because he could not win, expressed himself well pleased with the treatment given the team here on Saturday. He is anxious for additional contests.

The Clinton Avenues will play the Scotch Plains at the latter place, Saturday, and that means a good game. The contest will be for blood.

There are outfields and outfields, but the Detroit outfield is easily the best for all around ability in the country.

The New York Nationals won two games and lost four in the West last week. That isn't an advancing percentage.

The Athletics have done most of their winning from Eastern teams. If they had their victories over the Westerners to depend on they would be much nearer the tail end.

Elberfield is giving Big Ed Sweeney a chance behind the bat now that he is manager. The Kid won't be in the position of not knowing what his material can do.

Sam Crawford used to be a silent man, but now he's as much in the game with his voice as with his bat. He sings in from the outfield to the infield to keep on its toes.

The Detroits and Browns have been tied for first place for three consecutive days now, an unusual state of affairs for two teams at the top of the heap. They've been winning and losing simultaneously, mostly winning.

Not a few big league clubs would like to swap their pitching staffs, lock, stock and barrel, for Patsy Donovan's Brooklyn box corps.

GOLF.

Advance copies of the rules as revised by the rules committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews have been received by the executive committee of the United States Golf Association. In the context, as well as the rearrangement and typographical style, it is evident that the Scots have used the pamphlet of suggestions sent over in January by the American sub-committee on rules. E. B. Sharp, a member of the St. Andrews rules committee, arrived on the Lusitania on Friday, and left for Canada in the evening. With C. B. Macdonald he called on President Chauncey of the United States Golf Association to express the appreciation of Captain Burn's committee for the interest and energy of the United States Golf Association in preparing its suggestions.

The non-adoption of a suggestion, Mr. Sharp wished it to be understood, did not mean any lack of appreciation of it, for only by weighing in the balance of judgment a wide variety of opinions was the St. Andrews committee able to make the revision of encyclopaedic value.

The advance draft has been sent to all who were asked originally to co-operate, and they are expected to advance any further opinions deemed advisable, or, to draw attention to points overlooked. The final draft will be submitted on August 21 to the Royal and Ancient club for approval, and in September there will be a general meeting to ratify the revised code. Should this be before September 14 to 19, the revised rules will govern the American amateur championship at Garden City, unless there is an agreement that the code shall not be operative until it has been formally accepted by the United States Golf Association, or else is not to be effective until January 1.

Most noticeable in opening the new code book is the classification that has succeeded the haphazard sequence of the former books, and the grouping of rules in conformity with the order of strokes in a game, attention being instantly attracted to any paragraph desired by "side-heads" in heavy type. The main chapter heading are "Definitions," "General and Through the Green," "Hazards and Casual Water," "Putting Green," "Best Ball and Four Ball Matches" and "Conduct and Play in Stroke Competitions."

There is also a rearranged "Etiquette of Golf," which, however valuable, contains nothing new except Article 9—"A player who has incurred a penalty stroke should, as soon as possible, intimate the fact to his opponents."

Three "Special Rules for Match Play Competitions" are as important as any ever framed to mould the attitude of players toward the game, for, besides compelling the playing of stymies, for instance, they force as much care for the interests of the entire field as has hitherto been the law only at stroke play competitions. The three rules are:

Rule 1—On the putting green, if the competitor whose ball is nearer to the hole play first, his hole shall be at once replaced under penalty of the disqualification of both competitors.

Rule 2—A competitor shall not waive any penalty incurred by his opponent, under penalty of disqualification.

Rule 3—Competitors shall not agree to exclude the operation of any rule, or local rule, at any time, under penalty of disqualification.

The St. Andrews committee also recommends that players should not concede puts to their opponents. Other recommendations are for local rules on such local conditions as the existence of mud or rabbit scrapes. Regarding the form and make of golf clubs, there is an intimation from the committee that may be wholly sentimental, or else may be prompted by some advance information on the trend of trade inventions. The warning is the committee "will not sanction any substantial departure from the traditional and accepted form and make of golf clubs, which, in its opinion, consist of a plain shaft and a head which contains no mechanical contrivance, such as springs."

While there is no apparent curtailment in the number of words in the code, there is a clearer expression, a polishing up of the ancient phrases, that makes them read better. The brevity of expression would condense the size of the rules were it not for the new topics included.

Regarding specific changes in the rules, there is a new addendum to that on advice. A player may not ask for or willingly receive advice from any one except his own caddie, his partner or his partner's caddie, except "when playing through the green or from a hazard a player may have the line to the hole indicated to him, but no mark shall be placed, nor shall any one stand on the proposed line while this stroke is being made."

An abuse of long standing, the rule that made it obligatory to place the ball back of casual water on the putting green, if one is so unfortunate as to get into it, has been reformed. A player may now place his ball one club length from the side margin of the casual water, but not nearer the hole.

The American suggestion that the overflow of a water hazard should be casual water was not adopted. The suggestion was turned down, too, that at medal play a ball could be teed at any place on the course under penalty of two strokes. The committee has kept the old rule on lifting intact.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Triplets have arrived in the family of Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, near Pitman Grove.

Thieves entered the general store of W. H. Roberts & Sons, at Marlton, yesterday morning, and carried away goods valued at $300.

While testing potash at a soap factory in Camden, yesterday, George Washington, of 326 Pine street, was badly burned on the right hand.

While riding to his barn on a load of wheat, William Patterson, of Aldine, was overcome by the heat and fell to the ground, wrenching his shoulder and neck.

Catching his right hand in machinery in Camden, yesterday, Thomas Chamberlain, 461 Liberty street, was so badly hurt that the middle finger was amputated at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Fourteen-year-old John Summers, of 97 East Sixteenth street, Paterson, was the victim of an accidental shooting yesterday afternoon, a bullet embedding itself in his leg. As the ball had spent its force it inflicted but a comparatively slight wound.

Mrs. Thomas Ivins, of Clayton, who was so horribly burned by an explosion of a gasoline stove Thursday, died yesterday after suffering intensely. During the whole of the time she remained conscious, although her entire body was burned to a crisp.

Scratching one hand on a nail, Dominick Ballon, of 406 Second street, Camden, paid no attention to the injury until yesterday, when his arm swelled to almost twice its normal size. At Cooper Hospital whether or not the arm will have to be amputated will be decided today.

Jacob Schopling, of Philadelphia, nearly bled to death yesterday after having three teeth extracted by an Atlantic City dentist. Soon after the operation Schopling's mouth began bleeding profusely and he wandered about the streets several hours before he finally was found and hurried to the City Hospital, where surgeons stanched the hemorrhage.

When George Fields, of 426 Division street, Camden, started to tickle a mule with a piece of straw, yesterday afternoon, he was kicked with such force that a fracture of the right arm resulted. In jumping away from the mule's hoofs he collided with Charles Riley, and Riley was badly injured about the legs. The injured men were cared for at Cooper Hospital.

Mayor Rue, of Burlington, has received $50 from the authorities of Athens, Ga., to be divided among Burlington policemen who captured W. G. Thomas, an alleged fugitive embezzler, who had disguised himself as a laborer on a near-by farm. The Georgia police kept half the reward of $100, claiming the arrest followed information forwarded to local police by them.

Drinking iodine from a bottle given to her by her little brother, Helen Gerker, two years old, of 7 Park place, Camden, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. The child was found unconscious on the floor by her mother and was hurried to the Homeopathic Hospital, where it required several hours of hard work on the part of physicians before the girl was pronounced out of danger. The badly frightened little brother said he thought the bottle contained soda water.

Still More Cretonne.

And now the cretonne Eton collar! These bright, not to say gaudy, accesories are selling like hot cakes, so great is the rage of a touch of color. A white frock in plain shirtwaist style, relieved with such a collar and belt, is considered very smart for morning wear. For those who prefer something a little less striking than the cretonne Eton there will be found the same model, but embroidered in colored mercerized cotton, all shades being represented.

Quite the Opposite.

"That sign seems queer—'Headquarters for $3 pants.'"

"What's queer about it?"

"Well, I thought pants were designed for other quarters."—Washington Star.

ACKERMAN-FRELINGHUYSEN.

The last session of the Legislature was both businesslike and effective, resulting in the accomplishment of a large amount of necessary work. Something like 780 bills were introduced of which forty-one per cent. were passed and signed by the Governor. This involved a great deal of care and thought on the part of the Governor; a mass of detailed work by the committee of the Legislature, as well as considerable time and attention by every member of the legislative body.

As a matter of information it will be interesting to select the five members of the Legislature who placed the highest number of laws on the statute books. The record shows: Frelinghuysen, eighteen; Wakelee, seventeen; Robbins, sixteen; Avis, fifteen; Ackerman, thirteen. These five members of the Legislature are responsible for about twenty-five per cent. of the finished work of the session. There were no other Senators who succeeded in passing more than nine bills.

All the laws passed were important to those interested and especially so to the municipalities and counties chiefly concerned. The character of the legislation was mostly remedial and constructive to meet the changed and growing conditions of the State.

It is easy and quite in fashion some times to criticise the members of the Legislature but it is entirely a different thing to properly perform the work of a legislator as a careful study of the 322 chapters of the laws of 1908 will show.

New Jersey is a growing State with a great future. Within the metropolitan district of New York and close to Philadelphia its population will soon be doubled and the work of the New Jersey Legislature will increase in its importance owing to the demand for new legislation to meet the changed conditions. Great care must be exercised by the people in selecting legislators who are intelligent and conscientious; also equipped to meet the problems of the day.

Of the five members of the Legislature previously referred to, two will come up for re-election this year, Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, and Ackerman, of Union. Both of these Senators are tried and trained, conservative and constructive, able and active, as their records will show. The counties they represent, as well as the State at large, will certainly profit by their return to the Legislature so that the experience they have acquired during the last three years may be used in the interest of the people in the future as it has been in the past.

As between Ackerman and Frelinghuysen, while the latter leads on the number of laws passed, the former wins figuring the percentage of bills passed as compared with those introduced. The record stands: Ackerman, seventy-two per cent; Frelinghuysen, sixty per cent. Union and Somerset should be proud of them.

THE SITE-SEEKER.

It is with much pride that we view the first number of "The Site-Seeker," a monthly publication for those interested in suburban homes. This is due not entirely to the fact that the issue is devoted to "The City Beautiful." It is rather because two Daily Press boys were wise enough to see a field for special work and were quick to get into it. Francis K. Anderson, now city editor of the Elizabeth Times and formerly on this paper, and Alden E. Moore, of our present reportorial staff, conceived the idea that a conservative magazine confined to suburban realty advantages and progress would be of great benefit to the home-seeker. In their first number they have amply demonstrated their ability to make such an undertaking a marked success. Originality, brightness and convincing facts are contained in the initial effort, and we do not hesitate to recommend that Plainfielders interested in their home town, and we know of none who is not, procure some extra copies to mail to their friends who are in search of an ideal spot to call their "home."

Some people have queer ideas about how to observe the Sunday laws. Over in Plainfield yesterday it was regarded as all right to douse the streets with water, necessitating the employment of man and beast, while it was impossible to get a drink of soda water at the drug stores to allay one's thirst.—New Brunswick Home News.

Yes, and evidently some people can not discern between a necessity and a luxury. Plainfield observes the law, though those laws may be "queer ideas."

Chief Excise Prober Fisk, it is said, gives it out that the head of the Paterson police force is an honest man. That's the first good news that we have heard from there—in a long time.

The excise investigators say they have the facts and will enjoy the even tenor of their ways until Monday.

Talk about summer resorts; it was a hundred in the shade here on Sunday.

Another delay for the Netherwood section fire house proposition.

Suydam added that if he were a fireman and should be sent there he would consider that he was being disciplined. He pronounced it an eyesore.

Those who opposed the improvements unless the stairway could be moved, asked to have the matter returned to the committee for further consideration, and it was so decided, Councilmen Hall and Hibbard voting against the motion. Before the next meeting efforts will be made to recommend the improvements as desired by a majority of the members.

On motion of Mr. Hibbard, which was adopted, the fire and building committee was authorized to purchase five tons of hay at a price not to exceed $20 a ton, and to expend not more than $100 for minor repairs at Nos. 1 and 3 Engine Houses.

Work Started on Primary School.

Work has been started digging the cellar for the new primary public school to be located at Darrow avenue and Essex street, the contract for which is held by Lanning & Co., of Trenton. Several sub-contractors are local men, including George J. Tobin, who will look after the heating and plumbing. The erection of this school means the loss of available grounds for outdoor shows, including circuses, carnivals, etc., for which that section of the city has been noted during the past few years. According to the terms of the contract the building is to be completed and ready for occupancy within one year.

Funeral of Robert Evans.

The funeral of Robert Evans, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital as the result of injuries sustained by a fall at the depot Sunday night, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. It was conducted by Father B. M. Bogan and was attended by many friends. The floral tributes included a large set piece from his fellow-hackmen at the North Avenue station, by whom he was greatly liked. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: Thomas Muldowney, James Muldowney, John Keely, Thomas Burns, Charles Currin and John McIntyre.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 1st, 1907, and approved by the Mayor July 1st, 1907.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 3 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," adopted by the Common Council July 1st, 1907, and approved by the Mayor July 1st, 1907, be amended so as to read as follows:

"Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the city do hereby, pursuant to the authority of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled 'An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same,' approved June 13, 1898, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of forty coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Forty Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall be dated September 1st, 1907, shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable as follows, that is to say, on the first day of September of each of the years 1910 and 1911 four bonds of $1,000 each, and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1912 to 1918, both inclusive, two bonds of $1,000 each, and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1919 to 1924, both inclusive, three bonds of $1,000 each, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the city, attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds, and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds."

Adopted by the Common Council July 13, 1908; approved by the Mayor July 13, 1908.

Murray read two communications on the subject, one being the resolutions from the Plainfield Protective Association favoring the plan of having the borough connect with the city system and the other from A. J. Brunson protesting against the scheme, declaring that it would be an injury to his property on Greenbrook road. He favored a trunk line sewer that would carry the sewage out of the district, adding that the city's disposal plant is a nuisance at present.

The privilege of the floor was extended to Mayor Townsend, who also reviewed what has already been done toward giving the borough a sewer system and explaining the situation as it exists in that municipality. "We have reached that point," continued Mr. Townsend, "when the borough must have sewers. The city and borough are too close together and their interests are so closely allied that there should be no trouble in entering into such a contract as has been proposed. The people of both municipalities attend the same churches, patronize the same stores and what is an injury to one is an injury to both and what is a benefit to one is also a benefit to both. We have the facilities to care for our own sewage for years to come, but if we establish an independent system now we will not be in a position later to join the city's system.

"I have here a map showing how the borough can establish its own plant. The borough naturally would want the beds removed as far as possible from its residents, and this would bring them near Dunellen avenue and that section. Herring & Fuller, engineers, have examined the territory and say that the proposed area in the borough is feasible for sewage beds and will take care of the sewage for years to come, but the question is one of the advisibility of the city and borough entering into a contract as proposed and the best interest of all should be considered first."

In no uncertain words, Winfield S. Angleman, residing on West Front street, the Fourth ward, declared his opposition to the proposed merger. He said that when the present sewage beds were established the city expressed its regret for the act, but added that it was compelled to put them somewhere and that appeared to be the best place. "The borough is now one-third the size of the city," continued Mr. Angleman, "and is constantly increasing, which means a constantly increasing amount of sewage to be cared for if the two muncipalities are connected. It has been admitted that the sewage beds are a nuisance and there is no reason why this should be magnified. Dunellen is right on the border, why not take that municipality in too. The beds have been increased and will have to be increased again, why should the city be bonded for $50,000 or $75,000 for this purpose?

"I for one," said Mr. Angleman, "resent the threat of the borough that they will plant an independent system in our built-up section. You will see how quickly we would go to the courts if this is done. Mr. Brunson has virtually threatened the city with a suit for damages. It is a nice proposition to say 'we want you to do this or that, but if you don't we will knock you down.' We would be in the position of city scavengers: a nice advertisement for 'The City Beautiful.' I am for the place where I live and that is the Fourth ward of Plainfield. The contract should not be made on the grounds that Plainfield's debt would be increased, that we would be scavengers and that it is unfair to the residents of the Fourth ward.' When Mr. Angleman concluded there was hearty applause from the lobby.

Taking exception to Mr. Angleman's statements, L. B. Woolston, who explained that he is a property-owner in the city and borough, denied that the merger would increase the sewage disposal one-third, and as for the city being a scavenger he thought it could not be in any better business, if it was conducted right. He could not see that it would be any detriment to the city to take the borough's sewage. He said that he owned property near the sewage beds and had never heard of any complaint and he believed it would be better to have one plant instead of two. He looked forward to a better system which would be taken advantage of some day by both places and besides few people reside near the beds, anyway. Mr. Woolston said that it is through the trade from North Plainfield that Plainfield has a first-class postoffice, is able to maintain first-class stores, banks, etc., and it is up to the city to do justice to the borough as well as itself.

Peter Doeringer, of the borough, who said that he owns property in both the city and borough, favored the plan to connect with the city's system, believing it to be a benefit to the taxpayers.

That there could be any objection to the proposition was not apparent to A. H. Atterbury. He thought the contract a fair one and he said so far as he has been able to ascertain everyone seems to favor it. He took exception to Mr. Angleman's arguments, declaring that they were not weighty. He said that he had no expert knowledge of the matter, but he expressed the opinion that the sentimental reasons were a trumped-up appeal to the galleries. The proposition he believed to be a good solution to a difficult problem and it should be an easy matter to take care of the borough's sewage. He declared that it was not fair to Mayor Townsend to say that he holds a club over Plainfield threatening it, asserting that with one plant it would be easy to take care of both places. He asked Mr. Angleman whether the sewage beds had ever been shown to be a nuisance through court procedure, whereupon Mr. Angleman replied that the Milliken suit was the only one he recalled and he did not think that it was properly instituted.

Mr. Atterbury presented another view in favor of the proposition by stating that it is only a question of time when the two places will be one, and he thought it wise to anticipate that union as far as possible, for it should have weight.

Declaring that he had lived within five hundred feet of the sewage beds ever since they were established, James Craig, a former Councilman, urged those who had any doubts as to their being a nuisance to sleep at his place some night. He said that the smell was more of a nuisance today than when first put in use and he objected strenuously to the plan to send any more sewage matter there.

Although he said it was not his intention to speak on the subject, prefering to rest on the endorsement of the plan by the Plainfield Protective Association, R. Henry Depew, its president, met the argument that the city sewage beds smell, by saying that two such plants would cause such an odor from all quarters. He believed the proper way to be to have Plainfield control the situation, and when the time for removal comes, the whole plant can go elsewhere. He agreed with Mr. Atterbury, adding that the city is in the scavenger business, but it has been shown that this work must be done by public or private enterprise and he thought it to be far better to have the city assume charge.

Former Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, was another one who said he did not intend to speak, but certain suggestions by other speakers had led him to do so. He said that as an interested property-owner and one quite familiar with the situation, he was prepared to say that the borough does need sewers and he believed that a majority of the residents there favor the plan. He agreed with Mr. Angleman as to the location of the city beds, but Plainfield probably had good reasons for placing them there.

He recalled the appointment of the sewer commission and the fact that an effort was made to locate independent sewage beds in North Plainfield township, at which time objection was raised to the plan. He was of the opinion that there are places in the township where such beds would not be objectionable, but he thought the joining of the two systems advisable. He wanted to see the thing settled by the Common Council and believed that the borough would ratify such action. He said that he doubted whether the borough would locate its beds as suggested by the plan of Mayor Townsend, concluding with the statement that the borough's interest is largely that of Plainfield. Still he was of the opinion that if properly gone at the borough has a remedy without Plainfield's assistance. However, he said, the present proposition looked feasible.

Charles Debele, of Rock avenue, whose farm has been referred to as desirable for the borough beds, and who opposes such action, favoring a trunk line sewer, said that he could state positively that the borough has not obtained the property. He believed the story to that effect was published in the newspaper for a "bluff." In response to this, Mayor Townsend reminded Mr. Debele that the borough has large powers in this direction, but Mr. Debele insisted that it was a "bluff."

Another large property-owner who protested against the merger was Charles Arnold, the butcher. He owns a large farm in the vicinity of the Debele property, and in his opinion the property-owners on Greenbrook road would not stand for it. He said that the Plainfield sewage plant is not what it should be, is no credit to the city, and that the smell coming from the beds is awful.

Another objector to the proposed plan was William McCauley, of Dunellen, who owns property in North Plainfield township. He declared Plainfield's system of disposal a nuisance and should be discontinued and he said that the city is not in a position to care for its own sewage to say nothing of that from an adjoining municipality. Champlain Riley favored one system for both city and borough, and if the beds are a nuisance now he thought it presented a problem for the engineers to solve as it had been stated that the smell was not so bad when the beds were first put in operation.

Mayor Harry J. Swackhamer, of Dunellen, said that he was present to protest against the building of any additional beds on the sewage farm. In his opinion there is something wrong with Plainfield's system of sewage disposal or meetings of the nature of the one held last night would not be necessary. Jacob Voehl, a large property-owner in the city and borough, expressed himself in favor of the proposition for he said it would only be a question of time when the borough would have to connect with the city's system. Joseph Tetlow, of North Plainfield township, wanted to know why it was that solids from the Plainfield beds were to be found on adjoining farms. He emphasized the fact that Plainfield had admitted the beds to be a nuisance. This concluded the hearing and the Council returned to the regular order of business.

Funeral services of the late William Archibold, who died at his home Friday morning at 1 o'clock, were held at the Baptist church yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The services, which were well attended by friends and neighbors who had known and respected him for years, was in charge of Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, of Plainfield, assisted by Rev. Dr. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, of Plainfield. Dr. Buchanan spoke of the departed as he had known him for the past forty years, especially of his work in the church when he was its pastor. The floral display was handsome and included a number of set pieces. Interment was made in the family plot in the cemetery adjoining the church, the pall bearers being John Borman, Dr. F. W. Westcott, C. H. Vincent, David Hand, A. D. Beekon and John Robison.

THE CHAMPION MEAN MAN.

A Newark, N. J., woman is suing her husband for divorce, says the Washington Star. This is not an extraordinary circumstance, but the conditions of thisparticular case are sufficiently different from the usual run to warrant attention. Indeed, if half that the wife alleges is true her usband ought not only to be divorced, but sent to confinement for life. A man as mean as she describes him as being is not safe to be at large. It is only a question of time when he will own the earth. Here are a few of the things that this woman alleges her husband did: He limited the number of cups of tea and coffeee that his family should use daily; he numbered the eggs, apples and onions as a check against extravagance; he weighed all the groceries to keep tab on their consumption, keeping a set of scales under lock and key; he raised a tremendous fuss whenever a thick apple pie appeared on the table, arguing that a thin one would do just as well; he counted the sticks of macaroni to guard against the use of too many at one meal; when his wife asked for more than the allowance of $2 a week for household expenses generously granted by him he packed his suit case and left home, but not before he had violently quarreled with his wife because she refused to punish their 6-year-old son for not taking longer steps as his father commanded in the interest of saving of shoe leather. This man easily wins the diamond belt for meanness. There may be others in the same class with him, but they are a sorry lot. Possibly this experience in Newark may teach a lesson. Maybe some of the young women matrimonially inclined will be warned by it to get a line on their prospective husbands' ideas of economy. An allowance of two dollars a week for housekeeping draws the bargin too close, and it might be regarded as unsafe for any woman, however good a manager, to undertake to maintain a domestic establishment to the satisfaction of a parsimonious spouse on that basis. Such a man ought to be condemned to provide his own food in prison on an allowance of a cent a week.

CHARACTER IN THE HAIR.

Hands, feet, eyes, fingers—all have been used as delineators of character. And now it is the turn of the hair.

Dull black hair is said to denote a jealous disposition and a tendency to treachery.

The lighter the color of the hair, the more sensitive is the owner to criticism, and the more quick to feel real or fancied injuries.

The possessor of brown hair of good, deep color and firm texture is usually distinguished by good judgment, good reasoning power and plenty of common sense.

Women with red hair, though sometimes too impulsive and outspoken, are, as a rule, truthful and honest, with fair common sense. They are usually the brightest, sunniest and gentlest of mortals.

A woman with straight and "unyielding" hair, particularly if dark in color, has a firm and highly-principled nature. She is determined, perhaps even a little obstinate, but in the main extremely dependable.

VELVET POPULAR TRIMMING.

Ribbons in silk and velvet weaves are very popular as trimmings of the summer hats. They are used for both wide and narrow bands or crowns, as rosettes and knots—in the latter instance with short loops and long, pointed ends. The velvet band is the favorite trimming of the sailor. It appeals strongly to the practical amateur as an adequate means of concealing the method by which she has raised the crown of last season's hat to the requisite height of the present models.

If contrasting trimmings are employed, as in the case of a natural colored straw, trimmed with emerald, two or three half-inch wide velvet bands may define the crown, and the wide ribbon be used only as a side cluster or bandeau trimming.

HINT IN MARKING CLOTHES.

Why mark sheets with ink in a haphazard way? It is so easy to find a nice initial in newspapers or magafines which may be transferred to sheets with carbon paper and then traced with indelible ink. Without the slightest cost and with little trouble a good and uniform marking may thus be procured, and, if preferred, the letters thus marked may even be embroidered.

In this day when engraved headings are the rule, not the exception, letters for the whole name may be found, too. The new vertical handwriting has done so entirely away with the copper-plate Spencerian hand or can make letters which deserve to be perpetuated on household linen in either ink or fine stitches.

Worth a Trial.

A millionaire lay dying. He had lived a life of which, as he now looked back on it, he felt none too proud. To the minister at his bedside he muttered weakly:

"If I leave £50,000 or so to the church will my salvation be assured?"

The minister replied cautiously:

"I wouldn't like to be positive, but it'sn well worth trying."—Londo Opinion.

A "BILL" CAMPAIGN.

"Bill" Bryan and "Bill" Taft. We call each "Bill" and where's the harm?
"Bill has a hearty, honest sound, expressing admiration warm.
We've had our "William" candidates, and praised them well with voice and quill.
But now's our chance to pin our hopes unto a candidate named "Bill."

"Bill" Taft and "Bill" Bryan. We call each "Bill," and where's the hurt?
"Bill" has a sturdy, whole-souled ring, and we who use it are not part.
We've had our "William" Presidents, revered them then, revere them still.
But now it looks as if we'll have next term a President named "Bill."
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Just Like Home.

"Jane McFlimsy had a dreadful time trying to get any sleep when she went into the country."

"What was the trouble?"

"Why, she missed the noises of the city. I don't know what she would have done if it hadn't been for Tommy Highlow."

"What did Tommy do?"

"He got down on the floor and made a noise like a flat carwheel."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Objectively Considered.

Ruggles—What horsepower is your new automobile?

Ramage—Two, I guess. That's the horsepower it took to haul it to the repair shop when it broke down on a country road the other day.—Chicago Tribune.

Getting Closer Together.

The Wife—I don't think we'll be able to use that old hammock this year; it's shrunk awfully.

The Husband—Oh, that's all right. You know daughter's engaged, now. She'll naver notice it.—Yonkers Statesman.

Guesswork.

"How did Tandy lose his position in the weather bureau?"

"Why, he made seven correct predictions out of ten, and they thought he must be depending on guesswork."—Sacred Heart Review.

Not His Aunty.

Small Boy—I want some medicine to reduce flesh.

Drug Clerk—Anti-fat?

Small Boy—No; uncle.—Judge.

EYE-STRAIN

is directly responsible for the majority of cases of blindness today. If instead of trying to overwork the eyes, one would at once get glasses at the first warning of eye-strain there would be fewer cases of blindness at the present time.

Come to us and have your eyes examined free of charge and we will advise you what to do to save them.

CARE OF THE CELLAR AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

Cellars should be thoroughly cleaned and sweetened twice a year. They should be kept dry, clean and well ventilated, all moveables should be taken out, the floors cleaned and the walls and ceilings whitewashed. Dry borax should be scattered in the corners and along the sides of the wall where it joins the floors.

Dampness is usually the chief difficulty, the root of most of the other evils. This can be combatted by hanging bags made of cheesecloth filled with a mixture of plaster and lime wherever there is an inclination to dampness along the walls. The lime and plaster are very absorbent, and will greatly assist in reducing the moisture.

Water must not be allowed to lie on the floor. A damp cellar is a dangerous place.

The different kinds of vegetables should be kept in separate receptacles, which should be made of laths of wood like crates, so as to allow of perfect ventilation, while anything that shows signs of decay should be thrown away at once, as decaying vegetable matter is a source of danger to health.

If the outsides of the bins are treated to a coating of liquid camphor and the insides scalded with boiling soda water insects of all kinds will be found to be much discouraged.

If cellars or drains under the house are in bad order the heat of the rooms above draws the impure air upwards. The air of the whole house is thus affected by the foul air ascending. This is one reason why disease is often prevalent at the beginning of the cold season.

USING SUNDAY LEFT-OVERS.

The remains of Sunday's roast beef can be turned into a most delectable little entree for Monday's dinner if this recipe be followed:

Simmer some thick slices of peeled onion, turnip, celery and carrot in half a pint of milk until it is strongly flavored. Strain off. Make half a pint of sauce with the milk, using one ounce of flour and an ounce and three-quarters of butter to the half-pint of milk. Season t taste with pepper, salt, a very little Cayenne, and a few drops of lemon juice.

Take four ounces of finely-minced cold beef, mutton, or veal.

Note.—It must be minced by hand and be quite free from fat, but a little ham or tongue may be mixed with it if liked.

Let the sauce cool a little. Mix the meat with it. Spread the mixture out on a dish to the depth of an inch. Leave till cold. Shape into balls about the size of a small Tangerine.

Egg and bread-crumb these in the usual way, and fry in deep fat from which the blue smoke is rising freely.

Drain well on kitchen paper. Garnish with parsley and serve as hot as possible. Note that the mixture should be made early in the morning, as it takes some hours to cool.

HAVE WE AN IDEAL DRESS?

Sometimes it looks as if women might be coming to their senses for good and all in the matter of dress.

There appeared the other day at the shore what might be called the Ideal linen gown. It was white, close-fitting and a princess. It buttoned straight down the front—a long procession of little linen-covered buttons trailing from the fine little chemisette to the hem of the gown, which made it vastly appealing to folks whove been standing on their heads and putting their arms out of joint trying to fasten their own princess dresses down the back.

It had two generous patch pockets, placed one each side the row of buttons, a little below the waist line in front. It made you think of the befo' de wah" polonaise, pictured in ancient "Godey's Lady's Books" except that there were no bulky underskirts and looping arrangements.

The dress had exquisite lines, and was plainly a work of art. Yet nothing could be simpler than its one long line from head to foot, its obvious front buttoning and its open and unabashed pockets.

Wouldn't frocks like this solve lots of difficulties for hurried women who yet don't want to sacrifice sartorial beauty on the altar of a busy life.

Why He Became a Burglar.

A burglar, entering a country mansion at midnight, was surprised and captured by the owner, who said: "If you tell me what drove you to this business I will let you go?"

"Motors," replied the conquered one sullenly.

"In what way?" asked the master. "Were you a horseman?"

"No," replied the burglar. "I used to have one of the best beggin' stands in London, but how is a feller goin' to have any chance to beg from a man what' whizzin' past at thirty miles an hour?"

This novel excuse so tickled the master of the house that the intruder was promptly released and ordered to hurry away."—London News.

AUTHOR OF THE MAN ON THE BOX ETC.

"This is what comes of reading romantic novels,"—with a kind of grumble.

"I admit there never was a particle of romance on your side of the family," the girl retorted.

"Happily. There is peace in the house where I live."

"Do not argue with me."

"I am not arguing with you; I should be only wasting my time. I am simply warning you that you are about to commit a folly."

"I have made up my mind."

"Ah! In that case I have hopes," he returned. "When a woman makes up her mind to do one thing, she generally does another. Why can't you put aside this fool idea and go to the opera with me?"

"I have seen Carmen in Paris, Rome, London and New York," she replied.

(Evidently a traveled young person.)

"Carmen is your favorite opera, besides."

"Not to-night,"—whimsically.

"Go, then; but please recollect that if anything serious comes of your folly, I did my best to prevent it. It's a scatter-brained idea, and no good will come of it, mark me."

"I can take care of myself,"—truculently.

"So I have often been forced to observe,"—dryly.

(I wondered what it was all about.)

"But, uncle dear, I am becoming so dreadfully bored!"

"That sounds final," sighed the old man, helping himself to the haricots verts. (The girl ate positively nothing.) "But it seems odd that you can't go about your affairs after my own reasonable manner."

"I am only twenty."

The old man's shoulders rose and fell resignedly.

"No man has an answer for that."

"I promise to tell you everything that happens; by telegraph."

"That's small comfort. Imagine receiving a telegram early in the morning, when a man's brain is without invention or coherency of thought! I would that you were back home with your father. I might sleep o' nights, then."

"I have so little amusement!"

"You work three hours a day and earn more in a week than your father and I do in a month. Yours is a very unhappy lot."

"I hate the smell of paints; I hate the studio."

"And I suppose you hate your fame?" acridly.

"Bah! that is my card to a living. The people I meet bore me."

"Not satisfied with common folks, eh? Must have kings and queens to talk to?"

"I only want to live abroad, and you and father will not let me,"—petulantly.

"It's a Fool Idea."

The music started up and I heard no more. Occasionally the girl glanced at me and smiled in a friendly fashion. She was evidently an artist's model; and when they have hair and color like this girl's, the pay is good. I found myself wondering why she was bored and why Carmen had so suddenly lost its charms.

It was seven o'clock when I pushed aside my plate and paid my check. I calculated that by hustling I could reach Blankshire either at ten or ten-thirty. That would be early enough for my needs. And now to rout out a costume. All I needed was a gray mask. I had in my apartments a Capuchin's robe and cowl. I rose, lighting a cigarette.

The girl looked up from her coffee.

"Back to the dime museum?"—banteringly.

"I have a few minutes to spare," said I.

"By the way, I forgot to ask you what card you drew."

"It was the ten of hearts."

"The ten of hearts?" Her amazement was not understandable.

"Yes, the ten of hearts; Cupid and all that."

She recovered her composure quickly.

"Then you will not blow up the postoffice to-night?"

"No," I replied, "not to-night."

"You have really and truly aroused my curiosity. Tell me, what does the ten of hearts mean to you?"

I gazed thoughtfully down at her. Had I truly mystified her? There was some doubt in my mind.

"Frankly, I wish I might tell you. All I am at liberty to say is that I am about to set forth upon a desperate adventure, and I shall be very fortunate if I do not spend the night in the lock-up."

"You do not look desperate."

"Oh, I am not desperate; it is only the adventure that is desperate."

"Some princess in durance vile! Some villain to smite? Citadels to storm?" Her smile was enchantment itself.

I hesitated a moment. "What would you say if I told you that this adventure was merely to prove to myself what a consummate ass the average man can be upon occasions?"

"Why go to the trouble of proving it?"—drolly.

"I am conceited enough to have some doubts as to the degree."

"Consider it positive."

I laughed. "I am in hopes that I am neither a positive ass nor a superlative one, only comparative."

"But the adventure; that is the thing that mainly interests me."

"Oh, that is a secret which I should hesitate to tell even to the Sphinx."

"I see you are determined not to illuminate the darkness,"—and she turned carelessly toward her uncle, who was serenely contemplating the glowing end of a fat perfecto.

I bowed and passed out into Sixth avenue, rather regretting that I had not the pleasure of the charming young person's acquaintance.

The ten-spot of hearts seemed to have startled her for some reason. I wondered why.

The snow blew about me, whirled, and swirled, and stung. Oddly enough I recalled the paragraph relative to Mrs. Hyphen-Bonds. By this time she was being very well tossed about in mid-ocean. As the old order of yarn-spinners used to say, little did I dream what was in store for me, or the influence the magic name of Hyphen-Bonds was to have upon my destiny.

Bismillah! (Whatever that means!)

CHAPTER II.

After half an hour's wandering about I stumbled across a curio-shop, a weird, dim and dusty, musty old curio-shop, with stuffed peacocks hanging from the ceiling, and skulls and bronzes and marbles, paintings, tarnished jewelry and ancient armor, rare books of vellum, small arms, tapestry, pastimes, plaster masks, and musical instruments. I recalled to mind the shop of the dealer in antiquities in Balzac's La Peau de Chagrin, and glanced about (not without a shiver) for the fatal ass's skin. (I forgot that I was wearing it myself that night!) I was something of a collector of antiquities, of the inanimate kind, and for a time I became lost in speculation—speculation rather agreeable of its kind. I liked to conjure up in fancy the various scenes through which these curiosities had drifted in their descent to this demi-pawnshop; the brave men and beautiful women, the clangor of tocsins, the haze of battles, the glitter of ball rooms, epochs and ages. What romances lay behind yon satin slipper? What grande dame had smiled behind that ivory fan? What meant that tarnished silver mask?

The old French proprietor was evidently all things from a pawnbroker to an art collector; for most of the jewelry was in excellent order and the pictures possessed value far beyond the instrinsic. He was waiting upon a customer, and the dingy light that shone down on his bald head made it look for all the world like an ill-used billiard ball. He was exhibiting revolvers.

From the shining metal of the small arms, my glance traveled to the face of the prospective buyer. It was an interesting face, clean-cut, beardless, energetic, but the mouth impressed me as being rather hard. Doubtless he felt the magnetism of my scrutiny, for he suddenly looked around. The expression on his face was not one to induce me to throw my arms around his neck and declare I should be glad to make his acquaintance. It was a scowl. He was in evening dress, and I could see that he knew very well how to wear it. All this was but momentary. He took up a revolver and balanced it on his palm.

By and by the proprietor came sidling along behind the cases, the slipshod fashion of his approach informing me that he wore slippers.

"Do you keep costumes?" I asked

"Anything you like, sir, from a crusader to a modern gentleman,"—with grim and appropriate irony. "What is it you are in search of—a masquerade costume?"

"Only a gray mask," I answered. "I am to go to a masked ball to-night as a Gray Capuchin, and I want a mask that will match my robe."

"Your wants are simple."

From a shelf he brought down a box, took off the cover, and left me to make my selection. Soon I found what I desired, and laid it aside, waiting for M. Friard to return. Again I observed the other customer. There is always a mystery to be solved and a story to be told, when a man makes the purchase of a pistol in a pawnshop. A man who buys a pistol for the sake of protection does so in the light of day, and in the proper place, a gun-shop. He does not haunt the pawnbrokers in the dusk of evening. Well, it was none of my business. Doubtless, he knew what he was doing. I caughed suggestively, and Friand came slipping in my direction again.

"This is what I want. How much?" I inquired.

"Fifty cents; it has never been worn."

I drew out my wallet. I had arrived in town too late to go to the bank, and I was carrying an uncomfortably large sum in gold-bills. As I opened the wallet to extract a small bill, I saw the stranger eying me quietly. Well, well, the dullest being brightens at the sight of money and its representatives. I drew out a small bill and handed it to the proprietor. He took it, together with the mask, and sidled over to the cash register. The bell gave forth a muffled sound, not unlike that of a fire-bell in a snowstorm. As he was in the act of wrapping up my purchase, I observed the silent customer's approach. When he reached my side, he stooped and picked up something from the floor. With a bow, he presented it to me.

"I saw it drop from your pocket," he said; and then when he saw what it was, his jaw fell, and he sent me a hot, penetrating glance.

"The ten of hearts!" he exclaimed, in amazement.

I laughed easily.

"The ten of hearts!" he repeated.

"Yes; four hearts on one side and four on the other, and two in the middle, which make ten in all,"—raillery in my tones. What the deuce was the matter with everybody to-night? "Marvelous card, isn't it?"

"Very strange!" he murmured, pulling at his lips.

"And in what way is it strange?" I asked, rather curious to learn the cause of his agitation.

"There are several reasons,"—briefly.

"Ah!"

"I have seen a man's hand pinned to that card; therefore it is grewsome."

"Some card sharper?"

He nodded. "Then again, I lost a small fortune because of that card,"—diffidently.

"This Is What I Want."

"Poker?"

"Yes. Why will a man try to fill a royal flush? The man next to me drew the ten or hearts, the very card I needed. The sight of it always unnerves me. I beg your pardon."

"Oh, that's all right," said I, wondering how many more lies he had up his sleeve.

"And there's still another reason. I saw a man put six bullets into the two central spots, and an hour later the seventh bullet snuffed the candle of a friend of mine. I am from the west."

"I can sympathize with you," I returned. "After all that trouble, the sight of the card must have given you a shock."

Then I stowed away the fatal card and took up my bundle and change. I have in my own time tried to fill royal flushes, and the disappointment still lingers with a bitter taste.

"The element of chance is the most fascinating thing there is," the stranger from the west volunteered.

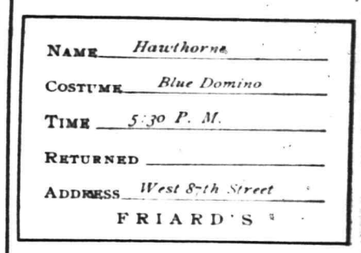
"So it is," I recalled, suddenly recalling that I was soon to put my trust in the hands of that very fickle goddess.

He nodded and returned to his revolvers, while I went out of the shop, hailed a cab, and drove up town to my apartments in Riverside. It was eight o'clock by my watch. I leaned back against the cushions, ruminating. There seemed to be something going on that night; the ten of hearts was acquiring a mystifying, not to say sinister aspect. First it had alarmed the girl in Mouquin's, and now this stranger in the curio-shop. I was confident that the latter had lied in regard to his explanations. The card had startled him, but his reasons were altogether of transparent thinness. A man never likes to confess that he is unlucky at cards; there is a certain pride in lying about the enormous stakes you have won and the wonderful draws you have made. I frowned. It was not possible for me to figure out what his interest in the card was. If he was a westerner, his buying a pistol in a pawnshop was at once disrobed of its mystery; but the inconsistent elegance of his evening clothes doubled my suspicions. Bah! What was the use of troubling myself with this stranger's affairs? He would never cross my path again.

In reasonable time the cab drew up in front of my apartments. I dressed, donned my Capuchin's robe and took a look at myself in the pier glass. Then I unwrapped the package and put on the mask. The whole made a capital outfit and I was vastly pleased with myself. This was going to be such an adventure as one reads about in the ancient numbers of Blackwood's. I slipped the robe and mask into my suitcase and lighted my pipe. During great moments like this, a man gathers courage and confidence from a pipeful of tobacco. I dropped into a comfortable Morris, touched the gas logs, and fell into a pleasant dream. It was not necessary for me to start for the Twenty-third street ferry till nine; so I had something like three-quarters of an hour to idle away. . . . What beautiful hair that girl had! It was like sunshine, the silk of corn, the yield of the harvest. And the marvelous abundance of it! It was true that she was an artist's model; it was equally true that she had committed a mild impropriety in addressing me as she had; but, for all I could see, she was a girl of delicate breeding, doubtless one of the many whose family fortunes, or misfortunes, forced them to earn a living. And it is no disgrace these days to pose as an artist's model. The classic oils, nowadays, call only for exquisite creations in gowns and hats; mythology was exhausted by the old masters. Rome, Paris, London; possibly a bohemian existence in these cities accounted for her ease in striking up a conversation, harmless enough, with a total stranger. In Paris and Rome it was all very well; but it is a risky thing to do in unromantic New York and London. However, her uncle had been with her; a veritable fortress, had I overstepped the bounds of politeness.

The smoke wavered and rolled about me. I took out the ten of hearts and studied it musingly. After all, should I go? Would it be wise? I confess I saw goblins' heads peering from the spots, and old Poe stories returned to me. Pshaw! It was only a frolic, no serious harm could possibly come of it. I would certainly go, now I had gone thus far. What fool idea the girl was bent on I hadn't the least idea; but I easily recognized the folly upon which I was about to set sail. Heigh-ho! What was a lonely young bachelor to do? At the most, they could only ask me to vacate the premises, should I be so unfortunate as to be discovered. In that event, Teddy Hamilton would come to my assistance. . . . She was really beautiful! And then I awoke to the alarming fact that the girl in Mouquin's was interesting me more than I liked to confess.

Presently, through the haze of smoke, I saw a patch of white paper on the rug in front of the pier glass. I arose and picked it up.



I stared at the bit of pasteboard, fascinated. How the deuce had this got into my apartments? A Blue Domino? Ha! I had it! Old Friard had accidentally done up the ticket with my mask. A Blue Domino; evidently I wasn't the only person who was going to a masquerade. Without doubt this fair domoiselle was about to join the festivities of some shop-girl's masquerade, where money and pedigree are inconsequent things, and where everybody is either a "loidy" or a "gent." Persons who went to my kind of masquerade did not rent their costumes; they laid out extravagant sums to the fashionable modiste and tailor, and had them made to order. A Blue Domino: humph!

It was too late to take the ticket back to Friard's; so I determined to mail it to him in the morning.

It was now high time for me to be off. I got into my coat and took down my opera hat. Outside the storm was still active; but the snow had a promising softness, and there were patches of stars to be seen here and there in the sky. By midnight there would be a full moon. I got to Jersey City without mishap; and when I took my seat in the smoker, I found I had ten minutes to spare. I bought a newspaper and settled down to read the day's news. It was fully half an hour between Jersey City and Blankshire; in that time I could begin and finish the paper.

There never was a newspaper those days that hadn't a war map in some one of its columns; and when I had digested the latest phases of the war in the far east, I quite naturally turned to the sporting page to learn what was going on among the other professional fighters. (Have I mentioned to you the fact that I was all through the Spanish war, the mix-up in China, and that I had resigned my commission to accept the post of traveling salesman for a famous motor car company? If I have not, pardon me. You will now readily accept my recklessness of spirit as a matter of course.) I turned over another page; from this I learned that the fair sex was going back to puff-sleeves again. Many an old sleeve was going to be turned upside down.

HOPE CAMPERS BESET BY TROUBLES ON THE ROAD

The fifteen members of the Hope Boys Club, who started for the Schleif farm back of Washington's rock, reached the selected camp site after a "tempestuous" trip yesterday morning. Accidents made them hustle as they never had before but perseverance finally conquered and they were rewarded by seeing tents up and dinner served at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They were all roused up by the high wind that howled around the canvas corners at an early hour this morning and sleep was out of the question until shortly before daylight. But for all that, the out-door life is being enjoyed to the limit.

The boys left the chapel at 8 o'clock yesterday morning with all their paraphernalia piled high on Tom Eganey's carry-all. They had gotten as far as Prescott place and South Second street on the way to Dunellen when the axle of the gig bent double and they had to unload. A junkman was pressed into service and for $1.50 he contracted to haul the outfit to its destination, little realizing what he was up against. Everything went well until the steep mountain road near Garretson & Gray's stone crusher was reached when the horse realized what was ahead of him and balked. No amount of coaxing, pleading or urging could make him behave and once again the boys had to unload. This time they divided the baggage and formed a pack train, each one carrying some part of it to the rock, a mile distant. The tents were transferred first and "Berry" Marsh put them up while the other campers built fires and got the grounds in shape.

The boys will remain at the rock until next Saturday afternoon. A military routine will be followed out each day and it is a foregone conclusion that everyone will come back to town declaring that he had the best time in his life." They will be visited by members of Hope chapel tomorrow night and Rev. L. R. Howard will conduct a religious meeting.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. rooms. Rev. Mr Beck will preach.

Rev. H. N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, occupied the pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at Ashaway, R. I., on Saturday.

DROP THE WHITLEY CASE.

Chief of Police Harkey, of Caldwell, has dropped the case of Mrs. Mabel Whitley, heiress to $100,000 of the Fair millions, who said she was attacked by a stranger in her room on Friday night, and young Mrs. Whitley, to escape the notoriety occasioned by the attack, has departed for Boston.

Dr. Lewis to Work in Ohio.

At a meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist Tract Society on Sunday, it was decided to send Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis to Jackson Centre, Ohio, in the fall for the purpose of undertaking home mission work. The denominational churches in that part of the country are in need of evangelistic work and have appealed to the society for help in this direction. The annual report of the denominational publishing house in this city was received, and it was shown that the aggregate busisness of the year was a twenty per cent. increase over that of the year before. The Memorial Board of the denomination also met on Sunday, but only routine business was transacted.

Transacted Routine Business.

Only routine business was transacted at the July meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, last night. The report of the medical director for June follows: Number of patients remaining at last report, 32; admitted, 54; total number treated, 86; discharged cured, 41; improved, 6; not improved, 1; died, 2; remaining, 36; hospital days, 937; operations, 54. In the dispensary; patients, 56; visits of patients, 166; operations, 14. In the isolation ward two cases of contagious disease were received.

For J. B. R. Smith.

It was automobile No. 1910 that collided with a West Fourth street trolley car at Plainfield avenue, Sunday night, but further inquiry has failed to disclose the owner or occupants of the machine. The auto number is not registered at any of the local garages, it being a very old one.

Will Organize G. O. P. Clubs.

The Union County League of Republican Clubs will meet on Tuesday night, July 21, at Elizabeth, to further plans for the coming campaign. It has been decided already to appoint representatives in every city, borough and township for the purpose of organizing clubs and enrolling members.

Corra Adams, of Grove street, left last Saturday for a two weeks' stay at Camp "It," Budd's Lake, where several Plainfielders are spending the summer.

PLAN ATHLETIC MEET.

Hope Chapel Boys' Club to Conduct Series of Events Saturday Afternoon.

The Hope Chapel Boys' Club will conduct an athletic meet on the grounds adjoining the gymnasium, next Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. All members wishing to compete are requested to make entries to Joseph Muir, chairman of the athletic committee, on or before Friday night.

The following events have been planned: Standing broad jump, running high jump, standing high jump, running broad jump, potato race, twelve-pound shot put, 100 yard dash, rope climbing and tug-of-war. In the event of sufficient interest being shown, several other meets will be held during the summer.

Mrs. Doretta Ludovici.

Mrs. Doretta Ludovici died Sunday, July 12, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ferguson, 1088 Arlington avenue, aged 84 years. She was the widow of Henry Ludovici, formerly of West Dunellen, at which place she resided for over forty-five years. She leaves four children, W. E. Ludovici, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Joseph Ferguson, of Arlington avenue; Mrs. Charles Ellin, of Greenbrook road, and Henry Ludovici, of West Dunellen. The funeral service was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home.

Heavy Loss at P. S. C. Plant.

During the heavy electrical storm Sunday night, an armature was burned out at the local electric plant of the Public Service Corporation, causing damage to the extent of nearly $1,000. This crippled the station for a short time, until the load carried by that dynamo could be turned over to the Metuchen plant. In the meantime a force of men was put to work repairing the damage, but through the arrangement with Metuchen, Plainfielders did not suffer any material loss in the way of light.

"Get a Horse."

Gus Hendricks, of West Second street, entertained a party of friends from this city, Sunday, and attempted to do the honors by taking them to Duke's park in an automobile. The machine broke down at the Harris lane crossing and the rest of the journey was made by trolley. Gus announced on returning home that his sight-seeing parties will hereafter be transported by the old style horse-and-wagon method of locomotion.

Celebrated Birthday Anniversary.

Louis Bennett, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Bennett, of Duer street, celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of his birthday, yesterday, and in the afternoon a number of his young friends in the neighborhood called and had an enjoyable time observing the event.

Miss Kathryn Rigney, of Waterbury, Conn., is spending the month of July with her cousin, Mrs. Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place.

Jacob Hamm.

Ellsworth C. Westcott, of East Front street, returned this morning from Pittsburg, where he and his wife were called by the illness and death of the latter's father, Jacob Hamm, of Dayton, Ohio, which occurred on Saturday morning. He was visiting his daughters in Pittsburg, when he was suddenly taken ill and passed away within a few days. His four daughters were with him when he died. Mr. Hamm was a native of Germany, coming to this country when a mere boy. He spent the greater part of his life in the vicinity of Pittsburg and Dayton. He was a honored member of the Sixth Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery. He was seventy-six years of age. Mrs. Westcott is still in Pittsburg, attending the funeral services which were held at 9 o'clock this morning.

P. C. C. Tennis Tournament.

The Plainfield Country Club will hold a men's doubles tennis tournament on Saturday, July 18, and Saturday, July 25, which will be open to the residents of New Jersey and to other clubs and players by invitation. Play will commence each day at 2:30 o'clock and the committee may require matches to be played off during the week between July 18 and 25. On account of this tournament, the Plainfield open championship tournament, men's singles, will not be played until August 1, the details of which will be published later. Entries for the approaching tournament should be sent to Thomas M. Day, 740 Carlton avenue, by 8 o'clock Friday night. Mr. Day will act as the referee.

FORT AS HOST TOMORROW

He Will Entertain Five Former Governors and Former and Present U.S. Senator.

BIG CHIEFS IN BASEBALL.

Fort Postpones Giving Game Until Soreness From Fall Off Horse Has Disappeared.

Men of prominence from all parts of New Jersey, including five former Governors, three former and two present United States Senators, ten Congressmen, members of the Legislature, have been invited to Sea Girt tomorrow as the guests of Governor Fort. The list includes former Governors John W. Griggs, George T. Werts, Foster M. Voorhees, Franklin Murphy and Edward C. Stokes, former United States Senator Rufus Blodgett, James Smith, Jr., and John F. Dryden and United States Senators John Kean and Frank O. Briggs. The party will be entertained at luncheon and later will have a chance to see the review of the regiment. Next week the Governor will invite all the heads of departments at Trenton and a number of the members of various State commissions.

The citizens-soldiers of New Jersey have had a busy time in camp yesterday and have hardly a minute to themselves. The first and third battalions have had a number of strenuous drills, both morning and afternoon, and the second battalion put in a day on the rifle range trying to qualify as marksmen and sharpshooters. During the week the entire command will have work on the ranges, thus acquiring skill with their rifles, as well as in executing the various movements.

In the early morning each company goes through a drill under the rules laid down in Butt's manual, and this limbers them up for the day's work.

Captain T. E. Murphy, a member of the United States Coast Artillery, is at Sea Girt for the encampment making observations, and when the encampment is concluded he will issue a report to the national government, under the provisions of the Dick bill. This is the first year the State encampment has been run under the rules and regulations of the national army.

There is a great preponderance of young men in the Third Regiment. Army men say this is more so than ever before known to them, some of them placing the percentage as high as twenty-five, under the age of twenty years. Most of them are recruits, and they are being put through all the paces possible under the guidance of the older men in camp.

Big Chiefs to Play Ball.

Governor Fort has always been an admirer of the national game, baseball, and it is planned to give him a chance to compete in a contest. The staff of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins will, in all probabilty, be picked out for slaughter by the members of the Governor's staff, and the game promises to be an interesting one. General Collins himself weighs more than 300 pounds, but this has never daunted him from taking part in games in the past, hiring a small boy as a runner.

The pitchers have never been able to pitch balls around him so he always got his base by being hit by a pitched ball. Governor Fort declares that he will play baseball before next week, for it will take until then to get over the soreness which he has been nursing since being thrown from his horse yesterday morning. He was a little stiff today, but went to Trenton to attend to State business.

MAJOR MARTIN COMING.

Rifle Champion Expected to Be in Camp On Saturday.

Major William B. Martin, to whom Governor Fort on Tuesday sent a telegram congratulating him on his great work in the international rifle match at Bisley, England, is expected to return in time to go into camp at Sea Girt with the Second Regiment next Saturday.

Major Martin, who resides in Elizabeth, and was formerly captain of Company K, of this city, is one of the most popular officers of the Guard and has long been ranked among the best rifle shots in the country. At Bisley he tied with W. F. Lueshner in making the highest score, after being behind him until the shooting took place on the 1,000-yard range. In the match America beat England by 35 points, and Canada by 92 points.

Rector and Choir Boys in Camp.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector, and the choir boys of the Church of the Holy Cross, are now enjoying life at "Camp Comfort," Cambridge, N. Y. The camp will be maintained for the next two weeks.

TO UNVEIL A STATUE OF "LADY OF MOUNT CARMEL"

In commemoration of the annual celebration of the feast day of "Our Lady of Mount Carmel," a handsome statue of the Virgin Mary will be unveiled at St. Mary's Catholic church, Stony Hill, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The exercises, which will be elaborate, will be in charge of the pastor, Rev. Father Schwartz, assisted by a number of visiting priests. The ceremonies will begin with the celebration of a solemn high mass in charge of Father Schwartz and three assisting priests.

There will be special music by a band from New York, and a feature will be vocal solos by Joseph Regan, aged fourteen, soprano at St. Peter's church, New York.

The statue, which has been purchased by the Rosary Society of the parish, cost $100. Mrs. Thomas Exener, assisted by Mrs. Mary Fezenia, was at the head of the committee in charge of raising the funds. The officers of the society are as follows: President, Mrs. Thomas Exener; vice president, Mrs. George Wall; secretary, Mrs. William Morrell; treasurer, Mrs. Francis Debie.
